We leave our children a real fortune if our legacy to them is moral character, courage, and religious faith. Against these, the government can assess no inheritance tax.

New Province Created in South Africa

Capetown, April 15 (CP)—The South African parliament has, in effect, created a new province as the fifth for its Union.

The south west Africa affairs amendment act passed by parliament last night by 91 votes to 70 gives representation to mid-west Africa, a mandated territory, in the Union parliament.

The bill, when signed by the Governor-General, will make the territory an elected representative in the Union House of Assembly—Lower House of South Africa's bicameral legislature—and four to the Senate.

Nothing as been said officially about a new name for the territory but ex natal newspaper already has started a competition for the best suggestion.

Although the nature of the bill is clear, calling south west Africa the sixth of a province, great care has been taken not to use the words "incorporation" or "annexation."

However, the effect is the same. The form German colony began its climbo provincial status in 1946.

West Also Anxious

Then, then Field Marshal Smuts as Minister of Justice presented to Union at the United Nations general assembly in San Francisco the U.N. refused to authorize incorporation of the territory in the Union. Smuts returned to South Africa and proceeded with his plans as though the Unit Nations has said yes.

He said the "integration" instead of incorporation."

Smuts explained that the union government was entitled, under the terms of the mandate, to do what we contemplated. He was loudly applauded in Windhoek, the territory's capital, when he declared afore a large open-air gathering that "southwest Africa is amuch a part of the union as my rm is part of my body."

Smuts maintained that the "C" mandate which the Union has held ov southwest Africa since the ed of the First World War gives the right to administer the territr as though it were an integ part of the Union.

And that is precisely the atti tude Dr. Malan who took over, on th lans at least, when Smuts left off.

Belleville quality and fine reputation of ophthalmic lenses made in Belleville is maintained by the care and attention supplied by AO inspectors who visually check the lenses many times during the complex production cycle.

Tireless guardians over AO lens quality, these inspectors reinforce the visual skill they have acquired through training and experience with manufacturing knowledge gained by AO through years of producing the best in ophthalmic lenses. The tireless efforts of AO lens inspectors exemplify the skill and craftsmanship that is the proud possession of all AO Belleville employees. That's why professional men prescribe AO lenses for their patients . . . for they know the lenses will measure up to the highest of specifications . . . will insure patient satisfaction.

Social Worker Guest Speaker

Mrs. Dermot Morrah, formerly Gertrude Smith Russelsader, one of Britain's most experienced social workers will be the guest speaker at the annual closing meeting of the Women's Canadian Club on Thursday afternoon in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, will speak on "Social Problems as Confronting the World."

After the address, there will be an afternoon tea and shower provided for the displaced persons in the British zone of Germany. A reporting speaker, Mrs. Phillip Carrington, referred to this shower suggesting that games, such as ping-pong, baseballs, basketball gloves, or any sport equipment would be acceptable, as they were practically nothing at that for the D.P.'s young people. Illustrated books on Canada, babies layettes, children's clothes would be welcome donations, failing this, cash would be equally acceptable.

Mission and Baby Bands Entertained

By Stone Ch. W.M.S.

4th Sidney—The W.M.S. of Stone Church entertained the Mission and Baby Bands on Tuesday afternoon. The school children, in company with their teacher, Mrs. Loveday, a reading in tables with their mothers were present. Eighteen members of the W.M.S. were in attendance and a few visitors.

Mrs. F. Tucker, Mission Band president, presided, and called on Herbie Whitefield to take the worship service. The Scripture lesson was read by Marlene Loveday. A reading "Working Together in a Friendly Way" was given by Herbie Whitefield and a song by girls, "Christ the Melody." Mrs. Tucker then took charge, using as Easter hymn, and poem, "Song of Joy for Spring."

Mrs. Chisholm, president of the Baby Band, was in charge of the graduation exercises, three members being promoted to the Mission Band Department. This was followed by a reading by Mrs. Gray, "Jesus Loves the Little Children" and the Baby Band prayer was given by Jeanette Twiddy.

Three of the Mission Band officers, Alma Bonter, Mrs. Cecil Bonter and Mrs. Ralph Bonter, circled around the three new members, singing, "Welcome Song." "A Song of Spring" rendered by Jack Rushnell and Anne Gray completed the program given by the children.

Mrs. Mary, secretary of the Belleville Presbytery of Mission Bands, then spoke on the great work needed by the children, expressing "Baby Band Welfare in China." She stated that conditions were so bad that only about one out of the babies lived, but now with hospitals, and clinics, there was a great improvement. There were no magazines or literature in China to help the youth, through the aid of some Canadian helpers, Mrs. McGillivary started publishing a paper entitled "Happy Childhood." This paper is still kept up by the Missionary. Miss Margaret Brown, who is attending the Trenton Presbyterial, and who has recently spent in China returning again in October to Knox College, Toronto.

Mrs. Tucker closed the meeting, inviting all to examine the display of work which was on exhibition on the long Mission Band table.

Mrs. R. B. Phillips, W.M.S. look charge of a short program which followed dealing with the minutes and business, after which reports were given by Mrs. W. Tufts, secretary, Mrs. Ralph Bonter, the highlights of the Presbyterial, asking that Mrs. Self's challenge be remembered. "Doing the impossible is the Glory of Living," and that "God has placed something in the hands of each of us to do." After the close of the meeting, the children enjoyed themselves at the fish pond, which had been arranged for them.

Refreshments were served by the members of the W.M.S.

'Semi-Literates' Turned Out in Secondary Schools Ontario Teachers are Told

Toronto, April 19 (CP)—A proposal to graduate "more efficient" students from Ontario's common and high schools through co-operation between business and teachers was made today by J. A. Mitching, of St. Catharines, to the 29th annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Ontario Commercial Teachers' Association, meeting in conjunction with the O.E.A., Mr. Mackitching, office manager of Thompson Products, Ltd., at St. Catharines, told the teachers: "You have a tremendous job to do for the economic good of our country and for the welfare of our boys and girls, but you can't do it alone."

He proposed an organization with representatives from the Commercial Teaching Qualification, the National Office Management Association, the Ontario Department of Education and other educational and business groups.

Some 1,000 delegates from organizations representing every phase of educational activities are attending the three-day meeting, in public halls and schools across the city.

Other speakers had a more theoretical trend. In an address prepared for delivery today to English and History teachers of the O.E.A., Dr. J. M. Paton, English professor at Montreal High, Que., said "semi-literates" were being "mass produced" by secondary schools.

Exams Unsatisfactory

"Traditional" examinations in literature and composition are unsatisfactory, Mr. Paton said. Another cause for the situation was through the aid of some school psychologists in Canada with-out a standard course in teachers' and classroom space.

He suggested a national bureau of educational tests and measurements which would create standardized tests "objective" reading and language tests.

A. G. McColl, director of the Canadian Education Committee on practical education, told members of the Ontario Secondary Schools Headmasters' Association that educators were concerned with the number of students leaving school before completing secondary education.

In a speech prepared for delivery today Mr. McColl said that the 1941 survey showed that half of the male working force had less than eight years of schooling —the normal period for public school education. Only eight per cent had 18 years or more.

Not Comparable

He said the opinion of Agricultural Representatives today was that rural boys and girls did not get comparable educational opportunities to those of urban children.

The school health section of the convention was told by Dr. A. T. Church of Hamilton's department that "unwholesome home conditions are the most common causes of delinquent children."

In his address prepared for delivery today, Dr. Church said delinquent children usually have a home life of "social inadequacy, poor heredity, low moral standards and family criminality."

He said there was a definite trend in developing personality and "the most important school influence is the character and personality of the teacher."

Must Be Continuous

In another convention address today, delegates to the Science Teachers' Association of Ontario were told that teacher education in Ontario "must be a continuous program."

Dr. J. M. McConkey, professor of field husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, in a speech prepared for delivery today, said "overall conservation and land utilization plan in each province . . . we must plan for the future."

A change in teaching methods in geography was advocated by Dr. S. C. McCune of Colgate University, Hamilton, N.Y., who told the geography section of the convention that "the three R's have slipped into grooves and ruts and has lost its place as a discipline for tomorrow's citizens."

A dinner meeting of delegation from Ontario was held by Education Minister Porter of Ontario that evening. He was satisfied — insofar as this is humanly possible — to be fair to all and share in educational opportunity."

"Nothing could be more dangerous than misplaced confidence in our education system," Mr. Porter said. Mr. Porter said "where there is a high level of education, propaganda cannot get a start as evil influence." He said education has taken "its place of unprecedented importance in the preservation of our society."

Dr. Ira Dilworth of Montreal, head of the CBC International service, suggested a careful screening of teachers to bar those with unsatisfactory outlook on life. Such a screening would not be concerned with detecting "political and social 'isms'."

Talk on Schools In Tennessee Given Association

The April meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association was held in the main auditorium. For the first part of the program the parents were entertained by the boys' band under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper. The band played a number of popular marches and tunges and was thanked for its program by Mr. Tanner.

The short business portion of the evening was presided over by the president, Mrs. J. Layton. Mrs. Stevens gave an interesting report of a recent meeting called to consider the opening of a Vocational Guidance Institute. It was attended by 1-a-number of superintendents and other representatives from local factories.

Sarfor School Hours

Mr. R. H. Tanner as convenor of programs presided for the balance of the evening. He called on several speakers for reports of schools in other lands.

Mrs. John Deacon gave an interesting talk on schools in eastern Tennessee. One interesting fact brought out was that the children there had school from 8.30 to 3 with a short noon hour. By doing this the children had much more time outside in sunlight. Music was stressed even more than it is in this way through the school grades. The pupils passed through the grades from public school to junior high to high school.

Schools in England

Mr. Tanner gave a report on schools in England, and told of the different system of school used in England. Mrs. R. Heins answered a number of questions asked by the audience on schools in Holland.

An interesting discussion followed with a good number taking part.

At close of meeting most of the parents stayed for refreshments served by the mothers of Grade 8 under Mrs. Franklin Martin's leadership.

MUSIC ACROSS BORDER

Wife Presents

QUICK PROGRESS

Vancouver — (CP) — After 17 years in the Royal Canadian Navy, Wrensh-rman John Sheridan decided to tie up golf. Today, three years later, he is a full-fledged professional at the Capilano Club here.

Tomorrow, April 20th., Mrs. Mary Ellen Jones, Donald Street, will receive congratulations and best wishes from a wide circle of friends as the owner of her 91st birthday.

In honor of the occasion a quiet party is being arranged by Mrs. J. W. Jones, at which relatives will be welcomed to visit with the guest of honor. Mrs. Jones is the sister-in-law of Mrs. Fox and has lived at the Fox home for the past nine years.

Born at Ivanhoe, Mrs. Jones was the former Miss Mary Ellen Fox. Following her marriage she lived in the Crookston district area and came to Belleville, at the death of her husband many years ago.

During her advanced years Mrs. Jones enjoys remarkably good health and eyesight. She is still able to knit and read and even does fine crochet work. Through the medium of the newspaper and radio she keeps herself well informed on the events of the day.

Mrs. Jones has two children, a son, Arty, on the homestead, in Huntingdon township, and a daughter, Mrs. Lila Bates of Windsor.

TABERNACLE EVENING AUX.

The Tabernacle Evening Auxiliary had their April meeting on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. Lockyer.

Mrs. R. Farnsworth added to the program a very lovely Easter message that was deeply appreciated.

Mrs. A. Miller conducted the business and Mrs. G. Gilmour read the last chapter of the Study Book. The work of the Auxiliary has been very interesting all through.

The president Mrs. R. Lockyer had some very beneficial notes from the Presbyterial held at Picton April 8.

Everyone enjoyed having Mrs. Jones as a visitor and appreciated the fine suggestions she had to offer during the business discussion.

The evening was brought to a close with refreshments and a social get-together.

ST. ANDREW'S GILEAD W.M.S.

The meeting of St. Andrew's Gilead Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Huffman on Wednesday, April 23, with an attendance of seventeen.

In the absence of the president Mrs. C. Pegg, Mrs. Gerald Living took charge of the meeting, following the business period, Mrs. Livingstone led in an inspiring Easter worship service, assisted by Miss Livingstone, Mrs. Trevarton and Mrs. J. Huffman during which the Easter hymn—"Christ the Lord is Risen Today"—was sung. Mrs. Pegg, convener for the month, Mrs. Rollins, then took charge of the study period. Three members gave some interesting thoughts from the Presbyterial. Readings were given by Mrs. W. Sine, Mrs. W. Yorke and music by Mrs. Douglas Yorke and Mrs. O. Bertrand.

The meeting closed with the watchword, after which the hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. Trevarton, the president of the W.A., reported that $35 had been realized from the pie social held in March.

WALLBRIDGE W.A.-W.M.S.

Wallbridge—The Wallbridge W.A. held their April meeting at the home of the President, Mrs. M. Phillips. During the business period delegates were chosen to attend the W.A. convention later in the month. There was also a discussion about some new carpet for the church. It was decided that a committee, consisting of Mrs. Jas. Sine, Mrs. S. M. Nicolson and Mrs. H. Ketcheson, meet the church board on Tuesday evening next to make final arrangements.

Mrs. J. Smith kindly invited the societies to meet at her home for the May meeting.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. C. Pegg, Mrs. A. Clark had charge of the W.M.S. meeting. The theme for this meeting was "A New Advance in Christian Missions" and took the form of an Easter program and the Worship service as given in the Missionary Monthly was followed with Mrs. S. Nicolson and Mrs. H. Phillips reading the Scripture Lesson.

Christian Missions were born on Easter Day and the first message of the Risen Christ to His Disciples was—"Go tell the World". "Pentecost followed Easter and after receiving the gift of the Holy Spirit, they went forward and became the founders of the Christian church. Today the foundations of a new world are being laid, and in the face of the world's need the churches of North America are called to unite in a great advance in Christian Missions and to make this possible, every member by study of the Bible, and by prayer prepares his soul and to make possible the gift of God's Spirit by which we may have a share in this great work."

The treasurer's report showed that $823 had been sent to the branch treasurer in the first quarter of the year. Mrs. H. Ketcheson gave a reading, "Worship", "We show love to God most as we serve our fellowmen."

Afternoon tea was served by the hostess and afterward a sale of home-cooking netted the W.A. about $7.

Mrs. Phillips was thanked for her hospitality.

SINGING STARS—Louise Roy of St. Boniface, Man., right, and Morley Margolis of Winnipeg smile happily after winning the sixth series of "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" radio broadcast auditions from Toronto's Massey Hall. Over 500 were auditioned, and 44 selected to appear on the weekly broadcasts. Miss Roy was grand award winner and received a $1,000 cash scholarship. Mr. Margolis was top award winner for men and received a $750 scholarship. (CP Photo)

25th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green, 18 Dundas Street, were at home on Sunday afternoon to a host of relatives and friends, who called to wish them well and offer sincere congratulations on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

During the afternoon tea was poured by Mrs. R. J. Miles, Mrs. A. E. Miles, Mrs. Ernest E. Miles; Misses Rosalyn and Beth Robertson and Dorothy Rohrer very graciously served the guests, while Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowden and Mrs. Harold Hunt replenished the tea table, assisted by Miss Joyce Miles. Other assistants were Mrs. John Miles and Mrs. W. T. Miles of Detroit, Mich.

Tea Table Attractive

The tea table was attractive with a dainty lace cloth and centred with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake topped with a dainty bouquet of sweetpeas. Tall white tapers in shining silver holders added to the attractiveness of the table.

Marmora—The April and Annual meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. H. Connor and Mrs. R. E. Neal, with Mrs. E. C. Prentice presiding. Owing to Lenten service and choir practice in the Anglican Church, the attendance was smaller than usual there being twenty members and two visitors present. Mrs. Clancy, district president, was present.

After the opening exercises minutes of the previous meeting, financial report and correspondence, were read. The chief item of interest to local Institute members is the renovating of the town hall, and the purchasing of stage curtains, a lengthy discussion took place. It was announced that the Marmora Tweedmuir Scrap Book was being returned (it had been entered in the exhibit of Ontario books compiled by the various Institutes.) Two prizes went to St. George Institute and another Western Ontario one.

The annual fee has been raised from 25 cents a year to 50 cents and the paying of dues for 1949-50 was the roll call for the evening.

Mrs. Prentice, the retiring president; thanked the members for their loyalty and co-operation in her term of office and asked for a continuance of the same for her successor. Mrs. Clancy was asked to conduct the election of officers. The nominating committee Mrs. J. Rice and Miss Grace Warren had prepared the slate of officers as follows:

President, Mrs. Eugene Brady; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Percy Gray; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Harold Nayler; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. Warden Chrysler; Pianist, Mrs. L. R. Rundle; District Director, Mrs. Louis Green; Directors, Mrs. R. E. Neal, Mrs. W. Grant and Mrs. A. Crossen; Auditors, Mrs. F. Grant and Mrs. R. E. Neal, Sr.

The president-elect then took charge of the meeting. Mrs. Clancy gave a helpful talk on "Spreading Sunshine and Helping Others", emphasizing the motives which should be the ideal or pattern for all Institute members. The Institute was then favored with Mrs Clancy for her address. Refreshments were served by the hostess and committee.

Miss Sharpe accompanied Mrs. Clancy.

Phillies and Senators Score Surprising Victories Over Boston Braves and Athletics

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The major-league baseball season opens with a full schedule today following surprising early victories by Philadelphia Phillies and Washington Senators.

Thanks to Ken Heintzelman, a 32-year-old "graybeard," and newcomer Clyde Vollmer, the Phillies are and Senators stole a lap on the field Monday in the only two games played.

Heintzelman shut out the favored Boston Braves 4-0, spoiling the National League champions' pennant raising ceremonies. Vollmer came through with a ninth-inning single that beat Philadelphia Athletics 3-2.

Both games were played under poor weather conditions and only 9,195 paid to watch the Braves hoist their pennant. Some 26,000 joined President Truman at Washington's Griffith Stadium.

Chill, damp weather threatened to slice today's crowds. Cincinnati, sold out since Christmas as usual for its date with St. Louis Cardinals, won't be hurt, but the others may be.

Brooklyn hopes to crack its home opening record of 31,648 with New York Giants as an attraction. The weather span was not optimistic.

Chicago expects 30,000 to see Rip Sewell, winner of nine opening games, pitch for Pittsburgh Pirates against the Cubs. Sewell, better than ever at 4 , was to be opposed by another "kid," 39-year-old Dutch Leonard.

Play Doubleheader

The Phils and Braves, who beat the gun Monday will top their opening day with a double-header.

Detroit expects 50,000 to see Hal Newhouser face the feeble Chicago White Sox. New York Yankees hope for 40,000 for their opener against Washington in Yankee Stadium.

The world champion Cleveland Indians meet St. Louis Browns with 15,000 or less expected in the stands in the latter. Leo Cronin Mack is counting on 25,000 at Shibe Park for the A's first home start against the powerful Boston Red Sox.

On the games Monday, Dick Fowler, the former Toronto boy, apparently had victory No. 1 all sewed up at Washington, with a 2-1 lead going into the last of the ninth. Successive Leo Cassini double by Sherry Robertson and Ed Stevens lost the game for Fowler. After Fowler loaded the bases, Vollmer came through with his game-winning pinch hit.

Rae Scarborough, one of the better pitchers in the league, went all the way to edge Fowler with a seven-hitter.

Heintzelman did a remarkable job on the Braves, mowing down the champions with ease. Johnny Sain was wild in the first, walking two men and the bases were loaded by the Eddie Sawyer's alert Phils all the runs they needed.

Canadian Negro Setting Sights On Boxing Title

Philadelphia, April 19 — (AP) — L'il Arthur King, rated by many as the best scrapper to come out of Canada since Vancouver's Jimmy (Baby Face) McLarnin, has designs on the world's lightweight title. But not while Ike Williams wears the crown.

"I'm not even good enough to hold Ike's gloves now," said the 22-year-old British Empire and Canadian champion from Toronto, "but he's older than I am and will grow older faster." Williams is 25.

But the 135-pound Canadian Negro makes no bones that he'll go after the championship when Williams either steps down or is beaten. He tells you that "Ike is the boss, and a good one, of the lightweights" but almost in the same breath he adds he can lick any of the other contenders.

"Arthur is one of the finest boys I have ever trained," said Jimmy. "He never makes the same mistake twice, is willing to learn and packs a wallop in his left hand."

L'il Arthur is thankful for the day he left Toronto and signed to fight for the Philadelphia partnership of Frank (Blinky) Palermo and Frank Palumbo. Palermo and Palumbo also manage Williams.

King won the British Empire crown in London with a seven-round technical knockout over Billy Thompson.

He's won 13 fights under his new managers for a professional record of 26 triumphs, including 10 knockouts, in 29 outings since turning pro at the age of 18. He later squared accounts with the three fighters who beat him.

Ottawa Senators Take Marlboros By 5-2 Score

Ottawa, April 19 — (CP)—The boys that were sure Toronto Marlboros would have an easy time skating over to the Allan Cup finals are singing a different tune today.

Ottawa Senators, bouncing back from a 5-0 defeat in the opener last Friday in Toronto, turned the tables in convincing fashion to score a 5-2 victory over Marlboros Monday night, tieing the best-of-seven Eastern Canada senior hockey series at a game apiece.

Led by sharpshooting centreman Nils Tremblay who treated 7,764 fans to a neat three - goal effort, the Senators looked like a new hockey team after a two-day layoff, their first test in a week.

In contrast to the leg-weary style they put on in Toronto, the Quebec Senior Hockey League champions outskated and outshot Marlboros for about three-quarters of the game.

Third game will be in Ottawa tonight with the teams returning to Toronto for the next game Thursday.

Senators shone during the first period as they took a 2-0 lead. Emile Dagenais tallied at 10:41 on a pass from Buddy Hellyer and Tremblay got his first less than four minutes later when, with Toronto a man short, a shot by Ray Trainor bounced off the centre ice goalie Howe Harvey.

Ottawa made it 3-0 at 2:22 of the second frame when Johnny Check scored on a passing play with Dagenais and Hellyer.

Marlboros broke loose with two goals in 49 seconds, their only goals of the night, McCormack firing the puck past Bill (Legs) Fraser. Defenceman Hal McLellan's goal while McLellan returned the compliment by setting one up with Chuck Blair to set up McCormack's counter.

Tremblay scored his other two goals on passes by Dartnell and Jack Ivetts during the last 12 minutes of the exciting and high-scoring second frame. The final period was scoreless and hockey was ragged by comparison with the rousing first three frames.

Harvey, chunky Toronto goalie, played a great game as the Senators tested him regularly with tough shots from all angles and close in.

His protection was lax at times as Marlboros had trouble clearing out of their own zone and he had to do some fast moving to block what looked like sure goals.

Brandon Making Experts Look Good in West

Calgary, April 19 (CP)—Back in the early stages of the hockey season the western experts went out on the limb and picked Brandon Wheat Kings as the team to win the western Canada junior title and represent the west in the Memorial Cup finals.

So far the Wheat Kings haven't let them down and today they are within two games of making the experts look good. Monday night they downed Calgary Buffaloes 5-2 to take a 3-1 lead in games in their best-of-seven series for the western championship and the right to meet Montreal Royals in the Memorial Cup finals.

The clubs now shift to Brandon with the fourth game scheduled there next Thursday. The fifth game, and sixth if required, also will be on the Wheat Kings' home ice.

Brandon Monday night forced the lighter Buffs to carry the play to them throughout the game and relied on the breaks of the game to give them chances for dangerous scoring sorties.

Brandon took a 2-0 lead in the opening period, led 2-2 at the end of the second and outscored Buffs 2-1 in the final 20 minutes.

Brandon's great defensive play brought them their victory. Twice they held off Calgary forwards while playing two men short—for 37 seconds in the opening period and a 17-second stint in the second.

Brandon again goalie Ray Frederick turned in a sensational performance for the winners, blocking shot after shot and twice robbed Calgary forwards of seemingly sure goals when they were in the clear in front of him.

New York April 18 (AP)—Nice guys won't necessarily finish last in the major baseball leagues this season because, by edict of presidents Ford Frick and Will Harridge, they will all have to be nice guys this season . . . even Billy Southworth was heeding Frick's latest edict after reading Frick's latest bulletin, which not only forbids "riding" the umpires but rules out saying anything that might irritate an opposing player. Moreover, if a guy can lose a pitcher out of the game just for throwing a ball that happens to brush a batter back from the plate . . . said Southworth: "The authority of the umpire is being constantly increased, whereas the pitcher is being penalized more and more restrictions" . . . From the American League, the sporting news brings word of Jimmy Dykes' plaintive bleat that catches can't see by reason of the opposing pitcher by name, let alone using some of the fancy pitches they don't know . . . Dykes wants to know if he's supposed to applaud when somebody strikes one of the Athletics out.

Halifax, April 19 (CP)—Long-ring eyes and itchy palms appear to be-aimed at the Canadian middleweight diadem atop the head of George Ross.

Logical contender Pete Zaduk of Guelph is among those who hanker for a swipe at Ross' crown. Alex (Halifax Chronicle-Herald) Nickerson recalls October's Ross-Zaduk title bout when the two fought a draw. "A return match," says Nick, "would probably end on points or in the distance figures for the Ross-Fyle bout last January."

Switching to arrangements for such a bout, Nick says that Halifax promoter Jimmy MacLellan has been trying to conclude a deal with Zaduk's promoter, Sammy Keller.

Nick reports: "This week, in a letter to MacLellan...Manager Keller said he would be delighted to show his man in the Garrison City—for a flat guarantee of $2,500."

MacLellan apparently howled the demand was "absurd". Nick quotes Guelph as complaining: "Len Wadsworth, when he was middleweight champion, never demanded more than $1,200 to defend his title in Maritime rinks." Why Zaduk, only the challenger, should want twice as much as beyond MacLellan's comprehension.

"A tip-off may be Keller's recent statements...in which he says that Zaduk, not Ross, is the Canadian champion," says Nick. "He bases his claim on the fact that Zaduk, who went to a draw with Ross last October at Glace Bay, had the champion on the deck and almost out.

"Ever since, he has screamed that Zaduk was the victim of a 'hometown decision'," adds Alex. "It is true that Ross narrowly escaped a knockout that night. Nevertheless he came back to punch all the way with Zaduk and earn a draw."

Of the match itself, Nick asserts: "Halifax qualifies as a neutral centre and if Sammy Keller is really down his price to a reasonable sum, the bout will be held ...the end of this month."

Junior Finals Must be Played In West Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association "sympathizes" with the Montreal Forum but "all Memorial Cup final games must be played in the west this year," C.A.H.A. President Al Pickard of Regina said in an interview on Monday night.

"There is nothing we can do about it," Pickard said. He was commenting on a dispatch from Montreal quoting General Manager Frank Selke of the Montreal Forum as saying he would ask the C.A.H.A. to allow some of the games to be played in that city.

"At our last general meeting it was decided the Memorial Cup finals would be played in the West and the Allan Cup in the East," Pickard said. "We can't help it, but the junior finals must be played in Western Canada."

Three members of the Toronto Maple Leafs, World's hockey champions for the third successive year, Monday signed 1949-50 contracts and made plans to return to their Saskatchewan homes for the Summer. No salary figures were announced.

Max Bentley will be going back to Delisle, Garth Boesch to Stonestone and Vic Lynn to Saskatoon.

At Ottawa, Sault Ste. Marie Algos Monday night advanced into the semi-final round of the Dominion Intermediate Basketball playoffs when they downed Morrisburg Sailors 53-37. They took the best-of-three total-point series with the Sailors 93-75. The semi-final series will be staged in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., while Algos will meet Mount Allison University in another two-game, total-point series for the right to advance against St. Francis Xavier of Antigonish, N.S., for the Dominion championship.

The 1949 World Series will be an All-Boston affair in the opinion of the major league baseball writers of the United States. In an annual pre-season poll conducted by the Associated Press 70 out of 120 scribes picked the Red Sox to defeat Cleveland Indians in the American League. The world champions drew only 43 first place votes and trail Joe McCarthy's men in total points, 873 to 902.

The defending champion Braves of the National League drew fewer first place ballots than Brooklyn—44 to 32—but piled up enough seconds and thirds to nose out the Dodgers, 938 to 858 points.

The entire coaching staff of the Hamilton Tigers, Ontario Rugby Football Union champions, has been lined up with the weekend signing of Murray Griffin, former Ottawa Roughriders star, Tiger officials announced Monday at Hamilton. Griffin will act as chief coach and will not play. Sam Brasfield will be line coach with Merle Hapes of Jackson, Miss., in command of the backfield.

St. Catharines Ontario Minor Hockey Association teams duplicated a hockey feat of the 1945-46 season here Monday night, when they won three championships in one season in juvenile, midget and bantam competitions. The Maroons took the midget title Monday night with a 6-4 overtime victory over Toronto Marlboros at St. Catharines while the juvenile and bantam clubs won their trophies recently.

Vancouver Clover Leafs, defending Canadian Senior Basketball champions, Monday night at Vancouver laced Winnipeg Pailins 62-43 in the first contest of a best-of-five series to determine western Canada's representative in the Dominion finals.

At Newport News, Va., pitcher Don Newcombe, who once was assigned a $500,000 price tag by Branch Rickey, Brooklyn Dodgers president, has rejoined Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League. Manager Clay Hopper said the Royals' manager decided there had been any differences in training camp at Vero Beach, Fla., and that the Negro hurler had left in a huff. Rumors hinted that Newcombe was dissatisfied at being kept with the parent Brooklyn Dodgers and left camp when he was returned to Montreal.

IT'S A HABIT—For the third consecutive year, Toronto's Maple Leafs are holders of the Stanley Cup, symbol of National Hockey League championship. The Leafs tucked the title under their belts Saturday night at Maple Leaf Gardens when they defeated the Detroit Red Wings 3-1 to make it four straight games. Here Captain Ted Kennedy is presented with the cup by Clarence Campbell, N.H.L. president, while Conn Smythe, left, and Coach Hap Day, right, beam approvingly. (CP Photo)

Marathon Experts Expect Cote Will Win Long Race

Boston, April 19. (AP)—Most Marathon experts have agreed that little Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., will plod today to his fifth victory in the gruelling Boston A.A. marathon.

At least 20 others were poised to start at noon, E.S.T., on the hilly grind over the course of 26 miles, 385 yards. The four-time victor was expected to be pressed by Sweden's Karl Posta Leanderson.

Leanderson has been training terrifically for the last three weeks. He has gone over the course several times. His times have been verging on the sensational, in fact threatening the course record of 2.25.39 set by Yun Bok Suh of Korea two years ago.

Suh had high hopes of taking another whirl this year, but the last word B.A.A. officials had from him was that he was stranded in Tokyo, awaiting plane passage.

There were three other former winners in today's starting field, but none rated serious consideration. Two-time winner Johnny Kelley of Boston—he won in 1935 and 1945—appeared a bit too old for such a grind.

And so did Joe Smith of Medford, the 1942 winner, and, especially the 61-year-old Clarence Demar, who has won this classic seven times since 1910 and is known as the "Daddy of all marathoners".

Running such a long distance, over a rugged course, appears to be just about the most difficult of sports competitions. With that in mind, there actually were only a few guys who appeared to have a chance to win.

There were such canny rivals as Veree Van Zant of San Francisco, who finished third last year; the always-threatening Kelley; Ollie Mannisen of the B.A.A.; Lloyd Evans of Quebec, and, perhaps, but not likely, some strong-legged unknown, to outwear and out-distance all others.

Other Canadians expected to start include Len Lawrence, Niagara Falls, Ont., and Ab Morton, Galt.

Not Impressed With Statement Of the Russians

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

So the magazine "Soviet Sport" claims the Russians invented ice hockey. It seems the steppes are stepped in ice hockey tradition because, says the Reds, the game was played as far back in history as old Russian literature (how old is "old"?) and it was "perfected as far back as the middle of the last century."

Well, comrades, we know Russia is a land of ice and possibly the Joes have been skimming over the steppes for years, but we don't get that word "perfected." Hockey historians in Canada could make the claims look like the tail-end of a night's vodka binge if they didn't figure the whole thing too silly to talk about.

However, this bureau conducted a country wide survey by mental telepathy. The thought waves may have been garbled, and none of the gentlemen listed below is responsible for them, but they came in something like this:

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League: "Wonder what they have the 'C' form over there?"

Jack Adams, Detroit Red Wings manager: "I wish we had met Moscow Dynamos instead of Toronto in the Stanley Cup finals. We'd have used laughing gas on our bus."

Danny Lewicki, central figure in the dispute over the N.H.L.'s contract: "Maybe if I'm suspended in Canada I can play with the Leningrad Lions, eh?"

Tommy Gorman, Ottawa: "Aw, the Russians are wrong again. I'm too young to really know about it, but Conny Smythe invented hockey."

Smythe: Don't let Gorman kid you. He once tried to make the Minks but they traded him to Ottawa."

Hap Day, coach of Toronto Maple Leafs: "Oh, Happy Days. I'll bet uncle Joe would make me an all-star coach my first year."

An unidentified Hallgonian: "Ha, this sounds like the Kingston (Ont.) gold war a few years back. Hockey originated right here, not in that prison town."

Bobby Locke Back in Game, Wins Tourney

Virginia Beach, Va., April 19.—(AP)—Bobby Locke, 31-year-old golf star from South Africa, is back on his game, he said today, after winning his first tournament since returning to the United States several weeks ago.

Locke cruised around the par-69, 6,065-yard Cavalier Country Club in 68 strokes Monday to beat Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, in an 18-hole playoff for the $10,000 Cavalier Specialties Tournament title. Stranahan carded a 70.

When Locke went back to Johannesburg after making last summer's circuit, he held one major crown and finished second in three other tournaments. The Cavalier test was his fourth since he returned this year.

There were times Monday when the 32-year-old Canadian appeared well on the way to victory. He played the first nine holes in 34 compared to Locke's 35 but he slipped to a 36 on the back nine as the South African got hot to finish with 33.

It was Locke's fourth sub par of the tournament. The event gave Locke $1,500 first money plus 50 per cent of Monday's gate receipts.

Makers Claim Actress Has Only Herself to Blame

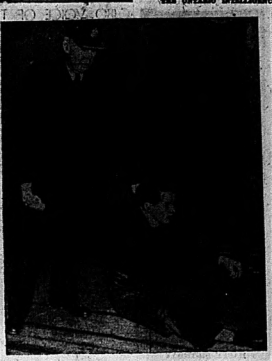
New York, April 19 (AP)—The makers of Prell Shampoo said Monday actress Tallulah Bankhead has only herself to blame if John Q. Public thinks of her when he hears of "Tallulah The Tube" in a shampoo radio jingle.

The Proctor and Gamble Soap Company said this in answer to a $1,000,000 damage suit Miss Bankhead has started over the Prell Shampoo jingle.

Her lawyer has claimed the singing commercial, which calls a tube of shampoo "Tallulah," used the actress' name to an "offensive and humiliating" manner.

But Proctor and Gamble, through its lawyers said Miss Bankhead by starting the suit "and by subsequent interviews with the press, has sought to identify herself in the public's mind with Tallulah The Tube."

Proctor and Gamble claimed the name "Tallulah" has been applied to "a wide variety of inanimate objects."



It cited a telephone, a tanker, a spring water, a town, a school, a lodge, paper products, a post office, a soft drink, and a railroad station.

Miss Bankhead's counsel claims her first name is so unusual that use of it alone identifies her "in the public mind."

The actress said: "I've yet to endorse a floor wax, a flea powder or a wart remover, a cigaret or a hookah pipe. I'll undertake Mr. Proctor and Mr. Gamble, their aides, their allies and their echoes."

In Montreal's strike-bound harbor 29 seamen bound for Great Britain to man a newly constructed Canadian ship were attacked while still asleep aboard the cargo-liner Beaverburn. Police said about a dozen men boarded the ship and worked their way to the cabins where the men slept. The clash was the most violent since the Montreal navigation season opened last week in the midst of strike called by the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) after Canadian shipowners signed an agreement with the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.)—Central Press Canadian.

Woman Believed Drowned in Lake

Toronto, April 19 — (CP) — Lifesavers searched stormy Lake Ontario waters off suburban Scarboro Monday night for a 42-year-old mother, feared drowned after having been rescued once Monday.

Bob Clements, owner of Scarboro Boat Livery, said the woman — her identity undetermined — loitered around his dock for two hours Monday. He was called away and returned to find her in the water.

He told police he went through three feet of water to pull her from the lake and left her in his boathouse. While he went to get coffee, the woman disappeared. An immediate search of the water and the high cliff area nearby failed to locate the woman.

New Signs in the Sky...

A distant hum and a flashing streak in the outer sky announce another exciting Canadian achievement—a new jet plane designed and built by Canadians—one more example of the meteoric advances made by Canadian skills and manufacturing abilities.

In Canada, too, giant airliners, which have won international recognition, are now being built for the world's air routes of today and tomorrow.

Today our production—both in extent and variety—has attained heights undreamt of even ten years ago, creating new opportunities in every field of activity for the talents and enterprise of young Canadians.

Increase of air traffic today
Canada's commercial aircraft carry more than four times the number of passengers and three times the amount of mail they did in 1939.

"Countless New Opportunities..."

"...sometimes find it hard to realize the extent and rapidity of our plane's growth. As an aircraft engine manufacturer, the tremendous expansion of Canadian industry in general, which has created countless opportunities in every field, affects the energy and enthusiasm of young Canadians," says HARRY J. Sell, of Kitchener.

The development of Sohl Engineering is a typical Canadian success story. Only 14 years ago, Mr. Sohl, a die shop in Kitchener, began repairing small tool and gauges. With the outbreak of the war, came larger orders, with the addition of production added, new space, more established and a new plants built. Today the company, with 90 employees, is fast becoming one of the leading metal producing concerns in the country.

Seven tricks have already been taken. The contract is no-trump. South is the declarer and is now in the lead. How can he take five of the last six tricks against any defence against any defence?

To take any early trick with the spade king can ruin his chances. East could then throw his heart ace thereon to keep from having his hand thrown in for an endplay.

When dummy then tries to get out with a heart, it will be won by west instead of east. This will frustrate all chances of his plans to get a later club lead. Only four tricks will be got.

Give east no chance to shift his heart ace. The correct club lead from south at first should be avoided. Instead, win a small club from south with the dummy club king.

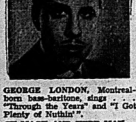
Cash diamond king and shift a small south club. On these first two tricks both opponents are compelled to follow suit. Now lead the dummy heart four and east is forced to win with the ace.

Having no other suit by now, east must return a club. No doubt it will be the queen or jack. South wins this with the ace of clubs.

But see the position west is in when east comes out with the club. Having none, west must discard from one of his other suits.

The three cards held by west are diamond queen and heart four with trey. If he lets go of diamond queen, dummy sheds a diamond. Spade king and dummy diamond take the last two tricks.

On the east club return should west chuck one of his spades? If he does, dummy throws away spade king for a trebleck. The south five and deuce of spades will then take both last tricks.



Share Dollars In E.R. Program

Paris, April 19 (AP)—Socialism and private enterprise appear to be rubbing shoulders amiably in the almost-no-dollar phase of the European recovery program.

Hollywood, April 19 (AP) — Jack Benny, still a top star after nearly 30 years in the movies, says he's here to stay.

"I guess I've got too much ham in me to retire," he admitted on the "Bandwagon" set. He said he tried it back in 1936, when he was flush with money and popularity. For four months he lolled around the Hawaiian islands.

"I couldn't take it any longer than that," he said. "I was bored to death. Maybe I just don't have enough blue blood to be a playboy."

Carmen Unhappy

Dennis Morgan indicates a death knell has been sounded for "his Two Cents" series with Jack Carson. "The public doesn't want that kind of stuff any more," he said. "They want plot." The last of the series, "Two Guys and a Gal" (Doris Day), has been retitled "What a Wonderful Feeling."

Meanwhile, Carson goes to Columbia for "Good Humor Man" and is vocal about his unhappiness with Warners. He doesn't like the brush-off he has been given in recent pictures there.

Barbara Stanwyck is an author. A new book, Fancy Pants, is out. But she said on the "Pile on Theresa Gordon" set she is already at work on a novel about modern marriage. And she's thinking of penning her memoirs after she's retired, she's an avid reader — about 100 books a month.

Gloria Dehaven is happy at M.G.M., after years of discontent. She claimed she didn't have any friend at the studio, but now she's getting some attention. She goes into "Summer Stock" with Gene Kelly and June Allyson. Remember how wonderful the girls were in "Two Girls and a Sailor"? then June shot ahead and Gloria got lost.

Britain, but Britain is an example of E.R.P. aid being split two ways public and private.

The manager of a private tool works in the south of England told a curious visitor recently: "We have the Marshall plan in our souls."

Directly or indirectly, E.R.P. aid reaches the British coal mines and railways which the Labor government has taken over since 1945. Steel is next on the list for nationalization.

However, these schemes were in the works before E.R.P. was born. It is hard to find evidence to argue that E.R.P. has stirred stimulated or retarded Socialism in Britain. At least Conservative-party industrialists have not seen fit to make any evidence public.

Plucky Girl Credited With Saving Baby

Sudbury, April 19 — (CP) — A plucky 15-year-old girl was today credited with saving the life an 18-month-old baby in a fire which swept through the interior of a one-storey house in suburban Gatchell, Monday night.

Showing complete disregard for personal safety, Joe Anne Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hamilton dashed through a flaming rear shed and a smoke-filled kitchen into a bedroom to rescue Wayne Cowdery, 18-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Cowdery, whose home was badly damaged in the fire.

Fire Chief Alex Anderson, of the Gatchell fire department, said today there was no doubt that the baby would have been lost if the girl had not got him out on time. He declared the smoke was so heavy that the baby would have been smothered in a few minutes.

Governor Dewey Signs Bill to Aid Power Project

Albany, N.Y., April 19 (AP) — Governor Thomas Dewey today signed a bill he said brought New York State "a step closer" to construction of the proposed $400,000,000 St. Lawrence power project.

Continued deferment of the project, Dewey added, now will be "solely the responsibility of the federal government."

The measure permits the state power authority to issue bonds to finance the development without first having contracts for disposition of resultant power, as previously required.

Dewey's plan to build the project jointly with the Province of Ontario was blocked last December when President Truman refused to give the State the necessary federal approval.

Congress now has a Truman-sponsored bill before it to create a $1,000,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway project, which would include both navigation and power facilities.

Reports from Washington have indicated, however, that the legislation will not be acted on at this session of Congress.

Prime Minister Addresses Appeal To CCF Groups

Regina, April 19 (CP)— Prime Minister St. Laurent Monday addressed an appeal to C.C.F. supporters in Saskatchewan not to deny to his Liberal Party the federal power which, he maintained, is far beyond the grasp of the parties which rule them and of any other.

Last week he directed it at the Social Credit adherents of Alberta. Its core was both frank and plain: The "difficult" years ahead require stable, majority government and only the Liberals are capable of winning it in a federal election.

He spoke before 2,700 persons in an address which climaxed his one-day siege of this Saskatchewan capital, fifth of 10 cities on his western schedule. He speaks in Saskatoon today.

Earlier, at a press conference, he indicated that in the event the Liberals are returned as the largest party but without a clear majority they would carry on alone until the Commons demonstrated a lack of confidence in them.

No Light on Election

His three no lights on the election date but he said the June 15 date for a provincial vote in conjunction with British Columbia does not rule out a summer election for all Canada.

Mr. St. Laurent also told his press conference—not a regular feature of his visits—the Liberals anticipate victory in five of seven Newfoundland federal ridings; that he wouldn't predict how the party will do federally in Saskatchewan but that he is told the C. C. F. isn't as potent as it was.

Communists silently picketed the armory, where he was speaking, with placards bearing such slogans as "the Atlantic pact means war" but there was virtually no heckling at the meeting itself.

Mr. St. Laurent's political predictions about the election outcome were blunt. The C.C.F. supporter, he said, could honestly believe his party could establish a majority in Canada this year. No Social Crediter would believe his party could do it. As for "the Tories," Canadians didn't want a return to the last century.

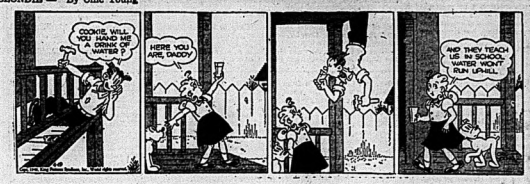
Little Benny's Note Book

I termed the radio on to help me with my homework, and ma said to pop, There he goes again, William. I cant keep my mind on this lesson problem while that radio is carrying on, and it's a mistery how you can read your paper and follow one word with nother. But the biggest mistery of all is how Benny can consentrate on his homework, she said.

It reminds me of the case of another boy I heard about, pop said. It seems this boy couldn't do anything, even eat, unless he was playing a mouth organ at the same time. It got so that it was impossible to ask him a serious question or send him on a serious errand. His parents got quite worried about what was going to become of him, until finally his father got the idea that any boy who could talk so fluently on a mouth organ should have the makings of a great mathematician pop said, and ma said, I cant see what the 2 have in common.



That's what the boy's mother said, pop said. But his father explained that a boy who could count all those little holes with his tongue and add up all those notes with his lips must have an unusual head for figures. So he sent the boy to Professor Einstein's School of Higher and Higher Mathematics, and naturally the boy's mouth organ distracted the attention of the other students, so Professor Einstein put him off by himself in a separate classroom with his problems and his mouth organ, and a talent scout passing outside the window heard him playing, and now he's known far and wide as Larry Adler the harmonica virtuoso, because he had the name of his mouth organ legally changed to harmonica. So starting with this evening, Benny, you will retire to your own room and do your homework to the accompaniment of your own radio, and anything else happen, he said.

Which it else.

Sidney Juniors Hold Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Sidney Junior Farmers and Junior Institute was held in Johnstown school house. Before the meetings began, two films entitled "Hot Ice" and "Thrift with a Purpose" were shown by Mr. Clarence Seeley. The joint meeting in charge of Orval May opened with the minutes of the last meeting read by Harleigh Hubble.

Mr. Ronald Longwell, speaker from the Federation of Agriculture, asked the clubs if they would petition the township council in order to get them to raise the grant to the Federation, so that the films provided by the National Film Board through the Federation will still be available to such groups as the Junior Farmers. The motion was brought before the members, but it was not carried.

It was decided not to enter a team in the Commercial Softball League of Belleville. Further plans were laid for the annual Spring dance to be held in the near future, the final arrangements being left to the dance committee. The clubs decided to invite the Hawdon Junior Farmers and Junior Institute to the next meeting which will be held in Frankford Community Hall. The recreation for the next meeting was left to Leslie Bird, Douglas Harry, and Robert Armstrong. Joan Morris and Robert Armstrong were elected as delegates to the Junior Farmer Conference which will be held in Guelph during April 24, 25, 26. Loella Homan and Orval May were chosen as managers of the track entries for the clubs on the field day. Mr. Clare Finkle from the Foxboro Co-op. the guest speaker for the evening, gave an account of the "Quinte Health Scheme." The meeting was then adjourned and the girls and boys held their separate sessions.

The girls' session was in charge of Joan Morris the president. After the reading of the correspondence, plans were made to enter a softball team in the field day competition.

The boys' session was in charge of the president Orval May. It was decided to enter a team in the field day and Orval May was chosen as manager while Lorne Harry was chosen as the captain. It was also decided to get sweaters for the team.

The two clubs then came together for a cocktoole party and refreshments served by the Institute.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"My mother—she who knew a lot of things—always said I'd be a one-woman man. I see a lot of girls here. . . ."

"There's Evelyn," said Mac. "Yes, but . . . but . . ."

Mac nodded. "I know. She doesn't have red hair."

There were times when Gay thought she did not love Alan any more. She thought, "I have not thought of him all day." But there were other days, despite the unpleasant situation at home and Gregg's attentions, when the thought of him never left her.

The circumstances at home were becoming intolerable.

One night Penny said like an humble child, "I'm sorry, but I'll have to move, Gay. I have to have it quiet when I work and Patti has the radio on and talks to people over the phone. I'm sorry. She isn't," said Penny, "very nice to me. She seems to resent people who work for their living. I've tried to be nice to her."

Gay said, "Don't go just yet. I don't want you to go. Give me a little time. Do you," she asked, "ever hear from Mac?"

"No. Never." Her lower lip trembled.

"And there will never be anyone else for you?"

"I want only Mac," Penny said with stubborn sweetness. "You are a lot of Gregg these days. I like him. He's in love with you, Gay." Sitting up in bed, she hugged her knees. "Do he's a bored young man. He has seen too much. There's nothing left for him to explore. His curiosity is all gone. Rents and Mac have had to fight for everything, they're still curious and interested."

It was when Gay saw Patti lunching with a former admirer several days later that she decided the affair had reached a climax.

She called Richard's Washington house. The butler said, as if he expected her to know, "Mr. Miles is still abroad." But she did not believe that. Richard, after his quarrel with Patti, had stayed in Paris.

That night she walked to the hotel where Richard always stayed when he was in New York. He was registered. He was in. Gay took the elevator to his room and knocked.

A girl, a little blonde thing, opened the door. Richard, seeing Gay, put down his cocktail glass and got up.

"Hello," he said. He looked embarrassed and then indignant. "If you've come about Patti..."

"She's your wife," said Gay.

"She left me," Richard said sullenly. He turned to the girl. "Eva, would you mind waiting down in the lobby for me? It'll take only a few minutes. We won't keep you long."

When the girl had gone, Gay said, "Richard, stop lying to me, and to yourself. A few minutes, I suppose, to write the end to marriage and to tell me what you think of my sister. You want to undo in a few minutes what you've been years trying to accomplish."

He picked up the glass again. "She was unbearable."

"You knew her four years before you married her," said Gay. "I'm not counting her for anything. I know her disposition very well. But I don't believe you want to end your marriage for this or any reason. You haven't given it a fair trial. You're not a person to take it lightly."

"She left me," he said, "because I wouldn't beat her on ration coal. That's how much I meant to her! I came back on the next boat. I've been here in New York ever since. She left me and if she wants to see me, why did she not come?" He paused and said, "I went to see your family lawyer. I called at the old apartment and new people were living there."

"You know them."

"I'm very sorry for you," said Richard.

"Don't feel sorry for me. If you want to fix up with Patti, come and get her. She wants to come back to you, Richard. You're the only person who can manage her. Because you stayed away, her vanity is hurt."

"Mine was hurt, too."

Gay cried, "What children you both are! To ease your vanity, you've been going to parties with a girl you were openly noticed before. Patti had lunch with Ronnie Webster today! She wants her hurt vanity soothed, too. Oh, Richard, stop this and come and get her! She's not as good as you feish! Mother and I are working. We have surely enough to keep ourselves. But we've been keeping your wife which you've been taking gifts — gifts like Eva — to parties!"

"It does seem rather silly," he said. "Gay, she'll stop wanting everything she sees . . . I'm well fixed but I can't buy ermine coats and emeralds. I despise an extravagant woman."

"Won't you come home with me? She'll be so glad to see you. She hates where we live."

Richard Miles hesitated a moment. Gay's eyes pleaded.

"All right," he said, "but all I'll have to see Eva a minute and call up another chap to take her to that party."

They took a cab back to the studio. Gay's mind was full of hope he would ask Diana to go to Washington to live with them.

If Diana went to Washington, she and Penny could still keep the studio. Patti would not be there to irritate Penny.

And without the constant worry of her mother, perhaps she could decide how she felt about Gregg. He had said he wanted to go to England in the summer and she knew he wanted to take her as his wife.

As his wife she would have none of the problems that vexed her now. What did Patti call her ideas on love and marriage? — "Story-book idealism."

"Hut, I can't marry a man I'm only fond of," she thought, looking out the cab window at people hurrying to shelter from the piercing cold. "I don't want Chris to hate me for turning toward a safe harbor. As long as Alan is free, I'll feel that I belong to him." Alan. Alan. Sing out of my thoughts . . .

Richard followed her up the dark steps.

When she opened the door, Patti looked up. First her eyes were rebellious, then they softened and the appealing look of guilt mingled with the sudden tears. Richard! Yes, it was Richard. And she knew, though she could never love as genuinely and as fiercely as Gay loved, that he was good for her. He would take her back, take her away from this wretched life where people counted pennies . . .

Richard said, "Patti, Patti, darling . . ."

She ran to him and put her arms around him.

"Why didn't you come sooner? Oh, why didn't you? I'm so sorry, Richard. We were crazy to let one little quarrel . . . Oh, darling, when have you been while I've been waiting for you? You look tired, Richard. Take me away. I've been so unhappy here."

"We'll go home, Patti."

Her bright eyes turned on Gay. "Nobody here wanted me. Every one's been beastly to me. Gay and Mother — I don't know them any more. They're snobs. Mother's empty as any other day. She'd like Gregg and be casual with him because she did not love him . . . because Alan and all that had gone before with Alan stood between her and other men. But any day she would be so tired and, remembering Diana's weariness, she would tell him that she would marry him.

Marchand called Gay to his office one morning. They were no longer the enemies they had been at first. He admired her, she was an excellent model, and Marchand, ever the business man, valued the patronage of Millicent Randolph.

"Now," he said, "I have some really good news for you."

"You're not going to fire me, I hope." She had not taken off the little brown silk turban. It was spotted with rain. Her red curls were damp. On the lapel of the greyish winter suit was a corsage of violets. Violets that Gregg had sent. Every morning there was a corsage with a message of devotion. Her shoes were tall — heeled brown ones with little flat bows.

"On the contrary," he said. "You've done well. You can, as they say, take it. You're plucky and you look after your appearance. Now," he said, "I'm going to make you the most talked of and most envied model in New York."

She smiled. "I'm already the most talked about. But not envied. You know I hate publicity."

"Good publicity never hurt anyone. Do you know Mrs. Wentworth Brent?"

"She has millions," said Gay.

"A very charitable woman, too. She's going to give a charity ball and she has asked me to put on a fashion show. It will be the usual thing, of course. Sport clothes, afternoon clothes, evening clothes. It will finish with a wedding procession." He leaned back in his chair. "I've selected you for the bride. But I anticipate a little trouble with the other manikins. They resent you now. They'll resent you more keenly when they know of my selection. We'll go into details about the costumes and the rehearsal later."

There was an undercurrent of talk in the dressing room all morning. Heretofore the other models had ignored her and'excluded her, but they had never given her any trouble or made any scenes.

She laughed with Gregg that noon.

"Something is troubling you," he said.

She told him.

"I hate scenes," said Gay. "I don't shout at people. But I am frightful scenes ahead at the shop, terrible jealousy. It scares me."

"And publicity, too, Gay, don't go through with it. Don't stop me now. I didn't want to propose to you in a restaurant, my dear, but you're making me do it. I don't want to see the picture of the girl I love in every newspaper, modelling a wedding gown. Marchand hopes some other girl will buy."

"Gregg, you ask me to marry you but there are so many things to be considered." She smiled. "I may as well be frank. I'm not in love with you. I like to be with you and you've been a marvelous friend in need, but changed a great deal, I know, but I'm still clinging stubbornly to my love for Alan. I'm afraid of it. I'm sorry to tell you this."

"You're honest, at least."

"I can't leave the shop now. I've managed to exist this winter because Marchand gave me a job out of pity. He needs me now and I've got to stand by him."

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District — The ladies of the Baptist W.M.S. met recently at the Aiken's W.M.S. on Thursday afternoon at their Easter thank offering meeting. Mrs. Clare Millar contributed a solo, "Stranger of Galilee." A social hour followed while all together of old friends and new friends made Mr. J. F. Moon as hostess.

Mr. Moon's examinations over the children of the local schools are enjoying a week's holiday.

The Tuesday afternoon the children of Quinte View and Bayside school district were under the supervision of their teacher, Miss Campbell and Miss B. Gilbert, assisted by Inspector Mr. J. F. Warren, Inspector R. H. Macklem and supervisor Mr. Edwards.

Mrs. Jeffery and Mrs. J. Kelly of Trenton were Friday tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones. They also attended Good Friday service at White's Church.

A special service was held at White's Church on Sunday morning with the Rev. Roy Rickard as guest speaker assisted by the pastor, the Rev. A. C. McCallum. An inspiring sermon was enjoyed by the members of the congregation as well as members from Centenary and Wesley and visitors from other communities. The choir assisted with two Easter anthems and Mrs. Clare Millar as soloist sang "The Stranger of Galilee."

Mr. D. Moore and Miss Sheila Moore spent Easter Sunday with the former's brother, Mr. David Moore, Mrs. Moore and family at Napanee.

Miss Mary Rush of Toronto is the Easter holiday visitor of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush. Mrs. Harry Rush of Colborne spent a few days at the same home.

A severe electrical storm passed over this district on Good Friday morning.

Mr. Virgil Peterson of Campbellford was an Easter week-end guest of Mr. Donald Sandercock.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sanders, Jack, Janet Sandercock, also Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sandercock and Mrs. Jane of Toronto were Easter Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Clements and son of Prince Edward were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Brown.

QUITS USING LAXATIVE PILLS

Keeps regular now with famous cereal

Is constipation a serious trouble with you? Then read this uncolicited letter:

"I was sick and constipated, reached the point where no sort of pill helped. Then my mother said I should try ALL-BRAN. So I ate ALL-BRAN every day. It's hard to believe, but I was regular in a few days," Mrs. Lucien Kelly, 6 Delaserres Street.

You, too, may forget you ever had constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet when you eat some of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a wholesome regulating cereal. Eat as a cereal or in muffins for constipation relief. If after using a package you are not completely satisfied, get your money back. Directions printed on the package. Get delicious ALL-BRAN at your grocer today. Made by Kellogg's of London, Ontario.

Great Dollar Problem Still Faces Nation Says Wilson

Early Federal Election Hinted

Ottawa, April 20 — (CP) — Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, said today enumerators' instructions were sent to federal returning officers two months ago.

The returning officers were told to be ready to begin enumeration on receipt of telegraphic advice from this office," said Mr. Castonguay.

He was commenting on a Toronto report which stated that all federal returning officers in Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls districts have been instructed by Ottawa officials to be ready to begin enumeration on 24 hours notice.

The Toronto dispatch said one returning officer had been told by Mr. Castonguay that there was "distinct possibility election writs might be issued before the coming week is out."

"The returning officer who said that is talking through his hat," said Mr. Castonguay.

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— All Federal returning officers in the Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls districts have been instructed by Ottawa officials to be ready to begin enumeration on 24 hours notice, the Telegram reported today.

One returning officer interpreted this to mean an early summer national election was scheduled. He said he had asked chief election officer Jules Castonquay for a conference to discuss changes in certain expense limits but was refused and told there was "a distinct possibility election writs might be issued before the coming week is out."

Theatre Ceiling Falls, 39 Hurt

Houma, La., April 20 (AP)— Thirty five persons were hurt when a movie theatre's plaster ceiling fell on them today.

Manager Everett Talbot of the Park Theatre said the wooden ceiling collapsed in one great sheet.

A National Guard (Militia) unit raced to the park and came back hundreds of spectators as rescuers searched through the plaster scattered debris.

Most severely injured was Mrs. Jano Lazarovich, wife of one of the theatre owners, who received a concussion and a deep gash.

Six others were in hospital with minor injuries and 32 more were treated at the scene and then released.

Talbot said the owners had been unable to determine why the ceiling "caved in."

FOUR FOUND DEAD

Boston, April 20 (AP)—A family of four was found dead yesterday in what police described as a triple murder and suicide. The dead were Edgarton McFarland, 39, his wife, Muriel, and their two infant children. Police said the father apparently killed the other three, then shot himself, for unknown reasons.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

CHINESE CIVIL WAR EXPLODES ALONG YANGTZE R.

Communists Attack At Several Points

Nanking, April 20 — (AP) — The Chinese civil war exploded all along the Yangtze River front tonight.

Communist attacks were started at several points. Gunfire could be heard and for the first time of the war seen from the capital.

Pukow, across the river was under attack. Serious fighting was reported by government sources opposite Wuhu, 60 miles southwest of here Hsiakuan, 35 miles north of Hankow, was the focal point of the fighting in the north.

The general feeling at the moment is that Wuhu is the government's weak point. The river front there provides a good landing area.

Nuns and Fires Seen

Observers said they saw a number of fires about two miles west of Pukow.

There was intense troop activity throughout Nanking. Soldiers were marching up to the river front.

Along the river troops were digging trenches and other earthworks.

The military news agency reported that simultaneously the communists launched a coastal attack so far against Taiyuan-Tsingtao railway that it has reached 600 miles to the northwest.

The agency said high casualties were reported inside the walled city from communist shelling. Neutral observers believe that citadel may not stand much longer.

A high ranking minister of National Defence source said the fall of Taiyuan would be the greatest all Nationalist positions on the north line since 1945.

Earlier Premier Ho Ying-Chin told the Chinese parliament the government had rejected new peace proposals in their present form.

He indicated that the basis for the government rejection of the Red terms was more general than simply an objection to a river crossing.

The premier said the Nationalist had told the Communists to reconsider their demands for unconditional surrender of the government.

Already some shooting has taken place.

At midnight (11 a.m. EST) a Communist ultimatum to the government to surrender will expire. Most observers feel the war will start over again shortly thereafter, although the Communists cling to the ultimatum contains an undisclosed counter-proposal.

Leaders Leave Nanking

Several Nationalist leaders already have left Nanking. Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, central China commander, flew to Hankow by plane with his 200,000 troops. All minor government executives in and around Nanking city are being evacuated.

Reconciling (government) leader Wute-Chen and a Nationalist peace delegate, Huang Shao-Hsiung, who brought the ultimatum from Peiping Saturday, flew to Hankow to confer with leaders of developments.

Gen. Chang Chun, southwest China commander, flew to Chikow, south of Nanking, to prepare Chikow, south of Shanghai, to present the government's decision to recall President Chiang Kai-Shek.

Medical Protective Assoc. Concerned Over Number of Sterilization Cases

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— The Canadian Medical Protective Association has become alarmed at the increasing skill more concerned over the casual attitude adopted by surgeons in the matter of sterilization of patients and the consequent increase in the number of sterilizations being done," the Ontario Medical Review says in its current issue.

Sterilization operations are being performed without permission only as an incidental and "often unnecessary part of some surgical procedure.

"If some doctors are inquiring before doing it, there must be others who do it without inquiring."

Although normally illegal, the Review continues, sterilization operations may be performed legally in "a particular sense."

"Sterilization is legal when it is an incidental part of a medically indicated operation necessary for the preservation of the life or health of the individual. Under all circumstances sterilization is illegal and the doctor who does it under any other circumstances, because he is doing an illegal act, exposes himself to the risk that he may be sued, not for malpractice or negligence in a professional sense, but for common assault and battery."

As a result "he may, therefore be deprived of the protection of the Medical Act."

Princess Elizabeth Will Celebrate 23rd Birthday on Thursday

London, April 20 — (CP) — Princess Elizabeth, heiress-presumptive to the throne, will be 23 tomorrow.

Even on her birthday, training of the young mother for her future role of queen will continue. She will have a place of honor at the King's luncheon for British Commonwealth statesmen, who will be entertained at Buckingham Palace tomorrow. Canada's representative will be L. B. Pearson, minister for external affairs.

The King and Queen will return from Windsor specially to greet the Commonwealth leaders. Princess Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip, also will attend.

Attendance at affairs of state, with their pomp and protocol, is as much a part of Princess Elizabeth's education as the study of economics, and the multiple other things a queen must learn.

A fun-loving young woman who likes to dance and sparkle in her pretty clothes, proud of her infant son, Prince Charles, who may succeed her to the throne, the Princess is keenly aware of what her position demands of her.

Two years ago when she was 21, Elizabeth conducted a pledge to the Commonwealth:

"May my life, whether it be long or short, shall be devoted to her service and our great and imperial family, to which we all belong."

In another speech she told the Commonwealth: "I declare before you that my whole life, whether it be long or short, shall be devoted to your service and the service, I am sure, of our common family."

She is meeting that responsibility, too.

Studiously, the spotlight of public approval is shared with her baby. Recently a formal photographgh appears now that does not include Princess Charles.

Her tasks leave little time for the recreation a young mother-to-be would enjoy. Tomorrow night, of course, there will be a private observance of her birthday at dinner, with a distribution of gifts.

Princess Elizabeth and her husband will travel overnight April 28 from London to Bangor, where the Duke is to be installed as chancellor of the University of Wales.

His first act will be to confer an honorary degree on Princess Elizabeth. Others to be given honorary degrees are Prime Minister Attlee, Lord Abercrombie, Lady Megan Lloyd George and Sir Thomas Beecham.

After luncheon the Duke and Princess will tour by car a number of shires.

DIES AT 101 YEARS

Montreal, April 20 (CP)— James W. Duncan, believed the oldest man in Montreal, died today at the age of 103. He was a native of St. Catharines.

United Europe Supreme Need Churchill Tells Conference Of 20 Nations in London

London, April 20, (Reuters) Winston Churchill, renewing his call for a united Europe, today declared that "the people of Europe will have to sink or swim together."

"We have full faith that the free states of Europe they will decide to swim" he told the 20-Country Economic Conference of the European Movement at the opening session.

Attacking the "crazy system" of the old Europe with its 20 or more separate states for their economic unit fortified by tariff walls, Churchill said there was no hope of recovery if Europe simply tried to rebuild itself on old national lines.

Referring to Britain's dependence on supplies from the great dominions of the Commonwealth, Churchill said:

"I am sure it is not impossible for Britain to draw far closer to Europe and to enter far more profitably into European trade without abandoning these ties with Dominions which to us are paramount and sacred and which guarantee us the third of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

The three "circles", of the British Commonwealth, of the English-speaking world, and of the United Europe, "form a common hope to the free and civilized world" Churchill said. Hope was in all its forms.

"If we remain true and united in the inspiration which has come us: linked together in faithful comradeship, we can defend ourselves against all enemies and look forward to the noblest era of the brotherhood of mankind."

Makers May Give Away Coloring With Margarine

Toronto, April 20 — (CP) — Manufacturers of margarine in Ontario will be permitted to give away artificial coloring with their product once the restrictions on coloring go into effect, an official at Queen's Park said yesterday.

Premier Kennedy announced Monday legislation would ban manufacturers that there was no possibility that Ontario's Margarine Act will be repealed before the middle of May.

The bill limits margarine to 1.6 degrees of yellow or yellow-and-red coloring. The Queen's Park official said that any extra coloring given away must not be packaged with the margarine.

The law provides that a pound of margarine must not cost more than a pound of butter.

Mr. Kennedy meets today with representatives of farm groups whose butter sales are affected by margarine.

Motorcyclist Hits Ditch, Lies Hours Semi-Conscious

Owen Sound, April 20 — (CP) — Suffering from shock and exposure, 21-year-old Ed. Douglas of Owen Sound was brought to hospital here this morning after his motorcycle had hit a ditch and he had lain alone and semi-conscious for hours near Shallow Lake, 11 miles west of here.

Doctors could find no broken bones, however.

Former Premier Much Improved After Operation

London, Ont., April 20 (CP)— Mitchell F. Hepburn was said to be much improved today following a serious abdominal operation.

The nature of the ailment of the former Ontario Liberal premier was not disclosed.

However, the case said Mrs. Hepburn, now 53, underwent similar abdominal surgery while he was premier of the provincial government.

The operation was performed late yesterday. There was no official statement on its results but it was learned on good authority that Mr. Hepburn came through the operation "satisfactorily."

Death Found Due To Narcosis

Kirkland Lake, April 20 — (CP) — Elfrida Zenlina, young Latvian-born miner, was found unconscious in a hotel here last Friday, died of narcosis, an overdose of narcotics, Coroner Dr. J. F. Ellis' jury decided today.

Dr. Ellis said there would not be an inquest into the death last Saturday of the miner who had buried Tuesday. She was to have been married to Mr. Kirkland Lake district hospital next Friday. He said there was "no indication that the woman was a drug addict" and she was "in apparent good physical condition."

SHIP OPERATORS WIN ROUND IN SHIPPING STRIKE

C.S.U. Crews Ordered By Court to Leave

(By The Canadian Press)

A court injunction obtained by the Montreal Shipping Company cleared the docks of the freighter Lord Strathcona Communist-dominated Canadian Seamen's Union (C.S.U.) crew members here tonight as ship operators won another round in the deep-sea shipping strike called by the C.S.U. 21 days ago.

The ship's owners acted fast to gain control of their vessel serving the Montreal-Liverpool run. Few hours after the Mont Gaspe berthed from a voyage from Lisbon, Portugal.

Meanwhile at Quebec, C.S.U. members manning the Canada Steamship Terminals freighter Sunrell anxiously awaited a court decision on whether the ship's owners may be granted an injunction.

The crew are staging a sit-in-strike. They refused to sail the ship. Earlier a Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) crew was scheduled to replace the C.S.U. men, but decided to await the court decision. Members of the C.S.U. crew were not leaving the ship.

Peacefully Leave Ship

The 38 crew members of the Mont Gaspe peacefully left the ship when police officials served the injunction.

The C.S.U. crew announced earlier, shortly after, the Mont Gaspe docked, that "we are 100 per cent. behind our officials and orders."

When the court officials boarded the vessel, the men quietly remained in their cabins. They were paraded to the union's headquarters on downtown St. Frabcois Xavier Street.

The first ship to leave Montreal harbour since the start of the strike sailed yesterday. She was the Montcalm, a Furness Withy vessel. S.U.U. crew members took over the ship quietly early yesterday and left shortly afterward with a cargo of grain for London.

The Montcalm was the first National Steamships Canadian vessel to sail since the strike began and a spokesman for the company said that although the crew of the vessel voted to quit the C.S.U. and join again another S.U.U. contracts.

New Developments

Throughout the day there were new strike developments in widespread areas about the world.

The 26-man C.S.U. crew of Canadian Pacific Steamships' Canadian Victor joined the strike at anchorage 14 miles off Caibarien, Cuba.

At Brisbane, Australia, the C.S.U. crew of 30 of the Canadian vessel Triberg was sentenced to 14 days imprisonment for disobeying lawful commands to take the ship to sea. There was also a strike nearly two weeks ago.

Both crew and longshoremen quit work on the Canadian freighter Inger Dan at Wellington, N.Z., although maintenance work continued.

Twenty-eight members of the crew of the Cambray were reported on their own responsibility at Cape Town, South Africa, on charges of disobedience of lawful commands or combined neglect of duty. Their hearing was set for Thursday.

From Rotterdam, as their vessel was loaded with coal for Canada, the Canadian, freighter Dingwall was arrested at the captain's request because of refusal to work the ship.

Speeding to Aid Of British Sloop Shelled, Grounded

Admiralty States Casualties Aboard Destroyer Reported

By FRED HAMPSON

Shanghai, April 20 — (AP) — Communist shore artillery today crippled the British sloop Amethyst in the Yangtze River and drove off the destroyer Consort before she could help the smaller vessel.

The helpless Amethyst, with at least 30 wounded or dead among her crew of 149, was aground on Rose Island 10 miles northeast of Nanking tonight. Not far away awaited the first attacks of the returning Chinese civil war.

The Consort, fighting shore batteries for almost 10 miles, reached Kiangyin tonight with 17 of the Amethyst's wounded, and picked up by the frigate Black Swan which had bandages and medical supplies aboard.

The British cruiser London was expected to reach Kiangyin at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EST). Vice-Admiral C. C. Madden, second in command of the Far East station, is aboard the London. Several British authorities here said they were unable to contact responsible Communist quarters and Admiral Madden would determine his course later.

A British naval source in Shanghai said: "I do not know what Madden can do. British strength is not the answer."

Two more British warships, the cruiser London and the destroyer Black Swan, were reported proceeding to the aid of the Consort and the Amethyst.

(London reported the cruiser London still was 24 hours away from reaching Shanghai late today.)

Not Fired by Nationalists

Chinese naval sources, which reported 30 casualties aboard the Amethyst, to British quarters in Shanghai, declared the ship had been fired by Nationalist gunners along the south shore of the river.

The foreign airmen, who were not further identified, said the Consort, which left Nanking in the morning, may have stopped the Amethyst's drift to pick up casualties before proceeding downstream to Shanghai.

Her last given position would put the Consort in the vicinity of Nanking. Nanking's "hot spot" some 150 miles upstream from Shanghai.

Carried 146 of Crew

The amethyst carried a complement of eight officers and 140 men. Casualties aboard her:

British naval sources here said no direct word has been received from the sloop since she was fired upon. However, these sources said her commander was not shot as suffered "heavy casualties."

Nationalist warships have been plying the Yangtze regularly to Nanking for several months. United States warships have stayed off the river since the civil war reached the Yangtze level.

New Ways of Seeing Inside Heart Pinpoints Troubles of That Organ

Detroit, April 20 — (AP) — New ways of seeing inside the heart were announced today to the American Physiological Society.

They tell more accurately which sort of heart valve is ailing, where blood clots may have formed, and where heart-tissue damage has occurred.

The seeing is done with electrocardiograms, instruments that records of the electrical impulses of the heart during the time of each beat.

The new findings promise to help save lives in heart troubles. They were made by Drs. Louis H. Nahum and Hyman M. Chernoff of the Yale School of Medicine.

The physiologists announced three major findings:

One, aided by X-ray mapping of the heart, is what each part of the heart contributes to the electrical-impulse picture.

A second, that the lower sixth of the heart recovers faster than the upper part during a heart beat, and is warmer in temperature.

Third, an explanation of what happens to the various segments of the heart when the body does not receive enough oxygen.

A new theory of the heart action, that depends on changes in blood clot, the origin of skipped beats, and other troubles, Dr. Nahum and Dr. Chernoff said.

Theory is that each electrical record is created by the interaction of opposite electrical forces from different zones of the heart. The better interpretations of the pictures were made possible by this theory and by findings in animals which were shown to apply to human beings.

QUINTE DRUGGISTS TO ELECT OFFICERS

The Quinte District Druggists' Association is holding a regular semi-annual meeting tonight. The guest speaker is to be Mr. L. M. Todd who is the manager of the Parke-Davis plant at Walkerville. Movies are to be shown of their factory.

The secretary's report will be presented by Mr. George Pauley, district president of the Ontario Retail Druggists' Association.

MOUNTED TROUT ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Handsome example of the taxidermist's art, is the mounted grey trout at present on display in Ed. Thomas' Tobacco Store. The fish weighing six pounds was caught at Thirty Island Lake last August by Mr. Thomas. In its well appointed glass case the fish is resplendent in all its physical proportions and naturally coloring. It is attracting the attention of plenty of fishermen of the city and district.

MANY AMERICANS BUY FISHING PERMITS

It appears to be one of the busiest seasons in some time for pickerel and trout if applications by Americans for the issuance of a shop of issuer Ed. Thomas is a criterion. Every day sees inspector Gordon Hall of the C.N.R. reel asking for the parchments. According to Mr. Thomas the licences should be available towards the latter part of next week.

COUNTY SKI CLUB STORES EQUIPMENT

Climaxing what is said to be a successful inaugural season, officials of the newly-formed Hastings County Ski Club visited the Mill Pond the other day and stored all equipment for future use. Directors were dismissed, batteries removed and brought to the city. Mr. Ted Freeman Burrows expressed satisfaction with the operations of the first year of the club, despite the fact that the weather was anything but ideal, due to good skiing and the all out financial success of any ski club.

A large number joined the club in its first year and next season the organization is looking forward to encouraging operations, weather permitting, with a large number of new enthusiasts joining the club.

Winners of the membership contest prizes will be announced shortly.

Property Owners' Assoc. Favors Reserving Property South of Home for Industry

Holding their first meeting since 1947, members of the Belleville Property Owners' Association Tuesday evening went on record as favoring preserving industrial land for the former county home property south of Dundas Street.

The stand places in line with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, which last week recommended this particular area be reserved for light industry, but is opposed to the belief of a majority of city council the land should be used for construction of Wartime Housing.

The recommendation by the property owners asking the former county home property be reserved for light industry was followed a spirited discussion on the matter, during which all angles of the matter were discussed at some length.

Only Available Site

Members of city council, Aldermen Jeff Dorland and Harold Armstrong were present to champion construction of the veterans' rental housing, pointing out that this property is the only available within the city, where 100 rental units could be constructed. On the other hand, the argument that the property was already zoned for industry with the railroad and highway running parallel. The meeting voted something like 5 to 1 in favor of the preferred industry.

In opening discussion on the pros and cons of wartime housing at this particular site, President of the Association Jamieson Bone, indicated the policy of the organization was to sell land only when there was a worthwhile topic to discuss. With several organizations already having recommended the county home site for preferred industry, he felt the matter should be aired by the property owners.

Council Takes Opposite View

Several organizations, including the planning board, have recommended that wartime housing not be built on the land until council has gone ahead and approved of retaining same anyway," pointed out Mr. Bone.

Alderman Allis as chairman of industry, said the meeting that the county home property south of the highway was ideal for preferred industry.

He had been negotiating with a large industry which he said would locate either in Belleville or Kingston. This industry was favorably impressed with Belleville and if this city was chosen would construct a million dollar plant. "This industry was of the preferred type and would create no nuisance or smoke," he said.

Member of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, Harry Brown of Thurlow township, was also impressed with the site as an area for preferred industry. He felt the planning board had recommended the site be reserved for light industry.

Purely Advisory Board

He said the organization was purely an advisory board and made no attempt to persuade municipalities to carry out their recommendations. However, after viewing the site, and conferring with professional industrial planners, his organization had felt justified in recommending to council that the property be reserved for industry.

Representative of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Mr. D. Scott, outlined details of the housing project which his organization was prepared to enter in the city. He said his organization was not trying to force anything on the city; the city must decide on the site but Central Mortgage and Housing reserved the right to refuse any location. His organization had approved of the site under question.

Asks About Survey

A Herchimer Ave. resident asked what had been the outcome of a survey which had been taken of Herchimer Ave. property on which it had been proposed to build 40 additional 100 rental houses.

Alderman Armstrong replied the survey only available after a vote had been taken by council as costing "too much money."

Ex-Mayor Frank Follwell congratulated Chairman Jamieson Bone in calling the meeting to pass recommendations rather than only to express protests. John O'Flynn noted that cheaper rental housing units were necessary for the working man. He also criticized contractors for the condition of Dundas Street, the last street after installation of services. He did not think contractors should be permitted to work with a lack of any "apparent" control.

City Has No Voice

Mr. Zufelt also wanted to know if it was correct that the city would have no voice as to who would rent the houses.

To his last query replied allocation of veterans rental housing units was no job for a municipality but was left to the Federal government which would see that applicants were well versed in requirements. Some applicants, he said, would be too bad to use the county home property for wartime housing when "all kinds" of land was available both in and out of the city for the asking.

"The first consideration of a municipality is for the land," he stated Mr. McDougall. "If we do not get the land we do not need the houses.

Mr. McDougall also differed with a previous statement by Mr. Scott that wartime housing was not subsidized. On the contrary he said wartime housing was subsidized both by the Federal and provincial governments and by the municipalities.

Alderman Armstrong pointed out the need for rental housing units in the city. He referred to the $300,000 which the city had paid for the county home property and of the intention to use the land for housing. He said construction of wartime housing would mean approximately $50,000 would be returned to the city to offset the cost of the property. Also servicing of the area south of the highway would save installation costs of $14,000 sewer and pumping plant for north of the highway.

Serviced For Industry

Mr. Bone, however, pointed out the property was not being serviced for industry and noted that $300,000 was an awful lot to ask for the city to pay for the county home property.

Fred Chamberlain wanted to know why the county home property was approved for wartime housing when the same organization turned down property east of North Front Street as being too near the railway.

Alderman Armstrong stated that possibly the North Front Street property being situated along a main railway line may have had something to do with the decision.

Might Have to Raise Level

Alderman Clarke pointed out if the county home property south of Dundas Street was used for wartime housing it would be necessary to raise the level of the property to the same grade as the highway. Alderman Armstrong stated there was no intention of bringing the property to the grade level of the highway.

Freeman Burrows, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, pointed out that industry today produced ten times as much in taxation as did housing? He said preferred industry today required considerable land area for building, landscaping, parking and recreation and in the end result was quite attractive.

Mr. William Harvey wanted to know what the rental housing was going to get $7,000 to purchase when the $5,000 limit on this type of housing was constructed primarily for rental to veterans. The meeting continue remaining if they so wished.

Question Asked

Mrs. R. D. Ponton wondered if a veteran tenant could pay $42.50 per month, the expected rental for the proposed housing units. She also wanted to know if there would be provision for parks areas? Mr. Jamieson Bone, Mr. Ruston felt the area would not be suitable for industry as the increased railway shunting necessary would create additional hazards to the public safety.

Here Mr. Chamberlain presented his recommendation in regard to the county home property for preferred industry, the motion being carried by a strong majority.

Chairman Bone noted that the meeting had primarily been called to discuss wartime housing but stated other matters for consideration by members. One of these was the possibility of the city acquiring park land north of the city on the Foxboro highway and further asked if means to relieve traffic congestion along the main thoroughfare in the city.

Housing Costs Given

Alderman Clarke was called on to quote figures showing exactly what wartime housing cost the municipality.

He pointed out that the wartime housing contract called for the city to buy the land and provide all services, including roads, sidewalks, sewers, water mains and hydro. They also provide garbage collection, police and fire protection.

For this Central Mortgage and Housing forwarded as a loan up to $600 per house. However, the cost of houses in the Cook and Churchill Heights area for land and services was roughly half this difference, he said.

"But the city pays back this $600 at the rate of ten per cent per year for ten years at two per cent interest. In lieu of taxes the city receives $19 per house, while if taxes would be four times this amount."

Not Forced on Municipalities

Mr. Scott, Central Mortgage and Housing representative, stated he had no quarrel with Mr. Clarke's statement. At the request of Mr. Armstrong stated that during the past year his organization had built 2,800 housing units in Ontario, while between seven and eight thousand had been built across Canada. He now pointed out the houses were not being forced on these municipalities but if they were accepted it must be on the usual terms.

"We are sure that the 100 additional houses are needed in Belleville," he stated. "We argue.

"If they were not we would not offer to build them," replied Mr. Scott.

Mr. Argue was still not satisfied, however, and asked how many of the veterans taking rental houses would be simply using them to help their housing condition.

To this Mr. Allan Vanderwater, housing administrator for Central Mortgage and Housing, replied that veterans must have housing. He said if current housing conditions were realized people would be astounded.

City Finances Discussed

City finances were brought up for discussion after Mr. Bone who declared it a "downright fraud" that the recently-voted property in the city was exempt from taxation.

With the present city expansion Mr. Bone forecast a decided increase in taxation within the next few years. "With debentures to be issued for waterworks, sewers and schools, we have come to a point where we must be careful," he said.

Mr. Clarke, as chairman of finance, said the debenture debt of the city at the end of 1948 had been $1,096,000 but now there was an additional $1,203,583 which did not appear in the debenture debt at the end of last year.

This included debentures approved or about to be issued for a new school costing $320,000, veterans housing and sewers, $200,000 for the house of refuge, and over $250,000 for the hospital.

Alderman Duffy took exception to what he termed had been the reason for calling the meeting.

Alderman Gives Opinion

"The apparent reason for calling the meeting was none other than to kill wartime housing and secondly to infer that the financial condition of the city is none too good," he said.

"I would just like to point out that our city assets and the city is in good financial condition."

This was agreed by Alderman Clarke who quoted the city auditor as referring to the city's financial condition as being "excellent."

"I think it would be only fair to have Mr. Clarke tell us about the increased assessment in the city," suggested Alderman Armstrong.

Mr. Bone agreed that the city's finances were in good condition but pointed out that municipal bonds selling over $1,000 were a bit on indication of this. "This was due to the rate of interest paid," he said.

Must Provide Serviced Land

He went on to say that the municipality must provide serviced land for which his organization was prepared to advance up to $600 per house site were it not land and services.

Mr. Bone pointed out that over ten per cent of the houses in the city were of the wartime housing type.

In lieu of taxes Central Mortgage and Housing paid to the city $19 per house, which was according to the size of the house. Cost of a five room house was estimated at $6,800 which would rent for $37.50 per month. If building costs increased by $1,000 a five room house, rentals were increased 60 cents per month for each $100 increase in building costs.

His organization reserved the right to sell the houses to the tenant. If, in this case, there was profit, this profit would be split fifty-fifty with the municipality.

Alderman Duffy declared it was only natural that industrial experts would choose the best land in the city as an industrial site. However, he voiced the opinion it would not be good planning to put more people in the north area as considering the present growth of the city the area in a few years would be too central.

Only Available Location

He claimed the county home site was the only available location for rental housing and there were badly needed in the city.

Defending the county home site on the recommending rental housing be constructed on the area, Alderman Duffy pointed out that the location of Alderman Allis's million dollar factory was very indefinite and council had no concrete evidence the industry was coming to the city. In any event there would be still eight acres of the property left which this could be increased to 15 acres.

"If wartime houses are needed in the city, why is it that none are being built?" he asked. "Queen's University, Rossmore Heights are yet occupied" asked Raymond Zufelt.

"It is because the sewers and roads are not yet completed," returned the alderman.

Queen's Student On Cornell Staff

Kingston, April 30—Miss Barbara Bews, final year student at Queen's University, has been offered a research assistantship in the department of psychology at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. Miss Bews, daughter of Douglas Bews, Belleville, is planning to accept this position after her graduation next month.

She is an honors student in arts specializing in psychology and philosophy.

At Cornell, Miss Bews hopes to work for her master's degree. Tentative plans have been made for her to assist Dr. Maly Ryan of the psychology department on a project concerning clothing, research which will be turned over to the Cornell department of home economics.

Two Cars Towed Away After Crash

Property damage amounting to approximately $400 resulted Tuesday afternoon as result of a collision between two cars on Dundas Street, East, both of which required to be towed from the scene of the accident. No personal injuries resulted.

Cecil Grills, R. R. 6, Belleville, was driving a Dodge truck east on Dundas Street. He turned out to pass a bus and to make a left turn into Bleecker Avenue. The vehicle was in collision with a westbound Chevrolet operated by E. B. Hatch, North Evans, N.Y. Both vehicles were damaged to the extent of nearly $200.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY JANE LEWIS

Mrs. Mary Jane Lewis, wife of Mr. Christopher Lewis, 236 Dundas Street east, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday after an illness of three months' duration.

The late Mrs. Lewis, who was in her 84th year, was born in England and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moore. Her father died some years ago. For forty years she resided in this city and was highly esteemed by many friends to whom her death has brought much regret. In religion Mrs. Lewis was a member of the Church of England and was a parishioner of the Christ Church. Fraternally she was a Past Worthy Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star No. 55.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. Christopher Lewis; her mother, Mrs. Jane Moore; one daughter, Mrs. Robert (Violet) Slavin, Belleville; two sons, Thomas C. Lewis and John J. Lewis, both of Belleville; three sisters, Mrs. Robert Buckingham, Toronto; Mrs. Mary McIntosh, Mrs. Elsie Norton, both in England; two brothers, Mr. Percy E. Moore, Peterborough, and Mr. Frank Moore, in England.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Please omit flowers.

LATE ALFRED (PETE) BELLIS

The funeral of Alfred Thomas (Pete) Bellis, late residence, 23 Campbell Street, was held on Tuesday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. Rev. Fred Wellwood conducted the service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by Rural Dean the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church.

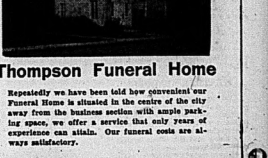
POLICE BULLETIN

Speeders and other motorists were to fail to heed traffic regulations are running afoul of the law quite regularly these days with a half a dozen drivers being apprehended during the past two days.

One motorist was checked for speeding on North Front Street, while another was checked doing well over 40 miles per hour on Station Street. Both drivers were charged.

Stop street offenders were also numerous as drivers apparently in a hurry or just plain careless failed to bring their autos to the required full stop. Again they will pay for their negligence by handing cash over to the city.

A Bleecker Ave. resident yesterday complained that his kitchen had been entered with something like a dozen flies being killed with a few packets of cigarettes. Entrance was made through the back door, it was stated.



MIGHTY MIDGET

A new midget fire extinguisher is to be made which weighing 2 ounces can do the work of more than two eight-pound extinguishers.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— Gold stocks continued in demand for the second successive session here today as the group moved at the highest level since February 1942. Base metals backed down slightly and industrials and western oils were steady in the moderately active dealings.

The exchange's 1 p.m. index showed volume for the first three hours was 776,000 shares, about 270,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Producing issues led the golds in steady upturn that accelerated when volume increased. Seniors were well ahead with several issues touching new highs and a wide list of junior golds showed gains ranging up to 15 cents.

Industrials moved narrowly, mixing gains and losses fractionally. The group opened on a stronger note but soon tended to sag. A few refining oils and steels were brighter while papers slipped with Brown Pfd. selling down $1 at a new low at $9.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— Prices were firm at the week's advance in trading on the local livestock market this morning.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing service were: Cattle 400; calves 200; hogs 360; sheep and lambs none.

Choice vealers brought $26-$28 while the plain to medium lightweight calves sold for $15-$24.

Hogs were steady at $30.5o for grade A and $29.85 for grade B1. A few ...ws sold at $23 dressed.

INQUEST WILL BE HELD

Woodstock, April 20 — (CP) — Crown Attorney Craig McKay announced today an inquest will be held into the death of Mrs. Clarence Kent whose body was found hanging in her West Zorra township home March 6. Inquest will be on Monday, April 25, in Embro.

UNCONSCIOUS MAN'S IDENTITY UNKNOWN

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— Mystery still surrounds the identity of a man who has been unconscious in a Toronto hospital since Sunday when he was struck by an automobile at nearby Brampton. Only mark of identity is a Swastika tatooed on his right forearm. He is about 50 years of age.

3,000 Tourist Pamphlets Mailed By C. of C. in Response to Inquiries

The tourist industry in Canada in general and in this district in particular is off to a flying start, Secretary Manager Freeman Burrows of the Chamber of Commerce said today.

Lists of names representing Northern New York to the Gulf of Mexico; from Maine to Portland, Oregon, in fact all parts of the U.S.A. and Canada, arrive daily as the Chamber offices from travel bureaus of the province and the Dominion.

All are seeking information regarding the vacation spots of Canada. Some of them are general while others request information concerning special places. And Hastings is well up in the lists of inquiries.

Groundwork of the advertising campaign laid out by the tourist and publicity committee of the city, the county of Hastings and the Chamber of Commerce was laid at the recent Sportsmen's Show held in Toronto where 1-700 new pamphlets extolling the holiday advantages of this district were given out.

Since that time over 3,000 of these pamphlets have been forwarded to people requesting information.

So busy has this phase of Chamber activities become, that an extra assistant is brought in weekly. It takes an entire day to fill the various requests, and forward the required information, usually in the form of a pamphlet.

It is interesting to note that one signature came from Lima in Peru.

T.B. Survey Results Disappointing, Action Urged as Clinic Closes Friday

The response to the general survey of city residents for tuberculosis through the medium of the free clinic sponsored by the Hastings County Tubercular Association, and conducted by the Division of the Prevention of Tuberculosis, Ontario Department of Health, has to date been slightly disappointing, Technician Lloyd Smith of the clinic said today.

Including today's quota some 4,000 city residents, exclusive of industrial workers have presented themselves for examination. This is roughly 25 per cent of the expected quota. The quota is based on 10 per cent of a community's population.

With only two days to go, 6,-000 residents could be examined if Belleville's quota is to be attained, he said.

While the general average of a community's population to take the test is set at 50 per cent, some communities have sent as high as 98 per cent.

In addition to the stationary clinic now operating in the Bridge Street Armouries, mobile clinics are working in city industrial plants, employees of the Northern Electric Company are being surveyed today.

While the clinic generally does not survey children under twelve years of age, many parents here have brought their offspring much younger than this. "We would not turn them down," Technician Smith said. "If parents are that interested we want to do all we can to help them."

"The general public does not seem to realize," he went on that the Hastings County Tubercular Association is giving a public service paid for entirely through funds derived from the sale of Christmas Seals."

The clinic is free, the technician pointed out. "There is no inconvenience; no undressing, and we can examine people at the rate of from 125 to 150 per hour. That means approximately a minute and a half on one's time. Surely ninety seconds of a lifetime is worth spending to find out this vital information."

The clinic concludes activities here Friday.

Will Build First Church In Canada at Waterloo

Kitchener, April 20 — (CP)— The first Church of the Open Bible in Canada will be built shortly in Waterloo.

Plans are under way to erect a $20,000 edifice on King Street north. Dedication of the lot will occur Sunday.

The church will be a basement one, accommodating 300 persons. In addition to the church auditorium a pastor's study and nursery will be built.

Since the church was established here 3½ years ago the congregation has been meeting in the Waterloo Masonic hall.

A branch of the Pentecostal Church, the new church was founded in Canada by Rev. A. O. Ramseyer, pastor. The Church of the Open Bible was established in Iowa some years ago.

CHICAGO'S GREAT FIRE

The great fire of Chicago in 1871 destroyed 18,000 buildings.

Garage Operators Must Maintain Customer Interest

Warning that times are changing on the threshold of a new era, Mr. Ron Woodhouse, field service engineer of the Auto Electric Service Company, Toronto, urged forty-five members of the Hastings and Prince Edward branch of the Garage Operators Association of Ontario, that customers' interest must be maintained despite the fact there are unsolicating forces afoot compelling everyone to buy.

Mr. Woodhouse spoke on "Planned Selling" at a dinner meeting of the district branch held at Kiwanis Centre last night. With him was Mr. C. Barrow, chief instructor.

"Everything was purchased for one of five reasons," the speaker pointed out. "These include caution, gain, pride, pleasure and utility." He urged the garagemen to remember there is far more to selling than this, however. There is the selling organization and a knowledge of the policy of the company.

"You should acknowledge the customer's presence promptly, and address him courteously by name," Mr. Woodhouse said. "You should be a good listener, and ask for information as to his needs. Be courteous and accept the customers' versions. Make accurate estimates of the job and also quote on other necessary work. Be tolerant with customers and always try to correct the cause as well as effect."

Adhere to Standards

"Always adhere to your standards" he advised "and you will be able to keep customers. After all customers must be earned—not bought. Always know whom to contact when you are in doubt. Keep your customers up-to-date."

Mr. Woodhouse was introduced by Bill Walker of the Quinte Battery Service with the appreciation of the meeting expressed by Bob Boyce.

During the business discussion of the meeting, it was decided to familiarize the public with the work of the association through the medium of an advertising campaign, to tie in with one to be sponsored by the head office.

The musical part of the program included solos by Irma and Curwood Butcher with piano accompaniment by Mr. Reid, also a piano solo and a duet.

NEARLY 19 MILLION DOLLARS OF DEBENTURES TO BE ISSUED

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— City council approved the issuing of 21 debentures totalling nearly $16,000,000 to pay for improvements in road, sewage and other services in recent years. The projects include those undertaken and many of them completed, had been temporarily financed.

YOUR ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER CARRIER SALESMAN

WANTS TO GO TO TORONTO

TO SEE A

BIG LEAGUE BASEBALL GAME

The eighty-odd Ontario Intelligencer Carrier Salesmen in Belleville are really busy these nights. They all want to go to Toronto and see the Toronto Maple Leafs play either the Montreal Royals or the Baltimore Orioles of the International League, in the Maple Leaf Stadium as guests of the Ontario Intelligencer. After the game the boys will have a chance to meet the Toronto players personally and receive a few pointers on the science of baseball. A picture will be taken of the boys with the Toronto players.

The Ontario Intelligencer Carrier Salesmen are working as one big team with an objective of new subscribers to the Daily Ontario Intelligencer to meet. Every boy who turns in five new customers will make the trip. If the total objective is reached then the whole "team" of carrier salesmen will make the trip. Each new subscriber must be signed up for a period of three months.

In addition to the trip to Toronto, special prizes will be given to the Carrier Salesman with the most new subscriptions.

Half of the Carrier Salesmen team will go to Toronto May 14th and the rest May 21st. These dates are subject to change by the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club.

YOU CAN HELP YOUR CARRIER SALESMAN BY—

Giving him the names of any of your friends who are not subscribers to the Ontario Intelligencer.

By giving him the name of the people who are living in the other half of your home.

By having your friends in the County give him a three month subscription by mail.

The boys are really working hard. It is a great experience for them and they are all delighted with having the opportunity to make such a trip.

BERLIN AIRLIFT SUCCEEDS

Russia from her knowledge of what the British and Americans accomplished in the World War should have realized that when these peoples placed their planes on the Berlin airlift, they meant to carry the undertaking through to a successful conclusion. What has been achieved by the western powers was revealed the other day with the publication of the news that on Friday last planes from Britain and the United States had carried into Berlin, no less than 12,940 tons of food and fuel. This means that they transported as much as could have been brought in by twenty-two freight trains made up of 1,100 cars such as are in Germany, a little smaller than the cars to which the western world is accustomed. In the days before Soviet Russia set up the blockade, 21 trains a day were meeting the problem of bringing necessities for Berliners.

This new fact is something for the German people to see. They no doubt will be impressed with the success of the effort of the two Western nations to keep Berlin from being without food and other necessities as fuel. The Berlin people must be impressed with the sight of Allied planes from their two former enemies of the days of the late war and with the Russian failure to cause strangulation at any cost.

There is a lesson here of the great power of the Western Nations. Britain and the United States are powerful states as they have proven in two world conflicts.

Russia by her efforts in respect to Berlin has shown that she is intransigeant. Germans of these days must surely understand who is their friend in trying to bring Germany back to peacetime basis. Britain and the United States have given the demonstration for all the world to read — they are powers that love peace and the ways of peace.

Before the winter set in, there was reference to the heavy demands of winter possibly making the Anglo-American airlift undertaking very difficult. But there has been none of that talk since it was seen that these nations were determined in their stand and meant not to fail.

The Berlin airlift has proven a success even though it has been costly. It has proven what can be done and gives the British and American peoples and other nations the satisfaction of knowing that they can carry out so great an undertaking.

HEALTH AND THE MONTH

The health of a people and the relationship to the weather is under study by British experts with the publication of a new series of studies on health and population. Men reading the report may possibly be upset by the revelation that it shows men are more sensitive to change of season than women. The report also shows what may be taken as a calendar of sickness. February is shown as the month for colds, influenza and respiratory diseases in Britain but ailments of March tend to be rheumatism and heart troubles. April, May and June claim to be more prolific than other months for skin diseases. In the last three months of the year the highest incidence are ear, eye and blood disorders and gastric conditions. Such is the chart of the months as a second series of studies recently issued by Britain's Registrar-General shows.

STILL THE WEATHER

How the weather will behave will be the object of close inspection now that Easter is past. Possibly the ghost of the winter past may haunt some with the thought that as the winter was so mild and orderly, the spring may be late and cold. But the weather having the knack of surprising people, doleful prognostications may prove to have been unwarted. Far happier are those who wait for spring to declare herself in spring's usual ways.

THE MODERN WAY

From the United Kingdom Information Office comes an interesting story of "these modern apes." The story is as follows:

"When two orang-outangs, flying from Singapore to the U.S.A., arrived at London Airport in a British Overseas Airways Corporation cargo aircraft, one of them was feeling a little 'off-color.' As there was a wait of several hours before they went on to America, the B.O.A.C. staff felt that they should give all possible service to this 'passenger,' so they sent him to a pet store where he would have every care and attention. When the B.O.A.C. cargo officials called for him, they found the orang-outang, completely recovered, reclining in an armchair with a blanket around his shoulders, enjoying a television program."

SPOILED COPY

Suppose, when you sat down to write
As I, to-day to-day,
And time was quickly taking flight,
A three-year-old should say:
"I want to sit upon your knee
Work you the less dismiss
Or let your copy ruined be
With writing such as this:
(zxpbqDeGlise)"

Suppose you'd stayed too long in bed,
Or cut too late at night,
And had the notion in your head
You'd settle down to write,
Would you let little fingers stray
Along the letters they
And spoil your labor for the day
With Words that look like these:
(tzHPoeexrwqARLC)?

Well, I suppose I should have frowned
And said: "Be on your way!
I'm busy, and you mustn't pound
A single key to-day."
But such a winsome miss is she,
So tearful were her pleas,
I let my copy ruined be
With scribbles such as these:
(ayz7TTRGWeLzn).

"We'll hafta postpone our trip, Anne, my brakes are all shot!"

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Choral or chronic reading is something new and beautiful in public school education. Choirs of from twelve to thirty children are trained to speak poems together. The effect on the hearer is magical. The effect on the children who speak is a little beyond calculation.

The average child would die rather than speak in public: he sings gladly in company with other children. A rough, hard little red-headed boy would die rather than be forced to public life. In a choir, he lets go.

Above all, he learns to speak and pronounce words. The other day, I got onto a bus that was loaded with young girls from a fashionable private college for well-to-do children. I was never more astounded: they were barely intelligible. They squealed, equalled and slurred their words together in the most incomprehensible way.

Choric reading was started in the down-town schools of the big cities, perhaps in the notion that there was something wrong. English might be a more serious concern than is the case in schools. The day may come when the habit of the expensively-educated person will be the manner in which he or she mutters, mumbles and slurs words.

Choric reading is spreading rapidly in the schools all over England. It is to be hoped that it will compensate for the damage being done by the wireless, both on the screen and the radio. However, twenty years ago, a lady named Charles Laughton recited the Gettysberg Address in a film "Ruggles of Red Gap." I have lived in tireless hope that Laughton might some day, in one of his roles as a broken-down dreamer, recite the first twenty-four lines of Keats' "Endymion." Meanwhile, to hear a choir of thirty children speak the same lines must be ravishing.

Mackenzie's Column: Fate Not Only Of China But all Asia Involved

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

This is the day which the victorious Chinese Communists set as the deadline for an answer to their ultimatum that would virtually unconditional surrender of the dregs and disorganized Nationalist forces.

Thus today's manoeuvring appeared likely to be written down as one of the most critical in the world war between communism and all other political creeds.

The fate not only of China but of Asia as a whole was involved. Indeed the conflict of the isms may ultimately be decided in that vast theatre. Last month Winston Churchill, speaking at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston, said of this situation:

"And the question is asked:— 'Are we winning the cold war?' That cannot be told at the moment as Europe alone. We must also look to Asia. The worst disaster since our victory has been the collapse of China under communist influence. Chiang Kai-shek Grim Present

"The task to get back to the grim present, one of two things can grow out of the current civil war in China. Disregarding the remote future:

1. A coalition government of communists and Nationalist power might be formed. The communists are reported to be willing to accept a regime be inaugurated by May 1.

2. The civil war might continue its bloody course, with the Reds ruling Northern China and carrying the fight into the southern part of the country.

"Coalition would, of course, be a political mushroom. It has been demonstrated time and again that communism won't mix with any other ideology.

"The prospect of a "coalition" is a favorite red procedure in taking over a country. A coalition quickly undergoes a purge and gives way to complete red domination of the government.

"That would happen in the case of China. Then if the communists had the strength to maintain the whole country militarily, communism would be established. Otherwise the civil war would break out again.

Terrible Alternative

The alternative of an immediate continuation of the civil war presents a terrible prospect.

Observers now expect that, if full-scale fighting is resumed, the Reds will make their quick inroads into Nationalist territory south of the Yangtze River, with large numbers of communist territory behind them north of the Yangtze.

Still, while the reds might be expected to make quick advance, this doesn't necessarily mean they could sweep Southern China. On the contrary the prospects are that the fighting would progress by zones, with Nationalist forces putting up a vigorous battle in many areas.

Such a civil war might continue for years. So at this writing one can only say: "Poor old China."

Letter to the Editor

PLEASED WITH REFUSE COLLECTION

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

There are just a few lines to try to express our appreciation of the fine way in which the garbage collector and his men handle the collection of refuse from our dwelling.

Our containers are handled with care and placed carefully back on the sidewalk or in the driveway and not thrown off the truck from the front on the custom in the past.

I think Mr. Bridge is to be commended for the fine job his men are doing. Thank you, Rex.

Old-Line Parties Will be Highest Says St. Laurent

Saskatoon, April 30 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent has made it clear to the West that the government expects the federal election to be fought on party struggle between the two old-line parties whose great strength now is centred in Ontario.

The Progressive Conservatives, he told 600 delegates in the Canadian Legion Hall here yesterday, offer the "only serious challenge" to a renewal of the Liberal majority.

His prediction of a renewal of old-party rule at the polls came in the heart of the four western provinces where the C.C.F. party now leads and the Progressive Conservatives 10 of the West's 71 federal seats.

Still Appears Fresh

Still appearing fresh after 1½ weeks of the 16-day trek, the 67-year-old premier, delivered his speeches, held another press conference, lunched privately at the cenotaph while 500 people watched and visited veterans in hospital.

He told the press conference he hopes it will be possible to devise some new concept which will prevent a complete break between the Commonwealth and the two Indian dominions which are slated to become republics.

He also indicated that for the time being the government intends to continue to regard the Irish as British subjects with purposes of Canadian citizenship, despite the action which made Ireland a republic a few days ago.

He told the American reporter he didn't anticipate any official break from Washington about British use of United States dollars to buy wheat under the Anglo-Canadian contract.

Peace Will Help

In a luncheon address Mr. St. Laurent made his first speech on the royal commission for the national development of arts, letters and sciences. He said it was designed both to "advise the government in the best ways to encourage the free and varied expression of Canadian life" and to "awaken among Canadians a new interest in their own national achievements."

In chairman is Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, a former diplomat and now chancellor of the University of Toronto.

His political address saw him champion agricultural and other interests of the government and what they have done for Saskatchewan.

Given a period of peace, "we should do far more in the next 15 years than we have in the last."

Personal Health Talks

HYOPIA OR NEARSIGHTEDNESS

The optometrist told me to wear my glasses all the time I ever had, at all times. He said I am near-sighted and that I would see the difference wearing them would make. My family and friends advised me to wear them only during working hours, while reading and at the movies, otherwise I would begin to depend upon them too much. My eyes feel wonderful and my daily headaches have vanished, but every one continues to chide me, because I wear the glasses at all times. (Miss G. C.)

I take it you are a young woman. Lour exceptionally well written letter would indicate that you have enough character to ignore (regretfully) the gratuitous advice of family and friends, and heed the expert advice of your optometrist. After all, you paid the optometrist for his or her advice. It is good advice.

Failure to wear carefully fitted glasses, particularly in childhood and early youth, at least for all near-sighted work — reading, studying, sewing, writing, playing cards or anything at a table or bench, causes near-sightedness worse in adult life. Failure to wear glasses, at times, for both near and distant vision, minimizes the benefit to myopia (near-sightedness) and prevents rapid progress of the near-sightedness.

The more myopic (near-sighted) child or youth lives out of doors, the more glasses can be out of doors more or less the year around.

A. A. Knapp, M.D., American Journal of Ophthalmology, has presented records of 51 patients with progressive myopia (near-sightedness) from 4 to 20 years. They received calcium and vitamin D to supplement their diet. Only twelve of the patients took the daily ration of calcium and vitamin D regularly, and of these six showed a reduction in their near-sightedness, in a renewed stationary (that is, the myopia did not progress) and in four the myopia progressed.

H. H. Bellows, O.D., (Optome tric Weekly, Feb. 24, '44) urged young myopes to take the adequate daily intake of calcium and vitamin D—which he properly observes are foods and not drugs. Not one person under this care—together with the other hygienic measures already advised—showed an increase in the myopia, to say appreciable degree.

Both of these authorities recommend as the best source of calcium, Knapp stating that "for each cup of milk less than a quart (a day) two calcium tablets were added" and Husted stating that "it has been surprising to me that so few myopic children will take milk."

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Headache

Your pamphlet on headache helped me get rid of migrane two years ago—never had another attack...thanks a lot, Now I'd like to consider what you have to offer. (S. R.)

Answer—Thank you, but I haven't a thing to offer. Readers subject to headache may find helpful suggestions in the pamphlet Why Have Headache?—mailed on written request, (no clipping) to you stamped self addressed envelope.

No Stones

Please tell me what becomes of the stones in the gall bladder when the gall bladder is removed? (Mrs. R. S.)

Answer—Instead of being held there on the ceiling of the bile duct, they go straight from liver to duodenum through the common duct. The gall bladder is a bulb-like reservoir attached to the common duct which carries bile from liver to duodenum. People seem to get along as well without it as with it without the vermiform appendix.

Well, Isn't It?

Is it stupid to suffer from piles? I have had them and suffered for four years, but who can afford $50 for an operation? Have $30 for care of the children while I am in the hospital—if I go. You might underscore suffer too. That's what I say—it is stupid to Suffer From Piles, when it's the title of pamphlet available on the subject which you provide stamped self addressed envelope. Please do not use a clipping. I have been trying to tell you, Stupid, that there's no reason why you cannot go to the hospital for treatment of piles. (Copyright 1949 by John F. Dille Co.)

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SELF-MASTERY

The one great objective in life, for each one of us, is to gain self-mastery. That is really the big job, and the most important. Shakespeare, Happiness and success depend upon this one thing.

Edwin Grant Conklin, the eminent American biologist, once wrote that "when children are born they are not only what they are but particularly to know themselves, to develop, to do those things, they may be said to be really predestined."

We are endowed with a masterful power in that of the will. It is the power that makes us do. It is what has been the contributing factor in all great and successful lives. It is the secret of every successful person who has become the master of himself can easily be the inspiring factor for the uplifting of many others—far more than he ever realizes.

A famous psychologist has said that this knowing of oneself "is the principal science of life." Yet how little we know about this science! How little we know of the reactions to the good and wholesome and to the unwholesome. How we get in the scale of progress and self-mastery. In other words, how we are growing.

We can only gain that peace of mind, that joy and thrill, that comes by "rejecting passions which are not worthy, by wisely recognizing, accepting, and sublimating them."

Arthur Hadfield has wisely said. And I like that saying of William James in his wonderful lecture on "Habit" — "Keep the faculty of effort alive in you by a little gratuitous exercise every day."

We need have little worry about the upshot of our success in life if we will ourselves each day of our lives to become just a little more master of ourselves, under complete self-control. It will do us little good to keep our eyes upon someone else. We alone are the object of our fate, our individual happiness, and our success. Arthur Hadfield's utterance that Socrates ever uttered were those wise words: "Know thyself." And they can well supplement those of Shakespeare: "This above all: to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

START THINKING OF COLD-WEATHER

Good weather is here and it's time to start making plans for summer insulation. Now is a good time to start preparing for next winter.

If you have an oil burner in your home it may be important for you to learn now how you can save up to 10% of your present fuel consumption. Johns-Manville Insulating Fire Brick in your furnace, for example, will cut up to ten percent on fuel year after year. Moreover, you'll get an oil odor, pollen operation and faster heating ... what's more, you'll burn less oil to heat water this summer.

Now is the time to have the job done. It takes only a few hours . . . and the cost is low. Call your local oil burner dealer tomorrow, ask him about Johns-Manville Insulating Fire Brick that can save up to ten percent of your fuel. Or, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto.

LIGHT

There never has been a period in history so dark but that some sincere and luminous character has come to taper in the dark ignorance of his day. The venerable Bede said of Boniface that he was a candle sent by God into the spiritual illumination of the church.

Jesus described himself as the Light of the World, and said also of His disciples, "Ye are the light of the world." If we have any light at all, it is because the little candle of our ability on our character or influence has been kindled from the great candle of His divine life.

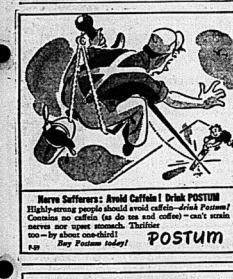
Sometimes the little candles on a birthday cake will give out more light than a candle on the altar. Low intensity candles sometimes give out very great light, and very great candles occasionally give out but little light. It depends upon the quality of the wick and the abundance of fat fed over into the realm of the spirit, more than the brightness of our light, the radiance of our influence, the example of our everyday living, do not depend upon our size — educationally, financially, socially — but upon the inner quality of our life and particularly upon the extent to which we respond to the wisdom with which God is willing at all times to light up our hearts and our minds.

Births, Deaths, Marriages Show Decline in Jan.

Ottawa, April 20 (CP)— January this year was a month of marked decline in Canada as far as births, deaths and marriages were concerned.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday that 9.5 per cent fewer babies were born in comparison with January 1948, while deaths dropped 19 per cent and marriages decreased 13.5 percent.

Births totalled 33,637 compared with 36,125 with lower figures recorder for six of the nine provinces, exceptions being Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Alberta where small increases occurred.



There were 9,870 deaths as against 10,912 with small increases in P.E.I. and New Brunswick.

P.E.I. again was among the exceptions in the marriage figures, reporting increases along with Nova Scotia and Manitoba. The other six provinces had declines and the total for Canada were 4,905 compared with 5,668 in January a year ago.

Hardware Store At Warren Burns, Loss is $5,000

Warren, April 20 (CP)— A $5,000 fire Tuesday razed a hardware store and was prevented from spreading to nearby houses and stores by a volunteer bucket brigade in this village 60 miles west of North Bay.

All available men fought to save the two storey building as adjacent gasoline tanks exploded and bullets from ammunition in the store whistled through the air. The village has no fire department.

H. H. Roy, owner of the hardware and two apartments above was burned out for the fourth time since he came to Warren in 1901.

The elderly man fought his way through the smoke-filled store to carry out his 15-year-old granddaughter, Aurelia Dr-ouet, escorted in a plaster cast. She suffered a crushed injury two weeks ago.

Twin sister and granddaughters Terry and Bryan Hey, were rescued from an upstairs apartment by Rita Giroux, a neighbor.

Residents said that had there been a high wind, the village of more than 500 may have been wiped out.

Labor Party Leaders Active Despite Recess

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 20 (CP)—Parliament is "out of school" for the Easter recess, but few leaders of the Labor party will spend the holiday splashing in seaside waters. They have too many things on their minds.

One of them is the acute realization that 1950, when a general election is scheduled, may well be a most crucial year in the party's history.

This represents a change in labor thinking. Up to two months ago, surveying a proud record in parliamentary by-elections, party chiefs counted confidently on next year confirming that trend.

Then came the black headlines of recent weeks—the so-called "standstill" budget, allowing only minor tax reliefs, and labor losses in elections to county councils.

Regardless of cause ant effect, the Labor party executive took the reverses seriously. One result, it was understood, has been an order to Labor followers to close their ranks and consolidate.

Unity within the party is expected to be a consistent theme in Labor speeches during the next few weeks.

Will Be Warned

When the general council of the Trade Union Congress holds its monthly meeting April 28, it probably will severely warn and accept the budget without a murmur, despite indictments in and out of parliament that many influential union leaders oppose it.

In many ways, the new Labor policy of consolidation and moderation, of arraying all forces for the coming electoral struggle, is reflected in the Labor party's manifesto issued last week.

It is a tricky, tantalizing document, open to several interpretations. Some have taken it as an indication that Labor merely is marking time. Others call it the most revolutionary statement the party has ever produced, vesting the Socialists with power to intervene in any industry in the country.

These varying viewpoints are possible because the wording of the manifesto is not specific on all points. But generally it is regarded as a victory for the moderate elements headed by Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister.

Air Force Doctor Queries Legends of Combat Fliers

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP)— An air force psychologist challenges two legends about combat fliers: that they are fearless dare-devils and that another flight immediately after a crash is best for a man's nerves.

Dr. David Stafford-Clark an RAF psychologist who during four years of wartime lived and flew with RAF fighter and bomber crews, has reported his observations in the Journal Mental Science.

He says even the most reliable pilots always were afraid. Devil-may-care types who had a good line at the mess bar, he says, usually gave up soonest.

They were less impressive in action than men who had coolly weighed the hazards, the only way to endure the strain and keep going back for more.

Both types, on a tour of 30 flights against the enemy started at peak morale because of the novelty and excitement. Between five and fifteen flights was "crack-up-level" for both.

By the 12th or 13th sortie a flier usually had seen at least one bomber downed in flames, perhaps even with friends.

"He had probably never been so consciously close to death in his life before," says the doctor.

Glamor boys usually stopped flying there. The more reliable man who had measured the task and his own ability for it kept going.

Even he, however, never again reached the top morale of his initial sorties. But he recovered from the slump and rose progressively until the 22nd flight when again decline set in. Normally they were grounded after 30 sorties.

It was not uncommon for men to weep, Stafford-Clark said when they went to confess their fear to the medical officer. Nor was it unusual for men to return to their jobs as soon as they learned that fellow crew-members often were as scared as they were.

"So strong was the spirit in Bomber Command," he wrote, "that it was not uncommon for a man to volunteer for 10 extra trips so that he and his crew could finish together if he had joined them with more flights to his credit than they had."

As for flying again as soon as possible after crashes, Stafford-Clark says that a short rest "is more likely to help a man regain his nerve."

Safecrackers Escape With $5,000 Payroll

Toronto, April 19 (CP)—A safecracking gang early today escaped with a $5,000-pound safe containing $5,000, payroll money of the Federal Grocerites.

Police said the thieves stole a truck from a nearby parking lot shortly before they rammed the plant shipping door. They lifted the safe onto a small hand truck and pushed it to the rear of the building.

It is believed the safe was opened in a suburban area and both the truck and strongbox abandoned.

Police said they thought the safecrackers were members of the same gang which has been breaking into west-end premises during the last two weeks, stealing safes and smashing them open in fields around the Woodbridge area.

Steel Shortage Definitely Over Says Iron Age

New York, April 20 — (AP) — The steel shortage is definitely over for iron and national metalworking weekly, reported today.

"Many products are in general balance with demand," Iron Age said. "Some items soon will be in better supply than the demand for them. So strong is this trend to normal conditions that it appears that at least two steel firms have started to take blanket orders from customers.

Iron Age says steel-users have one eye on their inventories and the other on the general economic outlook.

However, the magazine added, "There was no sign in the field to try this week the ingot rate was ready to go to pot. The rate this week is off one half a point to 99 per cent.

Zionist Leader, Dr. Stephen Wise, Dies in New York

New York, April 20 (AP)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, world-renowned Jewish leader who fought for half a century to make the world a better place to live for Jew and Gentile alike, died Tuesday. He celebrated his 75th birthday last March 17.

The end came at Lenox Hill Hospital, with his family grouped about his bedside.

He entered the hospital early this month for an operation for what the hospital called a "malignant stomach ailment." He had been gravely ill since last Saturday.

He died without realizing his last wish. He keenly wanted to visit the new nation of Israel. He had spent a lifetime working for its establishment.

Rev. Wise, an ardent Zionist, was president of the American Jewish Congress and the World Jewish Congress.

His many titles meant less to the tall, rugged rabbi than did his ideals—which were many and covered a broad field of social progress.

The late president Roosevelt called him outstanding in the world for his fight for "the oppressed and underprivileged."

He tur-ed down an offer to become rabbi of Temple Emanu-El New York's richest Jewish congregation. He said he was afraid his pulpit would be "under the control" of his trustees.

Instead he founded the Free Synagogue here. It became a monument to his life. Through its portals came Jew and Gentile to listen to Dr. Wise.

Dr. Wise wanted his only son, James, to follow him in the Jewish ministry. The son felt otherwise and repudiated the formal Jewish theology.

Communist Says Reds Will Soon Lift Blockade

Berlin, April 20 (AP)—Heinrich Rau, Communist chairman of the German Economic Commission, wrote today in a Russian-controlled newspaper today as predicting the Russians will lift the Berlin blockade soon.

The newspaper, Der Sozialdemokrat, said Rau made his prediction at a conference of Socialist Unity (Communist) party officials at Potsdam, near Berlin in the Russian zone.

During recent weeks there have been various rumors the Soviets want to bargain anew with the western occupation powers on lifting the Berlin blockade. None has been substantiated thus far.

Der Sozialdemokrat quoted Rau as saying that despite all efforts to keep eastern Germany's economy going, it has been strangled by the Allies' counter-blockade which has cut off vital supplies that used to come from western Germany.

"This stagnation can only be overcome by resumption of transport and trade with western Germany," Rau was quoted as saying.

The Communist Russian zone leader was reported to have admitted his zone cannot stand on its own feet economically, even with the "generous help" of the Soviet Union.

At the same time, he was reported to have said that although the Communists are most interested in lifting the blockade for economic reasons, they should under no circumstances admit they cannot get along without western Germany.

Substantially Accurate

London, April 20 (Reuters) — Recent press reports of a Soviet approach to the United States on the possibility of reopening four-power talks on Germany if the Berlin blockade were lifted are substantially accurate, usually well-informed quarters said Tuesday night.

The original approach from the Soviet Union is understood to have been informal and its outcome is still considered uncertain.

The United States government is understood to have consulted the British and French governments on their attitude and has attempted to get clarification of what precise steps the Soviet government would contemplate as a means to ending the present deadlock.

The view of the British government is believed to be that the Berlin blockade must be lifted before any further meetings of the council of foreign ministers can be held.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beare, Pine Street, Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Sunday was a big day in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. George Beare, 33 Pine Street.

In fact it rated almost on par with a notice sent by 30 years ago back in Hereford, England, when as young bride and groom they started housekeeping.

For surrounded by upwards of fifty members of their immediate family, Mr. and Mrs. Beare observed the golden anniversary of their wedding. They had a family dinner at the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Cook, Bleecker Ave, and later were "at home" to a wide circle of relatives and friends.

In honor of the occasion the 50-year wed couple were the recipients of many beautiful gifts and flowers as well as congratulatory messages from overseas and from points outside Belleville.

For the past 44 years Mr. and Mrs. Beare have lived in Canada, 38 of those years being in Belleville. They love the city and fully intend to remain here the rest of their lives.

"I never want to go to England again."

Former Bodiermaker

Now retired Mr. Beare was a former, long-time worker with the Canadian National Railways. He has been retired for the past few years but he is happy in his retirement.

An ardent fisherman, Mr. Beare enjoys nothing better than to pull members of the finny tribe from the waters of Paudash Lake in North Hastings, where his son has a Summer cabin for the years which she has been a member. She is also a member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Speaking of their golden wedding celebration Mrs. Beare stated "we didn't want it. It was the members of the family who planned it. But we are glad. Everyone was so lovely to us."

All five of their children were present. Besides numerous other brothers and sisters of Mrs. Beare in the United States, together with other relatives, were also present.

Out-of-Town Guests

A sister of Mrs. Beare, Mrs. John Anderson of Belleville, and a brother, John Bellinger, also of Toronto, are in Belleville for the Summer. Belleville, were present. Other relatives from out of the city attending were Mr. and George F. Fuller, Toronto, a cousin; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Underhay, and daughter, Jean of Sarnia.

The five children are Mrs. William Anderson of Belleville; Mrs. T. J. Ford, of Sarnia; William and Richard Beare of Belleville, and Jack Beare, Tweed.

Mrs. Beare still has on brother in England whom she expects will visit Canada soon. Her brother-in-law and wife had also passage booked for more than a year but were unable to get the passage advanced to enable them to attend Mr. and Mrs. Beare's anniversary.

2ND THURLOW

BIRTHDAY REMEMBERED

On Sunday, April 20th, Mrs. Ida Bonisteel, was the guest of honor at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Ken Bush, 242 Mr. Bush, on the occasion of her 78th birthday.

Bridge table was daintily decorated, and centred with two birthday cakes, bearing the correct number of candles.

Mrs. Gummer was the recipient of many lovely gifts, and many kind wishes for many more years of birthdays.

Among those present were: Her daughter, Mrs. F. Mitchell, and Mr. Mitchell, Freda and Donald; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mitchell, Marilyn and Gordon; Miss Shirley Taylor, and Mr. Ken Duesberry.

WEDDINGS

GREEN—HINCHLIFFE

A lovely wedding took place on Thursday April 16, at 3 p.m., in Christ Church, Bellecroft, before an altar banked with palms, and lilies, when Agnes Idella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Hinchliffe, 6 Hillside Street, Bellecroft, became the bride of Robert Carmen Orser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eastwood Green, Belleville. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend J. Grant Squire.

Mr. John Green, great uncle of the groom, rendered the wedding music. Before the ceremony he sang, "I Love You Truly", and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor-length gown of white satin illusion, and tiara veil and illusion, and tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Fred Trew was matron of honor, wearing a pastel green silk gown, and the senior bridesmaid, Miss Maida Woodley, was gowned in pastel blue organdy, while the junior bridesmaid, Miss Jacqueline Avery, cousin of the bride, was in yellow Bembop sheer. They carried nosegays of sweetpeas and roses.

Mr. Harry Hodgson, of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers were, Mr. Webster Walker, cousin of the groom, and Mr. Jack Avery, uncle of the bride.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. H. Brownlee, 7 Hillside St., where the bride's mother wearing a gown of navy blue and black accessories, and the bridegroom's mother, in black and white matching accessories, received the guests.

Mrs. Elwood Orser, mother of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Robert Browning, grandmother of the bride, poured tea, while the Misses Ruth Bellinger, cousin of the bride, and Miss Audrey Taylor, served.

Miss Green assisted in receiving the guests at the door.

Out-of-town guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trew, Kingston; Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. John Rollas, New Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Patricia, Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. Walker, of Bath, Ont.

A cup and saucer shower was held at the home of Mrs. T. J. Holland, Pinnacle Street, in honor of Miss Agnes Hinchliffe, who was played after which a basket, beautifully decorated, was brought in filled with lovely boxes of gifts, which were opened by the bride, who graciously thanked each one. Later, dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Holland, Betty and Patricia.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the bride's grandmother's, Mrs. Robert Browning, Hillside St., when many gifts were brought in the evening, and later the guests were presented to the bride, who thanked the givers very kindly for the lovely gifts received and for their many good wishes for her future happiness.

Mrs. Browning, assisted by Mrs. John Avery, served of the bride, served refreshments.

REID—CUMMINGS

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Presbyterian Church Manse, Cottage, Belleville, on Saturday, April 16th, at 3 p.m., when Ida Madeleine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Cummings, Belleville, was united in marriage to John Harvie Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Reid, of Belleville, the Reverend H. R. Harback officiating.

The bride was gowned in a suit of robin's egg blue, with navy accessories, and wore a corsage of red carnations.

Her only attendant, Mrs. Isabell MacDonald, wore a navy suit with grey accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Earl MacDonald, Belleville, was groomsman.

After the ceremony, a reception was held for thirty guests at the home of the bride's parents, the bride and groom receiving later for Toronto. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Reid will reside in Belleville.

O.E.A. Told That Parents, Not Teachers, Have Duty of Sex Education for Children

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— Parents, and not teachers, have the duty of giving sex instruction to children, Rabbi A. T. Ordman, of Hamilton, who spoke yesterday to delegates at the 89th annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

Today the more than 7,000 teachers attending the convention in the last half of their crowded four-day programme.

Dr. Church, director of Hamilton's mental health clinic, urged parents to give gradual instruction in sex matters "from the child's tendenst years" instead of waiting until adolescence to give them the information "all of a sudden."

If the parents failed in their duty the teacher could only try and patch up the damage.

"Children of three and four years begin to notice sex differences," he said. "Parents should tell them the truth...simply explain naturally...to young children the subject causes no embarrassment."

S. R. Ross of Windsor assumed the presidency of the O.E.A. Tuesday night, succeeding Blanche Fismerlie of Toronto.

Dr. R. Bowers of Stratford was elected first vice-president and C. W. Sease of Brockville was named second vice-president.

L. S. Beattie, director of vocational education for Ontario, said that failure of young people to find jobs was the result of freedom and responsibility have brought complaints from employers of modern youth lacker initiative.

Dr. Karl I. Bernhardt of the University of Toronto psychology department urged parents of kindergarten pupils to learn "what is going on in the kindergarten and the kind of experiences their children are having there."

Need Skilled Trades

Dr. Ira Dilworth of Montreal, head of CBC's International service, said over-specialization in education had clouded "a clear picture of general purpose" in student's lives.

C. W. Jeffreys of Brockville urged that young people who do not intend to enter university should be directed into a trade. Canada needs young people skilled in trades, he said.

Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, warned of a danger to education in improper use of film and radio.

An annual bonus of $100 to Ontario teachers to travel or buy books was proposed by Professor E. C. McLean of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

J. G. Demeza, public school superintendent of Kirkland Lake, told a meeting of trustees that taxpayers that they had a responsibility to create conditions that will attract young persons to the teaching profession. "No profession offers a greater challenge ...To be an influence for the good of future society than teaching," he said.

One speaker announced the good news that little boys could grow up in good health without ever washing their necks or behind their ears.

Dr. Jay B. Nash of New York University said that attempts to make children health conscious only put fears in their minds. Administrators should attack instead the causes of ill-health in the school and community.

"The average boy can grow up quite well without ever washing his neck or his ears," he concluded.

Drinking to Excess may Start Country Towards Collapse Charlotte Whitton Tells OEA

Toronto, April 20 (CP)— Excessive spending on liquor in comparison with money spent on education may cause Canada's society to crumlapse from dropsy Charlotte Whitton said today.

The penniless Canadian Welfare worker spoke before the closing meeting of the Trustees and Ratepayers Department, Ontario Education Association.

"For every dollar Canada was spending on operating all its educational institutions, she was spending $2.25 on beer, wine and liquor, Miss Whitton said in a speech prepared for delivery.

"Even more indicative of the slow but certain doom and disintegration of our democracy from within is the same disproportionate outlay of $2.10 on beer, wine and spirits for every dollar spent on salaries for our teachers."

She called for special guardianship of the child—"the unit of a continuing society." The home was the first pillar of a continuing society, the church the second and ordered government, evolved from home and church, the third.

"To underpin our threatened social structure, the school has slowly evolved as the fourth pillar of a continuing society," Miss Whitton said. "Certainly as we do it day, I had the best night's REST-ALL Capsules I would have had to give up. Now I'm right as rain."

STIRLING

Mrs. E. Duffin D.D.P. Visits Rebekah Lodge

Stirling—On Tuesday evening, Mrs. Ethel Duffin, D.D.P. paid her official visit to Laurel Rebekah Lodge. Mrs. Edna Fox, J.P.N. introduced the D.D.P. who was given a warm welcome by the N.G., Mrs. Marion Heath. Those in the Guard of Honor were: Marion Carlisle, Evelyn Fiskin, Mildred Morrow, Kathleen Jones, Lela Belcour and Florence Mayzes.

Highlights of the evening were the D.D.P.'s address and a reconsecration ceremony conducted by Miss Evelyn Bailey.

Mrs. Effie Bailey read an appropriate address and Miss Evelyn Bailey presented Mrs. Duffin with a gift. Delightful refreshments brought the evening to a close.

Comparison of School Methods Old and New

Foxboro—At the regular meeting of the Foxboro Home and School Association, which was held on April 13, the members were privileged to hear how school was taught in 1879 and 1949.

Miss Effie Gowsell, retired school teacher, and life-long resident of Foxboro, was guest speaker.

Miss Gowsell told her audience of the one-roomed school, and the method of teaching. "Knowledge is Power", was the theme of teaching and it was up to the pupil to acquire all the knowledge he or she could. Miss Gowsell then told some anecdotes of the good old days which were enjoyed by all.

Use of Knowledge

Mrs. Wanda Sine, principal of the present day Foxboro School, was the second speaker. She told of modern methods of teaching especially in Grades I to IV.

Mrs. Sine outlined the different types of Schools, mentioning first the subject, "Centred School", subjects were taught.

Second: The child—centred school—all emphasis on the child.

Third, and present day school: community or community school which prepares the child for life in a democracy, and is centred around subjects, children, building—parents and community.

"The old trend in education was "knowledge is power", "three R's", everyday living, me living with you, you living with me, "not to live with others, in this village, this village living with the others" and so on, out into world relationships does not consist alone in the abundance of the knowledge which we have, but in how we use what knowledge we have—to live with others."

"We still teach the three "R's", spelling, etc. But now we teach much more, we teach children to live." Quoting the late Dr. J. K. Flemming, chief inspector of Elementary Education for Ontario, Mrs. Sine said, "The aim of all education is to produce citizens who will be publicly useful and privately happy."

Co-operation of Parents Needed

The speaker then gave a short talk on the preparation of the child about to enter school and what the parents can do to help by co-operating with the teacher. A six year old child can be quite a problem and as he spends only a few hours out of twenty-four at school, the parents can do much to help him make the adjustment to his new environment.

After the speakers had finished as an interesting film entitled, "The Party Line" was shown and later, at the close of the meeting, a social half hour was enjoyed.

The next meeting of the Foxboro Home and School Association will be held on May 10, and as it will be the election of officers, it is hoped all members and interested parents will be present.

W.M.S. Leads Easter Service, Puts on Pageant

IVANHOE

Ivanhoe—A largely attended Easter service was held in Beulah United Church, Sunday evening in charge of the W.M.S.

The worship service was ably conducted by the President, Mrs. George Wood. The hymns, Scripture and prayers, proclaimed the Risen Saviour.

Mrs. Newell Broad, president of the Madoc section, guest speaker on the evening, took as her theme "What Easter means to Women". "Jesus in His ministry sought always to emphasize the importance of women. Women were first at the Tomb and first to receive the command to go and tell of a Risen Christ." Mrs. Broad stressed the fact that, in foreign lands wherever the Gospel of Jesus is heard and accepted, the status of the women has been raised from servitude to reverence and honor.

Mrs. George Wood in her gracious manner expressed thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Broad for her inspiring message.

Ivanhoe—An impressive Easter pageant was given by the members of Beulah W.M.S. "As Un-shadowed Cross". The church was candle-lit and against a background of evergreens stood a gleaming Cross. The following girls dressed in white gowns carried black veils with which, as the veils formed the Cross:

Doubt, Mrs. Stanley Prest; Fear, Miss Lorna Hagerman; Pride, Mrs. Earl Benson; Sorrow, Miss Cora Frost; Unbelief, Mrs. A. Cooney; Indifference, Mrs. Hugh MacMillan; Death, Mrs. A. Wood.

The seven graces dressed in white with name band on their foreheads each in turn removes the veils from the Cross:

Faith, Miss Doris Twiddy; Hope, Mrs. R. McMaster; Humility, Miss M. Prest; Joy, Miss Elinor Reid; Truth, Mrs. Don Reid; Love, Mrs. Harry Lovibond; Life, Mrs. Malcolm MacMillan.

The part of Christian was taken by Mrs. Clifford Mills.

The pageant was interspersed with hymns on "The Cross", "Faith" and "Love".

The choir was assisted by Misses Janice and Neata Fleming of St. Andrew's. Miss Marjorie Prest sang the solo "He is Risen" at the conclusion of the service. Mr. G. A. Cresser pronounced the benediction.

Health Scheme Not Product of Socialist Govt.

Ottawa, April 20 (CP) — The development of Britain's national health scheme was not a social trend, and no one should think it had some suddenly "got of a Socialist government's hat," Gladys Carter, Brantford, told a banquet night told delegates to the Ontario Registered Nurses Association convention.

Miss Carter, now lecturing at the University of Toronto School of Nursing, spoke to nearly 350 graduate and student nurses attending the annual dinner of the organization, established 23 years ago.

The national health service had come because the people wanted it. And it was preceded by years of "careful thought and planning, political pamphleteering and progressive legislation in which every political party has had a hand" she said.

She described the health service as "one of the most imaginative and finest schemes" any country has developed.

Main Social Function

The dinner meeting was the main social function in the nurses' three-day convention which has been given over primarily to the study of reports and discussion of problems facing the nursing profession.

At an earlier session Dr. E. M. Robertson of Queen's University, Kingston, appealed to delegates his views on the inter-dependability of the nurse and the physician.

"Nursing and doctoring are complementary and depend absolutely upon one another," said Dr. Robertson.

Reports heard during another session included one from the committee on health insurance and nursing service. The convener, Madaline Baker of London, Ont., noted that from a health program estimated to cost the Dominion of Canada $90,000,000 - "only $500,000" was earmarked for professional training to assist nurses.

"While this is a step in the right direction, it is a pitifully small sum if we are to prepare to meet demands which health insurance will make on the nursing profession," said Miss Baker.

ISLAND REFUGE

Yarmouth, N.S. — (CP) — A New Yorker is reported negotiating for the purchase of Outer Bell, an island near Soldier's Bin, site of the international tuna tournaments. It is believed the prospective buyer intends to put up a first-air station there for tuna fishermen.

Women's Activities

Shannonville — "The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Shannonville United Church was held last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Charles Wood, with 22 ladies in attendance.

The President, Mrs. Sam Elliott, welcomed the visitors, and thanked the hostess for opening her home. Mrs. George Fraser gave a reading entitled "Easter Victory". Mrs. Earl Mumby had charge of the devotional, the theme being "Christian Fellowship in the Family Circle". The Bible reading was given by Mrs. Frank Dunbar from the 13th chapter of 1st Corinthians, and Mrs. Murphy read "Thoughts on the Journey". The minutes of the last meeting were given by the Secretary, Mrs. C. Mastin, and accepted as read.

Mrs. Mastin reported that $14.40 had been realized from the home cooking sale at the market and $23 from the sale of the sewing machine.

Mrs. Elliott expressed thanks for the card she received during her illness. The roll call was answered by short Easter readings.

Mrs. Murphy reported for the Blue Cross, that individual interviews are now available. The collection was received and dedicated by the president.

One of the visitors, Mrs. Livesay, pleasingly sang two verses of "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling", with all joining in the remaining verses and chorus.

During the meeting, some of the ladies were busy quilting and after the singing of Grace, Mrs. Wood and her assistants served delicious refreshments. Mrs. Martin Gilbert of Tweed was present for the next meeting which would be held in May.

MASSASSAGA W.M.S.

The Massassaga W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Gray for the April meeting. Mrs. Boyle, the president, who has been ill, has recovered and was in the chair. Mrs. Keeler conducted the program as suggested in this Mission-ary Monthly. Mrs. R. Jose, Mrs. R. Valleau and Mrs. Harry Wallbridge assisting in Scripture readings and prayer.

Thirteen members were present and two paid dues and offering was $6.16.

The program Advance in Home and Overseas Missions was given by Mrs. Boyle, Mrs. Keeler and R. Valleau and Mrs. Wallbridge. Dr. Sinn of Netherlands Reform Church, asks that the United Church of Canada accept the new home from the Reformed, so they may become a part of Canadian church life. Japan and India ask for more missionaries.

Mrs. Hillman gave a report of the Presbyterial held in Trenton on April 8th.

Following the meeting the hostess and assistants served dainty refreshments.

The Thank-offering service was held at the church on Sunday morning, April 20th, with Mrs. Norman Graham of the Salvation Army, Belleville, as special speaker.

MAN IS CONVICTED AS HABITUAL CRIMINAL

Hamilton, April 20 —(CP) — George W. Crams, 54, Tuesday was sentenced to an "indeterminate" term in Kingston penitentiary, after his conviction as a habitual criminal. Police records showed he had three previous sentences at Kingston and one in the United States. Crams is the second Canadian to be convicted under a new criminal code amendment, permitting indefinite imprisonment of habitual criminals.

Women's Institute

CHATTERTON W. I.

Chatterton—The April meeting of the Chatterton W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Finkle, with 11 members and visitors present. The president presided at the opening of the meeting, after which the minutes of the previous assembly were read, and signed. The roll call, "Bring up or pay" was well answered.

A letter from Mrs. Braine, in England was read thanking the Women's Institute for the parcel which had been sent.

It was decided that the secretary write a letter to Mrs. Braine; that $37.00 be given to the charity and a $1 fee be given to the film board council and that Mrs. Finkle be re-imbursed for the express charges on the parcel which had been sent, as well as cards, and other expenses and also that $1 be sent for the area fee.

A pie social will be held on May 24th in the school house, with the following committees: Mrs. Bleecker, Mrs. Snider, Mrs. Mitts, Mrs. Lorne Reid, Mrs. R. Reid, Miss Jean Reid and Mrs. Finkle.

STIRLING

Public School Pupils Give Annual Concert

Stirling—Stirling Theatre was practically filled on Wednesday night when the pupils of Stirling public school presented their annual concert. The program included choruses, folk dance, short plays, and instrumental numbers, and drew rounds of applause from an appreciative audience. Every pupil in attendance at the school appeared on the stage at least once during the program and all did their part well. Principal Wells, members of the staff and pupils are to be congratulated on a splendid performance.

Enjoyable Program

The program opened with the singing of "O Canada" by grades 5, 6, 7, and 8, after which Principal Wells welcomed the large audience, and called on C. I. Hatton, chairman of the Board of Education, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Grade 1 pupils opened with a series of choruses and were followed by choruses and nursery rhymes by Grades 3 and 4 and a chorus, "Easter Morn" by grades 3 and 4. A health play "When Polly Ordess Lunch" was presented by grades 3 and 4 and were followed by a Junior Red Cross meeting by the "Sunny Stirling-ites" pupils of grades 3 and 4.

Two Part Chorus

A group of two part choruses "Come Soft and Lovely Evening," "Twinkle, Twinkle" "Johnny's So Long at the Fair" were sung by pupils of grades 7 and 8, and Ray Hemmelston, accompanied by Gordon Allen Munro, and Keith Williams, trumpets, contributed instrumental numbers. Six girls from grades 7 and 8, Carolyn Tuttle, Sheila Ingram, Janet Rose, Marie Emmons, Ruth Brady and Helen Irish delighted with a folk dance.

One Act Comedy

The first half of the program ended with the presentation of a one act play "Child Psychology." The members of the cast were Ruth Emmons, Eleanor Fox, Dorothy Bumbe, D. Villemaire, K. Hazman, Sally Fox, David Bell and Ann Bolte.

Wild Life Film

The second part of the program consisted of the showing of films on the conservation of wild life, forests and fish, by Messrs. Jeffries and Weightman of the Caring Conservation Club.

A short picture on how fish are born and their struggle for survival. Expedition Mooza, a picture showing the habits of the moon. Northern Tackle Busters and Wild Fowl, in how modern wars shown and were very interesting and much enjoyed.

VOTE FOR RECONCILIATION

Ottawa, April 19 (CP)—Members of Local 1,817, United Steel Workers of America, Monday night voted to apply for a conciliation officer to mediate their dispute with Titanium, Ltd. Some 500 employees are affected. The union is asking for a 40-hour week with the same pay now received for the present 45-hour week, a three-cent-an-hour increase and two weeks holiday with pay.

GOING TO THE U.S.A.?

To avoid possible delay and embarrassment at border crossing points, be sure you have met the foreign exchange regulations before you set out. The travel ration of $150 per person for the period November 16th, 1948, to November 15th, 1949 is to insure the fairest distribution of the U.S. funds available. For children under 11 years of age, the amount is $100 U.S.

If you are taking a trip to the United States, you need to secure a Form H permit to take out of Canada any amount exceeding $10 U.S. or more than a total of $25 in U.S. and Canadian Funds.

Form H can be secured quickly and easily from branches of any Canadian Bank.

Nursing Executive Ends Long Service

Montreal — (CP) — After 30 years as executive secretary and registrar for the board of management of the Association of Quebec Nurses, Miss E. Frances Upton is retiring.

Born in Montreal, she received her early education here and graduated from the school of nursing of the Montreal General Hospital.

When the First World War broke out she resigned her position as acting superintendent of Montreal Maternity Hospital and volunteered for military service. She spent 4½ years overseas.

She returned to Canada in 1919. Malaria sent her to hospital and two years later she became superintendent of nurses in the Sick Children's Hospital. She established the first tuberculosis course in Canada for graduate nurses at St. Agathe, Que.

In 1926 she organized the International Congress of Nurses held in Montreal in that year. In the place of work she showed her organizing ability and later that year was given the position she held upon retirement.

Babies Switched After Blood Test

Inchinnan, Scotland — (CP) — For eight days 21-year-old Mrs. Jean Wilson of this Renfrewshire town nursed a baby boy she thought was hers.

For eight days 21-year-old Mrs. Nancy Barclay nursed a baby boy she thought was hers.

Then, two days after leaving maternity hospital, they were advised the boys had been switched by a hospital error. Labels attached to the children at birth had been confused.

The Wilsons and Barclays exchanged children after blood-tests confirmed the error.

St. Andrew's Choir is Reorganized

Stirling—Choir practice of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Fargey, last Thursday, with a good attendance. Following the practice session, the choir was reorganized with Mr. H. Tompkins capably acting as chairman. The following officers were chosen:

President, Mrs. Chas. Fargey.
1st Vice President, Mrs. Robert Williams.
2nd Vice President, Mrs. Roy Eggleton.
Sec.-Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. V. Walker.
Musical Committee, Arline Tummon, Marilyn Eggleton.
Social Committee, Mesdames Eggleton, McGee and Walker.
Flower Committee, the executive.

Visiting Committee, Mesdames Williams, Eggleton and Fargey.

It was decided to buy new music and also "Every Day" cards for sale. After discussing other matters of business Rev. W. H. V. Walker, on behalf of the session, expressed appreciation to the organist, officers and members of the choir for their faithfulness and inspiring messages of song.

On behalf of the choir, Mr. R. Eggleton moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. C. Fargey for their gracious hospitality and the dainty refreshments which were served.

DETROITER: "Do you know whether or not any of the vitamins put out in glass containers are destroyed by light? We should have a large economy size package of the family weak type of Scotch Emulsion."

Giant packages of Scott and Vel are already on the market. Prices are $1.00 and $1.89.

$100 LAWRENCE: "Is there a difference between the vitamin C in orange juice and that in a hundred dollar apple pie? Is there anything in it?"

You're perfectly right. There is a hundred dollar prize for the best apple pie baked according to Tamblyn's recipe. Entry forms may be obtained from the Canadian National Exhibition Information Exhibition Building.

ORANGE JUICE, FRESH AND CANNED: "What is the reason canned orange juice and fresh orange juice are not the same?"

What is the food value? Our children prefer the canned juice to the fresh juice. I don't see any reason, if the food value is there, why they should not be canned juice."

Canned orange juice costs about 6 cents for a 6-ounce glass. A glass of fresh orange juice costs about 5 cents. The Vitamin values of fresh and canned orange juice are the same. Each has 75 Vitamin A and C—540 International Units of A and 75 International Units of B in a 6-ounce glass. A glass of fresh juice contains 75 milligrams of Vitamin C, and of fresh juice 50 milligrams.

WRITING: "Is there any way to remove letters from typewriting and from hand? The ribbon is too good to waste." Soak the letters overnight in a solution, half vaporizer and half water. Then rub with a soft eraser in the direction of the writing. Wash well in soap and water in the direction of the writing should disappear.

ECONOMIC BREAKFAST: "I have a swelling reputation to safeguard in April. There will be 75 guests. How many eggs will I need for a breakfast omelette?"

Allow eight beaten eggs for each omelette including one chicken, celery, mayonnaise and seasoning. Don't heat it up with substitutes.

Don Metz Tells Smythe He Will Not be Back

(By The Canadian Press)

Don Metz, hard-working right winger with five Toronto Maple Leafs Stanley Cup teams, announced Tuesday his retirement from hockey.

Metz told Manager Conn Smythe he would return to his farm at Sask., farm and join his brother, Nick, who retired from the Leafs lineup last year.

The Toronto management also announced that Ted Kennedy, Leafs' captain, had signed a contract for next season. The 28-year-old centre star was an important factor in the triumph over Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup finals last week.

At Toronto T. H. Allson, president of Toronto Argonauts Football Club, said yesterday he had "nothing to say" on reports that Argos had completed arrangements with the Cleveland Rams for exchange of players.

The reports said Argos, who traditionally have refused to use American players, would be able to get players from the professional Rams if needed.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted yesterday in Washington to invite the 1956 Winter Olympic Games to Lake Placid, N. Y. The group approved a bill by Senator Irving Ives (Rep., N.Y.) extending invitations to the International Olympic Committee.

Vancouver Clover Leafs last night took a stranglehold on the Western Canada senior basketball crown by downing Winnipeg Pauline 66-53 in the second contest of a best-of-five series at Vancouver. The series winner advances to the Dominion final.

Toronto Montgomery Debs, intermediate 'A' champions of the Ontario Ladies' Basketball Association will meet Cornwall, winners of the Quebec Association crown at Toronto Friday and Saturday for the Eastern Canada crown. It will be a two-game, total-point series.

If Detroit is selected as host city for the 1956 Olympics, it will hold the games in a new Madison with a seating capacity of 104,000. This was announced yesterday at Detroit by Lolis Rossetti as he left by plane for home where he will go before the International Olympic Committee with a six-man Detroit group to issue the city's invitation.

Gardella Loses Bid to Return To Baseball

New York, April 20 (AP) — Danny Gardella, a wartime outfielder with New York Giants, lost his bid yesterday for immediate return to baseball, from which he was suspended in 1946.

Judge Edward A. Conger denied Gardella a temporary injunction pending trial of his suit against organized baseball for $300,000 damages and a permanent order lifting the suspension.

In denying the motion that baseball be restrained from enforcing the suspension Judge Conger said he invoked all the reasons employed April 1 when he denied similar applications filed by Max Lanier and Fred Martin, former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers.

The three players are among several former major leaguers who were suspended for five years by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler for jumping to the Mexican League.

Lanier and Martin have sued baseball for damages totalling $2,500,000.

An appeal of the denial for temporary relief in behalf of Lanier and Martin is pending. Their suit has been set for trial April 23. No date has been set for the trial of Gardella's suit.

Gardella, now a hospital attendant, disclosed Monday that he had agreed to play his part for Canadian independent team at Drummondville, Que., of the Quebec Provincial League an independent loop.

DISAPPEARANCE OF GOLD FROM STRONG BOX

NATIONAL CULTURE COMMISSION HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Vancouver, April 20 (CP) — First meeting of Canada's recently-formed Royal Commission on National Culture will be held in Ottawa May 2. This was announced Tuesday by commission member Dr. Norman Mackenzie, president of the University of British Columbia.

University Prexy Wants Halt To "Exploitation" of Young Hockey Players While in School

Toronto, April 20 (CP) — Provincial legislation to halt "exploitation" of young hockey players while in school was urged here Tuesday by Dr. G. S. Hunt, President of the University of Western Ontario.

Addressing the college and secondary school section of the Ontario Educational Association convention, he recommended that professional clubs be not allowed to tie up a player until he either had completed four years' secondary schooling or had reached the age of 18.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's "player agreement" came under special fire from Western's prexy. He called the "form C" agreement "as insidious as it is unjust."

"Many cases have been cited where boys of 15, 16 and 17 have signed the form 'C' for the more or less standard fee of $100," he claimed. And clubs have traded such signatures later, "but the student player shared not at all in the thousands of dollars which passed between the clubs."

Dr. Hall said that 97 high school principals could be quoted in such cases of players being exploited.

Dr. Hall declared that the wholesale exploitation of young high school students in this country through players "tryout" agreements, option agreements, negotiation agreements and listings by professional hockey clubs or their controlled amateur clubs is known to many.

"Evidence of the iniquities of such contracts is accumulating at a rate that is beginning to stir not only principals, athletic directors and teachers in general, but also broad minded sports writers who see the injustice to the boys and to the future of the game.

"The seriousness of such exploitation in junior 'A' and junior 'B' hockey, as well as the ramifications of the practices as now operating into juvenile hockey is such as to arouse public opinion to an indignant pitch."

"Our Gang" Team Wins Major "B" League Title

The "Our Gang" team of the Major "B" (Tuesday) Bowling League proved the "money squad" in the loop playoffs at Recreation Alleys last night when they finished on top of the pack to win the league championship for the season. The team rolled an aggregate score of 3150.

Members of the newly crowned champion team are M. Thompson, L. Cook, R. Keilar, K. Peoples, Al. Adams and Max Peoples.

The next four teams were fairly closely bunched with Sacos rolling 3096 to capture second place honors. Blacks Meats came up with 3119 for third slot with the Ontario Intelligencer Inkpots rolling 3046 for fourth position. "Just Us" piled up 3003 points for fifth place with the AMCO Vat Cans compiling 2905 to bring up the rear.

The playoffs climaxed another highly successful season on the part of the Major "B" (Tuesday) League and some consistently good bowling has featured the seasonal play.

The annual banquet with presentation of prizes and the election of officers will be held next Tuesday night.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McGULLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 20 (CP)—Bruce Woodcock, bald and right fist tightly clenched, gazed at it lovingly, as did reporters.

The pal will win the heavyweight championship of the world for Britain."

The Yorkshire boy who holds British, European and Empire heavyweight titles really believes what he says. He says:

"I figure it like this." opines Bruce who hails from Doncaster. "The world championship does have to beat Freddie Mills and Lee Savold. I have already beaten both of them. Why shouldn't I do it again?"

This calculation doesn't take into account the fight retiring champion Joe Louis plans to stage to fill his vacant throne between Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott. But if Bruce gets by Freddie and Lee he probably would hold the Jack Solomon version of the world title at that. Bruce says: "If you take notice of what some boxing people say, I must be walking about on crutches. Is that fair? I have won all three fights since I came back to boxing after my 18-month lay-off."

Bruce won his fight against Savold sitting on his silk trunks when the American, ahead on points, suddenly fouled out. But he says he can win a rematch with no other weapon but the right hand of which he is so proud.

"I am out to bring the world heavyweight championship to Britain," concluded Woodcock. "I believe I can do it."

Around Lewes, Sussex, public house in the Isfield district of darts is no longer the favorite accompaniment to a pint of old and mild. An even older game is making a comeback—"ring the bull."

The idea is to throw a metal ring, suspended by a string from the ceiling, at the nose of a bull's head attached to the wall and hang on a hook projecting from the nose.

This isn't as easy as it sounds, for the string makes the ring swing a little off-centre and the players have to throw curves to score a ringer.

A league of 20 teams has been formed and the darts parlors in those parts are just about empty.

"The game is so old that nobody can find a book of rules and we've had to make up our own as we went along," said George Wayne, pub-keeper at the King's Head, Lewes.

The first 80 years were the hardest for golfer W. J. Mason.

After trying for half a century, the pertinacious linksman, now 73 sank his first hole-in-one when he canned a toe shot at 165-yard eighth hole at Muswell Hill.

1924 500,000 Telephones
1945 1,000,000 Telephones
1949 1,500,000 Telephones

WE'VE PASSED another milestone in telephone history — in Ontario and Quebec we now have 1½ million telephones. Of these, 500,000 were added in the last four years. That's more telephones than we installed in our first 40 years!

And as we have grown, service has grown better. Your calls go through quickly, clearly. You can always count on your telephone. Yet up to now, despite rising costs on all sides, there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 22 years ago. Few things give you so much real value at such low cost as your telephone.

We've broken all records — but there are still orders we haven't been able to fill. We will keep right on working and building to make your telephone service a bigger bargain than ever — to continue to provide more and better service at the lowest possible cost.

Bobby Feller's Failure Furnishes Most Disturbing Note of Major Loop Openers

Bob Feller's failure is the most disturbing note of the opening of the major-league baseball season, which otherwise reads like a carbon copy of 1939.

A year ago Bobby pitched a two-hit shutout opening day, but Tuesday Feller was lit up for two innings because of wildness and a sore arm. He yielded one run as the Indians lost to the upstart St. Louis Browns, 5-1. Ned Garver scattered seven hits to beat the champs before 12,817, the Browns' largest opening crowd in 10 years.

Otherwise things were normal.

Mel Ott, 31-year-old Polish-burgh hurler, resumed his favorite job—beating Chicago, 1-0. Lou Brissie, Philadelphia Athletics' lefthand second year man, repeated his 1946 rookie job of spoiling the opener for Boston Red Sox. Brooklyn whipped New York Giants 10-3 under a deluge of boners by Jackie Robinson, Roy Campanella and Carl Furillo.

The crowds were slightly off but some of the smaller parks were the sites of Tuesday's games. The total for Monday and Tuesday was 287,489 as compared to 331,782 in '48. However, the remaining openers Friday, including an expected 70,000 at Cleveland, will better last year's 16-game total.

Chapman Helps Hurler

Brissie, the boy with the war-shattered leg, was hard pressed in the late innings to win against Boston but a great catch by Sam Chapman on Bobby Doerr's long drive in the eighth helped him out of trouble.

Eddie Joost hit a game winning homer off Joe Dobson in the seventh inning to square the A's at 1-1 for the season before 19,597 at Shibe Park.

Cleveland's pitching staff, tabbed "best in baseball," used Feller, Early Wynn, Mike Garcia and Bob Lemon against the Brownies.

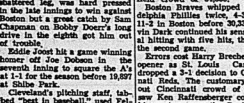
Rookie Johnny Groth, the Buffalo sensation, broke in the right way with a pair of home runs on successive times at bat. Hal Newhouser handcuffed the Sox with three-hits.

With Joe DiMaggio sitting on the bench in his street clothes and 40,075 in the Yankee Stadium stands, New York Yankees needed a ninth-inning home run by Tommy Henrich to shade Washington 3-2. Ed Lopat, usually a slow starter, scraped through with an eight hitter to decision Sid Hudson.

Braves Win Two

Joe Hatten gave up 10 hits as the Dodgers rocked Larry Jensen the Giants' ace before an Ebbets field crowd of 34,330.



Boston Braves whipped Philadelphia Phillies twice, 4-3 and 11-2 in Boston before 30,337. Al-Dark continued his sensational hitting with five hits, three in the second game.

Errors cost Harry Brecheen his opener as St. Louis Cardinals dropped a 3-1 decision to Cincinnati Reds. The customary sell-out Cincinnati crowd of 32,118 saw Ken Raffensberger continue his mastery over the Cards with a five-hitter.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

For the grand opening of the wrestling season Manager Walter Gerow of the Arena has lined up an outstanding mat program. Whipper Billy Watson, who has pinned more people into the Arena than any other grappler has been signed to meet Sky Hi Lee in the main bout. Popular Pat Flanagan, who has really made a name for himself this winter is Toronto and Buffalo will be in the semi-final. Pat will take on another big "name" grappler in Ivan Rasputin the baby Russian. Rasputin has recovered amazingly from the broken spine of two years ago in Boston and he can be expected to enliven the local scene with his skullduggery.

In the third bout Frank Valois a big powerful French-Canadian meets the Cardiff Giant a mere mountain of thirty pounder from Wales. Manager Gerow is planning special refereeing of his ring for Friday's outingwhy by some of the biggest men in the world.

Whipper Watson who lost his title to Fred Atkins of Australia several months ago has been battling the come-back trail ever since. The Whipper is in flying form these days and intends to prove it all the sceptics of the two hundred and ninety-seven pound Lee. The latter is reported to be as ornery as ever and the net result should be one of those wild knockand-slaughter meetings the mat fans love so well. Friday's program shapes up as a thriller for the grand opening.

This from Peterborough: Bowing out as leader of a championship club, Coach Ned Vitarelli of the Legionnaires finished his active hockey career Good Friday in Barrie. The Legion won the OHA senior "B" title. Ned is being transferred on his job to Montreal in a few more months and will play no more hockey. But he is exceedingly happy.

"I've been playing organized hockey for 18 years," he said on the train arriving in Barrie, "and never won a thing in Canada. We did win out once in my four years playing in the States, but I never collared a big one. Now I've got one, and that's all there is to it. And then I'll hang up the gear quite happily. I'll do no more than play a light heart. He finished his hockey playing in a blaze of glory.

Finished a two-day bout with the flu and had plenty of time to think but nothing came out of it. No cracks, please. But since baseball is in the offing and the Legion baseball nines taking up the game we dug up some advice to young hurlers given out by the former Detroit Tiger mound ace, Tommy Bridges. The veteran pitcher is still going strong even at 43 years of age and while not connected at present with the big time is doing a good job of flinging for the Portland team of the Pacific League. He won nine in a row last year and this year before pitched the first no-run no-hit game of his long and colorful career.

Perfection of delivery should be the abiding goal of all aspirants for the major leagues, is Bridges' opinion. "Your young hurlers should try and perfect their delivery so that his whole action is timing and rhythm. He should try to eliminate any excessive movements and unnatural motions. When the timing and rhythm down as well as he can, he can be sure he is using everything he has, all his weight and all his power and energy and will wasting anything."

Bridges advises young hurlers to work on your fast ball because that is the foundation for all other pitching. Without it you can't get by unless you have that freak curve ball to baffle batters. And even that has to be extra slick. Only two pitchers I know of have it down right, Dutch Leonard and Rogar Wolff."

"One of the greatest pitchers of modern times came to the close of a brilliant career prematurely because of a natural movement. I mean Dizzy Dean," Bridges told newspapermen. "After his ace was felled in the 1937 All-Star major league game, he developed a strange-to-him-motion to relieve pressure on the muscles. And his arm was gone."

Coaches and potential coaches should not tell a young pitcher what to do until they have seen him in action. It's a mistake to advise before. It is rare that two pitchers throw alike, says Bridges. There is no sheet cot to success on the mound. Pitching is hard work.

Says Bridges, "One of the first things I would impress on boys is that it isn't easy to be a winning pitcher. When you're on the mound pitch yourself right down to where you can hardly walk away from the diamond, if you must. The pitcher who starts saving himself won't get all his potential work. After all, he has plenty of time to recuperate between appearances. In my opinion there is no reason why a young pitcher cannot pitch nine innings on a hot day—nine or more."

Bridges recalled that while he was Detroit (where he won 194 and lost 138 not counting four victories and one defeat in four world series and one win in the 1937 all-star game) he pitched every fourth day. He had a routine like this, pitch one day, rest the next, pitch light batting practice the day after then a light running workout and back to the firing line. Now at 43 he pitches every sixth day.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, April 20 (AP) — A lot of golf prow snicker at George Schneiter's idea of staging "minor league" open tournaments... They figure it costs a minimum of $200 a week to make the tour and a guy would be silly to shoot for less than a $10,000 minimum purse for a tournament... But at Augusta someone was asking what had become of the kids who used to hit the trill in an old jalopy, sleeping in it if they had to, and eating in crumb joints, hoping to pick up a little cash and fame... They could borrow a few hundred bucks from a club member and, with luck, survive the whole winter tour, several of them reached the top that way... The "kids" you see in tournaments now are around 30 years old... Maybe a regular round of tournaments too small to attract the big stars would bring out a new crop of hungry 20-year-olds ... And you'd be sure of plenty of hot competition if every player figured he'd have to win or thumb his way back home.

Ottawa Senators One Game Up On Marlboros

Ottawa, April 20 (CP) — A rapid - fire scoring potential that equals like a dynamite charge seems to be Ottawa Senators' secret weapon.

The high-scoring Capital clan demonstrated a knack of getting goals in a hurry Tuesday night while doubling Clarence Marlboros 8-2 to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Allan Cup semi-finals.

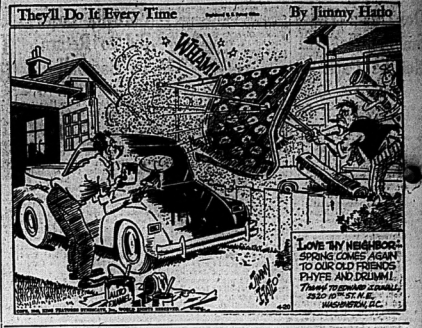
While a crowd of 7,689 Ottawa fans were trying to catch their breath, the Senators came suddenly to life in the second period and zapped in four goals in the short space of two minutes and 35 seconds. When the pressure finally let up, what had been a 1-0 first period lead for Marlboros turned into a 4-1 margin for Ottawa. The Senators stretched it to 6-1 in the final period before Toronto got its second and final goal.

Buddy Hellyer and Sid Smith contributed two goals each to the spree with Lorie Check, Jack Irvine, Emile Dagenais and Bill Robinson netting the others. Hellyer made it a big night, assisting on two counters. Check, Dagenais and George Greene also had a pair of assists each.

Johnny McLellan got Toronto's first-period goal on assists from Malc and Flash Hollett helping. Ray Handfield scored the other. George Armstrong and Al Buchanan assisting.

Started Scoring Outburst

Irvine started the second-period scoring outburst when he took a pass from Ed Dartnell and beat Howie Harvey at 2:25. A minute and 15 seconds later Check, Dagenais and Greene roared in for the second tally. The third goal was virtually from the centre-ice faceoff as Dagenais zoomed with Irvine and Hellyer helping at 5:35. The barrage continued at 6:40 when Smith scored with Greene and Copp assisting.



The fact was that while Marlboros were able to hold their own, hardly outmanoeuvred, a large part of the game, they just couldn't match the older and more experienced Senators for finesse around the nets.

Led by Ed Dagenais - Hellyer-Check line, Ottawa made life miserable for Howie Harvey, rifling the puck at him from close in and in quick succession throughout the last two periods.

Rearguard Irvine, besides netting a goal and assist in the winning cause, played a good defensive game, and with Bobby Copp and Ray Trainor working like Trojans. The Senators' defence managed to keep Marlboros' attack disorganized much of the time.

The Senators were eager and confident today as they prepared to head for Toronto for the fourth game of the series, winner of which meets the Western Canada champion in the Allan Cup finals.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By AL VICKERY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, April 20 (CP)—Tommy Gorman, Ottawa sports promoter, is not the only person suggesting that amateur hockey in this country needs a high commissioner.

Lorne (Lethbridge Herald) Fenwick has been advocating for some time that "amateur hockey in Canada needs a house cleaning right away . . . and the sooner amateurs are ruled by one honest man, and not by a group of cliques, the better it will be for the game and its future."

In one of his series of blasts against the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Fenwick said "the time has come to do something about the C.A.H.A. For years now it has been only a representative of the men who run the teams and not of the people who pay the money to see the games.

"A high commissioner or a governor of amateur hockey is needed, an honest man like Clarence Campbell or the late Judge Landis."

Brains Favored

Fenwick cited the Port Arthur Bruins, last year's Memorial Cup champions, as an example of a team being handed the breaks by being allowed to strengthen by the reinforcement rule and having the advantage of home games.

In western towns like Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Bellevue and Brandon, the C.A.H.A. has a "frankly rotten" reputation, Fenwick said.

"It has that reputation because the word has been getting around for years that it is run by men who are not interested in the game of hockey as a game, but in it as a business. Some of these men, in fact, would rather please a couple of guys at home than the population as a whole."

Appoint One Man

"We repeat that something should be done. Provincial executives should bring in resolutions at the next annual meeting of the C.A.H.A. Finances and like should be handled by committees, but the really important thing—which is fair dealing—should be handled by one honest man."

Feud Between Education And Sports Authorities Breaks out, Bitter Words Said

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 20 —(CP)— A feud, smouldering since January when organized hockey asked Ontario education authorities, was fanned into full blaze today between the two bodies.

Both sides had their say Tuesday as Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, who declared "amateur hockey is dead" and Nicholas Hickleton of today through the "ruthless and unfair" methods of professional and amateur hockey.

He said they are exploited "with the viciousness of the millionaires of the early 1920s" and and asked that provincial legislation should be introduced barring pro clubs from "lying up a player until he has either finished four years' high school or reached the age of 18."

He declared that boys of 12 and 14 years are lured into pro clubs without their knowledge and are then prevented from playing with any other teams.

Slung by the education's reaction to the Ontario Professional Association convention hockey brought its big guns to bear.

"It is a shocking thing that a president of a university would make an unethical approach to any school, group or individual, either negligently or deliberately, make claims that are absolute falsehoods," declared President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League.

Officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association followed suit by saying the charges were "ridiculous and absurd."

Not Opposed to Pro Hockey

Dr. Hall, in a brief interview early this morning, said he was "not opposed to professional hockey."

"But I am opposed to the type of contract minors have to sign. They are signing away their hockey careers."

In his address to the O.E.A., Dr. Hall said:

The young hockey prospect "is transported from his home, his parents, his friends and his school to take up residence in an unfamiliar hockey city, living in rooming houses, attending a school not necessarily of his own choice, and withdrawn from the normal contacts which undermines his health, jeopardizes his future, renders secondary the church and the home, shatters the ideals and encroaches upon human right and liberty and sells the boy into bondage, a bondage maintained and operated by men animated by profit and the desire for the spectacular."

Campbell replied that "no player can turn professional unethically or unlawfully without his (the player's) consent or the consent of his parents. Neither can he be moved from place to place without his consent."

He said also that no boy under 16 years of age may be put on any professional team. "It is a matter of fact, no boy under 16 may even have a try-out with any club."

The opening shot in the feud was fired by J.L. Murray, principal of Kingston Collegiate Institute, at the January meeting of the Dominion's sports-governing bodies called by the National Council on physical fitness. The session was aimed to determine the country's sports ills.

Survey Taken

Murray told of a survey of 50 Ontario high schools taken April 1947, showing the 119 boys of 16, 17 and 18 years of age had been cut from schools to play hockey. He termed it "an evil which has grown without the governing bodies realizing the result" and called for "drastic and immediate action."

Campbell, who attended the session, said he would discuss the "whole problem if sound statistical information is available and Murray's report is not it." He said not me: the collegiate principal.

Dr. Hall made his address to the O[illegible] that a questionnaire amount 50 high school principals in Ontario showed that of 79 young players covered by the survey, 63 were transferred from their home town and school for tryouts or in order to play hockey with organized Junior "A" or "B" teams.

Of the 63, 30 did not attend school at all in their new locality. The majority of the 79 boys, he said, were 17 and 18 years of age, but 12 were 16 years old and two were 15.

The N.H.L.'s controversial "C" form was widely-publicized early this month over the case of Danny Lewicki, 17-year-old Fort William player who signed the form with Toronto Maple Leafs of the N.H.L. when he was 16. Managing Director Conny Smythe of the Leafs said Lewicki would play within the Leaf organization until year or the "he won't play at all."

Smythe's ultimatum was backed up by the N.H.L. and C.A.H.A. but Harold Wyatt, President of the Stratford club on which Lewicki played, said if Toronto claimed the player he would fight it—"even if recourse to law is necessary."

The N. H. L. said it would back Smythe because Lewicki would be 18 next year — the league's "age of consent."

The "C" form, one of the most hotly - debated issues in hockey, works like this:

When an amateur signs it, he agrees that the contracting club within one year may call upon him to sign a standard contract and perform professionally for a specified time at terms agreed upon. He is paid a minimum of $50, usually more, for signing the option which is renewable each year on payment of the agreed-upon sum.

One clause in option C says:

"Pending the currency of this agreement or extension thereof, the player covenants and agrees that he will play hockey only for such hockey team as may be designated by the club."

The following clause says "It is mutually agreed that the club shall have the right to sell, exchange, assign or otherwise transfer this contract and the rights to the players services to any professional hockey club, and the player agrees to accept and be bound by any such exchange, assignment or transfer, and to faithfully perform and carry out the terms of the agreement with the same force and effect as if it had been entered into by the player and the assignee club."

There are two interpretations to the contract. Some hockey men argue the contracting club can direct a player to perform with any amateur club it wishes while others contend the questioned clause was never intended to apply to amateur activities; that it is related directly to the subsequent clause regarding transfers.

Whipper Billy Watson who recently lost his Empire wrestling title to the Australian "Hard Rock" from Down Under? Fred Atkins will open the wrestling season here on Friday night against no other than the Texas Giant Sky Hi Lee. Watson is well-known here and his rough and ready tactics should extend the popular Whip to the limit. Watson is hot on the comeback trail for that title and has designs on intentions of letting Lee bar the door. They wrestle in the main bout.

Port Colborne Beat Gans 13-4 To Win A Title

Fort Erie, April 20 (CP)—Port Colborne Merchants put on a brilliant display in the swamp Gananoque Legionnaires 13-4 and capture the Ontario Hockey Association intermediate 'A' championship before 1,700 fans here on Tuesday night. They won the best-of-five game series 3-1.

Led by their speedy centre Kilpatrick, Ports moved into the lead shortly after the midway mark in the game and snowed the visitors under with a seven-goal onslaught in the last period. Kilpatrick scored four goals and assisted on two others in the hard-fought, fist-skating contest.

The winners fanned on some great chances in the first period and were trailing 3-1 at the end of the first 20 minutes, but they put on pressure in the middle period and left little doubt of the outcome after they took the lead in the early minutes.

Gananoque went into the lead 3-2 seconds after the opening whistle when Pair backhanded the puck home. After missing a number of opportunities, Port Colborne tied the score when Kilpatrick, on his second try, took Garner's pass in front of the net to score from 15 feet out.

Come Back With Two

Legionnaires came back with two goals within 16 seconds as Jackson completed a clever passing play and Hudson counted on a solo effort.

The victors started in early in the second period with Castle flipping the puck into the open net. Pine tied the score with one of the cleverest plays of the night. He snared the puck in his own zone and carried it alone to the Gananoque net, where he slid the puck past McDonald.

Kilpatrick sent Port Colborne into the lead which they never relinquished as he took a faceoff and went in alone on the goaltender to score. He added another tally and Gibson countered after Jackson had collected the last goal for the losers. Ports led 6-4 at the end of the second period.

The final period saw Benner immediately set the pace with a goal in the first minute and Kilpatrick wind up the scoring with 16 seconds left. Castle and Clark both tallied twice for the winners.

Forbes made some fine stops in the net for Gananoque lost the services of Hudson, their rover winger, who crashed into the boards heavily in the second period, after making a solo effort.

Regina Capitals Need One Game To Clinch Title

Regina, April 20 — (CP) — Regina Capitals, a team of veterans way past their peak, today have only to hold on one more win to take the Western Canada senior hockey title and retain the Allan Cup finals against either Ottawa Senators or Toronto Marlboros.

The Capitals Tuesday night downed Fort Frances 6-3 to take the lead in the best-of-five zone in their best-of-five western final.

The Caps clicked in brilliant fashion for five goals in the middle session. They were enough to sink Fort Frances' hopes.

Canadians won the opening game 5-4 and Caps came back to capture the second 7-2.

Fourth game is scheduled here Thursday.

Gordie Stasson of Caps and Ed Kinner of Canadians each had a pair of goals Tuesday night. Bert Fonso picked up the other tally for the double-P club while Lou Hauck, Ad McDougall, Toby Brown and Mel Hill were the other Regina scorers.

If the Caps had a particular star it probably was Stasson, who took advantage of a penalty to notch two goals a minute apart. The penalty was to Walt Christiansen for holding and which the Fort Frances forward was off, Stasson tipped in a long pass from Hauck near the net and then flicked home a rebound.

The heavy going seemed to affect Canadians especially in the second period but they appeared a good deal fresher in the last period which was the only one in which they outscored the Reginans.

STONE AGE RELICS IN SOUTHERN INDIA

New Delhi (CP)—A large number of implements used by man 250,000 to 500,000 years ago" have been collected by the British archaeologist, F. E. Zeuner, from river valleys and jungles in South Central and Bombay province.

On the completion of his South Indian tour, he said: "Madras presidency is one of the richest fields for the implements of stone age man." Gujarat (Bombay) state, he added, was an equally "good place."

Karl Leandersson Triumphant in Boston Marathon

Boston, April (AP)— For the fourth straight year, a Swede has won the famed Boston A.A. Marathon, sending Karl Goeta Leandersson, the 21-year-old Swedish champion.

The lanky-speeding Swede ran 162 strong rivals ragged Tuesday while completing the 26-mile, 385-yard course from Hopkinton to Boston in 2 hours, 31 minutes, 50.8 seconds.

Talking command from Victor Dyrgall of New York at the halfway mark, Leandersson gradually pulled away and finished about half a mile ahead of Dyrgall. Dyrgall covered the course in 2.34:42.

Louis White, Boston Negro distance star, was third in 2.36:42. Two-time winner Johnny Kelley of Boston was fourth in 2.38:07 and Joe Smith of Medford, Mass., who did not get back in 1946, fifth in 2.38:20.

Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., striving for his fifth victory since 1940, had to be content with sixth place. He explained that he had neglected to "train on hills" for this race.

The only other former winner in the starting field of 125—21-year-old Clarence Demar of Boston who has led the pack home seven times since 1911—finished 40th in 2.38:42.

Leandersson, through interpreters, said he had hopes of erasing the course record of 2.25:39 until he hit the long stretch of Newton Hills.

"It was hot and I was unable to breathe properly taking the hills," he explained, "and they tired me out."

Among the other Canadians, the veteran Ab Morton of Galt, Ont., was 15th in 2.51:21.

Highlights of Openers

Special ceremonies marked the two New York openers. A granite monument to Babe Ruth was unveiled in deep centre field at Yankee Stadium. Brooklyn paid tribute to Jack (Hinchy) Laurice, the No. 1 Dodger fan and leader of the Dodger "Hi, Phoney" band at Ebbets Field. Laurice died last year.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A light opening is a dark venture, but the opening bid in bridge is light if it is short of anything except by rule. Even if it has a surplus in one department it is light if short in another.

An opening bid of one in a suit shows a hand containing five tricks and better than average in other essential items. They are four high cards of which two are sure tricks; and a biddable suit.

When, therefore, is an opening one bid light? When it has less than five tricks. Or less than four high cards. Or less than two sure tricks. Or less than biddable in the suit named.

Came the deal you see-here:

NORTH
♠ K Q J 10 5
♥ A 8
♦ 9 8 4 3
♣ Q 3
WEST	EAST
♠ A 9 8 6	♠ 7 2
♥ 9 3 2	♥ K J 10 9 4 3
♦ 7	♦ A Q 10
♣ 8 6 5 2	♣ 10 7
SOUTH
♦ K J 6 5 2
♣ A J 10 9 4

South was the first to speak. His is not an opening hand, but it has the five tricks; two high (ace and king), one short in spades, and two others in hearts. But the short two high and a sure.

West has an opening bid of one. He lacks a trick, a sure trick, two high cards, but has a small club better for the club ace and west should still be too light for an opening.

North has all the requirements for opening one spade. Besides having enough in strength, he has a little more in two departments. He has a sixth trick and his suit is rebiddable.

East has all the tricks. If he was the dealer he would not have had a true opening. Why? He has the four high cards needed. But he has only one sure trick; the diamond ace.

When north opens the bidding with one spade, should east bid? Yes. Although light for an opening a diamond may enter the bidding with less than four high cards and less than one sure trick.

A defending bid of no more than one needs five tricks; of two needs six tricks; of three needs seven tricks. The simple overcall by east is two hearts. Just right.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 20 (AP)—Midweek medley: Highlights and sidelights on the Hollywood news.

Bob Hope bounced out of town this week for another of his entertainment tours of the country. This time he and his radio troupe are playing 25 shows in 15 days in 15 states.

The proceeds go into the Hope Enterprises, which not only produce some of his pictures, but indulges in other commercial ventures.

Which brings up a question often knocked around in Hollywood bull sessions — who is richer, Hope or Bing Crosby. Most amateur observers hand the laurel to Hope, even though Crosby has earned more moola over the years.

Buyer's Market

Competition is getting hotter every day in the television industry. The movie minds have found that the different kind of pictures are the ones that make the biggest money these days.

So when two or more studios get a similar type of picture on a "different" theme, there's a rush to get the thing in the theatres first. That's happening now with two pictures showing the seedier side of the fight racket. Next it will be a race for movies on the Texas boom.

The buyer's market has returned the film industry, like many others, to competitive ways.

French Behind

Speaking of competition, here is a comparison between British and United States television fields. The privately - owned American system has developed into well over a million sets in use.

France, where the government controls TV as well as radio, has 10,000 sets, a Paris correspondent reports.

Strangely enough, French television is ahead of ours in one way than the U. S. wrand — it has better and clearer screens.

The reason is that the process is being made toward its development in an entertainment medium in France.

High Lead Prices Mean Fatter Purses for Mine Workers in Australia

By LESLIE BRODIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Broken Hill, Australia (CP) — Like a strike-torn lead mining town in western New South Wales practically all the residents went to work in the mines.

The city attracted by the bonus paid to all mine employes according to the ruling price of lead on the world markets. In March it amounted to $42 a week payable on top of other wages.

But the bonus is crippling the town's economy. All instructions outside the mines are suffering from its effects. They cannot get skilled workers to keep business functioning properly.

The idea of sharing the profits with the workers was introduced by the mine companies soon after the disastrous 1919-21 strike. They agreed to pay eight cents a unit for all ounces for every $3.20 the price of lead rose above $51.20 a ton.

A ceiling of $6.40 was fixed on the bonus but this was removed in 1942. Soon afterwards lead prices soared to $423 a ton, thus giving a bonus of $6.40 for every $3.20 or $1,000,000 a year to the 6,000 employees in the mines.

The lowest paid man at the mines company is a gardener who gets $64 a week—almost three times the wages he would earn elsewhere.

Immune To Inflation

Although Broken Hill is "boom" town, it is almost immune to inflation, because almost everything the people consume or use is brought in. Even other towns and cities where the lead bonus does not operate.

Any attempt by retailers to profiteer is quickly dealt with by the Barrier Industrial Council, the co-ordinating body of the mine unions. If a charge is refund is made immediately.

Savings bank deposits show that most of the miners are not being lured into extravagance money, although sales of semi-luxury goods such as dish-washing machines, refrigerators and motor vehicles have increased considerably this year.

It is estimated that the town has more automobiles per head of population than any other town or city in Australia, if not the world.

But there is no fear of a slump in Hill by other workers in Australia. Its wages will be matched by companies will not allow a man to work there unless he has lived in the district for two years or was born or educated at Broken Hill.

Milking Machine Rubber Liners Need Good Care

Ottawa—Unlike metal, rubber is porous. This makes it much harder to keep clean. During milking, parts of milk and dirt get worked into the pores of the rubber liner and even the best cleaning methods will not remove every trace. The milk fat causes the rubber to soften and swell out of shape, while the other milk solids provide food for bacteria. In the pores of the rubber these bacteria may thus multiply out of reach of brushes, rinses or sterilizing solutions. Then, at the next milking, as the liners are contracted and relaxed by the alternations of vacuum and release, enormous numbers of these bacteria are literally squeezed out of the liner and washed away in the stream of milk flowing through. This frequently results in complaints about high bacterial counts in the milk.

Recommended Method

Many methods have been recommended for the care of milking machine rubber parts. The one which has given best satisfaction on the Central Experimental Farm, and which has been in regular use since 1936, consists of sucking a pailful of cold water through the liners immediately after milking the last cow. On no account should this step be delayed. The rubber parts of the cleaner assembly is then washed off, and the assembly placed in a draining rack and filled with a 0.5 per cent chlorine solution. This is prepared by adding 2 rounded teaspoonfuls per gallon of water and stirring thoroughly to dissolve. (Liners of short-tube milkers should be immersed in a pail containing the same solution). At the next milking the 0.5 per cent is drained out, and a sterilizing solution (chlorine or quarternary ammonium) compound is drawn through. Once a week the liners and inflations are removed, brushed in a hot solution of cleaning compound, rinsed and returned to duty.

During the year, in order to protect the rubber parts, they were given a periodical boiling in a 2 per cent soda solution. This treatment extracted an amazing amount of fat from liners which appeared to be perfectly clean, and restored their elasticity. More frequently the liners were boiled in sets of liners for each unit. After each boiling in soda, the first set is boiled in a lye solution (8 rounded teaspoonfuls per gallon of water) for 10-15 minutes, rinsed well in clear water, then dried away in a cool, dark, dry place. At the end of the second week, the other set is treated similarly treated, and the first set is given one week's rest. By this method, the liners are kept in A1 condition, do a better job of milking, and last much longer. At the same time, bacterial contamination of the milk is kept at a very low level.

Cost Is Low Solution

Once a month, all rubber parts should be boiled in lye solution the same as the liners. This will clean both the inside and outside making them look like new.

In carrying-this treatment, use a stiff-bristled brush and push a piece of chicken wire folded double to keep the rubber from collapsing and float it on the top of the pot. As an alternative, an old enamelled bucket will do. The pot may be set on the back of the stove and allowed to remain there for several hours; there is no danger of harming the rubber by prolonged heating treatment—in fact, the longer the better.

Although lye is a cheap and strong lye solution, are poisonous, and should be kept out of reach of children or domestic animals at all times. Flake lye in tins picks up moisture from the air, so keep the tin tightly closed except when removing the required amount.

Drew Heads West On His Tour of Newfoundland

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. John's, April 20 (CP)—National leader George Drew of the Progressive Conservatives is paying today headed west, leaving this capital to mull over his call to Newfoundlanders to "protect their "provincial rights."

He will visit nearby Conception Bay villages and the birthplace of his grandmother at Port De Grave. Tomorrow he will return to Sydney, N.S.

Tuesday night, Mr. Drew gave St. John's its first campaign speech of 1949 — back in the provincial rights pies before an audience of 3,000 in an unheated hall and said: "These rights could be protected "by safeguarding the constitution from centralization at Ottawa."

H. G. R. (Harry) Mews, Newfoundland party leader introduced his chief who arrived at nearly 10 p.m. after a stormy day-long trip by car from Carbonear.

"By the way" — with a wave of a fork — "I bought another Rolls the other day. A 12-cylinder job. Phantom II." Drew her about two blocks and paid for it. Sure got a big outa that baby!

"Well, sir," Melton continued, "I called London right away for the leather that little old Rolls would have to have. I'm going to do a two - tone paint job. Wait 'til you see her!"

A minute later, Melton had his wallet out. A couple of pictures of his pretty, three-year-old daughter, Diana.

"Built a little electric car for her" — he had pictures of the car too — "and a replica of the one that won the Indianapolis speedway race."

And, speaking of replicas, that diamond and — platinum stickpin in his lapel — that was Diamond Jim Brady's.

"Picked it up at a side street and always wear it. It's a locomobile, first American car to win the Vanderbilt Cup race. That. was 1905. See how the wheels go round."

"Well, right now I'm looking for a pre - 1912 Rolls Royce limousine. Any pre-1912 Rolls but especially a limousine. Pretty darned scarce, though.

Really do like Canada, Melton said. No bidding, nothing can beat a Canadian concert audience.

"Now, I've got a Mercedes—"

James Melton Owns Largest Collection of Antique Cars

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington — (CP)—James Melton talks about Grieg and Debussy, about the "lousy, stinking, no-good time-spot" some radio friend of his has been given — and about automobiles. Mostly automobiles.

This black - haired 44-year-old concert and opera tenor, whose name is synonymous with "Stanley Steamer," is a big, smiling boy-at-heart who'd scorn sock or sac to the purr of a Rolls Royce than dig into a sirloin.

Proud of a boyhood ambition — plus the cash dividends his voice has brought — Melton the owner of the world's biggest private collection of antique cars. He and his 75 are on display in the Melton Museum at Norwalk, Conn. It's a thriving business.

"Fifty thousand people have dropped in since we opened and since we opened the place last fall," he said in an interview. "Golly, we'll probably have 100,000 or 150,000 by the end of 1949."

Between gulps of a shrimp cocktail, Melton was telling about a visit to Canada. He turned abruptly to his travel manager.

Still Buying

"By the way" — with a wave of a fork — "I bought another Rolls the other day. A 12-cylinder job. Phantom II." Drove her about two blocks and paid for it. Sure got a big outa that baby!

And, speaking of replicas,

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma took me downtown with her on account of me needing new shoes again already, and ma said, Oh, here's a Carry All drug store. I need a few drug store items and I think I'll just stop in here and get them. Any new diet is working wonders in my weight and the Carry All stores all have free scales, so I mite as well give myself the added satisfaction of seeing the result as well as feeling it, she said.

And he went in, the free scale being site next to the cigar counter, and ma got on it and weyed herself, saying, Why, how ridiculas. According to this I've gained instead of lost. Why, that's absurd. I'm certainly not going to pay anything here, if the accuracy of this scale is any indication of what eits to expect, she said.

Which just then the cigar salesman leaned over the counter, saying, Please dont pay any attention to that scale, madam, it registers 4 pounds overweight. The man is coming to regulate it this afternoon, he said.

Oh, I see, 4 pounds overweight, is good, ma said. That's different, that's better. I'll go to the drug counter and buy my things, she said.

Which she did, me staying by the scale to watch people way themselfs free. Which 2 people did without looking surprised, and then a little skinny man got on, saying, Why this is preposterous. I know I way more than that, what kind of a store is this? he said, and the cigar man said, Dont pay any attention to that do, scale, the man's coming to regulate it. It registers 4 pounds underweight, he said.

Proving it was one of the things he was probably payed to do, and the little skinny man said, Oh, thanks, I supected something like that, I knew I couldn't be wrong.

Which just then ma came back and smiled at the cigar man and said goodbye to him, being the happy end of the subject on account of me not wanting to spoil her satisfaction by telling her.

The Night Owl Well Produced Mystery Play

By N. L.

Ghosts, spooks, haunts, howls and blood curling screams. Another one of those wholesome plays. The only differences was that this one had the laughs to push off that creepy feeling but it also had the creeps that would wipe the smile off anybody's face. That was the way things went at the Masonic Temple Hall last night when the Anglican Young Peoples' Association presented Frank W. Spohn's three-act mystery comedy play "The Night Owl".

"The Night Owl" is one of the best plays that has been seen here in quite some time. The cast presented this play with no little skill and was greatly enjoyed by those in attendance.

The entire action takes place in the living-room of an old country house on a stormy night. Ann Wesley, a famous New York playwright, has taken this house to help give her inspiration for a play that she is having trouble in writing. James T. Gray, a well-known producer, has come to visit here. Mrs. Karley and her husband, George, the caretaker, tell them weird stories about the house being haunted and a ghost that roams the walls at night that they have seen and that when the cuckoo clock on the mantel strikes twelve o'clock someone in the room was to die.

Bring in Victim

Following this little episode two kidnappers have come in out of the storm with their victim, Ken Grant and William Wimple, the latter of the two is the leader but feared to be scared of his own shadow, have kidnapped Daisy Linden and her aunt to make money. The home because of the bridges being washed out in the storm. Running of the southern young couple, June Allen and Jack Norton, have had to come here for journey and seek shelter.

When the fun starts. Pete part Pontine through the air and creates havoc in the old dreamer. A white cloaked hooded figure has been roaming over the Ann Wesley's safe and into a real row with their romances and how they ever get them unscrambled and almost a mystery in itself.

In the final act the whole mystery comes to light but we will not spoil the suspense for the night's audience by giving away the plot. However it was one of the most entertaining and spine chilling plays that anyone could ever wish to see.

Well Presented

The play was well presented by the cast and the staging was perfect right down to the right lighting and sound effects. Gwen Rundle portrayed the part of Ann Wesley and Ralph Jago took the part of James Gray. Alice Matthews was Mrs. Karley and Doug Tufford was George. Ed Waterhouse gave a very fine presentation of Ken Grant and also an imitation of one of the fairer sex. Peter was played by Jean Green and Wallace Wimple was played by Bill Bush. Jean Lamb took the part of Daisy Linden and June Allen and Jack Denton were played by Barbara Carr and Max Wilkinson.

The play was under the direction of Mrs. F. Grant Sparling and she was ably assisted by Bill Vallance. The mystery comedy will be presented again tonight at the Sunday School auditorium.

History of Cement Subject of Talk At Kiwanis Club

"The History of Cement," was the subject of an interesting and instructive address given by Kiwanian Harry Brown at the weekly luncheon of the club held at the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday. Two new members, Hugh Hallsen and Ken Schulman were introduced by George McIntosh and Sid Rose, respectively, and initiation was performed by past Lieut.-Governor Cliff Barager, who recounted the many projects that have been undertaken by the club for the good of the community. The attendance prize was donated by Anthony t'eKota and was won by Sid Rose.

Mr. Brown who was introduced to the club by Donald Dies, stated the first indication cement could be used was in the pyramids of Egypt. "These are still standing" said the speaker "and to this day it is not known the chemical analysis of the substance used." He stated that the process of making cement progressed after the human race had made use of fire because the real due was found to be the right substance for the basic ingredient. Turning to the Greek regime the speaker stated that limestone and sand were used to make cement along with crushed brick and tile. In the early period the volcanic rock was used.

Quality Improved

From the 12th to the 14th centuries the quality of cement improved but the greatest progress was made between the 18th and 19th centuries although there was no interchange of facts among countries that were using the material. The speaker told of Smeaton, the Britisher, who perfected a hydraulic cement, that could be used under water and about 68 years ago, Aspdin patented the Portland cement that is commonly used today. The speaker describes the bottle kilns that were used as well as the rotary kilns that are in use at the present time remarking that the one in use at Point Anne is 450 feet long and nine feet in diameter. He stated that 2,000 tons of crushed rock and three tons of clay were used each day and between 8,000 and 9,000 barrels produced.

TWEED

Reports Given Local Fair Board On Convention

Tweed.— At a meeting of the Tweed Agricultural Society held recently in the Council Chambers Hinnigan the secretary and the delegates to the Ontario Fairs Convention held recently in Toronto gave his report.

He noted that some societies appointed associate directors, creating a wider interest in the fair. Class organization of various committees was advocated at the convention as a means to increase interest in all classes. In order to avoid confusion on fair day, it was suggested that all boards have a definite schedule and stick to it, and the livestock parade was generally considered to be one of the best features. The chief responsibility in this regard rests with the chairman of the horse and cattle sections.

Midway Important Part

The midway plays an important part in any fair, but care should be taken to have it located in an area that will not interfere with other activities.

The fair should serve the district in which it is located and prize list should be arranged to suit the classes of livestock, most common in the district. W. P. Watson, manager of Guelph Winter Fair, said,

Mr. Rush submitted a most excellent report, supplemented by remarks on the convention from Pres. Dennis Fleming. The directors are discussing plans for this year's fair and the local Board is planning to make additional improvements to create further interest in the fair this year.

Street-Car Speed In Toronto Stays Unlimited

Toronto, April 20 — (CP) — Toronto street car operators now can relax, when it comes to speedometers. Street car speeds will continue to be unlimited.

City council Tuesday night refused to approve a recommendation from Board of Control that speed of street cars be restricted in the same manner as motor vehicles.

The only board members to oppose the recommendation, Con. Lamport, said "By tying them up in this manner we would slow down the service. This would cut the number of passengers and thus contribute toward a 10-cent fare we hear so much about."

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

He had little to say for the remainder of the hour. Was she feeling him, the wonderful, perhaps, now that her final answer had been given, she would never see him again.

When he left her, he said, — "Good-bye, Gay," and there was a note of finality in his voice. Seeing the large car drive away and thinking of going back to the shop, she wished she could walk and walk and close her mind to the hurt she had given Gregg and her own fears for the hostility that was sure to come.

The girls in the dressing-room looked at her through the mirror. Had Marchand told them? She could feel her heart thumping hard.

"We've just been let in on the big news," Nita said.

Gay said, "I had nothing to do with it. Please don't blame me. I'd rather not do it."

"You know this was going to break," Nita said. The other girls stared. "That's why you've been hanging around the office so much lately. Haven't you had your picture in the paper enough? You ought to give someone else a chance."

"I had nothing to do with it." Nita started to brush her dark hair again. "Well, it hasn't come off yet. The last time there was a big charity show Marchand told me I'd get the next break."

Her head ached all afternoon. The day seemed endless. Gregg had left her with a note of finality, in his voice and there was an ugly threat in Nita's words. She had to be fitted in Leslie's wedding gown again. The fitter said, "You're cold, Miss Van Avery." Cold, yes, and aching and tired and all the things that tortured her piling higher . . .

Penny wasn't drawing when they got home. She was sitting in the window-seat with a letter in her hand, staring out the window. Her dark bangs looked frivolous again.

"I got a letter from Mac!" she cried when Gay came in. "I was afraid to open it at first. I just looked at it! It's just a friendly letter but — but he hasn't forgotten me! He's working at the airport at Nassau and he says he feels fine."

"Did he say anything about Chris?"

Penny's lashes dropped. "Chris is working on his play. It's nearly finished. Maybe he didn't tell you this but — but Chris has a girl in Nassau. Evelyn Ewing. She is an English girl. Mac says they are always together."

"Chris has a girl," said Gay. Her voice was dull.

She went into the bedroom and lay across the bed. She wouldn't destroy Penny's brief happiness by showing how she felt. Chris had a girl. Well, why not? Why shouldn't he? But she was jealous, as jealous as the day when she had seen a photograph signed, "Yours, Marion." Chris, whatever ending you give my story is wrong. There is no ending to it — no happy ending."

Penny came in.

"Telephone for you, Gay."

"Gregg?"

"No. It isn't his voice."

Brushing back her hair with her hand, she went toward the phone.

"It's Alan. I must see you, Gay. Don't put me off. I must see you at once. I'm not far from your apartment. I'll drive by and pick you up."

"Not tonight, Alan."

"You've got to listen to me." He rang off.

"Your life belongs to you," said Alan, and now to me, "Don't be afraid. We're the only ones who matter. Do you love me, Gay?"

She put her hand across his and smiled sadly. "I don't think there was ever a time in my life when I didn't love you. But . . ."

"Let me take care of everything."

"Lucia will . . ."

"Will be furious," he said, smiling again.

"I can't, Alan! I can't! To run off this way . . ."

"It's the easiest way."

The easiest way. She would never have to face the trouble-some Nita again, at Marchand's. Gregg would understand. But Chris would despise her. Penny would be disappointed, and Diana fearful for her.

"It is your life," Alan said, "and we loved each other long before any of the present difficulties came into it. We'll pull through, darling."

Her protests died on her lips when he kissed her. When he started the car, she knew he was taking her away.

She was going to be married, she kept thinking, sitting close to Alan. She did not look at him. She looked ahead at the dark road and then glanced down at the brown bows on her high-heeled slippers.

"Sweet," said Alan, "isn't this wonderful? A man must feel this way when he gets out of prison. We'll drive to the nearest town, get a license, and find a clergyman of your faith. I'll never lose you again."

She said over and over to herself, "I'm going to be married. I'm going to marry Alan."

She asked, "Why did we quarrel so violently?"

"We'll never quarrel again. Do you mind being poor?"

"I am poor."

His hand left the wheel and closed over hers.

"I did want a beautiful wedding dress," she said, wistfully smiling. "I'm a very shabby bride, Alan."

"You're lovely."

He would never lose her to Gregg Randolph now, he thought. The idea had saddened him. It had pricked His ego and made him feel inferior. It had also made him feel that Gay would be doing much better by herself by marrying Gregg than him. People would have ridiculed him, saying, "Gay made a better match than Alan Riggs." Gregg can give her everything. It was a challenge he could not ignore.

And Gay as she had been in the background, living a dreary life, working, attempting to manage, she had had no glamour for him. But the night he had seen her in the restaurant with Gregg, her hair a blaze of color, her dress as a sheath of white, the old fascination for her had come back.

Gay said, "I should send Mother a telegram."

"Wait until you can sign yourself, 'Mrs. Riggs'."

She felt embarrassed when she walked in the hotel and as if every one knew they were eloping.

Alan, in a great coat, looked down on her. "Wait here for me. I'll attend to the formalities and come back and get you."

"Don't be long."

He did not hear that, she wondered, because she wasn't sure?

The lobby of the hotel was shabbily furnished. The furniture was dusty, the rugs worn, and the mirrors smeared as if children had been running sticky fingers over them. It was cold and drafty. A few people passed, gave her a fleeting glance, and went on.

She looked very young and her eyes looked afraid. The green suit was still smart but it showed wear. The violets on the lapel were drooping.

It was not a romantic thing that she was doing, she thought. The hotel clerk had given her a knowing smile through the mirror. How much nicer to be married with those you love looking at you and wishing you well, and feeling yourself fresh and lovely and unafraid!

When she saw Alan come toward her, she felt better.

He laughed deeply. He looked, she thought, like a defiant boy who likes the revenge he has planned. "It doesn't take long to be married," he said. "It's really very simple."

"Let's talk sensible, Alan. It is a serious thing, you know. We'd better talk about some things before than after. Why, after all the months you kept me miserable, did you decide tonight you could be poor with me?"

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a generous trial supply of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine, known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page have known. Therefore, we offer the first 2000 bottles at only 25 cents per bottle to any reader who has been ill and will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

What It Is!

SYNTONA is an unusual medicine made from the juice of 12 mineral herbs, and not a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in the stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that cause stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas, sour stomach, heartburn, indigestion, and bad breath. It helps SYNTONA drives the poisons from the system and thus relieves nervousness, nerve irritation and weakness.

NOW, SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others. Simply try it with your next meal. Buy a bottle at your druggist's today. Bring in the light of what it has done for others. If you are not delighted to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth, the introductory offer is good Thursday, Friday, and Saturday ONLY. Read the rest of the offer mentioned and act at once. Do not delay this chance to yourself and your family.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels, and thus relieve that dull, heavy, sick feeling. Relieve dizziness.

It will bring out awful gases and impurities (which cause headaches and dizzy spells) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, lack energy, nervous and downcast, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and thus relieve sour stomach, sweet and clean, and give great relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath and heartburn.

IT WILL improve your appetite and digestion, relieve constipation, and help to ENERGY and ENTHUSIASM.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to stimulate kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become mixed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

Science brings us methods which help us to bring this wonderful medicine within reach of sufferers. Permits hundreds to get away from the habit-forming, nerve-deadening pills and harsh drugs.

It will make your liver more active, thus relieving spells of biliousness and headaches.

SYNTONA is a three-way stomach and intestine point-of-building the system to health, that's what it will do. It's what matter.

IT WILL clear up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, and prevents the sallowness and "pimples" that is due to sluggish liver.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN. Other than you may have felt for years.

COMMUNIST GUNS KILL 42 ON BRITISH WARSHIPS

Drill Hall at Petawawa Camp Burns

Estimated Damage In Neighborhood Of $200,000

Building Was on Loan To Construction Company

Petawawa Ont., April 21. (CP) —Fire of undetermined origin today razed the wooden, 200-foot drill hall at this army training centre a few miles north of Petawawa, causing damage estimated in the neighborhood of $200,000.

The blaze, which broke out at about 8 a.m. E.S.T., raged unchecked for about an hour and for a time threatened a number of brick quarters and army huts nearby. It destroyed an estimated $50,000 worth of building materials stored in the hall including equipment owned by the J. L. E. Price Construction Co., which is engaged in building barracks at the camp.

Fire officials said the destruction of the drill hall itself was not immediately known but sums of thirties and if would run into "thousands" of dollars.

Unofficial estimates of the building loss placed it at about $100,000. Insurance on the new building was on loan to the construction company, no loss to the Defence department was involved.

Court of Inquiry Ordered

Lt.-Col. G. J. H. Welsford, camp commandant, called for an immediate court of inquiry to determine the cause of the blaze and also called in R.C.M.P. officials.

There were no injuries.

Fifty soldiers stationed in the camp turned out to fight the flames, and the Pembroke fire department responded to a call within 25 minutes, officials said.

It was not immediately known to what extent the fire would set back the army's program of construction at the training centre.

The building, formerly known as No. 3 drill hall, was begun in 1939 to a carpenter's workshop by the construction company, and later was expanded into a building some 225 houses in the camp for married quarters for military personnel stationed here.

The hangar was being built to accommodate families of members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the Royal Canadian Regiment.

Belleville Boy Instantly Killed, Crushed by Girder

Just a few minutes after he had received a warning to stay away, Robert Taylor, age nine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murdock Taylor, 34 Front street west, instantly killed late Wednesday evening when he was crushed beneath a heavy steel frame at the rear of the new Percival store on Front Street.

With two other young lads, Reginald Wilson and Jack White, both nine, the Taylor boy had been playing on a loading platform at the rear of the store. The lad was swinging on the steel frame when it toppled onto him and killed him. The frame was to be used in construction work at the store.

Witness Assist

When the steel frame fell onto the boy the Wilson lad ran to his mother to say Robert had been hurt. Meanwhile a woman who had died and lifted the steel off the boy and he was rushed to hospital but was dead on arrival.

Just a minute or two before the accident occurred Mrs. Wilson had warned the lads to stay away from the rear of the store, where they were playing. Dr. A. E. Miles who examined the boy on arrival at hospital said his skull had been fractured.

Arrest Detroit Man For Slaying Of Young Boy

Detroit, April 21 — (AP) — Michigan state police reported today they had arrested 19-year-old Theodore Hillies, of Detroit, in the brutal slaying of a six-year-old boy.

Commissioner Donald S. Leonard said evidence collected had indicted that Hillies had admitted the crime.

The charred, nude body of little Georgy (Peanuts) Counter was found Monday night on an ash heap in a hotel garage.

Hillies was picked up on a highway near Pickney, Mich. He did not resist arrest.

The child's body was found after a six-hour search.

A strip of cloth was twisted around the boy's neck. His head and shoulders were charred, and the face and neck were slashed.

Also the body bore a broken bottle. Police said this might have been used by a slasher-killer.

Police found the body after hours of search for Georgy, who had been reported missing by his parents at 8 p.m. yesterday.

Detective Inspector George Kinnard said boys were seeking in particular a 16-year-old youth whose companionship had been forbidden to Georgy.

The youth in question has been a resident of the hotel. Police said he was reported to have checked out late yesterday.

In his room, detectives reported finding bits of coal on the bedspread and coal-smudged clothing which had been crammed into a dresser drawer. Obscene pictures also were found in the room.

Police said the slayer may have tried to thrust the body into the furnace, judging from the head and shoulder burns.

Work at Nights To Complete Seeding

London, Ont., April 21 — (CP) — Taking advantage of the fine weather, many district farmers are working at night to complete their seeding operations.

The practice is becoming growing in popularity in recent years and is not confined entirely to farms. On light land with a gravel base, where the moisture drains quickly, seeding is usually completed. On heavier soil, it is still in progress but in some instances is being delayed because the land is too wet.

Says Britain Entitled to Send Warships Into China's Waters

London, April 21 — (AP) — A Foreign Office spokesman today said the British government has British warships are entitled to be in the Yangtze, where Chinese communist shore batteries fired on them.

"Britain is entitled to send warships into China's inland waters, provided it has the consent of the Chinese government to which it has," the spokesman said.

Asked whether communist successes in China, whose troops are on the north bank of the Yangtze, has been informed that British ships were moving up the Yangtze, he replied:

"The communists are well aware that our ships were proceeding up the river — something that they have been doing since last October."

The press conference was held after the Liberal News Chronicle said in an editorial that British vessels would ask why the ships were being ordered up the Yangtze at this time.

"Was it absolutely necessary for the Amethyst to make her voyage to Nanking at just this time?" the editorial asked.

The Conservative Daily Graphic said the vessels were in the Yangtze by right to protect British lives.

"The Asiatics should not get the idea that the British flag and the British Navy can be insulted or insulted at will," the Graphic said. "The guns of British ships have delivered a warning to Asia through its length and breadth."

The communist Daily Worker asked why British forces were in China at all. It answered its own question — "to bring pressure on the corrupt servile Chinese government and to protect big business investment."

NO SETTLEMENT, LET-UP SEEN IN SEAMEN'S STRIKE

Labor Minister Says Dispute Jurisdictional

(By The Canadian Press)

The deep-sea shipping strike entered its fourth week today with no sign of a settlement in sight or any indication of a letup in violence in a dispute termed by Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell.

An otherwise quiet day in Montreal, one of the principal ports involved, ended Wednesday night with police reporting a Toronto seaman had been brutally beaten by unidentified assailants on a downtown street. It was the latest in a series of incidents of violence in Montreal within a week.

Other developments Wednesday brought in the port of Quebec City and the visit to Ottawa at Ottawa Mr. Mitchell issued a memorandum in which he criticized the Canadian Seaman's Union, said to be Communist led, for "unjustifiable" in judgment.

The C.S.U., affiliated with the C.I.O., has been the spearhead of the strike March 31 when Canadian shipping companies signed an agreement with the rival Seafarers' International Union, (A.F. L.).

40 Stitches Needed

Earlier this week, Robert Klapper, 43, of Stoney Plain, Alta., needed 40 stitches to close facial and head wounds received in an attack by unidentified men in his hotel room. The assault came after Klapper had announced switching his allegiance from the C.S.U. to the S.I.U.

In Quebec City, 20 police officers were on hand as the C.S.U. crew of the Canadian Farmer, owned by Saguenay Terminals Company, were served with a court order to remain in dock to stage a sit-in. The 27 men left quietly, and the vessel was immediately taken over by an S. L. U. crew.

Polish Govt. in Sharp Note, Demands Return Of All Art Treasures

Ottawa, April 21 — (CP) — Communist - dominated Poland has made a fresh demand on Canada for the immediate return of its priceless art treasures and hidden if missed no words.

It appealed strongly to the Canadian government to hand over the treasures and added that if this wasn't done, Poland would reserve the right to take "all further steps" to obtain "a complete moral and material satisfaction."

New Polish demands for the treasures and charges against the Canadian government were announced in a 2,000-word note handed to the External Affairs Department yesterday.

The fabulous treasures, consisting of crown and coronation robes of Polish kings, historical tapestries woven in gold, diamond encrusted armour, suits of armor and historical banners, are for the most part housed in the Quebec Provincial Museum.

Premier Maurice Duplessis has declared time and again that the works of art — contained in 34 large trunks — will remain in the hands of the provincial government until competent tribunal has decided who should have them.

Poland, which turned communist in 1946, said the treasures originating in the 16th Century in the Royal Castle of Krakow, rightfully belonged to the state. Mr. Duplessis believes they are the rightful property of the Roman Catholic Bishop of Krakow.

They were brought to Canada for safekeeping in 1940, and because of the war in 1946 when the new Polish government tried to claim them. It appeared that the Polish government wanted to prevent the treasures from falling into the hands of the communists, and through use of a secret reserve was able to remove the treasure from its hiding place. They were later found in the cave of nuns at the Hotel Dieu hospital in Quebec.

The Polish note declares that part of the treasure still is missing and calls on the government to search for the still missing part and return this also.

The Polish government, said the note, made an outright appeal for the return of the treasures, to be handed over to the Polish Embassy in Ottawa.

It said it understood the treasures on "Canadian territory are gradually deteriorating owing to lack of adequate preservation."

"The Polish government wished, to add that until all the Polish collections have been handed over to the Polish authorities, the Canadian government will bear full responsibility for their fate, condition and protection."

Santiago, Chile Shaken by Quake Of Great Violence

Santiago, Chile, April 21 (AP) Another earthquake shook south central Chile today.

The new quake was said to be one of "great violence." It hit the town at 10:54 a.m. (9:54 a.m. EST).

Earlier the interior ministry said Tuesday's quake killed 57 persons and injured 150. However later reports estimated the dead at 41 persons.

The information for President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla said he intended to pardon about 100 prisoners of Traiguen jail, reported "completely destroyed" by the quake.

It had been announced previously that 15 prisoners were killed at Angol.

The towns of Traiguen and Angol, about 350 miles south of Santiago, were centres of the quake.

INQUEST WILL BE HELD

Kirkland Lake, April 21 —(CP) —Crown Attorney W. H. Walters revealed late yesterday afternoon that an inquest will be held into the death of Edrida Zenith, one of the nurses who died in the Kirkland District Hospital Saturday.

The inquest will be held Wednesday April 27.

Fur Dealer Beaten by Thugs

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — Harry Greenglass, 51-year-old Toronto fur dealer, Wednesday night was beaten by two thugs who attempted to rob him near his home. The men approached Greenglass when he parked his automobile, slugged him and fled. Greenglass said he was hit over the head several times.

COMMIES CARRY CIVIL WAR INTO SOUTH OF CHINA

Reds Cross Yangtze River in Two Places

Nanking, April 21 (AP)—China's No. 1 Communist, Mao Tse-Tung, today ordered his legions forward to "liberate all China" after Red troops crossed the Yangtze in two places.

Crossings of the river that separates Communist territory from Nationalist China were reported officially at Tikang, 80 miles to the southwest, and at Wuhu, 60 miles inland from the capital.

Land Three Armies

Top level ministry of National Defence sources said the Communists were believed to have landed three armies at the Tikang bridgehead. This would be a total of about 80,000 troops. Communist reinforcements were said to be pouring across the river under the cover of darkness.

Nanking information headquarters said contact with Kiangsu, seven miles southwest of Nanking on the north bank of the river, had been lost. A spokesman said the Reds hurled attacks against Kiangsu last night and again this morning. National Government garrisons were being rushed toward Kiangsu.

Red leader Mao Tse-Tung and his army chief of staff authorized the Communists to "liberate all China" in a special communique.

The Communists announced that the Yangtze came as British naval units sought to rescue the sloop Amethyst, damaged by Communist guns 60 miles northeast of Nanking. A quick crossing by pontoons below the spot where the Amethyst has stopped might trap other British warships in Communist territory.

The British destroyer Consort, attempting to help the Amethyst was fired by the Communists yesterday. There were at least 27 British dead and 42 wounded, reports late today were that two more British ships, the artillery cruiser London and the sloop Black Swan also were hit in the vicinity and suffered casualties.

No Mention Made

No mention of the attacks on the British ships was made by the Reds. The British ambassador has radioed the Communist capital in Peiping asking that artillery units be instructed to cease firing on the British ships.

Ruling is Sought On Nurses Giving Intravenous Therapy

Ottawa, April 21 (CP)—The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons will be asked for a ruling on whether nurses may give intravenous therapy.

Decision for the college ruling was taken at the final session yesterday of a three-day Canadian annual meeting of the Ontario Registered Nurses Association.

The nurses expressed dissatisfaction with the Ontario College legislation which prevents them from handling their own affairs and also from the effects of every coming a serious shortage of nurses in the province.

On the intravenous therapy question, the association plans to turn down a resolution which would have taken away from registered nurses the organization's right if she gave the intravenous therapy treatment and the patient died or suffered ill effects.

While the therapy method, involves giving treatment in the vein and bloodstream, has always been the duty of a physician, there were cases where the physician was absent and the patient's life hung on the nurse's decisions.

The delegates approved an amendment that the organization seek ruling on procedure from the Ontario College.

Two Latest Vessels To be Attacked Back in Shanghai

More Naval Forces on Way To Scene to Give Support

By FRED HAMPSON

Shanghai, April 21 — (CP) — The known dead from Communist attacks on four British warships reached 42 tonight.

British naval authorities said the cruiser London had 15 dead and 20 wounded and the sloop Black Swan had five wounded.

These two latest vessels to be hit by Communist artillery on the Yangtze River near Nanking arrived back in Shanghai late today.

Behind them they left the crippled sloop Amethyst, first British ship shelled by the Reds about 60 miles east of Nanking Wednesday morning.

Neither the London nor the Black Swan was able to reach the Amethyst, which was driven aground on an island but later were refloated.

The known dead include 17 of the Consort crew, 10 from the destroyer Consort, which was shelled when she went to the aid of the Amethyst, and 15 aboard the London.

The number of wounded added up to about 100 in reports from the four ships.

An official British statement said a Royal Air Force flying boat managed to make contact with the Amethyst during Thursday and put aboard one medical officer with supplies. The plane then returned to Shanghai.

Still Fired On

A British spokesman said the Amethyst still was being fired on occasionally.

A British embassy spokesman in Nanking said a United States Navy doctor, Lt. Cmdr. James W. Packard; the British assistant naval attache, Lt. Cmdr. R. S. Kersns; and the British assistant military attache, Lt. Col. Terence Airey were attempting to reach the Amethyst wounded.

The spokesman said the three officers were leaving with a doctor and medical supplies for wounded believed to have been put ashore near Rose Island, 12 miles from the stranded ship.

He said the Amethyst might try to run the gauntlet of Communist shore guns were blocking the route downstream to Shanghai.

The British consulate said it had received word that other British ships saying they had been damaged.

Meanwhile an R.A.F. Sunderland Flying boat from Seletar, Singapore, left from Shanghai with doctors and medical supplies but failed in an attempt to reach the Amethyst.

Several hours after the take-off' the Sunderland reported she had abandoned efforts to land.

Chief Petty Officer Ernest Bird said the Amethyst went aground when a Communist shell knocked her wheel house and jammed her controls.

As the sloop's guns, trained on Communist positions, were quickly put out of commission by Communist fire, he said.

Bird said at the first point a white flag was raised but the Communists kept on firing. The first At least 20 British dead have been reported. Some 100 wounded have been counted in reports from the four ships. The London and Black Swan are known to have several additional dead among their casualties.

Mercy British ships, the Belfast and Constance, are en route to the Yangtze, a London Admiralty statement said.

By DON CARLSON

Shanghai, April 21 — (AP)— Communist shore batteries which fired on the British destroyer Consort could not have mistaken her identity, one of the ship's officers said today.

Lt. F. F. Birk, of Torquay, Devon, England, said the Consort, which was shelled for two hours yesterday in the Yangtze northeast of Wuchiu, displayed seven large flags fore and aft.

The destroyer flew so many flags "because we've no more space to raise another," Birk said.

The Consort arrived in Shanghai at 9:30 a.m. today (8:30 p.m. Wednesday night, EST) and 19 dead and 40 wounded were taken ashore.

Birk said the Consort fired 230 rounds of 4 1-2-inch shells plus some smaller guns at the Red positions. He said the Communists were hurling heavy anti-tank projectiles from 105-mill-metre artillery.

He definitely knocked out eight gun emplacements, Birk said. He estimated that the Consort's fire inflicted more than 60 casualties.

The officer said the Consort was unable to get within 1,000 yards of the Amethyst because "the Wire was too heavy".

Lieut. Jack Cousmine of Lowestoft, Suffolk, England, said that when the Consort neared the Amethyst, the latter was aground and "obviously out of action."

Only Skeleton Crew

"There appeared to be only a skeleton crew aboard with a few crew men on the "B" gun deck," he said. "We could see nobody in or out of action, and the after gun crews appeared dead or wounded.

Sons of England Lodge Elects Slate of Officers

At the regular meeting of Oxford Lodge No. 17, S. O. E. the following slate of officers of the ensuing year took place. The recent amalgamation of the Oxford Lodge with Orford, made this necessary.

The following offices were filled: Worthy president, J. S. Dale; worthy vice-president, W. H. Gendery; chaplain, Bro. D. J. Batchelor, senior; first committeeman, R. G. Barlow; second, Bro. W. A. Harden; third, Bro. J. W. Harvey; Secretary-treasurer, W. J. Savage; inner and outer guard, Bro. H. Law. Auditors for the year were H. Law and W. J. Parrish; trustees, D. J. Batchelor, senior; and R. G. Barlow. Physician, Dr. G. S. Crook.

Business following the meeting was concerned mainly with the plans for expansion for the activities of the lodge, which had the strong support and approval of all those present.

Irate Husband Locked Outside Kicks in Window

A real-life version of Maggie and Jiggs, famous comic strip characters, came to light here last night.

It also proved that there is not much use in married men "kicking", literally, that is.

It happened this way:

A husband, who had been out with the boys, arrived home at the side door locked, and an irate spouse inside who steadfastly refused to let him in.

He pleaded — in vain. Finally he decided on a desperate method and attempted to enter via a side window.

Then it happened. He stepped back, lined his sights, and let go with a drop kick that would have done justice to a pro football player.

Came the sound of shattering glass, followed closely by the tinkle of a telephone as the neighbors hurriedly contacted the law.

Explanations were forthcoming this morning in police court.

Reform Institutions Doing Much To Rehabilitate Inmates Before Discharge Hon. G. Dunbar Tells CAS

Under the new program adopted by reform institutions, the province of Ontario through scientific study and diagnosis of individual cases is doing much to rehabilitate young people before discharged from reformatories.

This was told to members of the Hastings county Children's Aid Society at their annual meeting, Wednesday afternoon when they were addressed by the Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of the Reform Institutions for Ontario.

"The province has a bounden duty to rehabilitate these young people and to assist them in taking up useful careers in society," stated Mr. Dunbar. "The province must do everything possible to bring out the good points in these young people."

Reform Schools Improved

Reform schools in the province have undergone a vast transformation during the past four years, according to the speaker. Inmates are now given every opportunity to learn a trade of their choice; they are encouraged in academic training and on discharge every effort is made to assist in their rehabilitation.

The reform institution minister stated it was the hope of his department that every inmate all cunning leaks in the province would be abolished. He admitted however, that this may be still far in the future.

Speaking of the older boy and older girls at the several boys' and girls' training schools in the province was already proving of benefit.

Admitting there was considerable juvenile delinquency in the province the minister pointed out that this was not entirely the fault of the parents. Ninety per cent of the present day delinquency was laid to "delinquent" parents.

Homes Visited

In an effort to offset this factor, reform institutions now have the staff on the road visiting the homes where delinquent inmates have been brought up. In each case they strive for adjustment and if possible return the inmates to their own homes if possible, rather than to foster homes.

Our reform schools may be — and are — the best in the world, and we are proud of them, but if we can adjust these boys and girls in their own homes, so much the better.

Segregation of the younger inmates from the older had proven successful in 60 per cent of the cases, stated Mr. Dunbar, pointing at Cobourg and had met with from 50 to 55 per cent success at the Boys' school at Bowmanville.

Rehabilitation of older reform school inmates was being attacked in a serious manner.

Schools Set Up

Three years ago at Guelph there had been no way of determining the academic standing of inmates on their arrival. Today schools had been set up, taking academic teaching and the percentages of failures, of new boy inmates is rapidly disappearing, as an illustration, all members of last year's entrance class at Guelph had passed their examinations. The average age of class speaker.

7,700 Workers Remain Idle

Detroit, April 21 — (AP) Approximately 7,700 automobile workers at two Chrysler today remained idle into a second day, as negotiations with United Auto Workers Union (C. I. O.) disputed the cause.

The U. A. W. complained of what it called a "health hazard" from paint sprays at the plants of the company, denying this, called the union's charge a "pressure tactic."

Packard laid off 2,500 assembly line men yesterday after 190 workers in the repair department quit work.

As a result, the Briggs Manufacturing Company laid off 4,200 employees. It said this was necessary because of a pile-up in car bodies it makes for Packard.

Meanwhile, the U. A. W. prepared to assemble its International Executive Board in special session for consultations on spring bargaining drives in the industry.

Ghostly Parade Startles Front Street Watchers

A weird sight greeted Front Street pedestrians at 5 fairly early hour last evening, and many paused to gape in amazement at eerie figures marching slowly in three columns of route to the clangy sound of steel against steel.

Ghostly forms, mantled in robes of white, blindfolded with "spectral" hoods, a healthy number bridled along the main thoroughfare closely guarded by grim determined men. The white-clad marchers resembling fugitives from a Ku Klux Klan chain gang, were herded along the street, handcuffed one to the other.

The weird clank of the cuffs, the scraping feet of the victims and the grim-visaged guards were the synonyms of hundreds of eyes and ears as the ghostly parade moved slowly to its destination.

Then pedestrian amazement gave way to hilarity. Women started to giggle and titter. Men smiled, then laughed out loud, as the truth filtered out.

Later the victims were put through various forms of torture. They were forced to walk on "broken glass" which later proved to be eggshells. The crowning blow was the forced hustling of a special brew, with edibles, which proved not what they appeared to be.

It was the annual initiation antics of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, and today sixteen Kinsmen neophytes are being recovered from their harrowing experiences, and already laying plans for next year's initiation dramatics.

IN MEMORIAM

CALVERT—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Earl Burton, who passed away, April 22nd, 1947.

We do not need a special day,
To bring to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you,
Are very few indeed.
We'd give you more if we could,
We'd give you the world,
To see your face once more,
Come smiling through the door,
Sadly missed by wife and family.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 21 (CP)—Price slid downwards as trading slowed to a crawl on the Toronto stock exchange today. Golds were forced lower for the first time in three days as profit-taking on previous advances appeared. Base metals stepped up the pace of their recent declines and industrials showed a wide list of fractional losses. Western oils were quietly easier.

Volume for the first three hours was 479,000 shares, about 297,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

Selling pressure appeared in the golds late in yesterday's session and continued today at an increased rate. Volume shrunk as the profit-taking led the downturn from the highest price levels in 15 months. Losses ranged up to 1 for senior and were held to about five cents in junior producers.

Further cuts in base metals continued to depress the stocks.

Losses were held to fractions on the industrial board in dull activity.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, April 21 (CP)— Prices were unchanged on the local livestock market in the morning's trading. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 40; calves, 30; hogs 110; lambs 60. No sheep were offered.

Light steers brought $18-22 and a few heavy steers up to $23. Medium to good cows sold for $16-17.50.

The calf market was weak, choice vealers going at $25-27, and the plain grades at $20 and $15.

Hogs were steady at $30.25 for Grade A variety, and $29.25 for grade B1. Sows brought $23 dressed.

A few good lambs brought $26.50.

PRODUCE MARKET

The egg market is steady, with prices unchanged. Grade A pullets are in light supply, with all other grades sufficient for demand. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 43-44, Grade A medium 42, Grade A pullet 38-39, Grade A cooking C 35. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 47-48, Grade A medium 46, Grade A pullet, 42-44, Grade B 42-43, Grade C 35.

Butter solids prices are as follow: first grade tenderpak solids, 56; other first grades are selling at 55½-57.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Calves 200; good and choice vearlys $27-$28; bulk culls and bobs $14-$19.

Hogs 400; good and choice 160-400 lbs 190-210 lbs $15-$15.25; $13-$14.

HOGS

Toronto, April 21 (CP)—Hog prices at Stratford this morning were unchanged. Grade A dressed were $29.75 delivered.

Prime Minister Lauds Recent Federal Budget

Brandon, Man., April 21 (CP)— Prime Minister St. Laurent hit out Wednesday at critics who say Canada needs a change after 12 years of Liberal rule.

He said there have been plenty of changes in that time both in the country and in the cabinet which governs the country. And four cabinet appointments in 1945, he said, represented a "radical" change.

But Mr. St. Laurent argued "there is no need to defeat the government to get any change time may have in store." That is the only two survivors of the cabinet of 1935 when the Liberals swept back into power were Trade Minister Howe and Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

"But what is very remarkable, and what I am very proud of, is the confidence a succession of able men have shaded federal politics have shown in the government and its future in these last two years".

These included Justice Minister Garson, Trade Minister Gregg and External Affairs Minister Pearson as well as Reconstruction Minister Winters, who was "persuaded to run. In 1945 and "choose public service when he might have secured far higher monetary rewards in the practice of his profession."

Mr. St. Laurent lauded the recent budget and said "it marks another forward stage in the government's policy to maintain a high level of prosperity." There had been total income tax cuts of $1,300,000,000 since 1945 and a simultaneous cut of $1,025,000,000 in the national debt.

He asked, "why should anyone want to change a government which has shown it can make effective changes itself to meet changing conditions."

GALT MAYOR CANDIDATE

Galt, April 21 —(CP)— Mayor J. Mel Moffatt of Galt was chosen Wednesday night as Liberal candidate in the next federal election. Norman McLeod, a farmer, and Carter McKee, a high school teacher, were co-nominated but withdrew. Mines Minister Gibson told the nominating convention that citizenship training is necessary to fight subversive forces.

Ald. Charles Hyde Re-elected President C.A.S. at Annual Meeting in Bridge St. Church

Alderman Charles Hyde was re-elected president of the Hastings County Children's Aid Society at the annual meeting and banquet held at Bridge Street United Church Sunday School Wednesday evening. Mr. Hyde's third term as head of the society.

A large number of persons attended the annual meeting of the society and heard reports from the various officials. Guest speaker for the occasion was the Hon. George H. Dunbar, Minister of Reform Institutions for Ontario.

As president of the Society for the past year Mr. Hyde briefly reviewed the work of the organization, noting that 1948 had been a year of re-organization. The Society has now established in the excellent new quarters on Moira Street, West. This had proven very beneficial to the efficiency and welfare of the staff.

Refers to Retirement

Mr. Hyde referred to the retirement of former Superintendent Capt. T. D. Ruston last June and to the retiring wish of Miss Lockyer as his successor. The new superintendent has made every effort to secure additional qualified social workers.

He said the Society had been fortunate in engaging Miss Byrd Corbet of St. John, N.B., who had several years experience in C. A. S. and other welfare work. Miss A. McFee had resigned as secretary and had been succeded by Miss A. Jacquard. A special tribute to staff members Mrs. Laura Mod.ard, Miss Grace Richelle and Miss Jean Vader.

Mr. Hyde expressed his appreciation to Mrs. Herbert McCabe and Mrs. Harry Rollins and their group of workers who had all but secured a tag day collection of over $2,000, and also to the ladies of Marmora and Tweed for their tag day efforts.

Refers to New Court

The president referred to city and county council resolutions endorsing the establishment of a Juvenile and Family court in the county. He believed this would some into being in June of this year. His Honor Judge J. C. Anderson had agreed to act as Judge of this court with His Worship Magistrate T. Y. Wills as deputy Judge.

Superintendent Lockyer in his annual report to the Society stated there were 325 children under the care of the C. A. S. at the present time. At the beginning of last year there had been 313 children being cared for. During the year there were 23 new permanent commitments and 22 temporary commitments. In addition 45 temporary commitments were renewed.

Superintendent Lockyer reported that although the society had been most active, they were still only able to deal with the most urgent cases owing to shortage of staff. He said the first responsibility was to endeavor to keep the home together by assisting parents to raise their standards and inspiring higher ideals.

Often Discouraging

"And results," he said, "are often discouraging and disappointing, but we must not relax our effort. To break up a home and remove the children must happen only after everything else has failed."

However where misfortune strikes or the desertion of a parent takes place there is often no alternative other than to secure wardship for the child.

He said at the beginning of the year there were 219 protective cases, 86 new cases were opened, 28 re-opened and 26 closed. Paramount causes for disrupted homes were given as drunkenness, immorality and desertion. It was also found in most instances that the parents had little or no church connection.

More Staff Needed

To carry out all the work necessary additional staff members were imperative, according to Mr. Lockyer.

"Of course increased staff means that greater finances must be raised and in this connection it is my hope that we can give wider publicity and interpretation to our community. I am sure we have a receptive public who will respond when called upon to our many needs," he said.

The superintendent stated that in connection with work with unmarried mothers, the society was becoming increasingly concerned at the fact that over 74 new cases were dealt with and 53 of these cases were dealt with during the past six months. Many of these girls were between 15 and 18 years.

83 Children Placed

One of the bright aspects of the C.A.S. work was that of gratification in seeing the happiness of children placed in good homes in their home for adoption. At the end of the year there were 83 children placed on adoption probation and during the year 43 adoptions were finalized.

In closing the superintendent expressed his appreciation to all who had assisted in the work of the society during the past year. He also paid tribute to the constructive of the co-operation of police and for the services of various women's organizations and service clubs.

The financial statement of the society given by Mr. Harry Ackerman, treasurer for the year, including grants and donations, to be $107,574. Expenditures have been $105,053 leaving a credit balance of $2,521.

Salaries of staff officials totalled $10,999; rent $720; postage and office supplies, $1,258; board, $75,000; transportation, $23,919; travelling $1,046; clothing $5,582, medical and dental, $1,135.

$13,119 Trust Fund

Family allowance expended amounted to $6,903, this being a gross entry into the receipts. Family allowance funds in trust as of March 31st., 1949, totalled $13,-110.

During the year the town of Trenton had forwarded $5,307 for maintenance; Belleville $10,584, and the County of Hastings, $21,-562.

Mrs. James Cordes, chairman of the clothing committee presented her report for the year, showing the clothing valued to be $5,582 or an average of $38.53 per child in boarding care.

Mrs. Cordes expressed the appreciation of her committee to merchants for their co-operation, and also for contributions of used clothing. She also made an appeal for used clothing, stating that with clothing costs so high, this type of donation was a big help.

Groups Mentioned

She said the committee was particularly grateful to all who have so generously contributed in one way or another, and mentioned the College Hill group which at Christmas time were sewing and knitting for the Society. Layettes and knitted garments were always acceptable.

Children's Aid Society workers from Prince Edward County, Miss Myrtle Williams of Picton, and Arthur Fields of Consecon and Addington were present at the meeting.

In keeping with the Easter season, dining tables were appropriately decorated with yellow streamers and painted cardboard chickens and eggs.

Alderman Everett Liddle, representing Mayor D. E. Stacey, expressed the civic welcome to the Hon. George Dunbar. He stated city council was well aware of Mr. Dunbar's work among the reform institutions. He also said that the $10,500 paid to the C.A.S. by the city last month was well spent.

County Clerk Eric Denyes, representing Warden D. McCamus of Tweed who was unable to be present, also spoke briefly.

Report Adopted

Rev. J. Grant Sparling in seconding the adoption of the superintendent's report referred to the great need for additional trained workers. He stated the fact that the people with whom the C.A.S. were called upon to help almost without exception had no association with churches, represented a great challenge to the various churches.

The statement that these people are not acceptable to the churches is possibly true and this fact presents a great challenge to the churches," he said.

W. J. Morrison spoke briefly regarding the work of the society he presided during the absence of the report at the nominating committee.

A. L. Davis led in a sing song period with Alec Gordon at the piano, while Mrs. Fred Staunton was heard in two much appreciated solos with Mr. Gordon providing the accompaniment.

Why Mine Gold and Bury it Again Explained by Mining Assoc. Booklet

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Why mine gold? Why dig it out of rock at one point to bury it in another?

With these questions as a theme the Canadian Metal Mining Association has issued a 72-page booklet which attempts to tell the story of the precious metal which men have always wanted.

It traces gold from ancient times to modern, touches on Canada's own gold rushes, and reviews the gold standard of money and its place in the present day currencies.

The booklet remarks:

"The gold 'buried' at Fort Knox Kentucky, ($24,200,000,000 worth of it) is 'at work' just as much as if it were distributed around in the vaults of 10,000 banks or in 100,000,000 mattresses."

Of gold and the International monetary fund it says.

"The currencies of all the member countries are included in the ... in effect the international organization which have first set up in an attempt to restore order out of confusion.

Price of Meat To be Advanced In Great Britain

London, April 21 (AP)— The price of meat in Britain will go up four pence (about 8 2-3 cents) per pound, effective May 2.

This will raise the value of the weekly meat ration, now shilling and a penny (about 21 cents). This includes 11 pence (about 22 cents) worth of meat and two pence (about three cents) worth of bully beef.

The Food Ministry also announced that the price of cheese, butter and margarine will go up from one to four pence a pound beginning May 2.

The food rises were necessitated by the cut in food subsidies made by Sir Stafford Cripps in his recent budget.

It has been estimated that the over-all cost to Britons will be four pence a week.

DYNAMITE IN GROUND LIKELY 25 YEARS

Port Colborne, April 21 (CP)— Ten sticks of dynamite twice as large as those now in general use, were unearthed Tuesday by contractors excavating for a hospital foundation. Authorities said they believed the dynamite, destroyed on police orders, was buried at the time the Port Colborne breakwater was built more than 25 years ago.

VISION OF UNITED EUROPE

The world of free nations was given another opportunity to feel their indebtedness to one of the greatest men of history, Winston Churchill, as he again expressed thoughts which are in everyone's mind and heart but which are never so well expressed as in the masterly phrases of the wartime leader of Great Britain.

He has long been an advocate of a United Europe and he has been privileged to see the Atlantic Pact become a reality. Mr. Churchill who has studied world problems and has had the greatest opportunity of any man of this age to make a contribution which will be of untold value to humanity has a sane vision of things to be.

Europe must do more than rebuild herself on the old national lines, he said in London on Wednesday.

Not only has he proven himself a master in handling such a gigantic task as he carried out in the last war but with this great gift of being able to achieve he has also the sight or vision of things to come. He spoke as a prophet with the greatest optimism and hope that the nations of Europe will become united and form with the Commonwealth-English speaking world a common front and bulwark against totalitarianism in all its forms.

Linked together in faithful comradeship we can defend ourselves against all enemies and we can preserve for the rebuilding of a shattered and bewildered world all its majesty of ancient nations and all the greatness of hundreds of millions of humble homes." No finer picture is possible of the age he desires to see come to bless the earth than that he describes in those words which will linger in man's mind and heart until the vision is realized.

LOOKING TO BIG TOURING SEASON

The time is not far off since spring has arrived when people will be giving serious attention to their planning for a vacation. Of course, many have already made plans for touring not only in their own country but in that of their neighbors. That the time for this is near can be seen in the fact that the Easter reports indicated the trend as having already started in a lesser way by those who crossed from the United States into Canada,and Canadians who crossed into the United States for the festival period.

So henceforward millions on this continent will be preparing for the time when they can take their vacation. That everyone takes a delight in thinking out the problems for the travels and the sojourn in places near or afar for the holiday period they are to enjoy is accepted. And especially is it true in an age when the motorcar and the plane have brought to the great mass of the people opportunities of sightseeing and journeying.

In this connection Canada and the United States, the opportunity to visit one another's places of interest is not a mere personal matter but an international interest as travel and visiting breed understanding especially of peoples who have to a large measure similar racial origins. Mutual travel across the border is one of the happy consequences of modern travel. Opportunities are given to individuals together as nothing else can do so that they feel and understand the mind and spirit of one another.

Canadian and Ontario agencies have been active in bidding for a large influx of tourists and are looking to have the most elaborate accommodations for those who will stay with us as they pause on their travels. " Tourists are naturally impressed by the welcome and threatment they receive and therefore every effort is being made to make certain that they will at the conclusion of their visit be able to say that it was the very best experience they have had in all their years of travelling in the holiday months.

Canadians will be anxious to make an impression upon the visiting guests and will treat them with the utmost hospitality. Tourists ofe depending upon the wholehearted co-operation of the many thousands who will be brought into intimate contact with them. The agencies at work to build up the tourist trade of Canada are very anxious that the guests of the touring and visiting time of the year will be given everywhere the utmost consideration with the best accommodations. The "Visitor Industry" says that "it is high time that every Canadian faced up to some personal responsibility for the national success of our tourist trade."

SERVE-SELF LIFE

At those serve-self dining places where the food is put on show, Bearing empty trays, the hungry to the counters come and go,
They may take what dish
they fancy, but at times they see the price
That their neighbor has to pay for something different for his plate,
And regretfully they pause as they view his choice of pie:
"We'd have had it had we seen it, but we must have passed it by."

"It was there!" the neighbor answers. "Out for every one to see,
You can still go back and get it if you really envy me.
It's too bad you overlooked it,
but I've never understood
Why some foods are never wanted 'till another finds them good.
For in all these self-serve places, my experience has shown
What the other fellow chooses is forever more my own."

Boy, this life's a serve-self contraption of every sort of dish
And you mindn't the tray you carry for whatever you may wish.
School and college wait to serve you. All is there for you to view.
There's the knowledge you'll be needing for the work you hope to do,
If you want it, you may have it; but regretful you will be
When you find the other fellow has the skill you failed to see.

The steamer Alexandria was launched from the ways at Picton and is now ready for the season's operations.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

It is 6-queer thing, but every time I take your hat to the repair man, he puts a hex on the watch you are carrying. And that begins a run of bad luck for you that lasts as long as you have to keep on repairing other watches to his black magic.

I know of this is my own watch-repair man; and while he has always been civil, he has put it off very well by laying the blame on the changing seasons, the dieting Americans and on one thing and another.

"April showers bring and tear," he said, "the chief enemy of watches is watch owners. My lady brought me in a costly diamond-studded watch last March; she said she was in the habit of cleaning every now and then by squirting cleaning fluid into the works. Another eminent business man in town gives his two hundred dollar masterpiece a good dose of coal oil. He swishes it around, he says . . .

But the watch-repair man has his eye on my wrist watch while he spoke. And there was a sort of glint in it.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WORDS CHANGE BUT NOT REALITY

Very few people today believe in the existence of a personal devil; many seemingly denies his existence or ignores it.

Yet if we regard the more unlovely aspects of personal and international relations today we might well question whether a personal devil is not assiduously at work. In national and international politics, in society scandals, in divorce proceedings, in juvenile delinquency, in widespread intemperance, and in a general decline of moral standards, we perceive an unyielding determination of darkness to oppose the glorious moral values, as we have long been accustomed to regard them. Whether personal happiness, reputation, or international security is involved, the same destructive element values continues.

Psychologists may say that these evils are only the result of complexes, frustrations, needs for compensation, etc., but it should be pointed out that the psychologist in the case is only naming the symptoms of a sick society and not by any means suggesting a cure.

Eventually, the psychologist has to come back to a first cause of evil, which he cannot explain. He may attribute unsound behavior to temperament or to anything else he cares to; but he is only guessing. Many of us still attribute it to the devil.

Mackenzie's Column:
Prime Ministers Have Important Point to Discuss

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Today the prime ministers of the seven British Dominions are meeting in London, and the foreign-office correspondents think it is important.

How can a country belonging to the Commonwealth become a republic and still retain its membership?

That's one of the most important questions the Dominions ever have had to answer. The mighty Dominion of India has served notice that she intends to become an independent sovereign republic.

The loss of India to the Commonwealth would be a major disaster. There we have a country with a population of some 300,000,000. Already she is running among the eight leading industrial powers of the world. In the last war she was a strong indications, as I see it, that she is looking for the leadership of Asia.

India's prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, is expected to play a major part in the London conference. He is the most powerful figure in the Orient, and undoubtedly his views will carry great weight in the parley.

No Easy Formula

While the problem of finding a formula under which republics can remain in the Commonwealth certainly is difficult, many foreign observers feel that it can be solved. A republic is being considered as a possibility in Australia, as I got from Manchester Guardian, one of Britain's leading newspapers.

The newspaper says:

"The easiest solution might be for each of the governments to proclaim by resolution that they recognize the crown as the symbol of wealth . . . It would be folly to let the commonwealth fall to pieces because of an insistence that the crown should be recognized by all partners."

Apart from any question of sentiment, the value of the Commonwealth have found two paramount interests in the maintenance of the association. One is that it provides economic advantages, such as the imperial preference system of special tariffs on foreign goods. The other is that this combination, with Britain at the centre, constitutes a powerful bloc for defensive purposes.

27 BRITONS

The Consort was damaged most by the guns on the three large superstructure was riddled. One of the first shells, Comadine said, hit just forward of the bridge house, killing the coxswain and putting the steering wheel out of commission. The steering control was switched to the after wheel.

After the Consort started pounding the Red gunboats, it made three sweeps along the shore, firing the ship's officer related.

A number of Communist bits on the vessel centred in the wireless room and out the radio out action, Comadine and two and during two of the five on duty in the wireless room.

Two others were killed on the deck just forward of the radio office, three in the gun-control room, two in the wheel house and one on the fire deck.

The Consort's surgeon, Lieut. Mark Bentley of Pontefract, Yorkshire, England, said that one small shell struck the bridge wall and exploded in the ward-room where he was operating on a wounded man, killing two casualties there, however. At one time Bentley had 22 dead and seven injured men to take care of in the ward room and no lights.

NO SETTLEMENT.

from Havana, the Cuban navy reported it had ordered the patrol ship Sibonay to Caibarien to search 22 crew members of the freighter Cansalell, Victor which left last Sunday from Savanah, Ga., to load sugar.

The navy said the ship's master, Capt. Phil Scott, asked port authorities for help because the members were on strike and were showing a hostile attitude. He reported there was not permitting anyone to approach the ship, anchored at Cayo Frances, 16 miles from Caibarien, a port in northcentral Cuba.

Mr. Mitchell expressed hope for an "understanding" between the rival unions and said his department would take any action within its power to bring about an understanding. He indicated his belief that actions of the shipping board were legal.

Refuse to Accept

By refusing to accept the flags of the vessels, officials said, they incurred in by the union representative on the board. The C.S.U. has ordered seamen to "judgment" which the union had made in the past, Mr. Mitchell said.

Four cases arising from strike duties in Montreal, Quebec and Toronto were disposed of today. Four were freed on $4,000 bail each on provincial charges of seditious libel arising illegal offensive weapons. The cases were adjourned to April 25.

From Halifax also, David Joyce, president of the Canadian Seamen's Union, said S.I.U. men will take over the ships of the Canadian Mont Sandra and the Dufferin Bell, bringing to six the number of ships which have sailing from that port.

A Red Ensign flag, Lulik, the C. S. U. crew of the Canadian freighter Argo John joined the strike today, Joyce declared, Shan Butler said he may prefer mutiny charges.

Agents for the ship's owners, the Canada Steamship Lines, and any of Montreal, said Canadian and Maritime law provides that deserters may be charged striking in a foreign port. The Argo John arrived at Saint Beach last month and was loading iron ore for shipment to Japan when the crew quit work and set up a picket line.

COMMIES CARRY

Mao's order of the day instructed troopers to seize all war criminals, including retired president Chiang Kai-Shek.

The announcement made by the Communist chieftan stipulated that if any local region is willing to accept the Communist terms it will be accepted. The broadcast said also that if the government is still in Nanking when Mao's forces occupy the new capital, Nationalist leaders will be given another opportunity to accept peace proposals. Such an agreement would amount to outright surrender.

Rejected Proposals

The Communist communique made it clear that the terms announced because the Nanking government also rejected the peace proposal formulated in Peiping.

The announcement charged the Nanking government still "obeys American imperialists and Kuomintang reactionaries" party chieftan Chiang Kai-Shek in their effort to prevent the liberation of China and to maintain the settlement of domestic problems by means of war."

The government stated that even if it had signed, the peace proposals "narrow minded attitude and oppressive spirit" would have been unacceptable to both the National Army and the people. The reply charged that the entire proposed agreement (Copyright 1949 by John F. Dille Co.)

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE ART OF WALKING

Many of the world's greatest thinkers have been great walkers.

Take Sir John H. Finley deceased, Mr. Mitchell said. He was tlighted in and wrote much about his long walks. Hugh Walpole, Thoreau, and many another writer, have extolled this noble art of walking.

Naturalists have all been sturdy walkers — John Muir, W. H. Hudson, John Burroughs, and many others. On my way to work I walk with my neighbor, John Kiernan, on his tramp for the day. But he just walks for the sake of a mile daily walk with him.

Walking just to get somewhere isn't an art — that's just self-transportation. But to walk and think, to walk and note the minicles about one — and we pass them every day — to walk and keep discovering and adding to our knowledge, that is truly an art. Over and over again, at my summer island retreat, I walk from end to end of the main island, just to see what I can learn about the flowers, and some strange formation of rock or cliff, or a newly discovered flower. Never do I tire of these walks — and I would like them in the early morning, when the glow of the rising sun is on, and the dew is fresh and fragrant on the mossy paths.

And the muscles of the muscles of the body are engaged in walking, and the clean air and every organ of the body is benefited. But there must be relaxation of mind in order to enjoy every minute of the walk. Walking is not enough. Build in the country, or on a vacation, you walk to get some thing. Easement of mind, perhaps, or to measure the contrast of happiness in comparison to the walk in a city street. For pure joy what can equal a walk along the sandy shore of the ocean, or a trail into the thick and fragrant forest!

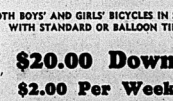
VITAMINS ARE ESSENTIAL FOR LIFE

Correspondents who mistake this service for a long-distance clinic generally inform me that the doctor said the trouble was lack of vitamins, but they took vitamins for a month and could not see that it did any good.

In view of this way vitamins have been exploited it is not strange that credulous folk regard vitamins as medicine or magic. Isn't everything declared up more or less with vitamins, from bread and milk to dog biscuit and gum drops?

The truth is that vitamins are food materials or substances, in the sense that they are essential not only for growth, work and repair and the maintenance of vital functions but for life itself.



Common ailments that come under the physician's observation and more which do not, except incidentally when some accident or emergency requires medical attention, are due to lack of one or more vitamins. Many common complaints are due to lack of one or more minerals. These every day troubles are called deficiencies, of nutritional deficiency, even though such common deficiency diseases are beriberi, scurvy, rickets and pellagra are comparatively rare in America.

Less than fifteen years ago some physicians, even many "leaders" of the medical profession, looked with suspicion on giving "interviews," contributing articles to popular magazines and talking on the radio in lectures, radio spiels and books of popular hygiene but now all that is changed, "the crane" was. They assured the public that if one takes a well balanced (whatever that may mean) diet one will get all the vitamins one needs in ordinary food, provided the diet includes fresh vegetables and fruits. Of course all of these fast-working authorities have plied down in the past five to ten years, but while they were shovelling it out their hard-boiled colleagues laughed a lot of people.

Thanks to popular credulity and the "clinic" racket thousands of victims are being ruthlessly robbed and cheated by charlatans who keep them coming for "vitamin hypodermics" and intravenous vitamin injections of vitamins. For example, I received a letter from a well-to-do widow with more cash on hand than grey matter in skull to be sent that she has difficulty in carrying on a conversation. Being in love I, Q. M. V. advised her to follow the advice of several good physicians and consult a doctor of hearing aid. She "tried" still another doctor and this one knew a good thing when he saw it. He has been collecting $150 a month from the D. F. for shots—two a week. The injections are given by the office girl, a male believed "nurse", and on the one occasion when she saw the doctor for a moment he made no examination, she asked what the shots are, telling him she wouldn't take treatments, she will get a reply. "

WEDDINGS

MARTIN—IRISH

Miss Margaret Jeannette Irish, daughter of Mr. W. A. Irish, West Moira Street, and the late Mrs. Irish, was united in marriage in Buffalo, N.Y., on Saturday, April 11th to Mr. Frank C. Martin, of Buffalo.

The bride was attired in a blue lace dress with black accessories, and carried a nosegay of red roses.

After a honeymoon in Rochester, and Geneva, N.Y., the young couple will reside in New York City.

BROWN—BATCHELOR

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, April 16, at 4:15 p.m., when Miss Lolita Batchelor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert C. Batchelor, Belleville, became the bride of Mr. William Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, Belleville, the ceremony taking place before an altar banked with daffodils, Easter lillies, and tulips. The Reverend J. Grant Spalding officiated.

Mr. C. H. MacDonald was soloist, and sang before the ceremony, "Because," and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride, escorted in a street-length dress of shell-pink sheer, with navy accessories, entered the church on the arm of her father, and carried a nosegay bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Miss Dorothy Ward, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant, and wore a dress of pale blue with back accessories.

Mr. Jack Ward, Foster Avenue, was groomsman and the ushers were, Mr. Ted Licence and Mr. Everett Close.

A buffet reception was held later at the Engineers' Hall, on Pine Street, where the bride's mother dressed in navy with pink accessories, and corsage of cream roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy blue dress with flamingo accessories and corsage of cream roses, received the many guests.

For the wedding trip to Peterborough, Lindsay, Toronto, and Oakville, the bride chose a pale blue gabardine suit with navy accessories, and wore a flower hat and white sweetpeas. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Brown will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were, Mrs. Edith Johnson, Miss Agnes Boulden, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Batchelor, Mr. Jack Batchelor and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Batchelor, all of Toronto.

COLLINS—SQUIRES

Ferns and lilies decked the chancel of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, on Saturday, April 11, at three p.m., when Mrs. R. A. Squires of Belleville, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George McIntyre, of Calvville, Man., became the bride of Herbert Collins, Belleville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Collins, Belleville. The Venerable Archdeacon Arthur Smith performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Jack McCurdy, of Saskatchewan, was charming in a turquoise blue floor length gown of crepe, with fushia and black accessories, and carried an arm bouquet of fuchsia colored roses and sweetpeas.

Mrs. Ralph Collins, daughter-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, and wore a white crepe floor length gown with matching accessories and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Ralph Collins, son of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Hugh Rosebush, Mr. Douglas Rosebush, grandsons of the bridegroom.

A reception was held later at the home of the bridegroom, Cannifton, Ont., Taylor's Hill, a black flowered, street length dress of silk, with matching accessories, and corsage of red roses, was assumed by the bride's mother, and Mrs. E. Rosebush, who wore navy blue flowered silk street length dress, with navy accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow Talisman roses.

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a silver locket, with matching earrings, and the bridegroom's gift to the groomsman, was a lapel lodge pin.

WOODHOUSE—MUIR

On Saturday afternoon, April 16, in the parsonage of Bridge St. United Church, Rev. Dr. C. Anand Muir united in marriage Margaret Ruth, daughter of Mr. C. Percival M. Muir and George Herbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Woodhouse, both of Belleville.

The bride was charmingly attired in a street length gown of heavenly blue crepe, with navy accessories. She wore a lovely spray of gardenias and a beautiful brilliant necklace the gift of the groom.

She was attended by Miss Jean Rump, who was very becoming in grey with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Denny Rostelle, Belleville, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Shrine Club, Highland Avenue, where the guests were received by the bride's stepmother, who wore a beautiful mauve dress with grey accessories and corsage of pink roses assisted by the groom's mother, who was very becoming in grey with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The table was lovely covered by a hand embroidered cut-work linen cloth with beautiful lace edging, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake adorned with the figures of a bride and groom, and flanked on both sides with tall white lighted tapers. A delightful luncheon was served to about fifty guests with Mrs. George Graham and Mrs. Percy Foster presiding over the tea table. Those serving were friends of the bride, Miss Rose Rutter, Mrs. Denny Rostelle, Miss Barbara Rostelle and Mrs. George Brown.

The bride and groom cut their cake with an Australian jungle knife brought to them from the South Pacific by the groom.

Later, the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Montreal. The bride wearing a grey gabardine suit with navy accessories.

Gift of the bride to the groom was a handsome travelling bag, for her bridesmaid, a necklace, set with brilliants with matching earrings. The groom's gift to the groomsman was a pen and pencil set.

Upon their return the young couple will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Verdun, Toronto and North Bay.

Teachers Told to Mind Manners at O.E.A. Meeting

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — Teachers would be more successful if they minded their manners, thinks Dr. D. H. Russell of the University of California.

Speaking yesterday at the 90th Convention of the Ontario Educational Association, Ottawa-born Dr. Russell provided delegates-delegates with a list if mistakes teachers make in dealing with children.

He warned against the dictatorial teacher who would keep her class against her. Other teachers used "devices" for controlling the class, and ostracized children who didn't conform.

Among devices Dr. Russell listed were honor rolls, shaming the pupils and the "throwing in the towel" technique. This last device, he said, is effected by asking: "What do you suggest we should do with Tommy for disturbing the class?"

The busy four-day sessions of the O. E. A. Convention got today and most of the 6,000 delegates have left to prepare for the re-opening of schools on Monday following the Easter recess.

Caused by Disorder

Dr. Rogers said he believed emotional ills are caused by some mental disorder — "some malfunction of the unknown areas of the brain." He added: "Certainly social behavior follows good health."

Dr. Whitton urged an "intellectual defence tax" to strengthen Canada's educational system, which was the "most essential pillar" of society.

Dr. Martin said over-talkative teachers do not give students a chance to express themselves. "How do you expect pupils to talk if you don't give them the opportunity," he said.

Marion Jones, division of labor "have barred children from first-hand contacts with the processing of materials," Mr. Beattie said. They were being barred from a knowledge of their environments.

Dr. Reek declared that less than 30 per cent of Ontario farmers can be classed as "very good" at their work. Farming was better 50 years ago when it was done as an art, he said.

Smacks of Ingratitude

Criticism of Ontario's Royal Commission "smacks of ingratitude," Dr. Smith said. The commission's work since April, 1945, was equivalent to 11 full months of work while a similar investigation by 10 committees in England took an aggregate time of 25 years.

Miss Wilkins, recently returned from an exchange position in an English school said Canadian exchange teachers would have to measure up to the high standard of work in English grammar schools.

Delegates yesterday learned of a Brazilian government scholarship for post-graduate study at a Brazilian University. Valued at $1,200. It is open to members of the teaching profession with a university degree and applications are to be made to the External Affairs Department at Ottawa.

Fashion Flashes

EASY DOES IT for the best of all dress silhouettes. Cut on comfortable ease, your smart lines in a handsome dress of pearl grey Celanese, accented in a fine check. The double pleated collar flanks the deep V neckline and rises softly at the back. The snug bodice is laced in deeper velvet with a dainty bow at each side. Slit pockets in the moderately full skirt.

ALL THE DETAILS and line of the classic suit have been used for handsome silks of cotton. Black rayon in a fine waffle weave and black tailored type suit with notched revers and one link-button fastening at the waist. Skirt is slit in front. With it a white pique blouse.

TIME SAVERS indeed are the new blouses of nylon sheer that wash easily and require no ironing. White, pale pink or black nylon sheer is used for a pretty number with tucks frilled with Val lace dyed to tone. There is embroidery down either side of the plain front closing panel. Sloped shoulder and three-quarter sleeves finished with tucking and lace frills.

STARTING to come in are smart mid-season accessories of matching ribbon knit that have a very expensive air about them. The colors so far slated are white, navy and beige.

EACH SEASON come new details and touches to mark the new suit offerings. Fine beige gabardine is used for a suit that looks new now because of double tri-angular revers. The same treatment is used for the pockets which are buttoned down. Jacket is close high and is cut away at the base.

IN DEMAND for Easter, say the stores, is the fine ensemble. Violet wool in a gabardine weave for the coat of a handsome ensemble. It is lined in yellow and purple checked taffeta to match the simple, short sleeved dress of neckline dress. Coat has disk pockets and flat-bow.

ANOTHER TREAT in store for the busy girl is nylon seersucker, shirtwaist lines, the fabric produced in smocked effect for the vertical front and for the floral patch pockets on the moderately full skirt. Buckles close with rhinestone buttons.

COMING UP for Summer is the fine bonded bag, composed of tiny glistening white beads. Some have a boxy silhouette, others are mounted in gold filigree frames.

Sub-Division Catholic W.I. Holds Meeting

The Annual meeting of the Belleville sub-division of the Catholic Women's League was held recently in John Street High School with a large attendance. Miss McAvoy presided. This brought to a close another successful year, made possible by the keen interest shown by the members, and their attendance at the ten executive and general meetings held. The attendance of the director, Rev. Monsigner Nichol, along with his instructive talks was always appreciated. Interesting papers were also given by the president.

Owing to the success of the work done by the 1st vice president and councillors, the membership list of 406 members is the highest on record, upon which all per capita taxes have been paid.

Activities consisted of a rummage sale, a home-cooking sale, a blanket sale, graduation party, the bazaar, and a tea held in the Academy. Euchres were held to defray expenses of the different projects.

Prizes Awarded

The chief work is in the cause of education. Prizes were awarded each graduate in the Academy. Scholarships also presented to the pupil with the highest standing in Senior Matriculation and to the pupil of highest standing in the Commercial Graduation Class.

Along with the kind donations from the Knights of Columbus and the Secretarial Society of St. Michael's, the expenses of the school nurse were defrayed.

Transportation was provided to bring the children from camp to Mass on two Sundays.

The benevolent activity which is affiliated with the C.W.L. cares for the needy by supplying milk for expectant mothers, clothes, fuel, furniture, and clothing, were supplied where necessary. Necessary assistance was given first communicants, Christmas hampers were sent to many homes and gifts were sent to the County Home.

Appreciation was expressed to the Blue Cross convener who has worked so conscientiously.

"Travellers' Aid rallied on new Canadians.

The representative on the Board of the Y.O.W., gave a detailed and interesting report of the worthy work done by the Y.O.W.

The number of visits paid for and otherwise accounted for were tremendous.

450 Patients Visited

During the year 450 patients were visited in the hospital, and treats were given at Christmas and at Easter.

Convalescent cards, cards of condolence and Mass cards were sent to many homes. The Rosary was recited on the eve of the funeral of members and non-members.

Four large cartons of used clothing were sent to the Sisters of Service in Toyonto.

Donations to Various Societies

Donations were made to the local Red Cross, Victorian Order of Nurses, Stella Maris Fund, Radio League of St. Michael's, Sacred Heart Broadcast and Sisters of Service for Integration work.

Gifts were given to the pastor and assistants. Rosaries were sent to a missionary in the Belgian Congo.

After all disbursements the balance on hand was added to the ball-coh-poration fund.

Appreciation was given Miss McAvoy gave an outline of the work accomplished during her term as president. As the Diocesan Magazine convener, she appealed for an increase in subscriptions to the magazine. She thanked the league for their co-operation during her term of office, and asked the league to extend their co-operation to the in-coming executive.

Presented With Gift

As a mark of appreciation Miss McAvoy was presented with a gift by the League for which she expressed her gratitude thanks.

Miss H. Lynch presided at the election of officers.

Director, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson; President, Mrs. K. Doyle; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Rose Callaghan; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Young; 3rd Vice President, Mrs. J. Finkle; Recording Secretary, Mrs. G. Donaghue; Cor. Secretary, Mrs. C. Murphy; Treasurer, Mrs. Burley.

Perennially Fashionable

BY ALICE ALDEN

WHAT WE LIKE about American's really fine designers is that no matter how pretty how frivolous a design may be, it always manages to strike a practical note and to be right in a slim wardrobe or country-life scheme. Take Hawes. Made of stiff silk faille, the shirt is navy, the jacket deep chartreuse and under it is worn a blouse in tan and pale blue jersey. Without the jacket, the skirt and blouse add up to a navy-and-tan frock. With the jacket, it is set for the most elegant of occasions. It features small collar-leaders and full sleeves, their back cut in one with the bodice back. The suit shoulders are also a trade mark with this designer.

Women Confused By Floral Scent In Perfume Test

BY FRANK CAREY

Washington (AP) — Can women tell an expensive perfume from an inexpensive one just by smelling it?

Can the love of your life identify such common floral odors as rose, carnation, lilac and gardenia without peeking at the label?

A group of male psychologists, zooing into such questions scientifically, has thrown up such evidence that at least a group of female college students taking advanced psychology weren't too nifty with the sniffer.

Testing 68 such students—whose ags ranged from 19 to 50 and who had been using perfume anywhere from one to 25 years—the profs came up with such conclusions as these:

1. The ability to recognize the difference between perfumes compounds or different cost "was only slightly better than chance, with the mean percentage of correct responses being 55 (per cent)."

2. Women, on the gris as a group had a smelling average of less than 23 per cent accuracy when it came to identifying eight common floral odors.

Only 17 of the 68 subjects knew a rose odor when they whiffed it—and among those who sniffed the test, guesses ranged from "cold cream" to "famous verbena" sharp on Pine.

Only 10 of them could tell jasmine when she smelled it—and they all drew a blank on geranium. Only one came sharpest on spotting the odor of pine.

While it is somewhat surprising that so much difficulty was found in identifying the various odors," declared psychologists Bernard Locke and Charles H. Grimm of Rroonlat, "it is particularly interesting that the rose, which is so common and popular to our culture, caused so much difficulty in identification with only one out of every four subjects being able to identify it correctly.

Concerning these and other findings of the smelling test, the psychologists said in an article in the Jour. of Applied Psychology:

The results obtained are not intended to indicate unniversal trends, since a select group was used, but they do point to the need for further investigation in this area."

At another point they remarked:

In the light of the fact that many millions of dollars are spent annually in the purchase of aromatic products it is extremely surprising that so little work has been done in any systematic fashion to evaluate some of the factors which lead an individual to select a particular aromatic compound for purchase.

VICTORIA

Victoria—The 61st annual Sunday School Convention of Amalgamating township met at Victoria Church with a good attendance. The speaker from the O.S.C. was the Rev. A. J. Shorten, B.A., B.D., of Toxboro. The program theme was "Teaching." Splendid reports from the Department superintendent and executive and workers' conference by Rev. Shorten were given. All recital numbers were much appreciated, which all helped to make such a splendid convention.

The officers are as follows:

Past president, Mrs. Cecil Blakely, Consecon, Young Sunday School; president Mr. Morley Dempsey Consecon; Victoria Sunday School; vice president Mr. Andry Donald, Consecon, Salem Sunday School; secretary-treasurer Andra Brickman, Carrying Place, Victoria Sunday School; children's dept. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She suffers from paralyzing self-consciousness

There are probably more self-conscious people in the world than there are people who are wholly free of this distressing and socially crippling malady.

Most of these people manage eventually to make some sort of adjustment with themselves so that their self-consciousness ceases to be an appreciable barrier between them and normal life.

There are others, however, who for one reason or another, usually unconscious, seem to grow increasingly unable to cope with ordinary everyday relationships with other people. They are in need of special help from someone who can discover the particular cause of their difficulty and who will understand how to aid them in overcoming it.

A 19-year-old girl who writes me that she is "just all mixed up" says that she needs a job but that her uncontrollable fear of meeting people prevents her from going out to look for one.

"I go out in the morning to look for a position," she writes, "and ends up in the movies or visiting relatives. It must be specific my parents I involve myself in a way that I have let them think I am working, but when it comes time to get salary I naturally haven't any. Then I have to lie again, and say I lost it, or that they are going to send it to me. Time and time again I have told my parents that I lost my imaginary job, intending to make myself find one and start fresh with the truth. But I never could quite make it, and the vicious circle starts again.

"It isn't that I am lazy. I am always working to get ahead, and I try to do as much as is humanly possible to try and make up for my bad fault. I have had three real jobs in the past, and I went through torture looking for them. But I was very glad to begin working. Now I have been out of work for four months, and the seven unexplainable fear is holding me back. . . . I can't seem to bring myself to tell my parents about this fear of mine, and they are very understanding. I guess it's just that I can't face growing up. What will I ever do?"

Now when anyone is unable to face any situation, whether it's "growing up" or anything else, there is, of course, something deeply wrong. And I mean deeply. Because the reason for such inability, especially when it is paralyzing as that which afflicts this tortured girl, usually lies far below the surface of a person's mind so that it is literally impossible for him to put a finger on it without expert help.

So that I would like to say to this girl that, however acutely painful her trouble may be—and there is no doubt whatever that a thing of this kind can cause really dreadful suffering to the one afflicted by it—it is by no means incurable. She sufficiently can be helped to free herself from her abnormal fear.

Second, if she will write me again and send me a stamped addressed envelope so that I can reply to her personally, I will try to make a suggestion as to where she might go to find someone to find practice with whom she can talk over her whole problem.

Who's one of the women in the picture—age, face and figure? At the risk of being wrong, we'll say it's the one on the left. She's right in the midst of things—ready to go places, do things. She's not afraid to be seen with the smile on—she has her own individuality, her own personality.

How does she do it? She gives the credit to Dr. Ward's Pink Pills for Pale People, but important it is to have plenty of rest, proper nourishment and to keep regular, are the belief of a host of Dr. Ward's users.

If you feel "all in" at times, if you look pale and dragged out, if you are subject to fits of indigestion, constipation, dizziness and backache, you may be sorely in need of Dr. Ward's Pink Pills. Get a box from your druggist today. Then, if you don't find them all you've been told they are, return the empty box to the druggist who sold you the pills. He will refund the purchase price. Pills are wonderfully effective in toning up the system, helping to restore energy to vigor and energy. Get a package today from your druggist.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

When shopping, look long and carefully

Mother Nature is putting flowers in her hair. Spring is bursting out all over. Even the shops and the clothes she has been wearing decided it's time to go, or, as a buying blurb, "Shop windows bloom, Now, Nature!" Never colored New everything—it is pleasantly true this season.

Getting the right clothes, clothes that fit the type as well as the figure, is something of an art. The woman who is blessed with a flair for line, proportion and colors, and understands about herself, is a great advertising for is a slow shopper. She takes her time to consider every detail of a frock, the sleeves, the neckline, the fabric, the length. She does not make a purchase until she finds a model that gives her a thrill. Unless it produces a certain amount of enthusiasm she knows it will not qualify.

The hit-or-miss shopper possesses items that she wears from a sense of duty

The hit-or-miss shopper ends up by possessing items that she wears because she feels she must; she has spent good money for them. They give her no pleasure. In the course of time they find their way to the bargain sale. She is the girl who is continually saying that she hasn't a thing to wear.

The general pattern of one's life will decide the kind and number of frocks and hats that one needs. Th career girl must, necessarily, have more tailored and practical frocks than the home-body who is tramping the domestic treadmill early and late. Both types will indulge in a dinner gown or two and several formals if the sartorial budget permits.

The active club-woman will find use for daytime and evening clothes of considerable variety. While a woman who is not appearing in public can limit the dress overhead to the type she presides at meetings, does gabby spiels before members of the sisterhood, does not feel comfortable if she appears too frequently in the same attire. If she is smart she will stick to simple modes, will select plain, chic millinery instead of some of the over-trimmed, goofy ones that detract from fashionable appearance.

When her clothes are exactly right for her face, her figure and her personality a woman can forget them, concentrate on making herself charming and interesting. In an assembly of really stilled women she will dominate the scene.

Sartorial trappings that enhance the athletic girl who is tall, long-legged, of strong musculature, throw the naïve, fluffy girl out of character. Too youthful duds make an elderly women look ridiculous. A mother took seven months to crochet the cotton into 512 two-inch squares, which were then used to make the dress.

GOOD MANNERS

Should invitee send wife in addition to dinner letters?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My only son has recently been married in the West, and my husband and I went to the wedding. He has been away from home for several years, but we have always written each other about once a week. I am continuing to write him every week, addressing my letters to "Mr. and Mrs." as I always say he is shocked that I do this, that I should address my letters to "Mr. and Mrs." or else our new daughter-in-law will feel I don't like her, will feel that she has no share, on her own, in us or news about us. This has me very much worried, for the truth is that I love and very much admire my daughter-in-law, always express my devotion and message to her in my letters to my son, and wouldn't hurt her for the world. What should I do?

G. S. L.

Your husband is right. You should follow his advice and address your letters to "Mr. and Mrs." If you don't naturally you might feel left out, an outsider, and, of course, she wouldn't have the right to open the letters from you.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Not long ago I went to a very lovely wedding, and when I was about to take the usher's arm, he told me to take my husband's arm. So I did, and we three walked up the aisle together, the usher on one side of me, and my husband on the other. Personally I thought this was a cool idea because to me, a husband looks so very unimportant walking behind his wife and the usher. How do you feel about this procedure suggested by the usher?

Reader

I'm definitely against the incorrect procedure of the usher, and I strongly suspect that he didn't really know, hadn't been told, that correctly an usher offers his right arm to a woman guest. Then a couple arrive together, the woman takes the usher's arm, and the man follows them up the aisle. This is the right way to do, and it is important that, on such an occasion as a wedding, which is based on fine feeling and tradition, everyone connected with the procedure of a wedding should do his or her duties in the right way. The point is that everyone should do the right thing, in the most graceful and gracious manner.

Skip saying "we have met before"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My young sister always makes such a point of saying "we have met before . . . don't you remember me?" on meeting strangers, to a boy or girl (particularly to a boy) who is being introduced to her and whom she has casually met before. I think this is unnecessary, sounds hick, and particularly embarrasses the person who has forgotten the meeting. But she disagrees with me, insists that naturally the person would want to have the meeting recalled. What is your opinion about this?

Rhita

I entirely agree with you. If the person doesn't recall the meeting quite naturally he or she will be embarrassed, or at least confused by being put into this awkward position of not having the grace to remember the name, the meeting, or the occasion of the meeting. The graceful and socially-smart thing to do is to accept the introduction with a pleasant "How do you do, Mr. (or Miss) Graham," make no mention of a previous meeting . . . and start again on an acquaintanceship which this time may be more amiably!

Cruise Costume

Silk crepe and wool jersey

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

POLKA - DOTTED silk crepe combined with wool jersey is the theme of a charming dress that would be an excellent choice for cruise wear. It would be equally appropriate on board or for sightseeing at ports of call. The bodice, of burnt orange jersey, has short sleeves and terminates directly below the bust where the orange and white dotted have been joined. The skirt is sunburst-pleated. The little scarf at the neck is separate.

Fashion Flashes

THE BRIDE will find a wealth of beautiful fabrics and fashions when she goes shopping for that all-important wedding dress. Pale ivory slipper satin is used for an exquisite gown with real embroidered Alencon lace outlining the low neck, which is filled in with silk net. The lace describes a wide, shaped panel in front.

DOTS HAVE DASH this year. An afternoon dress of champagne-colored taffeta is dotted in black. The skirt has a wide satin band of black taffeta, which also forms the turn-back cuffs on the elbow-length sleeves. Black taffeta is used for a wide inset panel on the bodice, criss-crossed with facing in the corded light fabric.

PLENTY OF WEAR in store for the ensemble of printed silk, since it can be such a pretty and flattering outfit. Jade green silk crepe, printed in black, is used for a soft dress with a pleated insert on the low necked bodice. The matching jacket has a peplum that is pleated and flared in front.

THERE'S NO END to the fabric interest when it comes to rainwear. Very new is a hooded raincoat of crinkled nylon, beautiful in gray with plain fuchsia nylon lining. The fabric handles being wet-resistant, is crease-resistant, light in weight and dries quickly.

IT ISN'T EASY to decide on a hat this Spring, for never was there such a wide variety of wearable headwear. Tiny crinoline hats. Blush pink balibunti straw for user for a close bonnet wreathed in matching petals of organdie edged with matching velvet.

Handsome Lawn Coat

Smart topper for town wear

By VERA WINSTON

THE DEFTLY turned dress-maker coat is far up in front for smart town wear this Spring judging from store reports. Yarn dyed worsted in a deep brownish gray is used for this one, a nice background for fur tones. The deep, open neckline permits the neckline of the dress to be seen. Turn back cuffs on the three-quarter sleeves, and double flaps on the hip pockets are other details. The fine fitting bodice is single breasted, and the skirt is gently flared.

Ontario Ready To Pay Share

Toronto, April 21 (CP)— Premier Kennedy said Wednesday that the Ontario government is prepared to pay its share, 37 1-2 per cent of the cost of a proposed $100,000 conservation park in 4,100 acres of wasteland in the Humber Valley northwest of Toronto. But he said the province couldn't undertake to guarantee the federal government's 37 1-2 per cent.

The remaining 25 per cent is to be made up by the municipalities covered by the Humber Valley Conservation Authority.

Officials of the Authority said earlier they had been given to understand the province would pay 75 per cent of the cost in the event the federal government didn't contribute.

The federal government told the Authority last week it had decided that a federal grant at this time would be inopportune.

Whitehall Notebook:

Political Coincidence Tosses Boomerang at Labor Party

By ALLAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 21 (CP) — The long arm of political coincidence tossed a boomerang at the Labor party.

In announcing a three-month ban on political parades in London, Home Secretary Chuter Ede applied a check which will probably affect his own party more than any other.

The order means that there will be no formal marching this year to Hyde Park, home of soap-box oratory and scene of British Socialism's annual May-day demonstrations.

Instead of the traditional rally, Labor this year may be forced to content itself with a quiet meeting in a London theatre.

Parades outside London will be allowed and there will be no move to stop the old Queen-of-the-May ceremony at village carnivals. The ban on peaceful processions in London—one of the city's ancient liberties—came as a sequel to a noisy clash between Communists and supporters of Sir Oswald Mosley, pre-war Fascist leader.

The Communists stormed the buses in an effort to break up a Mosley parade. Fireworks crackled under the hooves of horses and 10 mounties were injured.

Next day Ede sorrowfully told the Commons of the decision to ban parades.

J. E. Glanville, Labor member for Consett, asked why Mosley supporters were allowed to parade in the first place. "In view of the fact that we spent six years fighting Fascism, why not kill it at once?" he asked.

Ede's reply was that the disturbance was caused by "the people opposed to the holding of the procession." He reiterated that a major difficulty is defining Fascism in a way that does not include other schools of political thought.

Some London newspapers pointed out ironically that the Communist Party, which has been described by Ede as "a Fascist organization," was not affected by the ban

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"I don't want anyone else to have you."

"Is that the only reason?"

"I love you." He smiled. "Don't let's get involved in the curiger mind of yours asks so many questions. If you love me, trust me to make you happy."

"It's utterly mad to run off this way."

He looked impatient with her.

"All right," she said. "I won't ask any more questions."

"Good girl."

"I must call Mother when it's over."

"Think of me a little," said Alan.

As they drove around the forlorn little town, she stopped thinking of being married and started to think of her life and the people in it. Her thoughts drifted. She knew, forgot for a moment that Alan was sitting beside her with a license in his pocket to marry her.

Alan said, "Here's the parsonage. I want to Kiss you once more, Miss, Van Avery, before you become Mrs. Riggs." He drew her toward him and kissed her cold lips. "You're shaking, Gay."

She did not feel anything at his kiss except a terrible helplessness that engulfed her.

"You don't seem very happy," he said.

"New experiences always frighten me a little, Alan. And I've seen so little of you lately that you seem strange."

He frowned at that, got out of the car, and helped her out.

A stout middle-aged woman dressed primly in black answered the bell at the cottage. She did not ask why the tall young man and the girl with red curls had come.

"Come in," she said and opened the door wide and led the way to the parlor. "Mr. Roland is preparing his sermon. I'll tell him you're here."

Alan said, "Thank you. Could you tell him—"

"Yes. I'll be glad to. My mother lives with me. She'll come down soon."

She went upstairs.

Afterward Gay knew it was that picture on the wall that kept her from marrying Alan then.

Gay looked up at the wall, and there was a water color painting of palm trees etched against a tropical night horizon. She saw beneath it: "Night in Nassau."

Christ! If she married Alan, she would never see Chris again! And once she had set her mouth to Alan's lips, it would be over. Chris' paths would never cross! He would think her weak and defenseless and a coward!

That picture, "Night in Nassau," cleared her mind. What was she doing? She was breaking her mother's heart more than Chris' weakness and selfishness had broken it. She was losing Penny's respect.

Herself again, the mist in her mind cleared, she looked at Alan. "I don't want you to kiss me more," she thought. "The Alan I once loved would never have swept me into anything like this planning nothing. Looking no farther ahead than tonight. There had been something repugnant and offensive in his attitude. "I can't let my loyalty to the old Alan destroy me. I'm just running away from the store for Nita's friends."

"I have the ring," Alan said. He drew a diamond circlet from his vest pocket.

"It is Lucia's ring."

"I'll have the engraving changed. Don't be difficult, Gay."

The Rev. Mr. Roland, a thin man with thick gray hair, came down the steps. His wife and a feeble old lady followed him.

Gay looked up at the picture again. "Night in Nassau." Chris, smoking his pipe, typing the end of his play; Chris in white trousers and a blue shirt and his face brown from the sun; Chris' splendid and strong and unafraid. An revolr and not good-bye, she had said of him.

He would not let himself love her, because he was proud and poor, but his friendship she must never lose. In his life she had felt something she had never felt with Alan. His rugged honesty hurt but it was never cheap. With Chris you would keep your story-book illusions. The other people laughed at because he never let you down! But Chris had a girl in Nassau. Evelyn Ewing . . .

The room was suddenly distorted by the panic in her. Even the picture was only a colorful blur.

"Wait," said Gay. There was apology in her voice. She looked around, her heart feeling still and heavy. "I'm sorry, but — but I can't go through with it. I'm not sure! It's too sudden and too mad!"

Alan said sharply, "Darling, you're just nervous."

"No! I — I can't get married with so many things unsettled, Alan. We've got to think of Lucia and Diana! I can't do this because it's as if we were ashamed of what you're doing! Oh, don't you see? I must have time to think about — about a lifetime. We're not being fair with each other." She looked at the clergyman, who regarded her with an expression of solemn surprise. "I'm so sorry. I don't want to make a scene but — but I just can't think clearly myself and tonight. Marriage is too serious and final to go into it blindly."

She turned quickly, went to the front door, and went out into the cold night air.

Alan followed her. He caught hold of her arm and whirled her around to face him. They looked at each other — Gay, her eyes wide, her mouth trembling, her hair caught by the wind. Alan had never looked more powerful. She thought: This is the end of Alan's career. Wind swept across the narrow, white porch making a whistling noise.

"What do you mean?" he shouted at last, fiercely, harshly.

"I'm right. You know I am, Alan. I didn't mean to humiliate you but I couldn't go through with it. When I tried to talk to you about the things we must discuss, you silenced me . . ."

He released her arm and sneered at her.

"This is a game. You think you're pretty clever, don't you? You didn't intend to go through with it. I threw you down and you wanted the last laugh. Well, you got it. Go ahead and enjoy your triumph. All the things people are saying about you and Randolph are probably right."

"You only want to hurt me now, Alan. Tonight when I've done hasn't touched your heart. It's hurt only your pride and conceit."

"You want to know why I did this tonight? I'll tell you! Do you think I want to be poor. Not if I can marry Lucia's money. I brought you here tonight because people are saying you'll get a better break by marrying Randolph than marrying me! I wanted to show them you'd be glad to marry me if you could."

"Don't! Don't be so cruel, Alan."

All her life she was to remember standing on this gloomy little porch, with the wind in the wind, with Alan towering over her, hating her because for the first time she had denied him what he wanted.

"You're through socially," he said. "I guess you know it. By marrying me you might have pulled yourself out. But you're through now and you'll sink lower and lower."

She drew her fine brows together and looked up at him. Angry as he was, defeated, he knew she had never looked lovelier, but it was a beauty of fighting spirit at that moment more than of face and body. She was hurt and humiliated, and a thousand perplexities and doubts were pressing down on her. But in defeat and humiliation, he thought, there was something splendid about her.

"Did I ever love you?" she asked. "Was I ever blind or young enough to love anyone as cold and ruthless as you? Did I put all my faith in you? But I'm not through, Alan. Socially and financially yes. I'm through, and it's been bitter to find out if I can go through the next few months and not fail, will be the biggest triumph I've ever had."

His eyes searched her face. He came closer.

"Do you love me? You still love me. Tonight, all of this, is just a gesture. You're as disinterested as I am. You run, want me — but you want Randolph's money. That'll pull you out, you think, but you are too top again. You're not so clever. All you wanted was the satisfaction of walking out on me."

"That isn't true."

"And I wanted the satisfaction of taking what Gregg Randolph wants."

"I'm cold," said Gay. She pulled the collar close to her throat. "Please take me home and let's try to forget tonight. I'm not a thief. I can't take what belongs to Lucia. I can't wear a wedding ring you bought for her." She freed herself. "Take me home."

He laughed at her, a jeering laugh.

"Take you home and say cheerio to a girl who walked away from the altar from me!" He squared his shoulders. "You can get back the best way you can."

"You're not going to leave me here . . ."

He hurried down the steps, got into the roadster, and drove away.

For a second she felt physically ill. Never before had she felt so utterly lonely and desolate.

When she walked down the creaking steps, she felt weak and as if she were going to faint. She walked slowly, calling upon all her strength. No one must ever know that Alan's pride had been bruised and that she had been hurt by every wrong and cruelty with which a woman can be hurt by a man.

After she had walked a long time she came to a station and bought a ticket to New York. It seemed the train would never come while she waited, but when finally it did, she welcomed the warmth of it. Looking out at the wintry countryside, she fought against tears of shame and defeat and disappointment. Chris had once said, "You have to take smacks in the face to be strong." Down in Nassau, where it was warm and the stars were close, she said to him, "You'd never call me a goddess on a throne if you could see me now. I'm going back to the store and Nita and all the things I thought I would run away from Chris. I can't think of love with so many other things tearing at me . . ."

Stammering Aided by Tasks Needing Sustained Effort

By ANDY ANDERSON

Windsor, Ont., (AP) — A woman with 60 years of stammering in her family has trained with her husband to devote their finances and the latter years of their lives to correcting the stuttering of others.

She is 56-year-old Eleanor Weston Emery, be Theordore, 60. They have been helping children and adults since 1935.

Mrs. Emery's eldest brother was a stammer. She herself stammered so badly she could obtain no formal education. Her first son, now 20, still stammers a little. Two other sons never stuttered.

Her first son was growing up when she finally realized no one could cure her, that she had to help herself and her son. She now speaks slowly. Her husband has a speech hesitancy, but says it comes from difficulty in choosing the right word in conversation "and I guess association with stutterers hasn't helped either."

The two conduct the non-profit Emery Institutes here, incorporated under Florida law and so recognized by the United States treasury department.

"Strangely," Mrs. Emery says, "a stammer can talk perfectly when he is alone, when very angry usually while singing or when absolutely unconscious of self. He can always talk to a pet without stammering when he is alone with it."

Need Objective

"We often meet people who say they cured themselves but can't quite tell how. In nearly every instance there was an objective like wealth, education, the normal speech, and eventually stammering gains by completing various tasks is very beneficial. This can be used with children or adults. However, you must never mention speech or stammering to a child. Parent and school teachers must help children to be more orderly in everything they do. If the child stammers, pay no attention. If he speaks correctly notice him. But he must never be conscious that he is being aided.

"With adults, the approach is direct. Adults must have a will to help themselves."

"There are four male stammerers to every female," Emery said. "I don't know why this is unless the woman usually wants to talk so much she can't be bothered with stammering."

Said Mrs. Emery: "Stammerers are found among the types that produce geniuses, never among the plodders who have been developing habits of control since boyhood The stammerer's mind is quick and his interest keen. But he has a dislike for sustained effort or routine. He will not stick to a subject long enough to master it.

The cause of stuttering, both say, is fear—perhaps a fear of doing or saying something wrong "but basically just plain fear." Emery said a child could normally be cured in less than a year; an adult in six to eight correspondence courses.

Plan Stimulates Community Life

South Porcupine, Ont. (CP) — A provincial program, not quite two years old, to help community recreation and adult education more closely together is well demonstrated in this northern Ontario mining town.

One night recently 20 boys and girls performed in the high school auditorium under the helpful guidance of two instructors. In other school rooms men and women painted, cooked, sewed, and took lessons in pottery making and leather working.

In another room new arrivals in Canada took the first steps toward mastery of the English language and understanding of Canadian ways.

The South Porcupine activity, embracing a large part of the town's residents, is one item in the Community Program plan launched in May, 1947, by the Ontario Department of Education.

On Community Level

The aim is to bring education and recreation together to bear on the problem of leisure-time activity throughout the province. Operating on the community level, Community Programs workers stimulate interest and set up courses for leaders and instructors.

Municipal councils play their part in organizing recreation committees and backing the plan of their expenses."

Now, in many communities, the plan has gathered interested citizens who occupy themselves in such varied fields as music, sports, drama, parent education, arts and crafts and rural programs.

Tied in with it all is the organization of "citizenship" classes. Radio broadcasts have been presented in Polish and Ukrainian and as the new Canadians learn the new language they are absorbed into the other integrets of the community recreation and education plan.

Dentists Issue "Lollipop Code"

London — (Reuters) — The British Dental Association, worried last children spoil their teeth eating too much chocolates when they came off the ration, have issued a "lollipop code" for the guidance of parents.

The code recommends: no sweets for children last thing at night; no sweets at the end of a meal; clean the teeth before going to bed; go easy on sticky sugary sweets, and eat an apple afterwards.

4th Thurlow — Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker, who recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. On Saturday evening Mr. Walker's brother and sisters with their families gathered to offer their best wishes and to present them with a silver flower basket and flowers.

Owing to illness one sister, Mrs. Frank Pound, was unable to be present.

Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. William Cole of Camilton and her sisters, Mrs. Roy Pound and Mrs. Roy Clazie, and families, also Mr. and Mrs. Carey and Janie of Belleville, Mr. Igle Walker and Miss Jane Turcotte of Kingston arrived on Sunday night for a surprise dinner party and presented them with several lovely gifts.

WANTS NEW SCHOOL AREA

Chesley, April 21 — (CP) — Town council here Tuesday night decided to request Bruce county council to establish a new high school area. Mayor J. C. McDonald said it was practically impossible for the town to build a new secondary school. Chesley's public and continuation schools were gutted by fire last February.

OCEAN-GROWN FOOD

Chemists predict most of man's food supply may eventually come from the ocean, as even today sea weed is used in ice cream and other products.

NO INTENTION TO RETIRE

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — T. L. Church said today he has no intention of resigning from the House of Commons.

Commenting on a Canadian Press item from Ottawa which said he had been reported "toying" with the idea of retiring, Mr. Church said:

"I have not been toying with an idea of retiring; I have not been consulted about any suggested retirement and I have no idea of retiring. I haven't thought of it and nobody has even asked me about my plans."

Red Army Paper Denies Plan to End Berlin Blockade

Reports Spread to Create Tense Atmosphere is Claim

Some British Rising Against Communism

Berlin, April 21 (AP) — The official Russian army newspaper Tragliche Rundschau denied today there was a Russian plan to end the Berlin blockade.

It said such rumors were spread by "the warmongering Imperialist monarchs and their German agents who are trying to create a tense atmosphere in Berlin."

Heinrich Rau, chairman of the Russian zone's economic administration, denied in a newspaper interview that the Communists had made overtures leading to the lifting of the blockade.

Rau denied a report published in the anti-Communist Social Democrat newspaper which him as having said the Russians planned to lift the blockade April 30.

Nevertheless, today's issue of the Social Democrat claimed to have learned that the Russians have given German railway directors orders to have their trackage and equipment in shape to resume interzonal traffic April 30.

No confirmation of these reports was available from any Russian or official Allied source.

The Rev. Leslie D. Weatherhead, pastor of London's famed City Temple, is pictured as he was being interviewed after his arrival in New York. He told the press that Communists were adopting a big drive for membership in Britain. Dr. Weatherhead said "Gold-loving Republicans is not being taken lightly." Weatherhead, who has written 23 books, is visiting the United States on religion and psychology, is on this continent for a two-weeks' lecture tour. — Central Press Canadian.

Smash Window, Steal $500 Coat

Toronto, April 21 (CP) — Two youths hurled a rock through the plate glass window of the Regal Fur store here early today and escaped with three fur coats valued at $500.

Eye witnesses said the youths ripped the coats off the window models and threw the furs into the back seat of a green automobile.

Police Investigate Report Mother Raped

Windsor, April 21 (CP) — Police today investigated a report by a mother of two children that she was raped in her home early today.

Inspector of Detectives James Campbell made no comment on the report apart from saying a man was taken into custody and is being held for investigation.

According to the report, the woman was in bed in her room when a man removed an outside screen, opened the window and climbed into the room. He sat on the side of the bed until she awoke and then started to tell her his life story. Then he attacked her.

Her two children were asleep in an adjoining room and she made no outcry, fearing assailant might harm the youngsters.

Railway Company Opposes By-Law

Waterloo, April 21 (CP) — A Waterloo anti - noise by - law which would prohibit train whistles and ringing of locomotive bells is opposed by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The railway company, in a letter to city council, said it didn't object to train whistles being banned but the bells should be allowed as a safety measure.

DIRECTIONAL SIGNS NEEDED

Port Erie, April 21 — (CP) — Arthur E. Rayner, local real estate agent, thinks arriving American tourists should have help in travelling around Port Erie. He told the local Chamber of Commerce yesterday that the area "completely lacks directional signs." Many tourists had asked him for direction "and when I direct them some come back and tell me I'm all wet."

MERCY TRIP COMPLETED

The government icebreaker Saurel under the command of Capt. Louis Chouinard (inset) sailed from St. John's Tuesday night for Halifax after completing a mercy mission to isolated outposts on the east coast of Labrador. The Saurel was dispatched to carry $25,000 worth of food and supplies to these outposts when word was received settlers, including babies and children, were starving due to lack of supplies. The ice was so heavy the vessel took two days to complete the last eight miles of her trip to Labrador. — (CP Photo).

THREE PERSONS HELD FOR ROBBERY OF JEWELRY STORE

All Oshawa Residents, Part of Loot Recovered

Toronto, April 21 (CP)—Three persons were arrested today and held in North County Jail in connection with a $4,000 jewelry robbery in Oshawa yesterday. Provincial police authorities said that the three persons held, all from Oshawa, are Vernon Topping, John Hance and his wife, Doreen Hance.

Topping was arrested in Bradford, 30 miles north of here, shortly after 1 a.m. and a few minutes later provincial police officers apprehended the Hance couple in a taxi five miles south of Bradford. A quantity of jewelry believed part of the loot taken from the store of 71-year-old Fritz A. Von Gunten in Oshawa, has been recovered.

Further details of the arrests were not immediately available but provincial police authorities said the trio was well known to Oshawa police.

In a daylight robbery in Oshawa yesterday two men escaped with diamond rings and wrist watches valued at more than $4,000, after slugging, tussing and binding Von Gunten. The store is located a block and a half from Oshawa's main intersection, Simcoe and King.

Von Gunten was preparing to close his premises for the Wednesday half-holiday when two bandits entered the shop and asked some watches. As he bent down he was slugged over the head with a rubber truncheon and suffered a three inch gash which required hospital attention.

The bandits tied Von Gunten's hands behind his back and put another tie in his mouth. He was dragged to the rear of the store where he was found two men packing showcases before they left. They also took $2.50 from the till. After they left the aged man struggled to his feet and staggered through a rear door to an adjoining restaurant.

Mrs. Jo Farpatrich, restaurant proprietor, said that Von Gunten had been dazed but was not seriously injured when he entered her premises with blood all over his face. Von Gunten, a native of Germany, is a bachelor.

The robbery was the fourth perpetrated at Von Gunten's store in the last five years. He did not carry insurance for theft on his stock.

Three Die at 103

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — Death at 103 years of age came to three persons in Ontario and Quebec yesterday. James W. Duncan, a native of St. Catharines died in Montreal. Mrs. Joan Winslow, daughter of a Glasgow doctor who came to Collingwood 125 years ago, died in that Simcoe county community. Third to die at 103 was Mrs. Matilda Perry of Kingsville, one of the best known residents of Kent county.

BIG CHIEF

Prime Minister St. Laurent tried on an Indian headdress during his Eastern Seaboard visit and obviously enjoyed the experience. The Indians were only part of the greeting accorded Canada's prime minister. A giant of honor, a 70-gallon cake, a parade, a banquet and numerous receptions were included in the celebration. — (CP Photo).

Tremendous Increase for '48 In British Sales to Canada Not Likely to be Repeated

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Manchester, England, April 21 (CP)—The tremendous increase in British sales in Canada which took place in 1948 is not likely to be repeated this year.

Most business men and manufacturers interviewed during a survey by The Canadian Press report a falling-off from last year's record totals.

This is bad news for the trade unions and those who depend on packing showcases before they left. They also took $2.50 from the till. After they left the aged man struggled to his feet and staggered through a rear door to an adjoining restaurant.

Mrs. Jo Farpatrich, restaurant proprietor, said that Von Gunten had been dazed but was not seriously injured when he entered her premises with blood all over his face. Von Gunten, a native of Germany, is a bachelor.

The robbery was the fourth perpetrated at Von Gunten's store in the last five years. He did not carry insurance for theft on his stock.

Showed Big Increase

Britain's exports to Canada in 1948 climbed to a total value of £ 82,800,000 ($278,640,000) roughly five times what they were in 1938 and an increase of £ 26,400,000 over 1947.

Leading the trade drive was the woollen industry, which almost doubled its 1947 exports with sales of £18,200,000.

Next was the motor vehicle industry at £9,200,00 and cotton at £6,600,000. Silk rayon, and other textiles at £5,200,000 and neck-and-neck with machinery for which the board of trade has high hopes in 1949.

Pottery at £4,700,000 and miscellaneous items completed the list.

Here are comments from some representative firms:

Woolen: We'll have our work cut out to keep 1949 exports up to the level of 1948. They're getting stocked up in Canada now, and there's also the same demand.

Automobiles: Some manufacturers take a gloomy view of American competition, although a spokesman for the industry as a whole said: "Our prospects for sales can be maintained. Some companies are just getting started in the Canadian field."

Cotton: Cotton shipments to Canada will probably fall off in a month or two in anticipation of duties which will be reimposed July 1.

Silk and Rayon: "Rayon exports jumped in 1948 when Canadian duties were removed. A drop is bound to occur when the duties are restored in July.

Machinery: "There are countless gaps in the Canadian economy which could be filled by British machinery goods Canadians, however, are difficult to sell. In spite of this, British exports they turn instinctively to the United States."

To this a board of trade official added: "The big unknown question at the moment is markets. We hope to see a substantial increase."

Murder Trial Against Woman Nearing End

Toronto, April 21 (CP)—Toronto's paring-knife murder trial, in which Mrs. Grace McDonald, 43, is accused of fatally stabbing her husband during a domestic quarrel, is expected to reach the jury stage late today.

The husband, George McDonald, bled to death after being stabbed in the neck and chest.

The frail woman, mother of a seven-year-old child, denied yesterday that she stabbed her husband. She said she picked up the knife from the kitchen table to protect herself after the husband twice knocked her down during the argument in the couple's basement apartment in suburban York Township.

"My husband beat me up so many times that I don't remember all of them," she said. "I often had black eyes and bruises."

She said the quarrel started when she told her husband she intended to visit her sister who was recovering in hospital from an operation.

"George told me I couldn't go unless I took the baby with her. He slapped my face and got pretty mad . . . he knocked me to the floor with his fist on the back of the head. I tried to get up and he knocked me down again. I got up and grabbed the knife off the table where my dinner dishes were. . . he grabbed me by the hand and tried to take it from me. He started to take the knife away then he let me go and went upstairs."

Several witnesses said Mrs. McDonald suffered epileptic fits two or three times a week. Her father, Albert Jackson, said in condition made it necessary for her to leave school at 14.

REAL BUSINESS OF CONFERENCE STARTS FRIDAY

Delegates Invited To Lunch at Palace

London, April 21 — (CP) — Princess Elizabeth, who celebrated her 23rd birthday today, was to shake hands with Canada's G. S. Pearson and other delegates to the Commonwealth Conference at a luncheon at Buckingham Palace — but the real business of the Commonwealth talks won't start until tomorrow.

The Princess, heiress-presumptive to the throne, and her husband, Prince Phillip, were guests along with Prime Minister Attlee and his colleagues at the function the King and Queen held to welcome the Dominion wealth leaders.

Before the first plenary session of the conference met in Downing Street, Attlee expected to see Prime Ministers Louis Fraser of New Zealand and Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan after today. He also planned to confer with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India who arrived late Wednesday night.

Pearson, Canada's first successively with Prime Minister Daniel Malan of South Africa; Pearson, Canada's Minister of External Affairs; Prime Minister Don Senanayake of Ceylon; and Prime Minister Joseph Chifley of Australia.

He conferred with them on the major problem facing the conference — how can India's long-established Republicanism be reconciled with a desire to remain within the framework of the British Commonwealth.

Express Optimism

This question and its solution or non-solution could have far-reaching effect on the structure of the British family of nations.

"Supposing no compromise can be found," said the Daily Telegraph in an editorial, "The dominions who are anxious to remain in the existing status might well have to reconsider their position; and this applies particularly to Pakistan and Ceylon."

Delegates have expressed optimism as to the outcome of the talks — but some London newspapers thought the way would be thorny.

The Daily Express, in an editorial, said: "The problem is harsh and subtle . . . the bonds of the empire can be fine-spun, flexible and tough — but nevertheless they possess basic rigidity.

"There can be no question of any nation enjoying membership of a Commonwealth club — its own terms or no terms."

In a statement to the conference, Prime Minister Malan feared a demonstration outside his hotel here yesterday.

Protesting South Africa's treatment of minority colored populations, a crowd of Indians, Africans and other British student sympathizers carried an effigy of the South African prime minister to nearby Marble Arch. There they tried to burn it.

Police intervened. The figure of Malan was torn to bits and the meeting ended with the crowd shouting "Down with Malan."

India has protested to the United Nations over South Africa's treatment of Indians living there.

Windmill Theft Is Charged to Three

Galt, April 21 — (CP) — It's no ordinary theft that three Paris, Ont., men are charged with. Police allege that an entire windmill was taken by George Lane, Ernie Pamplin and Fred Parkinson from the farm of William Hall at nearby Ayr. They will appear in court here April 26. Police said the windmill was loaded onto a truck and sold to a scrap dealer in Paris.

PIPER AND GAELIC SCHOLAR DIES AT AGE OF 78

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — Kenneth Macdonald, 78, a piper well - known at Scottish gatherings in Canada, died here Monday. He came to Canada 36 years ago and farmed for several years in Manitoba. He was a gaelic scholar and composed a number of melodies for the pipes.

Cubans Fire in Air When Strikers Try To Halt Boarding

Replacement Crew for Ship Will be Flown From Canada

Cairbarien, Cuba, April 21 — (CP) — Twenty-five striking Canadian seamen aboard the freighter Canadian Victor surrendered to Cuban navy forces last night. The navy forces had fired into the air when the striking crew tried to keep them from boarding.

The naval troops approached the Canadian Victor in three tugs.

A replacement crew was to be flown here from Canada.

The crew had struck in sympathy with the Canadian Seamen's Union, now in the fourth week of its dispute.

The ship's master, Captain Phil Bond, had asked port authorities for aid because the crew was on strike and was showing a "hostile attitude." He said they were not permitting anyone to approach the ship.

RESTS COMFORTABLY AFTER OPERATION

MITCHELL HEPBURN

M.F. Hepburn A Little Better

London, Ont. April 21 — (CP) — Condition of Mitchell F. Hepburn, former premier of Ontario who underwent an operation in Victoria Hospital Tuesday was "improved" Tuesday night.

Relatives said that Mr. Hepburn was "resting comfortably," and that although still critical he is "doing as well as can be expected."

It was reported that it will be a week before he will be allowed to see any visitors other than his wife and immediate relatives.

Mr. Hepburn visited his home for a five-minute period yesterday and last night returned to their home near St. Thomas for the first time since his operation.

COULDN'T USE HAND

Port Colborne, April 21 — (CP) — Bert Baker is mourning his greatest opportunity, when he lost — he held a perfect cribbage hand that he couldn't play. His dealt himself a tack of spades and three fives and the other five was a six. Then the opposition counted out to end the game before he could lay down his hand.

Honorary Degrees In Divinity Will be Presented

Toronto, April 21 (CP) — Honorary Doctor of Divinity Degrees will be presented to five Ontario United Church Ministers Friday night at the convocation in Divinity of Victoria University and the degree conferred on Samuel Colleys at St. George's United Church.

The five ministers are: Rt. Rev. Willard Brewing, moderator of the United Church of Canada; Rev. T. F. Paisley, First United Church, Galt; Rev. C. A. Gowan, College Street United Church; Toronto; Rev. H. O. Hutchesson, Trinity United Church, Shelburne; Rev. S. H. Stokes, Queen's United Church, Niagara Falls.

S.A.'S 53RD. ANNIVERSARY

Toronto, April 21 (CP)— The Toronto Temple Corps of the Salvation Army will observe its 53rd anniversary this weekend with special services Saturday and Sunday under the leadership of commissioner and Mrs. Norman Marshall of Chicago. A youth rally is planned Saturday night and a dinner with Mrs. Hiram McCallum presiding Sunday afternoon.

London Letter:

Fan Mail Addressed to Royal Family Heaviest in World

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 21 (CP)— Six times a day a large red mail van drives up to the side entrance of Buckingham Palace to deposit parcels, packages and bulging sacks.

It is estimated that the King alone has received 1,500,000 letters in the course of his reign. Nearly as many again have been addressed to the Queen and Princess Elizabeth.

Today's fan mail addressed to the Royal Family is the heaviest in the world—and it often produces results.

For instance: Young Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Frampton sat at the bedside of their baby daughter in cold and draughty Nissen hut at the windmill war loaded down truck and sold to a scrap dealer in Paris.

Suddenly, the letter was just to thank her for a food parcel sent to their baby, Elizabeth, born on the same day as Prince Charles (Nov. 14). They did not know exactly how the "Princess's staff knew of the coincidence, but recipient of the parcel made them feel they had a friend at court.

Family Quickly Moved

They wrote of draughts, of a leaky ceiling, of the rat they'd found in Elizabeth's cot . . . and before long the Weymouth Rural authority received a letter from Buckingham Palace. It was tactful, even formal in tone, but there was no mistaking its meaning. The Framptons were quickly moved to a better and warmer but, and on the council's waiting list for houses their home now is undoubtedly well ring ink.

A man living at Clapham Common, southwest London, wrote to the Queen telling of the great joy and wonder-stirring of a woman who had lain on her face for 12 months with severe burns. This letter passed all secretarial barriers. The Queen answered the letter personally. Then she went to see the woman in hospital.

One of the minutes of Buckingham Palace is that every one of the variations of letters received—excepting anonymous letters—is acknowledged. On significance occasions, like the birth of Prince Charles the flood rises as high as 10,000. Every letter is entered in a register and it is a quiet day when court postmaster Edward Burt books less than 400.

The Royal Family obviously cannot read all the letters addressed to them, but salient points have a way of percolating through the mass.

TWEED

Unloading Logs Workman Breaks Bones in Leg

Tweed, MP. Arthur Albert had the misfortune to fracture two bones in his left leg last week while unloading logs at the CPR. station for the Veneer plant where he is employed.

While in the act of rolling a log from the car, the handle of the cant-hook broke, throwing him to the bottom of the car, resulting in the fracture of his leg.

Dr. M. G. Dales rendered first aid and had him removed by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital where the fractures were reduced. He was brought back to his home on Arthur Street.

Buys New Home

J. L. Welsh who recently joined the Hydro staff in Tweed has purchased the new home on McGowan Street, erected by Arthur Sharp last summer. Mr. Welsh came to Tweed from Bowmanville. The Welsh family will move into their new residence shortly.

Joe McIlroy a member of the staff at Victoria theatre, has been successful in passing his examinations as a motion picture projectionist. The exams were held in Toronto last week-end Joe now holds his first class papers.

To Construct Diamond

It is understood that Tweed Kinsmen are proceeding with their plans for the construction of a new softball diamond on a central location in the village. Floodlights will be installed for night games. It is hoped to have the project underway shortly although it is doubtful whether the park will be ready for this year's scheduled games. The league has used the separate school diamond in previous years.

Mr. E. W. Jones of Jones Garage, Tweed, will build a new garage in the village of Marmora in the near future. The garage will be located on No. 7 Highway at the eastern extremity of Marmora Village. It will be a modern building which will be equipped for general garage work.

Jim Jones has accepted a position with the Northern Electric at Belleville. Mr. Jones will continue to reside in Tweed where his wife operates the Tweed beauty salon.

Joins Firm

Robert E. Hunter joined his brother Kent Hunter as secretary treasurer of the Hunter Veneers in Tweed last week.

A reorganization of the firm in which Mr. Harold Roberts disposed of his interests, and Mr. Kent Hunter was named president of the firm. The new member of the company recently purchased the home owned by Ambrose Trudeau on north Victoria Street. Hunter and 24 year old son, will remain in Oakville until after the end of the present school term.

Chief Naval Liaison Officer In London

Ottawa, April 20 (CP)—Captain Owen C. S. Robertson, burly 42-year-old native of Victoria, B.C. has been appointed senior officer, naval liaison officer in London, it was announced Tuesday. Along with the appointment goes the post of commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Niobe, depot ship for Canadian navy personnel in the United Kingdom. Capt. Robertson takes over the job left vacant by the death in London last March 23 of Commodore H. L. Edwards.

Red-Sponsored Peace Talks Open in Paris

Paris, April 21 (AP) — A Communist-sponsored world peace conference opened here today with a call for the formation of peace committees throughout the world to carry out the Congress' plans.

Four-star Communist physicist, scientist, Frederic Joliot-Curie, told the 1,500 delegates from 52 countries:

"We will show the Governments that they have to reckon with us. We fight this fight with the certain of victory."

Unlike a world peace congress held in New York last month, this one opened with no anti-Communist pleas outside the meeting place and no evidence of any special police precautions. The anti-Communist press gave the meeting scant attention.

Although the hall was barred from the floor of the Congress, simultaneous translations service. like that used at United Nations sessions, was to give the speeches to delegates and reporters in five languages through headphones at each seat.

Most of the delegates are Communists or fellow-travellers, who the conference leaders said represent a following of 600,000,000 persons.

Five days of speech-making lie ahead of the delegates, with a Communist-backed fire expected against the North Atlantic defence pact. Some delegates have arrived from countries behind the Iron Curtain, along with pro-Communist leaders from other countries.

Boy Who Robbed Bank Employers Spent Only $2.

Vancouver, April 21 — (CP) — A pug-nosed boy who robbed his bank employers of $1,650 at gun-point yesterday spent less than $2 before he gave himself up to a policeman on a downtown street corner.

The youthful bandit had $1,648 in his pocket when he surrendered.

Since his bold escape into noontime traffic after he pulled a gun on a few fellow-employes of the Granville Street branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, the boy bandit had been to a movie and a shooting gallery.

The boy, a junior clerk at the bank for the last five months, astounded teller Bill Slater, 32, by knocking on his cage at lunch-time, flashing the gun and warning: "Don't sound an alarm.

The boy, who came here from Hamilton, snatched a roll of bills and walked briskly out of the bank.

Heart Stimulant Is Discovered In Osage Orange

Detroit, April 21 — (AP) — Discovery of a heart stimulant in the Osage orange, or hedge apple, was announced today by Doctors F. A. Wenk, C. W. Gowdey, and J. S. Loynes of the University of Western Ontario, London, Ont.

The Canadian doctors told the American Physiological Society that they obtained it in pure form and found it chemically related to digitalis.

The substance is a steroid, and similar ones with some ability to stimulate heart action were found in the California orange, soy beans, yeast, grain, and corn. The research is still experimental and not yet of any use in treating patients.

Criticize Restaurants For Allegedly Having Barred Negroes

Dresden, Ont., April 21 (CP) — A Dresden branch of the Canadian Legion Tuesday criticized three restaurants here for allegedly barring Negroes. A letter to the town council, the Legion said, that the Dresden Legion branch asked for legislation to outlaw racial discrimination. Anti-discrimination laws had recently been considered by the council to bold a plebiscite on discrimination by restaurants but a technicality in publishing the vote indefinitely postponed it. It is to be brought up again at the next council meeting.

Hefty Slug, Head Unhurt

Toronto (CP)—With just a few shards of glass wool and a bit of fibre glass on your head, you can let people beat a hammer on your cranium with anything from a baseball bat to a hammer and walk away.

The glass wool and fibre glass of course, must first of all be made into one of the light-weight crash helmets developed by the R.C.A.F.'s Institute of Aviation Medicine here. The helmet is designed for pilots in the new high-speed jet aircraft.

The test is padded with horsehair and later bound in chamois. The glass is coated with plastic paint.

PERCY MacGREGOR, 64, DIES IN TORONTO

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — Police today are looking for any relatives of Percy MacGregor, 64, who died in his downtown rooming house yesterday. He is believed to have a wife and two children in Timmins.

36 Reported Killed in Quake In Central Chile

Santiago, Chile, April 20 — (AP) — A severe earthquake hit central Chile early Saturday night, first reports said 36 were killed and more than 50 injured.

Heavy damage was reported in the cities of Talca and Angol.

At Talca, believed to be the centre of the quake about 30 persons were reported killed in the collapse of a jail. It was reported many others were injured.

Tralguen in collapsing buildings and at least five persons were killed at Angol.

Concepcion, Talca and Temuco also felt the shock.

The government rushed aid to the region where hundreds were reported homeless.

City officers said half the houses in Angol had crumbled or were badly damaged. A hospital was so badly wrecked that many of the injured lay to spend the night in the streets.

At Traiguen, 50 or more houses were destroyed.

Continued slight tremors throughout the night kept the inhabitants in a constant state of alarm.

Troops were patrolling some areas to prevent looting.

STAGE SIT-DOWN STRIKE

Lansford, Pa., April 21 (AP)—Thirteen miners protesting pay deductions today staged a sit-down strike on the fourth level of the Lehigh Navigation Coal Company's No. 6 mine here. Fortified with a large breakfast, the miners are prepared to stay down until the company "agrees to the verbal agreement on quitting time in the west side of the mine, and until those pay deckages are restored."

AIR NOT WATER

Whales do not spout water, the moist air blown from their lungs condenses into drops of moisture in the colder atmosphere giving the appearance of a fountain of water.

Brighteners

Wenatchee, Wash. — (CP) — There wasn't any stench in Mr. and Mrs. Chester Parker's fish story, even if they were fishing from a rubber boat.

Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Parker felt a "nibble" and reeled in the billfold. Parker said the fish hadn't taken a cent of his $90.

Le Grande, Ore. — (AP) — Around the home of J. Robert Cash no one believes that old saw about the stork bringing babies.

It's the Easter bunny.

The Cashes have three children —each born on Easter.

The first, a son, came Easter Sunday, April 8, 1934.

A daughter arriver Easter Sunday, April 6, 1947.

The third, a son, was born last Sunday.

Man Attacked, Robbed, Thrown Over Mountain

Hamilton, April 21 — (CP) — Brutally attacked and robbed by two unidentified men with whom he had spent part of the afternoon and evening, Walter O'Keefe, 46, was thrown over the mountain brow in a ravine near the mountain sanatorium late Tuesday night. He is in General Hospital today, badly injured.

After lying in the open all night, he was found in a ravine some 40 feet from the mountain top early today by three men — Leo Roach, Cecil McDonough and William Moser — working on a sewer job in the vicinity.

Police had to carry the badly-injured man for a mile through the ravine and heavy bush to reach an ambulance. He was rifling up and conscious when police reached him, despite severe laceration of the forehead, other cuts, and possible internal injuries.

He had met the two strangers in a beverage room, he told police, about 10 p.m. They asked him to go for a drive. When they reached a lonely spot around one of the sanatorium buildings he was ordered out of the car and was immediately attacked and robbed of $85, then tossed over the brow.

Mother! YOUR BABY DESERVES THE PROTECTION

Libby's Extra-Nutritious BABY FOODS

Libby's are the fruits, soups and vegetables that are not only strained, but also homogenized. This exclusive double process gives your baby definite extra benefits:

Straining first homogenization breaks up food cells—makes these foods easy-to-digest. And because the food cells are broken, clinical tests show that Libby's helps babies get more nourishment from an equal amount of food.

So choose carefully for your baby. Choose the foods with the added benefits of homogenization. That can mean only one brand of fruits, soups and vegetables—Libby's! The only baby foods that are strained and homogenized!

3RD SIDNEY

Aikens W.M.S. Host to Bayside Auxiliary

Mrs. Neelands voiced appreciation for cards that had been sent to Eleanor while a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Appeal For Clothing

A further appeal for clothing to be sent to Europe was made by Mrs. Jeffery and plans were made for collecting it.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Neelands, who was introduced by Mrs. E. K. Hubbs.

'Appeal to Reason'

Mrs. Neelands chose as her subject "An Appeal to Reason" and the early part of her address dealt with the political and economical situation in China of the advance made by Communism; of social conditions on the farms, in factories and of the incompetent leadership of the government and army.

Great Love of Church

In dealing with the lessons to be learned from Communism, Mrs. Neelands stressed the fact that the Church of Christ has love greater than the sword. Love which reaches past class and creed, tod the heart of humanity, love which really shows what the Kingdom of God can be like.

Mrs. Neelands also stressed discipline in lives and in the church and her closing appeal was for support of the missionaries and leaders.

Appreciation for this timely, and thought-provoking address was extended by Mrs. Neelands by Mrs. Cyril McMullen.

Mrs. Thos. Irwin of Bayside, a past president of the Society, was present and responded when called on for remarks. The president of the Bayside Auxiliary, Mrs. Rusk, also expressed pleasure in being present.

Musical Contributions Enjoyed

Musical contributions to the afternoon's entertainment were a solo by Mrs. Clair Miller, of Bayside; a piano duet by Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton and Mrs. Lee Grills and a solo "The Old Rugged Cross" by Mrs. Chas. Smith.

The offering was taken and dedicated by Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton. Refreshments were served by the Aikens ladies, and a social hour was enjoyed in Christian fellowship.

Surprise Presentation

A surprise was in store for Mrs. Earl Scrimshaw when at the close of the meeting she was asked to come forward and an address was read and a presentation made of an electric clock, a luncheon cloth and an electric lighter, to herself and her husband, who was unable to be present. Mrs. Scrimshaw's visit was taken completely by surprise, thanked her friends and neighbors, and expressed regret at leaving the neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Scrimshaw are leaving to take up residence near Belleville where Mr. Scrimshaw will be nearer his work at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Women's Activities

REDNERSVILLE W. A.

Last week 23 members of the Rednersville W.A. met at the home of Mrs. Walter McLeod for their April meeting. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Ralph Stafford. Mrs. Harold Ward led in prayer. Mrs. Dickey read the personal letter and reports from all committees were given.

The W.A. had three quiltings during the year and realized $25.55. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Chas. Ostrom for the use of her home.

A new mirror is to be bought for the church by the W.A.; a box of clothing to be sent overseas; a "Hobby Fair" to be held in the church hall Thursday, April 21, afternoon and evening, moving pictures and a guest speaker, Mr. Dorland Houston, in the evening. Refreshments are to be served both afternoon and evening; admission 25¢.

Roll call was answered by the books of the Bible, the meeting was turned over the the convener, Mrs. Armor Read. A piano selection by Mrs. M. Rornbeck and a duet by Mrs. George Roblin and Miss Joan Ward, and a reading given by five different ladies, The History of Our Church-es", comprised the program.

A vote of thanks was given the hostess and refreshments served. Proceeds of the travelling basket $3.30. Collection amounted to $2.37. The May meeting will be held in the evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Adams and Marie Adams.

LADIES' AUXILIARY 99

On Tuesday evening, the Ladies' Auxiliary Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion, held their regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Jeffs, the president, presiding. The various reports were heard and adopted. A hearty vote of thanks was given the social committee, Mrs. Meeks and Mrs. Turner. Mrs. Nichols, being in charge of the overseas parcels, read many letters of thanks, showing the parcels are much needed.

Two hundred are expected here May 3rd for the Zone rally—the banquet being held in the Tabernacle United Church at 6.30 p.m., with a social evening following in the Club rooms, 224 Front St. All members are requested to be present.

ST. PAUL'S W.A.

Stirling—The April monthly meeting of St. Paul's Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. N. E. Eggleton on Tuesday evening, with a large attendance. The President, Mrs. W. T. Elliott, presided over the business portion of the meeting. The visiting committee Mrs. M. Donohoe and Mrs. H. Hulin reported all calls. Mrs. A. Hayward and Mrs. M. Fraser will act as the visiting committee for April.

The Finance report was given by Mrs. P. Ulman. Mrs. C. Pitman, secretary of the Friendly Workers' Group reported two quilts had been quilted during the past month.

It was decided that the W.A. send $5 to the Deaconess Order and Women's Workers, Toronto. The president presented several financial statements with the building, painting etc., of the new kitchen.

The guest speaker for the May meeting will be Mrs. J. M. Wood, district president, of Belleville Presbytery, of Prince Edward and Hastings Counties.

Mrs. R. Finkle presided over the program which was appropriately designed on the theme "Easter". Easter hymns were sung. Mrs. A. Brooks read the Easter Scripture Lesson and the reading "Glory and Wonder of The Cross", followed with prayer by Mrs. A. Armstrong.

Mrs. R. Stapley favored with a vocal solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. H. West. Mrs. E. G. Bailey gave a splendid reading entitled "Sunrise Service in Nature's Cathedrals".

Mrs. Ernest Munro presented the Easter message in a very interesting manner based on the Scripture lesson and comments. "The Lenten season takes for its theme, 'The Story of The Cross'. The Church of Christ for hundreds of years has chosen to picture the events in "The Life of the Redeemer" in a series of stations from Bethlehem to Calvary".

"The Cross is the measuring line of the world," continued the speaker. "It is the one thing which reveals the nature and meaning of evil. The redemptive aspect of the Cross is in its unique and complete love.

"The cruelty of man was not the only factor in Calvary. God was in it too. His redemptive passion is the secret of its mystical power." This address left a stirring message of real interest with the listeners.

Dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

With Black Chantilly

BY PRUNELLA WOOD

CHANTILLY LACE, an evening favorite always, gets an unusually young treatment here in long shade tunnel which flatters the ling of a black crepe sheath.

The lace is set on to swirl out bravely, and a lesser version of the same flare is set into the front of the formal gown with the slit the skirt makes the model easy to walk or dance in while setting off an attractive ankle.

Junior Farmers Hold Dance in Honor of Couple

Wooler—The Northumberland County Junior Farmers held a dance in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Down and his bride. Mrs. Down was the first president of the Northumberland County Junior Farmers and later president of the Ontario group.

Mr. Down is le 2nd vice president of the Ontario Federation.

Austin Chesterfield supplied the music. During the evening an address of appreciation was read and the young couple presented with a purse of money from the Junior Farmers along with their good wishes. The groom thanked the young people and introduced his wife, the former Margaret Barrie, of Ivy. They will be residing on their farm in Brighton Township near Wooler.

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Johnny Groth appears to be the hottest rookie to hit the majors since Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Stan Musial.

Sure, it's too early to tell. Two days don't make a season or a career. But what a two days this 22-year-old Detroit freshman had.

Three home runs, five hits and seven runs batted in.

The $35,000 the Tigers shelled out as a bonus to Johnny may have been their best investment.

A .340 season at Buffalo and a .471 batting average at Detroit in the final six games of the last season cemented Groth's claim to a regular job in centre field.

Groth exploded a barrage of hurrahs Tuesday with two homers off Chicago's Al Gettel. That overshadowed Hal Newhouser's three-hitter.

Wednesday he almost blotted out Virgil Trucks' four - hitter with a two-bagger homer off Randy Gumpert that gave Detroit a 6-2 edge over the White Sox.

A veteran did the honors for Fred Hutchinson in their 3-0 victory over Washington. Tommy Henrich, batting a ranking dual between Vic Raschi and Montreal-born Paul Calvert with a fourth-inning homer in the second of the year, his first accounting for the Yankees' opening-day success.

Giving a Good Try

Everybody said Boston Red Sox couldn't possibly play any slowly as Lemon but they're giving it a good try, Joe McCarthy's Bosox batted Philadelphia Athletics for the second straight day, 3-2 in 10 innings.

Sam Chapman came through with four hits driving in Elmer Valo, who also had four hits, with the winning run off Ellis Kinder. Joe Coleman was helped out of trouble by three double plays to win a 10-hitter.

Cleveland knocked out three pitchers in thumping St. Louis Browns 7-3. Bob Lemon, a 20-game winner in '48, went all the way despite homers by Dick Kokos and rookie Jack Graham. Karl Drews was the loser.

Puddin' Head Jones, Philadelphia Phillies' rookie hot shot from Toronto Leafs, tied a modern major-league record with 4 doubles, but couldn't help the Phils from losing to Boston Braves 6-5 on Hamilton of the Phils and Earl Torgeson of the Braves homered in a free-hitting contest that saw reliefer Nels Potter take his second victory of the season.

Brooklyn Dodgers walked to victory against New York Giants, 6-2. Loser Sheldon Jones gave only one hit before he was replaced in the fourth but he walked seven and wild - pitched twice. Duke Snider's home - run ball to Sid Gordon, Ralph Branca was in charge all the way, scattering four Giant hits.

The top National League pitching effort came from Chicago's Bob Rush, who shut out Pittsburgh, 6-0, on three hits. Frank Dickson was nicked for all the runs in his six-inning stay.

St. Louis and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

Hi Lee, the Cubs' Ilx of ramdom who towers above Whipper Billy Watson like the Empire State Building over the City Hall' makes his 1949 debut here tomorrow night when he takes on the popular Whip in the main bout of the opening wrestling show in Memorial Arena. This is an old feud, still evident between the pair and there will be no foolin' when the two tangle.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

News Item:—Statistics show that women make up the greater percentage of attendance at modern wrestling bouts.

The Time: Last wrestling season.
The Place: Any Arena.
Incident: Two women. Two lady fans, one a veteran, the other her first "time out."

"Now listen Mame, this is your first time at a rasslin' match, eh? Well there's a couple things you wanna keep in mind. First is to watch the referee. Don't worry, there's not your commissions run away with you'. . . Second, pay no attention to the what the crowd does . . . The most of 'em are nice earwy, . . .Just keep a cool head and don't say too much and you'll have a fine evening entertainment, see . . . Here, put this away . . . Whatsa in your purse, a mickey or a pistol . . . Whatever it is, don't pull it out. If its a pistol it might go off . . . If it's a mickey it might get killed in the scuffle. . . Alright let's go. Now remember what I toldya, keep cool and nipped down, and remember might soak 'em sourgrip with an old shoe, a crutch or rafter, or your own leg after he's torn it off . . .

"Well here we are, Mame. . . Those seats are hard but ya won't mind that. . . After the first few minutes you won't be takin' it anywear. . . I hope that's an old hat ya've got on. . . It ain't'. . . Well it will be after the first fall. . . Don't look now but Ruth Eisenkopf is sittin' right behind us. . . All the wrasers have five diffrunt langwidges, and he's liable to pull that monstrously your wearin' down over your eyes the first time one of them hits a dark ass hole. . . Remember what I told ya, keep hit out of the other guy's buttock, or whatever is the handiest part of his anatomy . . .

Well, I'll be a Sultan's darling, Mame. . . Look over there . . . If that ain't Tilly Swingbastle, Joe Stalin will be president of the United States next election . . . And look who she's with. . . Oh with he's a manager of some sort. . . And he must been here last week with a sunburnt sunflower from the sunburned state. . . Texas I mean. . . Yer up to him after . . . You see the funniest folks here . . . Over on your left, see, the one holdin the smart out of that funny-colored cake feller? . . . Eh's the meanest guy at one time in the whole world. . . Eh's a pashyderm was an elephant or sumpin. . . The ignorance of some people is plain pitiful, ain't it Mame? Well lissen Mame . . .

"Here they comes, Mame. . . Whew, lookit the shoulders on that first handsome husk of beef . . . Aint he a darlin'. . . Sister, I like 'em wide and broad with shoulders like a beer truck. . . I'll bet he's got a chest on him like a barrel. . . Set off his coat and vest, he was so skinny that we had to build grand stand behind him to make him look respectable. . . Then he wouldn't drop in unexpectedly on the folks in the apartment below. . . Yer right, Mame, he would look pretty in the bathtub so he wouldn't slip down the drain with the Saturday night current. . . .

"Oh-oh, well for the love of the landlady's store teeth, lookit who they got. . . Mame, Mame, Mame. . . Oh, I feared you wouldn't know. . . Well he's politely known as the referee, but he's seldom called that, as you'll find out. . . You don't wearry if he's a lenty of names, for him they don't tellya nor . . . You're bear 'em—and understand 'em if you were over in an army now. . . Yes, he's a referee, but he's also known as the coffee-seller, the pot-bellied porpoise. . . He's well-named. . . He's good at his job, too, Mame, and that's all that's the last drop, if you've got one. . . But this third guy, or the referee, all he does is walks around, lookit the blondes and brunettes as he passes by now and then, tries to be squirtin' and occasionally slap half out of the canvas when the big boys are threshing around in the palms of anyone. . . He flops down with 'em on the canvas, and tells 'em a joke or two, and if they like it they slap him on the shoulder. . . He's the referee. . . Hurries around the ring like a pealer pigeon with a Tarzan complex while the here figures out how much more insurance he'll tack on before the next bout. . . .

"Well here they go, Mame. . . Now for the love of whodunit, keep cool. . . They'll be plenty of excitement. . . Hey, you in the black trunks, who dya think you are. . . Break it up, Rashbin. . . I'm sorry but we've got no fat role feet in the ropes. . . HEY, BREAK IT UP. . . Where'd you ever learn to referee? . . . I'm a soldier's pal not a cockroach fight, you cockroach. . . Don't mind me, Mame, I usually blow off a little steam. . . Now, you in the white hits. . . Well look at that little runt in front of us. . . HEY You, sit down will yuh. Where'd yuh think yare, in the Royal Box. . . Sit Down or I'll bust a shoe over your head. . . Thanks, Mame, I feel good now. . . Suffrin' cats Mame dya think you can get my shoe back. . . Ask that guy down front will ya. . . Yippee, now Rashbin can get on him. . . Give it to him, buddy, Tear his arm off. . . Go ahead. break it off. . . Well for the love Mame, didya see that bum, the referee. . . Hey, he wasn't doin' nuthin. . . Yuh big lug. . . Ah whaia the use?. . . .

Now lookit. . . That referee, or as they say in the papers, an unreasonable blackamlin, now he gettin' paid by this bit yuk-yuk from down south. . . HEY YOU, are you stone blind, or just in love with Handsome Hal in the turnip when he's not. . . Slop it—Break it Up—Why, you yellow-livered ax-and-ox from the faraway places, if you was my old man I'd give yuh lodine for your breakfast. Break It Up. I say or I'll. . . Suffrin' cats Mame dya think you can get my shoe back. . . Ask that guy down front will ya. . . Yippee, now Rashbin can get on him. . . Give it to him, buddy, Tear his arm off. . . He flops down with 'em on the canvas, and tells 'em a joke or two, and if they like it they slap him on the shoulder. . . He's the referee. . . Hurries around the ring like a pealer pigeon with a Tarzan complex while the here figures out how much more insurance he'll tack on before the next bout. . . .

"Well here they go, Mame. . . Now for the love of whodunit, keep cool. . . They'll be plenty of excitement. . . Hey, you in the black trunks, who dya think you are. . . Break it up, Rashbin. . . I'm sorry but we've got no fat role feet in the ropes. . . HEY, BREAK IT UP. . . Where'd you ever learn to referee? . . . I'm a soldier's pal not a cockroach fight, you cockroach. . . Don't mind me, Mame, I usually blow off a little steam. . . Now, you in the white hits. . . Well look at that little runt in front of us. . . HEY You, sit down will yuh. Where'd yuh think yare, in the Royal Box. . . Sit Down or I'll bust a shoe over your head. . . Thanks, Mame, I feel good now. . . Suffrin' cats Mame dya think you can get my shoe back. . . Ask that guy down front will ya. . . Yippee, now Rashbin can get on him. . . Give it to him, buddy, Tear his arm off. . . Go ahead. break it off. . . Well for the love Mame, didya see that bum, the referee. . . Hey, he wasn't doin' nuthin. . . Yuh big lug. . . Ah whaia the use?. . . .

"Omigawd, Mame didya see that. . . Lookit that big hunk o cheese, there with Handsome Hal in the turnip when he's not. . . Slop it—Break It Up—Why, you yellow-livered ax-and-ox from the faraway places, if you was my old man I'd give yuh lodine for your breakfast. Break It Up. I say or I'll. . . Sufferin' cats Mame dya think you can get my shoe back. . . Ask that guy down front will ya. . . Yippee, now Rashbin can get on him. . . Give it to him, buddy, Tear his arm off. . . "Well here we are, Mame. . . Those seats are hard but ya won't mind that. . . After the first few minutes you won't be takin' it anywear. . . I hope that's an old hat ya've got on. . . It ain't'. . . Well it will be after the first fall. . . Don't look now but Ruth Eisenkopf is sittin' right behind us. . . All the wrasers have five diffrunt langwidges, and he's liable to pull that monstrously your wearin' down over your eyes the first time one of them hits a dark ass hole. . . Remember what I told ya, keep hit out of the other guy's buttock, or whatever is the handiest part of his anatomy . . .

Well, I'll be a Sultan's darling, Mame. . . Look over there . . . If that ain't Tilly Swingbastle, Joe Stalin will be president of the United States next election . . . And look who she's with. . . Oh with he's a manager of some sort. . . And he must been here last week with a sunburnt sunflower from the sunburned state. . . Texas I mean. . . Yer up to him after . . . You see the funniest folks here . . . Over on your left, see, the one holdin the smart out of that funny-colored cake feller? . . . Eh's the meanest guy at one time in the whole world. . . Eh's a pashyderm was an elephant or sumpin. . . The ignorance of some people is plain pitiful, ain't it Mame? Well lissen Mame . . .

"Here they comes, Mame. . . Whew, lookit the shoulders on that first handsome husk of beef . . . Aint he a darlin'. . . Sister, I like 'em wide and broad with shoulders like a beer truck. . . I'll bet he's got a chest on him like a barrel. . . Set off his coat and vest, he was so skinny that we had to build grand stand behind him to make him look respectable. . . Then he wouldn't drop in unexpectedly on the folks in the apartment below. . . Yer right, Mame, he would look pretty in the bathtub so he wouldn't slip down the drain with the Saturday night current. . . .

"Oh-oh, well for the love of the landlady's store teeth, lookit who they got. . . Mame, Mame, Mame. . . Oh, I feared you wouldn't know. . . Well he's politely known as the referee, but he's seldom called that, as you'll find out. . . You don't wearry if he's a lenty of names for him they don't tellya nor . . . You're bear 'em—and understand 'em if you were over in an army now. . . Yes, he's a referee, but he's also known as the coffee-seller, the pot-bellied porpoise. . . He's well-named. . . He's good at his job, too, Mame, and that's all that's the last drop, if you've got one. . . But this third guy, or the referee, all he does is walks around, lookit the blondes and brunettes as he passes by now and then, tries to be squirtin' and occasionally slap half out of the canvas when the big boys are threshing around in the palms of anyone. . . He flops down with 'em on the canvas, and tells 'em a joke or two, and if they like it they slap him on the shoulder. . . He's the referee. . . Hurries around the ring like a pealer pigeon with a Tarzan complex while the here figures out how much more insurance he'll tack on before the next bout. . . .

Don't mind me, Mame, I usually blow off a little steam. . . Now, you in the white hits. . . Well look at that little runt in front of us. . . HEY You, sit down will yuh. Where'd yuh think yare, in the Royal Box. . . Sit Down or I'll bust a shoe over your head. . . Thanks, Mame, I feel good now. . . Suffrin' cats Mame dya think you can get my shoe back. . . Ask that guy down front will ya. . . Yippee, now Rashbin can get on him. . . Give it to him, buddy, Tear his arm off. . . Go ahead. break it off. . . Well for the love Mame, didya see that bum, the referee. . . Hey, he wasn't doin' nuthin. . . Yuh big lug. . . Ah whaia the use?. . . .

"Omigawd, Mame didya see that. . . Lookit that big hunk o cheese, there with Handsome Hal in the turnip when he's not. . . Slop it—Break It Up—Why, you yellow-livered ax-and-ox from the faraway places, if you was my old man I'd give yuh lodine for your breakfast. Break It Up. I say or I'll. . . Go ahead. break it off. . . Well for the love Mame, didya see that bum, the referee. . . Hey, he wasn't doin' nuthin. . . Yuh big lug. . . Ah whaia the use?. . . .

Now lookit. . . That referee, or as they say in the papers, an unreasonable blackamlin, now he gettin' paid by this bit yuk-yuk from down south. . . HEY YOU, are you stone blind, or just in love with Handsome Hal in the turnip when he's not. . . HEY, well I'll. . . Sorry Mame, there goes my pomade. . . Didya notice where it landed. . . I think it hit that big' plug-ugly in the front row'. . . He looked back. . . Can't be sure, Mame, but there our unladylike expressions. . . Thank you sir, the gent behind me thought it was his wife talkin'. . . Come to think of it, he's right, and I'll apologize to the referee. . . No, officer, it was NOT my purse. . . Here it is. . . Missis been from some of these town's ladies to a cheap resale, . . Don't mention it, yuh big stiff! . . . Well that's it, Mame. . . As I toldya, the main thing at a rassler's bout is to keep cool and remember there's no such langwidge. . . Guess the old man must be home with the kids from that western movie. . . Swell, well, I can't see how he stands all that excitement of shootin', stage coaches, cowboys and Indians. . . It would kill me. . . I prefer a nice quiet evening at a art exhibition where you can relax and keep cool. . . Well, s'long, we must come again another night. . . .

The Kiwanis Junior baseball club failed to hold its first practice the other night at the basement weather. Tonight, thanks to the kindness of Lieut. Col. Jack Cousins, 8th Anti Tank Regt, the squad will get together in the Bridge St. armouries, starting at 7.30. All players of eligible age are requested to turn out regardless of what positions they play. All spots on team are open and players will be given positions according to merit. So turn out you youngsters and give Manager Addison Lloyd and Coach Chuck Burnell an opportunity to look you over and size you up. Tonight's sessions will be more of an inaugural get-together with a light throwing and conditioning practice.

THIRD MERCY FLIGHT IN WEEK

Goose Bay, Labrador, April 20 — (CP) — Flt. Lt. Barney Dugan man flew his third mercy mission in a week Tuesday. He piloted an R. C. A. F. Norseman from Goose Bay to Cartwright, north of here on the Labrador coast, to carry drugs to an Eskimo girl. The Grenfell Mission doctor at Cartwright said the drugs "undoubtedly" saved the girl's life. Names of her illness was not know here.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, April 21 — (AP) — You'd hardly recognize Washington Senators these days except by the spot the experts are awarding them in the pre-season baseball predictions . . . and even that is okay with Manager Joe Kuhel, he says . . . Joe professes to approve those seventh- and eighth-place forecasts because they'll make him look good if he can move the club up a couple of notches . . . Not anyone now hasn't seen the club for a couple of years, the only familiar faces are Al Evans, Eddie Yost, Buddy Lewis and, of course, a few pitchers . . . Lewis, you remember, retired last year but Kuhel says Buddy isn't having trouble making a comeback because "he's a natural hitter" as for the pitchers, the less said about them now the better . . . Right now Joe is high on a lean, bespectacled flinger from Montreal named Paul Calvert, because he looked so good in the Cuban League last winter.

Hair-raising Tail

Near East, a three-year-old filly scheduled to race at Jamaica Saturday, likely will be docked out with a "tail toupee" when she goes to the post. It seems that because of an infection, she lost her own hirsute appearance and trainer Jimmy Hastie had a false tail made so she wouldn't look so strange . . . Now if Jimmy would get up a nose falsie, the nag might be worth a two-buck bet.

Brandon Kings Ready to Meet Calgary Squad

Brandon, Man., April 21 (CP) — A crowd of 3,000 gave Brandon Wheat Kings and Calgary Stampeders a rousing reception when the two western junior hockey finalists arrived Wednesday for the first game of their title series tonight.

Wheat Kings, holding a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven playoff round, stole the thunder of their Calgary rivals by wearing cowboy hats.

Coach Cone Carr of the Buffs said "We still think we can beat Wheat Kings and, with a few changes in our system and strategy, we can come back against the Brandon club.

Coach Bill McKenzie of Brandon, like Carr, a former N. H. L. star, said he would stand pat on the lineup which played throughout the Manitoba playoffs and the series with last year's Memorial Cup champions, Fort Arthur Bruins.

Watson-Lee Open "Rassle" Season Here

(By The Canadian Press)

Sky-Hi Lee the biggest human mountain (as far as the wrestling game is concerned) will expose his rugged, tattooed body to an equally rough mat tactics on the Maple Leaf Gardens mat Friday night here. Hi, who tips the scales at two hundred and ninety-seven pounds, has agreed to meet Whipper Billy Watson, the darling of the grunt-and-groan in the main bout in the Memorial Arena. The match should be one of those knock-'em-down drag-'em-out affairs for there is no love lost between the principals.

Whipper, who lost his Empire title to Fred Atkins earlier this season in Toronto, has been trying desperately to regain the crown. He will be throwing everything he has at Lee tonight in the hope of a loss to Lee would definitely put him a notch further away from a title bout. The struggle between the two should be a honey. It looks as something like a bout between a tiger and a water-buffalo. Whip has the power and a certain brand of terrierish energy while Lee is a great lumbering ox of a man with strength and weight to spare.

Two other bouts that fill out the card will see Pat Flanagan colliding with Ivan Rasputin and Frank Valois testing the famed Cardiff Giant. Rasputin is well remembered for his tremendous struggles here several years ago before he had his left broken in one night in the Boston Garden ring in a match with John Katsaflis also familiar here. Rasputin has fully recovered and has been signed for a bout in Buffalo next week so Pat may be in for a difficult time of it here.

Joe Klukay Signs New Contract With the Leafs

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe Klukay of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., goal-getting-killer of the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs, Wednesday signed his contract for next season with the National Hockey League club.

He's the sixth member of the Leafs to sign up again since they defeated the Detroit Red Wings in finals Saturday night. The others are captain Ted Kennedy, forwards Max Bentley, Howie Meeker and Vic Lynn and defenceman Garth Boesch of Winnipeg.

(Sundridge leads 3-2 in best-of-seven final series)

At Kirkland Lake, Rouyn Flashes defeated Thurso Lumber Kings 4-3 in overtime Wednesday night in the first game of their Eastern Canada intermediate "A" semi-final series. The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played at Kirkland Lake tomorrow night.

At Brantridge, Georgetown registered a 6-4 victory Wednesday night over Bucko Mcdonald's Sundridge Beavers to stay in the race for the Ontario Hockey Association intermediate "B" title. Sundridge now holds a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series with the next game scheduled for Georgetown.

At Sackville, N.B., Sault Ste. Marie Algos jumped into a 15-point lead in the Canadian intermediate basketball semi-finals Wednesday night, defeating Mount Allison University 59-44. Second game in the two-game total-point series will be played here tonight. The winner meets St. Francis Xavier University of Antigonish, N.S. for the Canadian title.

At Montreal, general manager Frank Selke of Montreal Forum said Wednesday night the management, as a special inducement", has agreed to divide its monetary share with the contending clubs if the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will divert one of the Memorial Cup final games to Montreal. He said that "key personnel" the C.A.H.A. has refused to sanction a transfer but the Forum "will grant its request for a few games."

Head injuries incurred when he was knocked out in a prize fight at Hinsdale, Sunday night caused the death of Frederick Bungei, 23-year-old light-weight, has been fighting under the ring name of Freddie Sylvano. He was knocked out in the fifth round of his fight with Juan Khan.

At Cincinnati, Gus Lesnevich, Clifields, N.Y., and Joey Maxim, Cleveland, O., Wednesday signed a new contract to box 15 rounds in Cincinnati May 23 for the lightheavyweight championship of the United States. Several days ago they signed at Paterson, N.J., for a bout over the same route for the world's title. The National Boxing Association, headed by chairman Abe Greene, however, declared Freddie Mills of London still to be the 175-pound title king and demanded the change.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Regina, April 21 (CP)—Hockey may be singing its seasonal swan song for most of Canada, but in Saskatchewan the sports talk already has next year's season in mind.

Cam (Saskatoon Star-Phoenix) McKenzie says he's definitely set Minton, Northern Saskatchewan junior titlists, are seeking a "name" coach and have put a feeler out for Elmer Lach.

Montreal Canadiens' great centre from Nokomis, Sask., who recently announced his retirement from an active player's role, wired the P.A. club he was "interested" in the offer.

The Minton also approached Nick Mickoski (former Toronto Maple Leaf star who spent the winter on his farm at Wilcox, Sask.), rumored to be the next Saskatoon senior Quaker coach. Mickey put them on the trail of Sweeney Schriner...but Schriner apparently is interested in a position with an eastern team or might even be toying with the idea of another whirl with the Regina Capa."

Team to Trade Bump for Bump With Capitals

Regina, April 21 (CP) —Fort Frances Canadians, who face elimination tonight in the fourth game of the Western Canada senior hockey final with Regina Capitals, are going to do another about face in an attempt to salvage the series. Coach Gordon Fraser says his squad will trade bump with the Caps who lead the best-of-five series 2-1.

"We're going to be tough and we'll be out to show that big things come in small packages," he said.

"We haven't been tough enough in this series but our defence now will throw everything it's got. When the Caps come our blue line they'll know they're in a hockey game."

Fraser was none too happy over his club's 6-1 setback Tuesday night.

"If we hadn't gone into a tail-spin for three minutes in the second period we would have beaten them," he said. "We just got careless while Walt Christiansen was sitting out a minor penalty and the Caps were in quick to take advantage. They scored two quick goals and that's that did it."

Tonight's contest should be a rugged affair, Regina is expected to continue their heavy bodychecking which brought them 2nd and 6-3 victories after dropping the first contest 5-4 when they tried to match Fort Frances in speed.

Spitfires Top Bowling League

Frankford—The regular schedule of the Bata Bowling League wound up Monday night. The surprise of the season came when the lowly Falcons rolled prettically pin for pin with the league leading Spitfires. Falcons took one game, and dropped another by a mere eleven pins. The Spitfires were able to roll only twenty-six pins over the Falcons on the evening's bowling. If they continue their present pace, the Falcons may go places in the playoffs, which start next week. The top four teams will play off, and the bottom four will play. Winners of the two divisions will meet in the finals.

Final Standings

92,000 Expected At Opening of Int. League

New York April 21 (AP)—The International Baseball League will open its 66th straight season today with an expected paid attendance of 92,000 or more.

Seven afternoon games and one night session—Montreal at Baltimore—will make up the opening program.

Jersey City, as usual, is a clutch to walk off with attendance honors. Some 55,000 tickets will be sold for the game between the Little Giants and Rochester.

Half of these won't be able to squeeze into the park, however. The park seats only 30,000.

Other games and expected attendance are: Toronto at Newark-18,000; Montreal at Baltimore, 15,000; Buffalo at Syracuse, 10,000.

Pitching assignments were fairly definite.

Jersey City is slated to go with Ford Bailey, Negro right-hander, whose mound opponent will be Eddie Blaka, promising Rochester right-hander.

Toronto will open at Portland with Portland of the Pacific coast league, is to toe the hill for Newark against Oscar Judd, veteran Toronto Leafs' left-hander from Kitchener.

League president Frank Shaughnessy says the league race should be much tighter than last year, when Montreal Royals made a runaway of it. He thinks every club has been strengthened, especially the Baltimore, Buffalo and Jersey City.

Jersey City has added a couple of hard hitters in Negro outfielders Sam Thompson and Monte Irvin. Newark also has a couple of Negro newcomers in outfielder Lenda Margarum and shortstop Frank Austin.

Ottawa Senators Now Favored To Take Title

Toronto, April 21 (CP)— The powerful Ottawa Senators arrived here today for the fourth game of their semi-final senior hockey final against Toronto Marlboros with more confidence than on their previous visit. Now leading 2-1 in games in the best-of-seven series, Senators have given Toronto fans something to worry about.

The Quebec champions expect to be reinforced for tonight's game by big defenceman Butch Stahan, who has been sidelined with a wrenched knee.

Eddie Dartnell will again spearhead coach Buck Boucher's squad, Dartnell now is showing the form that he had during the regular season when he set a new Quebec scoring record. In 79 games he notched 128 points —62 goals and 66 assists.

Toronto coach Joe Primeau figures the Marlboros will come out fighting tonight. "We got a bad one out of our system, maybe we can stir up a little surprise for them tonight."

Only one change was reported in the Toronto camp. Primeau said he may use hard-hitting Alex Barilko on defence rather than Gordie Simpson.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Two and one make three. Two and two are four. Five and one are six. Six and five total 11. These figures have become fairly true to a Horse Sense player. So, he knows when his bids are correct.

An opening one bidder shows five tricks. Among other things, that is. Like four high cards among his tricks. Like two sure tricks among his high cards. He expects two tricks in partner.

Thereafter, each raise in the last partnership number by either uses up one more trick in his hand. One raise by the opener shows a sixth trick. One raise by responder uses a third trick.

We are talking about this deal:

NORTH
♠X Q J 10 9
♥A 8
♦D 8 4 3
♣Q 5

WEST
♠A 8 6
♥Q 8 5 2
♣7 4 3

EAST
♥K J 10 9 4 3
♦K Q 10
♣J 8 6 2

♦K J 6 5 2
♣A J 10 9 4

The first round of bids goes like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 S	2 H

South has a count of five tricks. Two of them are high cards. Two are shorts in hearts. One is the short in spades. With three tricks more than expected he has enough for his raise.

With two equal length bid-dable suits, first the higher rank. Over two hearts, south must say three diamonds. That shows two raises over the north one bid. It reveals four of his five tricks.

Three diamonds is not three hearts is the lowest legal bid that is permitted in this suit. Therefore, it is not a jump. A jump is a signal that the player has four tricks enough for a game.

A jump to four spades is a minor suit. South does not yet see 11. Why? North promised five. His other two should prove five. So, he must not jump. He is not yet able to show his fifth trick.

North has six tricks. South will discover this only when north makes a raise in number. Then he when south can show his fifth trick if necessary. Simple when you stop to think of it.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Binghamton, N.Y.—Billy Killroy, 137 1-4, Clifton, N.J., decisioned Pete Zaduk, 161, Toronto (10).

OSHAWA BOXERS WIN

Hamilton, April 21 — (CP) — Joe Blasucci of Niagara Falls, Ont., took only one minute and eight seconds of the second round to knock out Rudy Gaul of Kitchener in their bout in an amateur fight card Wednesday night. The 160-pound semi-final event had been expected to go the route.

Two other Kitchener fighters lost their bouts by decision. Ken Smith knocked Bill Pipher of Oshawa and Paul Hack was defeated by Don Pringle of Oshawa.

FACES 15 CHARGES

Toronto, April 20 — (CP) — Jack Richards, alias Dawson, of Hamilton, today faces 15 charges of stealing automobiles from different parts of the province. He was scheduled to appear in court today.

Richards, police said, fitted the stolen cars with new license plates and then sold them.

Schnozzola is being considered as Skelton's partner in "Yellow Cab Man." It would be the first film work in over a year for Durante, whose great talents haven't been fully exploited in recent films.

Charlie Out

Edgar Bergen gets his second dramatic part in "Captain China." The ventriloquist, who scored a success in "I Remember Mama," will play a supporting role in the film. He'll get a chance to do his famous Charlie McCarthy will stay home.

Talent director is probably to cast Cinderella to play opposite Bing Crosby. She's being named for "Mr. Music" after Schmitt in "Sunset Boulevard." Nancy's only other film was "Canadian Pacific."

Stanley Kosti is getting close to the record number of suspensions at Warners. His latest was for turning down a minor role in "Octopus and Miss Smith." He was suspended. That was no big figure up to the cost by the word: "Do you want to pay me $500 world?" he said. They were willing, and he took the suspension. He's now on the payroll working on "Death in the Doll House" on loan-out.

Walter Huston is limiting himself to one film a year, despite the many offers he gets from the film enemy Award. He has given up the idea of making any more films. You get a hit play, you have to stay in the theatre. If you don't get a hit, it's no fun."

Capsule Preview

"Home of the Brave" is strong drama on a theme new to the movies—the Negro problem. Its punch derives from several factors: Difficulty of the theme, unaffected acting by almost unknown cast, direct writing and direction.

The story of an army scout party in an island jungle is unpretentious, but its film is a rare emotional experience.

Up-Trend Due In United States

By NORMAN WALKER

Washington, April 21 — (AP) — The spring season's expected boom for the economy of the United States is overdue.

That became clear today from a new batch of government reports.

They showed fresh declines in non-farm employment, in factory weekly earnings and working hours, in business loans and in estimated farm receipts.

Commissioner Ewan Clague of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said that ordinarily these figures should have showed an up-trend at this time of the year.

Treasury Secretary Snyder sounded an optimistic note to a New York audience Wednesday night. He said latest United States employment figures actually are higher than a year ago and purchasing power still is high. He said the present economic picture lacks the elements that "brought on depression and depression cries in the past."

A third government expert, Leon H. Bean, said business can cause a depression by curtailing investment for industrial expansion. He said recent surveys indicate they plan to reduce it in the next five years to 40 per cent of the 1948 level.

Clague put these figures for March:

Non-farm employment — down 150,000 from February to 43,848,000. This is 750,000 below a year ago. Non-farm employment represents about three-fourths of American workers.

Factory earnings and working hours — weekly earnings down about 21 to $53.27 from February and down $1.56 from December's $55.03 peak. Working hours reduced from 39.4 weekly in February to 38.9 in March.

And the Agriculture Department estimated that farmers' cash receipts may be 10 per cent less this year than the 1948 record total.

As over-all employment the census bureau has reported a slight increase for March from February. Clague said this was due to a "substantial rise" in farm employment which more than offset the non-farm decline.

Don't Use Milk Bottle To Mix Solutions For Permanents

Hamilton, April 21 — (CP) — Women who prepare their own permanents at home must use milk bottles to mix the solutions, Dr. L. A. Clarke, Medical Officer of Health, warned yesterday. He said the solutions could be dangerous internally. The warning was issued after a health inspector found a bottle left for collection with a chemical encrusted on the bottom.

Brighteners

Brighton, Sussex, England (CP) — Mrs. Dorothy Rudwick, 34, likes to slide down hills on a tea tray.

Mrs. Rudwick, who lives at Rottingdean, said: "I've been doing it for years. I'm a bit of a tomboy."

She likes the 25 stairs to be swiftly carpeted—so she can travel down them on a wooden tray.

She engages in these exploits from 6 to 7 p.m. when she and her nine healthy children indulge in their nightly "crazy hour."

Says Mrs. Rudwick: "What's the good of having children if you can't be one of them?"

Besides, it's good for the family to let off steam just before bedtime.

Her eldest son, Bill, 17, says: "Mom's a topping skittles player. She taught us all how to knock the bowling pins over."

Says second son, Sam, 16: "Mom plays cowboys and Indians. She hides under the table and pretends to shoot us all."

Her husband, John, 43, approves the session but generally finds himself too tired to take part after a day's work.

Eschenlohe, Germany (Reuters) — Fifty acres of woodland burned out the other day near this small Bavarian town— all because of a set of circumstances involving the local fire brigade.

The fire chief refused to leave the rehearsal of a play in which he had the leading part; his deputy, whose job it is to just turned, wouldn't leave a card game in the fire house; and a local fitting station refused to give any gasoline to the leaderless brigade.

Moscow (AP)—Now it's the Russians.

Russian inventors today claimed credit for another in a long series of scientific "firsts."

The newspaper Evening Moscow said Russian inventors are largely responsible for sound movies. A Soviet scientist, the paper said, set up a sound movie system in Moscow in 1926, before any others operated in the world.

The first talking picture in the United States was issued in 1927.

Chicken Born With Four Legs

A chicken with four legs was the feathered freak which Mrs. George Clarke, Hillcrest, local suburb, received this week from a city chick hatchery.

The two - day - old chick, a Rhode Island Red, appears normal in other respects and is just as lively as his mates. The extra set of feet and legs is attached to the chick's body just behind the regular pair. The chick has no control over the extra set of legs but it does use them to aid its support when standing.

Mrs. Clarke keeps chickens at her suburban home as a side line. The land about her home is unsuitable for a garden so the chickens are an alternative to the garden. She expects to raise about 250 chicks this season.

Canadian Unity Needs Continuing Statesmanship

Winnipeg, April 21 (CP)

Prime Minister St. Laurent told a gathering of 5,500 Wednesday night that Canada's unity did not come spontaneously but from conscious planning and patient building and he warned that it must always be "a great work of continuing statesmanship."

The prime minister declared we remain united only by constant and deliberate policy as we have built a United Canada, but we must strive constantly and consciously to maintain in the structure we have built."

Heading eastward, he moved into Winnipeg to climax his busiest day since he left Ottawa 12 days ago. He visited Rivers, Man., to have a brief look at probably the most important military training base in the country and Brandon, Man., where he told an audience of 700 that Canada does not have to defeat its Liberal government after 14 years of rule merely to get change.

There have been plenty of changes since 1935, he maintained, both in the cabinet itself and in the country it governs.

Witnessed Training

At the joint air training centre in Rivers, the Prime Minister saw the paratroops and airmen being trained in the regular program which will represent the main strength in Canada which will have to back her commitments under the Atlantic pact.

His evening address was mainly devoted to the subject of National unity and the role of leaders in building it.

Preceding addressing the Manitoba Education Association, the former Laval University lecturer and son of a school teacher said it is the teachers "who have been the real builders of our nation."

Further, they were the "master builders" who will continue to construct a Canada "which is a long way yet from the summit of its greatness."

He hoped it would never be the duty of teachers "to instil any particular brand of nationalism or any other ism" in the Canadian youth...

Of Canada itself, Mr. St. Laurent said: "Canada is no doubt we are a nation today...our nation was consciously planned and patiently built by men of vision and tolerance."

"If we are to remain a united nation, it as a nation, we are to be united for anything in the world, there must be give-and-take, understanding, tolerance, and a readiness to find solutions to our problems which satisfy the majority without exasperating the minority."

Drew Formally Observes Ties Of Kinship

St. John's, April 21 (CP)

George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, formally observed ties of kinship with Newfoundland Wednesday when he visited his grandchildren's graves at an ancient fishing village.

Mr. Drew, ending a strenuous two-day campaign visit to Canada's new province, received a gala welcome as Port De Grave settled in 1626 on the shore of Conception Bay, from which his grandmother emigrated to Canada as a girl. It is the oldest continuous settlement in Newfoundland.

With a band of supporters and newspaper men, Mr. Drew drove some 150 miles Wednesday. He stopped at Carbonear and Harbor Grace as well as Port De Grace. Flags and bunting fluttered in his honor at many villages and on his side homes.

He addressed meetings at Carbonear and Port De Grave, and on some occasions left his car to chat with fishermen, farmers, storekeepers, housewives and children on the street.

In his speeches the national leader reiterated statements made at meetings in St. John's Tuesday. He called on Newfoundlanders to send fast for provincial rights.

H. G. R. Mews, provincial leader of the party, said that at one time he and his supporters had considered the possibility of a Newfoundland Nationalist party but had discarded it in favor of a Canada-co-operation with the Canadian mainland.

Toronto Argos Will Import 5 U.S. Players

Toronto, April 21 (CP)—Toronto Argonauts, last all-Canadian club in senior football, will import its full quota of five United States players next season, Tommy Allison, president of the Interprovincial Union Club, announced yesterday.

"We will import two big ends, a triple-threat quarterback and two piddlers," Allison said. "We hope to get them from Cleveland Browns, champions of the All-America professional league."

The Argonaut president denied reports that his club had signed a working agreement with the Browns. Any dealings with the professional team would be "on a friendly basis only."

Argonauts slipped to third place in the eastern Big Four last season after winning the Grey Cup two years in a row with an all-Canadian lineup.

Allison said Joe Krol and Royal Copeland, backfield stars and two title-winning clubs, would be back next season. Running back Doug Fyzer, who left Argos for Toronto Beaches Intros in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, would also return to the Argos.

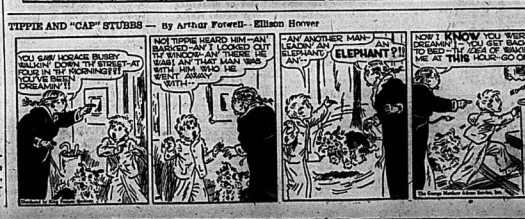
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

I was moving around the living room on my shummuck holding my hockey stick — strate up in front of me, and pop said, What the dooce are you suppose to be?

I'm the world's greatest imitator and I'm imitating a submarean with a periscope, I said, and pop said, Let me see you imitate a student studying his homework, if it's not too grate a strain on your imagination.

But William, maybe all that seeming nonsense is really a symptom of a real inclination, ma said, and pop said, Come again please?



I mean you hear so much talk nowadays about allowing childern to follow the lines of their nornal aptitudes, and if Benny was really intended by nature to be a naval man, we ought to cut off his natural inclination in the bud, ma said. In fact if we're really and truly modern, maybe we ort to have him put through a series of aptitude tests so he'll have a good idea what to specialize on and not grow up to be in a constant state of confusion, ma said, and pop said, By golies that may be an idea. If I'd had an aptitude test when I was his age, I mite be a starving genius now instead of an unsuccessful author.

Aw heck, pop, Jimminy Chrimmas, me, G rosebud, I said, and pop said, Is that the beginning of an objection?

Sure, pop, G wizzickers, I dont want to go to any old aptitude place, I said. They're libel to get me mixed up with somebody that wants to be a preacher or a school teecher or a nite watchman or something and I know what I want to be all rite, I said, and ma said, Well, if he knows already, so mutch the better. Maybe he was rite after all, maybe he'd like to be a naval man, she said. You were nertly rite, ma. I said. I mean I want to be the world's greatest imitator, I said, and she said, Oh, do your homework.

Puzzling Malady That Kills Geese Mystifies Officers

Ottawa, April 21 (CP)—Government wildlife officers are mystified by a puzzling malady that is striking again this year, taking the lives of scores of wild ducks in the Shirley's Bay area about 12 miles north of Ottawa.

Dr. W. E. Lewis, chief of the government's wildlife division, and a group of officers from the division, assisted by district game overseers, are inspecting the area.

The malady which takes the lives of about 200 wild geese or a total of 1,000 that stop over at the lake each spring has baffled the wildlife experts for the last ten years.

Reports of the geese dying of the malady first were made at the beginning of the second World War when heavy machine-gun fire from aircraft was widely used.

J. Young Connaught, resident engineer, believed the geese were dying of potassium poisoning since the waters of Shirley's Bay were used as bomb testing areas during the war.

But so far there has been no evidence of potassium poisoning in the bodies of the ducks recovered by government biologists.

Buttons, Badges Ready to Pin On PC Delegates

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — Buttons and badges — dark blue and light blue, green and white — will be pinned on everybody who has anything to do with the Ontario Progressive Conservative leadership convention.

Party officials said today the buttons are all ready for the convention to be held here April 25-27 to choose a new leader of the Progressive Conservative party in Ontario. There are deep blue badges with the signatures, secretaries and lesser party officials and for members of the press. There are big round four-inch buttons for the senior party officials with plastic windows in them to display their names printed in large letters.

At least two of the announced candidates for the leadership have ordered thousands of big blue-and-white buttons with the candidate's photograph to be worn by their supporters, urging all and sundry to climb on the band wagon.

Canadian Pacific Railway officials said the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association has virtually "taken over" the Royal York Hotel, scene of the convention, and had booked rooms in "every other hotel of any standing."

The association has booked large suites to be used as campaign headquarters by each of the four candidates who has declared himself — Provincial Treasurer Frost, Attorney-General Blackwell, Education Minister Porter and Kelso Roberts, a Toronto mining lawyer and former member of the legislature. Other members of the legislature have had blocks of rooms reserved for several weeks for their riding delegates. Other rooms have been set aside for the press with extra telephones, telegraph facilities, and 20 typewriters.

The convention was called last fall to choose a successor to George Drew as provincial leader. Mr. Drew resigned and won a federal seat in the Carleton by-election. Premier Kennedy, who agreed to assume the leadership on a temporary basis, has said he will not contest the leadership.

Former Guard And Prisoner Given Jail Terms

Sudbury, April 21 (CP) — Sequel to what was described as a "daring, but foolish, break" attempt March 13 at nearby Burwash prison farm, a former guard and a prisoner Wednesday were given prison terms.

The prisoner, Lewis J. Jones, was sentenced to two years in penitentiary on a charge of conspiring to escape from custody. The term will start upon expiration of a 15-month sentence he still has to serve on a Toronto forgery charge and on a charge of escaping from Burwash a year ago.

The former guard, Joseph Lapierre, 25, formerly of Cornwall, was sentenced to 12 months definite and six months indefinite for conspiring to permit a prisoner to escape.

Both men pleaded guilty.

The charges arose from the discovery March 18 of a parrip-made jail key, a file, and an imprint in a bar of soap of a key Lapierre carried as a guard.

Night of Drinking Given in Evidence In Assize Court

London, Ont., April 21 (CP) — Crown evidence of a night of drinking by two couples that ended in the highway death of one of the youths featured the opening of the Assize Court murder trial of Thomas Van Sickle, 22, of Sarnia.

He is alleged to have been driving a borrowed auto when it crashed into Melrose bridge in Middlesex County, killing Edward Thompson.

Also in the car were Mrs. Gloria Smith and Ruth Bedard who had met the two youths in a Sarnia beverage room.

Mrs. Smith said they drank beer first in a Sarnia hotel beverage room, then drove to Point Edward where they had more beer in another hotel. After that they went to a bootlegger's in the country where, Mrs. Smith estimated, Van Sickle drank "two or three bottles."

They took with them several bottles of beer from the bootlegger's and the next stop was a hotel in Watford where they had more beer. Miss Bedard said she did not know until later that Miss Bedard was under 21.

Mrs. Smith said she did not know how the crash occurred but testified that Van Sickle was driving "pretty fast."

DISCOVERED IN 1831

Chloroform was discovered by a German in 1831, but it was not until 1847 that it was used by a Scottish surgeon as an anaesthetic on human beings.

ADMIRALTY HEAD SAYS ATTACK DELIBERATE

THE WINNER

A peckitie party was held Wednesday night at the Toronto Men's Press Club to pick the smallest prize winner in the history of the monstrosity (pardon—winner) worn by its owner, Scott Feggans, and being admired by Betty Jane Pike. Start Dawn-to-Dusk Search For Missing R.C.A.F. Plane With Seven Personnel Aboard

Halifax, April 22 — (CP) — Seven planes took to the air today for start a dawn-to-dusk search for missing R.C.A.F. aircraft with seven aboard.

The plane was reported overdue yesterday on a flight from Ottawa's Rockcliffe Airport to Chatham, N.B.

The medimanized plane, a Beechcraft Expediter, took off at 8:40 a.m. EST on a routine communications flight to Chatham. It last was reported over Presque Isle, Me., at 10:42 a.m., and was due at Chatham at 1:30 p.m. an hour later.

In accordance with air force regulations, names of those aboard — six airmen and one R.A.F. civilian employee — were not immediately given.

Searchers planned to scour an area extending across central New Brunswick on a line from Presque Isle to Chatham, a distance of 130 miles. That area includes the densely-wooded Miramichi and St. John river valleys. The district is sparsely settled and hilly.

Operations may be hampered by bad weather. The Halifax weather office said skies over the area would be cloudy with scattered showers.

Air force officials in Ottawa said the crew may have been forced down somewhere in central New Brunswick. Evidence was that he knocked the woman down two or three times before she picked up a kitchen knife to protect herself. The husband died to death from the axe wounds in the neck and chest.

Wife is Convicted Of Manslaughter, Jury Asks Mercy

Toronto, April 22 — (CP) — Mrs. Grace Donald, 25, will be sentenced April 27 for manslaughter in the paring-knife stabbing of her 27-year-old husband.

A jury reduced the charge against her from murder to manslaughter and handed in the verdict yesterday. It recommended mercy for the slender, attractive mother of a two-year-old boy.

Mrs. McDonald heard the verdict with little show of emotion.

During the three-day trial, evidence was introduced that Mrs. McDonald was an epileptic and had been repeatedly beaten and maltreated by her husband, even while she was pregnant.

The quarrel which led to the husband's death last January was said to have arisen over his unwillingness to let his wife visit her sister in hospital. Evidence was that he knocked the woman down two or three times before she picked up a kitchen knife to protect herself. The husband bled to death from the axe wounds in the neck and chest.

Plenty of Books Is Solution Says Inspector

Toronto, April 22 (CP)—Plenty of comic books is the solution for getting children past the comic book stage in reading, Dr. Thomas Martin, Toronto school inspector, told the closing meeting of the Ontario Educational Association's 89th annual convention Thursday.

"Give them all the comics they want," he said, "and they will find out what sort of thing they concentrate on. That gives a clue to their interests and you can search for books on the same subjects but on a higher level."

Present teaching methods destroy a love of poetry in children, he said. "By the time the child is through with them 90 per cent have lost all interest in it."

The Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, whose meetings ended today, passed several resolutions including motions that the Minister of Education should hold no other cabinet post; that juggits be taught the relationship between soil conservation and human needs, and that entrance requirements for normal schools be raised.

GOVT. RUSHES AID NORTH TO FIGHT FLU EPIDEMIC

Fifteen Eskimos Die Within Past Week

Ottawa, April 22 (CP)— Health Department officials today rushed aid to the tiny Arctic Circle community of Cambridge Bay to combat a fatal influenza epidemic which has swept through the native population, killing 15 Eskimos in the last week.

Officials fear the disease which struck suddenly about a week ago, may be dangerous to the whole population as well.

Dr. F. P. Negler, an outstanding virologist who recently joined the departments hygiene laboratories, was scheduled to take the next available RCAF plane to the striken area, about 175 miles inside the Arctic Circle, 1,100 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Disclosure of the epidemic was made by Dr. P. E. Moore, head of the Health Department's Indians services, yesterday at a meeting of the Northwest Territories Council, which administers affairs of the territories.

Dr. Moore revealed that the department doctor from Aklavik, Dr. J. C. Callaghan, who has been making an X-ray survey of a wire area, has been flown to Cambridge Bay. He had set up an emergency hospital at which 10 Eskimos were being treated.

Dr. Callaghan made an urgent SOS request for more help, particularly drugs and nurses.

No Whites Afflicted

Scheduled to leave Edmonton today was Dr. J. P. Harvey, who specializes in tuberculosis, tuberculoses and a supply of antibiotics and sulfa drugs. Another doctor will follow as soon as possible.

Dr. Moore said 15 deaths have been reported afflicted. The RCAF station comprises about 30 persons.

However, Dr. Moore described the disease as "a rapidly fatal type of influenza," and said that if it proved to be of a type similar to that which swept the country after the First World War there was "cause for alarm."

Meanwhile a plane carrying a doctor, two nurses and a dispenser, equipped with serum and other medical supplies, is on the way to bring help to the affected area.

Although only about 25 Eskimos lived at Cambridge Bay permanently, it is believed there may be about 300 more in the surrounding area who come to the trading post for supplies. There is no medical supplies, as one of these might be affected.

Hole in Road, Speed Blained by Inquest

Toronto, April 22. (CP)—A hole in the road and excessive speed of an automobile in which she was riding were blamed for injuries that might be a mystery for the death of Mrs. Elsie Lavinia Smith of nearby Islington.

The automobile, driven by Mrs. Hutchens' husband, skidded out of control and crashed into a telephone pole with the left seven tons of cement last Oct. 1.

Prosecution of Religious Leaders Plot to Seize Churches, Says France

By NORMAN ALTSTEDSTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y., April 22. (CP)—France today said the prosecution of church leaders in Communist countries of Europe was a plan to seize control of the churches and use them for communist purposes.

Jacques Fouchet, French delegate, spoke before the special 58-member political committee of the United Nations General Assembly, which Communist Chauvel said, started out by trying to destroy religion, but "now are trying to use it and to bring for that. It purpose the churches under their control."

Poland's Jan Drohojowski earlier denied he was attempting to filibuster.

"If there is a preconceived decision here let us vote and go home," he said. "I did not intend to filibuster like a southern senator."

The committee was expected to approve protests being sent by Britain and the United States against the trials in Hungary and Bulgaria had violated the human-rights guarantees of the peace treaties.

Strong support was lined up behind a Bolivian proposal to keep the question of the trials of church leaders in those countries before the General Assembly.

The plan would directly direct U.N. action while Britain and the United States are restricted through procedures provided under the peace treaties.

Hungary and Bulgaria have rejected British and United States protests that the human-rights clauses of the treaties were violated in the trials of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, primate of Hungary, and 28 Protestant church leaders in Bulgaria.

Canada, Australia and New Zealand have associated themselves with the protests.

Canada's 25,000-Man Coal Industry in For Good Times Says Govt.

Ottawa, April 22 — (CP) — Federal authorities say the outlook is good for Canada's coal industry. These officials say they can see no cause for gloom in the 25,000-man industry.

To back up this view, they point to a near-record output and consumption last year, followed by an even heavier rate of production in the first quarter of 1949.

And the government's Dominion Coal Board is working to expand markets and co-operating with operators in measures to protect the widespread colliery business against the day when markets may tighten up.

Board chairman W. K. Dreaper says that day is not in prospect, yet, despite western anxiety over the possible encroachment of the Dominion's expanded oil production on coal markets.

At present, the Canadian Nationals are using oil burners in the mountain region, pushing the diesel yard engines and planning to convert all its Prince Edward Island line to oil use.

Despite these inroads, all railroad consumption was still slightly up from the year before.

For the last year, the total output from Canadian coal mines was 18,854,000 tons. Consumption was roughly the same.

This was exceeded only by the peak 1942 figure of 18,885,000 tons, which was boosted to that figure by the needs of war and with the help of production subsidies.

It also was more than 3,500,000 tons above 1947, though the margin there was caused by a four-months strike of western mines in 1947.

Output is down slightly in Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan, but a big jump in Alberta production has lifted the three provincials figure from 4,210,671 to 4,502,000 tons. In this, Alberta showed a rise from 1,572,482 to 2,302,000 tons.

Meanwhile, the industry is pushing ahead strengthen its present position, and protect itself in the future, by taking steps to turn out a better product and extending coal-mine mechanization to cut production costs.

At the same time, the board is conducting a fresh study of transportation system — with $4,500,000 to spend this year — aimed at keeping the Maritimes and western coal in market areas at competitive prices.

C.S.U. CLAIMS FIRST VICTORY IN LONG STRIKE

Negotiate Agreement With Ship Operators on Canada-British West Coast

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) claimed its first major victory of the deep-sea shipping strike today following an agreement reached Thursday night with the allegedly Communist-led union which has been paralyzing the Canadian west coast.

In Montreal, Harry Davis, union president, termed the development "the beginning of the end for gangsterism" and declared, "by stay to bring help to the affected area.

The agreement was disclosed, but it forestalled a threatened strike that would have tied up 19 Vancouver-owned freighters employing 600 crew workers.

Davis said that the contract contained identical working conditions sought by the C.S.U. and previously rejected by operators on the east coast when the C.S.U. called the strike 22 days ago when shipowners signed an agreement with the rival Seafarers International Union (A.F.L.).

Other developments yesterday found 31 crew members of two Canadian ships in the hands of Cuban immigration officials for questioning and a report of a court case appearance in Halifax of Henry Pilgrim, a C.S.U. man, for preliminary hearing on a charge of attempted murder.

Twenty-five C.S.U. members of the Canadian Victor surrendered to Cuban navy forces when they were fired into the air. They were removed Wednesday night from the freighter, anchored at Cayo Frances, 16 miles outside Caibarien.

Arms Taken From Train

The other 16 men under detention in Cuba were from the Canadian freighter Montreal Pioneer.

In Halifax, R.C.M.P. produced in court a charge against Thomas National Railways" containing "explosives, ammunition, explosive pistol and ammunition taken from the freighter Sunwhig that night Pilgrim and several other S.I.U. men were arrested.

Pilgrim is alleged to have fired at Hugh Felix of Halifax from the deck of the Sunwhig during a fight in the harbor April 8. The hearing was adjourned to May 2.

Also in Halifax, John Baldwin, 33, of Vancouver, a C.S.U. member, was committed for trial on a charge of assaulting an officer of the freighter Empress April 6. Twelve officers boarded the strike-bound freighter Mount Sandra under police escort while C.S.U. pickets looked on.

In Georgetown, British Guiana, Charles Campbell of the C.S.U. had sentence postponed on conviction of disobeying the captain, a charge also pending against 36 others of the freighter Sunwhig's crew.

MYSTERY, MURDER SURROUND DEATH OF OPERA STAR

John Garris of Metropolitan Opera Found Dead in Alley in Georgia

Atlanta, April 22 — (AP) — There were neither encores nor applause today for the mysterious end of tragedy ever portrayed by the Metropolitan Opera singer, John Garris.

Garris was last seen, the 35-year-old native of Germany, would not have heard them. He lay slain, in a deserted alley within sight of the opera house he had come sought to provide the supporting cast for his fatal last role.

Garris was shot to death Wednesday night. His body was found lying in a dank alley early yesterday.

The police, hardened to hoodlum killings, saw a touch of artistry in the death of the handsome opera tenor. His protagonist stirred at his heart. It was not a gangster's crude or random shot.

A steel-jacketed bullet had pierced his heart.

Nor was it a crime for money-grabbing thieves. Garris with $20 in it was near the body. A costly wrist watch was on his arm.

Police found no fantastic and theatrical touches. Garris was found sprawled where a Negro porter, Love Thomas, on his way to work, found the singer's body.

Garris was unpierced by a bullet, and his hat were found atop a garbage can three blocks away.

En Route to Memphis

The rest of the Metropolitan Opera company, after three nights in Atlanta, were en route by train for Memphis, Tenn., when the tragedy came to light. questioned the members briefly, then resumed their trip for last night Memphis appearance. in "Louis Di Lammermoor."

Garris' parents circulated backstage. They watched, but disclosed nothing.

This much they knew:

Garris took his luggage to the Atlanta station about midnight to entrain with the others. The baggage was found, not have until after 4 a. m. and police believe the singer left it there by then.

Miss Cathy Sanger, a member of the ballet, said she saw Garris "about midnight" just after midnight. He told her that he was going to get something to eat.

Detectives said the singer was apparently shot to death in an automobile in the gloomy, disshelled warehouse district and the body later laid out in the alley. The time was put at about 3 a. m., leaving the tenor's last hour and a half unaccounted for.

COMMONWEALTH STATESMEN BEGIN FULL DISCUSSIONS

Will Especially Take Over Status of India

London, April 22 — (CP) — Hope mounted today that India, the problem child of the Commonwealth, would be able to assume Republican status and still remain within the Commonwealth family of nations.

Canadian delegates were understood to be definitely optimistic about the outcome of the eight-country conference which formally opened today.

Prime Ministers Attlee and Nehru met with the object of "putting something in writing" as a basis for resumption of Wednesday talks Monday. It is expected they will prepare a paper which other delegates can study during the weekend. The paper will contain a broad outline of points discussed earlier today at 10 Downing Street.

The Commonwealth statesmen came here especially to discuss the future status of the Dominion of India, which has decided to become a republic but does not want to cut all her Commonwealth ties.

Informants who include Indian officials forecast the Commonwealth talks will end with two broad results:

1. A way will be found for a Republic of India to remain in association with the Commonwealth.

2. A Commonwealth declaration of common interests, common purposes and common recognition of the Crown as a unifying factor in their relationships will be made.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, sat in on the meeting at Downing Street.

The Financial Times said "this is not an indication that financial or economic questions will be discussed."

Nehru Outlines Ideas

Yesterday Pandit Nehru (India's Prime Minister) outlined to the Commonwealth Prime Ministers on how India can become a republic and still stay in the Commonwealth.

Several informants in touch with the Indian situation said prospects for solving the problem were "bright."

This is their appraisal of the situation:

India has been given a free hand by his government to negotiate with Commonwealth Republican India's membership in the Commonwealth. Informants say that India must not be involved in any set-up which would automatically commit her to declaring war.

India's proposed new constitution would vest sovereignty in the people who have the form of government a republic under a president. It would remove the King as the country's ruling symbol.

Ireland, though, is expected to be ready to acknowledge—possibly in the constitution—also the role of the Crown as the symbol of Commonwealth unity.

Meanwhile, London newspapers continue to devote considerable editorial space to the Commonwealth talks.

The Times remarks that "the memory of achievement and adaptability (displayed in previous Inter-Dominion negotiations) relieves the latest Commonwealth difficulty of any sense of tension or dramatic crisis."

New Drug Brings Safe Relief From Dropsy, Scientists State

Detroit, April 22 — (AP) — A combination of two drugs safe and effective relief from dropsy, three New York scientists reported in Washington.

The drugs are named chlomerin. They are mercury swelling diuretics, legs or ankles, sometimes comes with heart and kidney disease and also pregnancy and some other conditions.

Thiomalin can be injected under the skin to provide longer-lasting action than by injection into the blood, said Drs. Robert C. Batterman, David Ustenman and Arthur C. Degraff of the New York University College of Medicine.

Crippled Sloop Fired on Again in Escape Effort

London, April 23. (AP)—The First Lord of the Admiralty today described as "deliberate" the gunfire, was fired on again today as she tried to sail up the Yangtze River.

The Amethyst has been trapped by the communist force's guns for the last three days. Three other Royal Navy ships have been blasted by the communist guns.

There was no immediate word of casualties from the shelling of the Amethyst late today.

The vessel was reported out of control, drifting with the tide, unable to proceed down the river because of threatening shore batteries on the 180-mile course to Shanghai. Earlier today there was some indication the sloop might try for a night escape.

Fire on Attackers

Three other British men-of-war, ordered to go to the Amethyst's relief lay at Shanghai wharves, crippled by communist dock-fire, all four had fired back on their attackers.

British naval authorities tonight counted 44 dead as a result of the series of artillery attacks. Two of the wounded, including the captain of the Amethyst, were said to have died of their wounds. An estimated 53 were injured but the toll may be higher. It was not known how many communist casualties resulted from British naval fire.

The United States naval hospital ship Repose arrived at Shanghai from the American base at Tsingtao and its facilities were offered to the Royal Navy.

An attempt to take off additional casualties from the Amethyst may be made by an R.A.F. flying boat.

Landed Near Sloop

The flying boat managed to land near the Amethyst late yesterday and delivered medical supplies aboard, and flew back to Shanghai with one of the sloop's officers.

(A report from Singapore said Admiralties would be fired on by communist forces when it tried to land today to transfer supplies to the Amethyst.

It was during attempts to reach the Amethyst that the 2,000-ton cruiser London, the destroyer Consort and the sloop Black Swan were hit by communist artillery on the Yangtze's north bank.

Here is the best estimate now of the casualties: London, 19 dead, 23 wounded; Amethyst, 17 dead, 40 wounded; Consort, 16 dead, 4 wounded; Black Swan, five wounded.

Three boys were seen around the store apparently interested in the mitt and it is believed that these lads were responsible for the disappearance of the mitt.

Jack Bennett New President Major A Loop

Jack Bennett of the Northern Electric Bowling League was elected president of the Major A bowling league at the annual dinner meeting held at the Club Cedars last night. Other officers for the 1949 season as elected are vice president Les Lennox; secretary Evan Barlow and treasurer Tommy Caton. Cecil Hardwick was reappointed public relations officer.

President Bennett succeeds former geezy Bill Fraser, who acted as chairman at the get-together. Members of the press and radio were special guests.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of the league trophy and in a brief address expressed his appreciation of the fine co-operation given me by members of the team. I never had an easier job in 25 years of bowling experience, than managing this fine team, he said.

Members of the championship team include bowlers Bill Legault, Les Lennox, Harry Bilney, Evan Barlow, Joe Kirkwood and Jack Bennett.

Indicative of the fine performances of individual members of teams of the league were the records as presented to the gathering. The league's high single was one hundred and four by Les Lennox of the Belleville Golf team was awarded first prize for the high three string with a mark of 925, Art, Stewart and Jack Callaghan were presented with duplicate prizes for high single with scores of 400.

Average Mugh Higher

The average of the league was ten pins over the mark set last year.

Prize monies were presented to the different members of the league in the order of finishing. York Trailers, Central Cigar, with top money, Belleville Golf was second and then followed CNR, Lawn Bowlers, Central Cigar, Electronics, Northern Electric and Callaghan's Ice.

Albert College Enters Finals of Cage Tourney

Albert College, for the past two years Ottawa and District "C" class in the big basketball tournament at Queen's, are well on their way to taking the title in the higher "B" class, in which they are this year entered.

In the opening day play, Albert College, playing a top-up ball, coasted past Perth C. I. in the first game by a score of 45 to 12. In a second game Pembroke were the victims, to a tune of 40 to 25, and then last evening, Albert clashed with the tournament favorites, Nepean C. I. of Ottawa, and after a fast game came out on top to the tune of 33 to 16. Merkley and Taugher, playing their last basketball for the College before graduation in June, starred for Albertonfanding games, with Keith Buchanan, Bruce Gilmore and Owen Yates also playing strong games. In the Perth game every player on the team got a chance to get to the total of points compiled. Nepean C. I. boasts a high scoring forward the loser's bracket against Pembroke, Regiopolis College from Smiths Falls C. I. to make the final, where they will again tangle with Albert. The championship nine-point lead from the first game.

Nearly Pulled Upset

Belleville C. I. playing in the "A" class nearly pulled the upset of the tournament when they took Nepean C. I. into overtime in the ground in a game that had the crowd continually on their feet. The Ottawa crew won the local boys lose out 27 to 26, after leading until the last few seconds. Peterboro C. I., the present COSSA champions made the final round of the "A" section by defeating Glebe C. I. and Niagara Falls C. I., Belleville C. I. have Tech of Ottawa and Brockville C. I. to overcome if they are to make the final and the hat way.

Napanee C. I., Ontario "B" junior champions are also well on their way to taking the "C" class title vacated by Albert College. They reached the finals by victories over Picton C. I., 47-9, Kemptville H. S. 25-13 and Prescott H. S. 33-15. All finals will be played tonight.

Budgetary Control Subject of Talk

The regular monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants was held at the Belleville Sirloin Club.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. George Brooks, C.A., Controller of the Canada Wire and Cable Corporation of Canada, and the subject of his talk was "Budgetary Control" which was of particular interest to the many present. "Budgetary control," said Mr. Brooks, "gives management and department heads a foresight in the trends of a business, a chart which has control of certain expenses and income of the operation of the business, enabling it be tool room, production department, sales department."

Five Major Steps

Mr. Brooks stipulated the five major steps in setting up a satisfactory budgetary control. They are the blueprint of the business, a comparison of historical facts, the analysis of the resulting comparison, the projection of comparison trends and the correlation of projection with the blueprint.

Mr. Brooks supported his talk with an actual operating budget compiled from the records of a theoretical X Y Z Company Limited of which a copy of the talk was given to each member and guest. This proved to be the answer to many questions and answers following his talk.

Carl Casey, chairman, formally welcomed the guests of the Chapter and commended the able arrangements in acquiring the new meeting quarters. Also present was Mr. Vanner, program chairman. The evening concluded with election of the May meeting further fostered by comments on nomination methods submitted by the Chapter.

After discussion it was moved that the method of nomination be left in the hands of the present directors. Mention was also made of the coming provincial meeting in Ottawa in May. Members were advised to notify the chairman of their intentions to attend this meeting before the end of next week.

Among the guests present were Fred Bilder of Deseronto-Warners; Frank Lang of Stephens-Adamson A. Rose B. Hamilton Carbide; Carters, Tom Chappelle, Deseronto; Jim Thompson of Thom Bros. and Walter Breach of the Belleville-Sargent Company.

Prohibit Distribution Propaganda Leaflets On School Grounds

Toronto, April 22 (CP)—From now on, distribution of propaganda leaflets on Toronto school grounds is forbidden.

Board of Education Thursday night added "literature and printed matter" to the list of articles which may not be handed out on school property.

The move was intended to prevent a recurrence of an incident at Central Technical School two weeks ago when pamphlets denouncing the Atlantic Pact were handed out. Two Communist trustees voted against the board action.

Illegal Fishing In Quinte District Shows Increase

Illegal fishing activities this year along the north shore of Lake Ontario and in the Bay of Quinte constantly exceeded former years, according to officials of the Quinte district of the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed

As a result conservation officers found it necessary to devote more and their time to checking infractions of the regulations with at least fifty prosecutions being made in one week in one particular area. In many cases illegal gear equipment was also seized.

Exceptionally favorable weather conditions for the pickerel during the spawning season concentrated the fish in the shoals in a relatively short time, leading to the mistaken impression the pickerel were more numerous Unfortunately appeals for the protection of pickerel during the spawning season had little effect.

As result of illegal fishing activities, some offenders face heavy penalties.

With the smelt run completed, the department reports one of the largest catches ever recorded in the Eastern Lake Ontario district. The average size of the sports, exceeded any previous season.

ANAF Veterans Hold Enjoyable Social Evening

Over two hundred members and guests of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada branch enjoyed a social evening at the Front Street branch on Tuesday night.

An excellent program was arranged by entertainment committee chairman "Hank" Smith. A floor-show presented supplied sparkling rhythms for the dancing. Cards, contests and other entertainment features helped to enjoyable evening.

Refreshments were served by the ladies' auxiliary at midnight. Lots of excitement was created when a draw for a handsome tray was held. Mrs. Hewson, wife of branch secretary Dick Hewson, was the winner, but generously turned back the prize for another draw to raise additional funds.

President Bill Ford extended official welcome to members and their guests. This was one of the most enjoyable social functions staged by the club.

OBITUARY

ARTHUR A. McCASKIE

(Calgary Herald, April 8)

The following obituary which appeared in a recent issue of a Calgary paper refers to a former resident of this city, Arthur A. McCaskie. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McCaskie, who resided on Herchimer Avenue. As a boy he attended the Kingston Road School, Trinity Church Sunday-school, 166 Station Street, is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cashie.

Arthur, stationmaster of the C.P.R. station in Calgary, Arthur Alexander McCaskie, died at his home, 3.30 p.m., April 5th, after a short illness.

Mr. McCaskie's career with the railway began in 1910 when he became a telegraph messenger. After the First Great War, he returned the C.P.R. as a checker in the Alyth yards. During his 22 years there he worked as train clerk, crew clerk, and finally night chief clerk. He was made night station master for the city in January 1943, stationmaster.

Mr. McCaskie was born in Belleville, Ont., and moved to Calgary with his family. He served overseas in the First Great War with the 50th Battalion, Canadian United church, the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Calgary Lebanon Lodge, A.F. and A.M., the Al Azhr Shrine and the Scottish Rite.

Surviving are his widow Eleanor; a daughter, Mrs. Hazel Hanson; three brothers, John of Calgary; Alexander of Vancouver; and Harold of Vancouver; two sisters, Mrs. J. Murphy of Los Angeles, Mrs. J. Murphy of Los Angeles, Mrs. J. Hamilton of Belleville.

MRS. GERTRUDE CALL

Mrs. Gertrude Call, widow of Byron Call, died at her home this morning at home, 193 George Street. She was in failing health for some time.

Born in Belleville, the late Mrs. Call was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Davis. Prior to coming to this city to reside she lived in Toronto and Deseronto. She was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

She was the last of her family. Her sister Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, whose husband was Registrar for the County of Hastings and resided here for many years, died some time ago.

Resting at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street, the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. CHARLOTTE ROLLINS

(Trenton)

Mrs. Charlotte Rollins, widow of Hulet Rollins, died at her home at Ivanhoe, early Friday morning after a long illness of health since last July.

The late Mrs. Rollins, who was in her 82rd year, was born in Belleville, Ontario, and was a daughter of the late Robert Fleming and his wife the late Elizabeth Sharpe. Her life was passed in the district where she was born and throughout her long and useful life she held a high place in the esteem of all who knew her and she was a friend to many when friendship was sorely needed. In early days Mrs. Rollins was a faithful member of the Methodist church in West Huntingdon and when age and health permitted she took an active part in the activities of the women's organizations in connection with the congregation. She was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society and for over forty years she prepared the elements for the service of the Holy Communion. She was also a life member of the Women's Institute. In the community she will be much missed and will long be remembered with affection by those near to her.

Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs Albert (Pearl) Cook, Harold; Mrs. William (Jessie) Frouch, Crookston; Mrs. Don (Edna) Campbell, Stirling and Mrs. Howard Willis Cook, Stirling; three sons, ex Mayor Harry Rollins, Belleville; Clarence Rollins, Stirling and Cecil Rollins, Ivanhoe; three sisters, Mrs. Willis Robbert, Thomasburg; Mrs. Edward Blakely, Thomasburg and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, Stirling; one brother, Richard Fleming, Crookston, also thirteen grandchildren.

A daughter, Mrs. G. (Annie) Sunnells, Harold, died some years ago and a son, Fleming Rollins, lost his life at Vimy in 1917. Her husband died eleven years ago.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE MRS. JOHN GAWLEY (Eldorado)

Eldorado, April 22 (Special)—The funeral of Mrs. John Gawley was held on Tuesday afternoon, from her late residence Eldorado to Zion United Church, where service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wright of the Tweed Church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Young of Marmora United Church. A large number of friends and neighbors gathered to show their last respects to one who was a favorite with young and old. The beautiful floral tributes showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Interment took place in Zion cemetery.

The pall bearers were C. M. McCann, C. D. McCann, Alex Johnson, Wm. Irwin, Leonard and Gerald Blackburn.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 23 (CP) — Industrials slipped off steadily lower in dull trading here today. Base metals also continued yesterday's under trend while profit-taking appeared to have run out in golds as the group tightened. Western oils were down on small losses.

Volume for the first three hours was 329,000 shares, about 150,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

A wide list of industrial stocks dipped fractions or action slowed from yesterday. Utilities and steels left the downward trend while papers tended to hold at yesterday's closing.

Golds opened slowly under slight pressure but reamed their interrupted advance towards midsession.

The decline in base metals yesterday that carried the group to the lowest price level in a year, appeared to have run out. Stocks tended to hold in mixed activity although Consolidator and Sherritt Gordon touched new lows.

$100,000 Fine Imposed on Montreal Man

Montreal, April 22 — (CP) — Albert Sanoucry, wealthy textile merchant, today was sentenced to $100,000 in fines or 2½ years in prison on five charges involving $1,000,000 in tax evasion by himself and his company.

Ten other charges of income-tax evasion brought by the Department of National Revenue after more than two years of investigation, were withdrawn by the prosecution.

Through counsel a month ago Sanoucry pleaded guilty to the five charges.

Two of the five charges were laid against Albert Sanoucry, Ltd., and the others against Sanoucry personally.

Sanoucry, married and father of three children, was fined $60,000 on one income-tax evasion, with an alternative of 18 months in jail.

On two other similar charges he was fined $10,000 each, or six months in jail on each count.

The remaining two charges, involving violations of the Excess-Profits Tax Act, were against the company. On these Judge Fontaine assessed a fine of $5,000 each.

Has 60 Days to Pay

Sanoucry has 60 days to pay the fines and personal convictions and the company was allowed 15 days to pay the total of $10,000 it was fined.

It is believed in Montreal that the fines constituted a record in Canada for tax evasion.

Sanoucry's affairs came into the news following the provincial election in December, 1947, of a safety box cache.

Investigation of stolen bonds, Royal Canadian Mounted Police agents upon more than $1,000,000 in Canadian and United States securities and currency.

Sanoucry, soon afterward, was fined $1,500 for failure to declare, under foreign exchange regulations, possession of the similar securities still further cache.

Bonds and currency were seized by the government.

HAD LENGTHY TALK

Winnipeg, April 22 (CP) — A veteran of the First World War declined Thursday to shake hands with Prime Minister St. Laurent while the Liberal party chieftain was visiting Lodge Veterans' Hospital. "What's the beef?" questioned the prime minister. "Everything," replied the veteran, J. J. Lawrie, "I have been in here five years and they have done nothing for me. They only feed me aspirins." Mr. St. Laurent then had a lengthy talk with the veteran.

His province extended from the First Lakes to the Rocky Mountains and north to the shores of the Arctic.—(CP Photo).

Congregational and Reformed Churches In U.S. to Merge

Cleveland, April 22 — (AP) — The General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church has given final approval to a merger with the Congregational Christian Churches.

The action makes possible creation, probably early in 1950, of a new United Church of Christ as the seventh largest Protestant denomination in the United States.

The combined denominations have a membership of about 1,900,000.

Before adjourning, they passed a resolution inviting other Protestant denominations to help make the new church a means of achieving still further unity.

Between now and mid-June, the 34 evangelical and reformed synods will vote on the union.

After the synods have acted the way will be clear for each denomination to name 350 delegates to attend a general synod of the new United Church of Christ. At that meeting the merger will be consummated.

ALDERMAN EXPELLED

Toronto, April 22 (CP)—Alderman Charles Sims has been expelled from the Canadian Legion because he is a "confessed Communist, it was announced Thursday. A member since 1944, Sims was notified of his expulsion from the Legion's Provincial Command in a letter dated April 18.

BCI Cadets Enjoy Outing

Under the supervision of Capt. A. Wetmore, and Captain Hyslop, administration and training officers of the 9th Anti-Tank Regt. RCA and the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment respectively, forty Belleville Collegiate Institute cadets held a field day near Demorsville on Wednesday.

The cadets were given instruction in the operation of the six-pounder anti-tank guns, three inch mortars and Bren gun carriers, as well as other phases of military training.

The cadets enjoyed hot dogs and hamburgers during the outing. Satisfaction of the adaptability and interest of the cadets was expressed by the supervising officers and instructors.

POLICE BLOTTER

City magistrate's court was of brief duration today as but two drunks and an equal number of juvenile cases were listed for disposal by Magistrate T.Y. Wills.

Convictions were obtained on both I.J. charges while the juvenile cases were laid over for further hearing.

One of the latter cases listed involved a charge against a 16-year-old boy who is accused of throwing a stone through the window of a C.N.R. train during the latter part of March.

Defence Counsel Rod. McCulloch entered a plea of not guilty on behalf of his client and the case was charged but one week to give the Crown an opportunity to bring witnesses, one of whom is the train conductor who will be brought from Smiths Falls.

The other juvenile case was an assault charge against a 14-year-old boy who was accused of assaulting a 15-year-old. When the accused pleaded not guilty the case was enlarged to allow the police opportunity of producing the girl as a witness.

TO RULE ON PROTEST

Toronto, April 22 — (CP) —A Gananoque protest against the win of Doug Gallinger, expelled from the National Hockey League, as coach of Fort Colborne in the Ontario Intermediate A hockey final will be ruled on at 8 p.m. E.D.S.T. meeting tonight, officials said.

Fort Colborne defeated Gananoque in the provincial finals but have not been declared champions pending the result of the protest.

INDIAN CRICKETER DIES

Bombay, India — (CP) — The well-known Indian cricketer, D. D. Hindlekar, died here recently. He toured England with the Indian team both in 1936 and 1946. His highest score of 135 was in 1936.

Drew Urges New Facilities For Maritimes

Sydney, N. S., April 23 — (CP) — Construction of "completely new lines" to match the Canso bridges project connecting Industrial Cape Breton with the mainland of Canada was advocated here Thursday night by George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, speaking at a party rally as he continued his brief Maritime tour.

He listed two recommendations of a 1944 parliamentary committee on maritime transportation developments:

1. Improvements designed to make communications between Prince Edward Island and the mainland constant, reliable and adequate.

2. Realigning and double-tracking of the Canadian National Railways from Sydney to points in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

On behalf of the Progressive Conservative party," Mr. Drew declared amid applause from the audience of 1,000, "I undertake to act upon these recommendations when we are called upon to form a government."

He also spoke of the need for federal aid in providing power and industrial expansion. He said he intended extending the plan he had successfully used in Ontario in encouraging British industries and workers to establish in that province to broader national fields now that he had assumed wider responsibilities.

In a Dominion network radio broadcast he launched a campaign to enlist party supporters.

"I shouldn't have said That," by the first pack; "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by the second pack; "A Stuttering Situation," by the 8th pack; "Lack of Silverware" by the 4th troop; "Fisherman's Luck" by the second pack; "Jewels-in-a" by the 4th pack; "St. George and the Dragon," by the 1st troop.

150 Scout, Cub Leaders Meet In Conference

On Wednesday a Scout conference was held in this city and approximately 150 Scout and Cub leaders plus Provincial Scout officials were in attendance.

The afternoon session were held at St. Thomas' Parish Hall. The chairman of the sessions, Alderman A. Duffy, officially opened the conference by welcoming out-of-town guests.

Mr. F. C. Irwin, executive commissioner for Ontario, also added a word of welcome on behalf of the Provincial Scout Executive. The various sessions were chaired by the following officials: Cub sessions, Mrs. C. Stoneburg of Wellington; Scout sessions, Mr. M. Soider of Wellington; Group Committee and Adult Association sessions, Mr. F. C. Irwin, Executive Commissioner for Ontario; Ladies Auxiliary sessions, Mrs. Standing, assistant Provincial Commissioner for Ladies Auxiliary.

A dinner was held at the Tabernacle United Church with chairman being A. Simpson, president of the Belleville local Scout Association. Guest speaker was Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College. Dr. Howard spoke on "Scout Leadership."

Following the dinner a Scout and Cub camp fire was held. King Scout Leo Marcus was master of ceremonies. Field Commissioner Jackson lead the sing-song and District Bob Gibson was the comedian.

The following plays were enacted by the various packs and troops.

EIGHT CARRIED OUT

Toronto, April 22 — (CP) — Eight persons including an eight-month-old baby were carried from a smoke-filled west-end Toronto home today as fire gutted the basement and first floor of the three-storey house.

Firemen and a tenant aided in the evacuation. No one was injured. Firemen said the damage would exceed $3,000.

FOR ENGLAND AND ST. GEORGE

St. George's Day, April 23rd, will find observances in many parts of the earth, wherever there are Englishmen and their fellow Britons, the Irish and the Scotch, and wherever the influence of English and British civilization has gone. While it is associated the appealing story of many centuries of progress step by step to the fullest light of liberty, from the earliest ages to the present time. The people of the light little island and their story form one of the glories of progress. The English people have impressed the dwellers of the farthest ends of the earth with their character and have shown mankind the course their development of liberty has taken down the years. Today England and the other branches of the British Isles can see the influence of their national spirit and their cherished sense of freedom at work in many lands, moulding the whole course of history and signifying in clear outline the march of progress in which Britain has been always in the vanguard of the peoples of the world. That it has been a benediction to mankind is universally acknowledged.

The glories of England and the English are seen in their deeds of valorous saint and in the nations whom she has influenced so deeply, that is in the nations of the British Commonwealth. She has been the ideal model of history and no history is so rich in memories and in evidence of the spirit of the people as is her national story. It is a revelation of the working instinctively of a national spirit in a way (that) has commanded the admiration of the silver sea). Here is the history of a people whose contributions to world progress have been acclaimed abroad without stint. Time and nature and the British people formed that ideal combination which gave the world the precious gift of the spirit of love of freedom and of liberty.

Today after many centuries her civilization still is the most natural development of all history. Britain is the mother of the free. Whatever liberty there is in the world and will be in the world has been and will be influenced by the concept of freedom that the Anglo-Saxons and the Welsh, the Scots and Irish have created. Britain's sense of liberty is the most natural. Her history is all-important and her influence has been a benediction to mankind. Witness her in her greatest mood, in the dark days of the Nazi plague, how she stood even alone, except for the nations of the Commonwealth, facing the tyrant and striking the blows that in time shook the foundations of Hitlerism to ruins. England because she has ever been true to herself has developed a logical and sane constitution representative of the spirit of the British peoples. For justice, fairness and justice the world can gaze on the British model of liberty and admire it for all time.

On the anniversary of St. George's Day Englishmen still exert the inspiration they exerted in the past. They have the perfect harmony of characteristics to make the motherland the champion of freedom, and the direct her influence for widening the bounds of freedom. One of the glories of history is the precious gift this land of England has given to the world. Her records proclaim her greatness among the powers for leadership and guidance and for staunch defence of the right.

BALANCE OF POWER

Signing of the Atlantic Pact, by which Britain, the United States, Canada, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, France and Norway pledge assistance to one another in the event of an attack by an aggressor, will provide the first effective check to the Soviet plan for conquering the world. That will do much to revive confidence and to re-establish faith — since the end of the war so close to extinction.

Once again there is a balance of power. The democratic nations can show a population and an armed strength almost equal to the known resources of the Russian war bloc. So long as this balance can be retained there will be peace in the world.

The maintenance of strong military forces will be a drain upon our democratic economies, but the costs of peace are never so high as the terrible costs of modern war. Behind the protection of the Atlantic fleet the democratic nations can set their minds and productive strengths to furthering the progress of mankind, says Canadian Chamber of Commerce News Letter.

THE HOME RE-MODELED

The other day their baby came and everything is changed.
The spare room for a tenant now has to be arranged.
The dresser drawers which empty were, are stocked with garments small,
And they've no room the coon they'll put new paper on the wall.
With something more attractive, picturing bunnies pink and white,
Since the moon's baby wakes he should be trimmed with colors bright.

The wife is now a mother and the husband is the dad,
They both have been promoted and for that are truly glad,
The grandparents are grandmore and other titles,

Mackenzie's Column:

Fighting it Out Only Clear Way To Reach Decision

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

We shall know soon how much striking power the Chinese communist armies possess, for their task of crossing the mighty Yangtze River — last formidable barrier between red China and the Nationalist south — would be Napoleonic if they encountered strong resistance.

This resumption of fighting gives us it is, will clarify the situation faster than would three drawn-out talk. The Nationalists now know that appeasement won't work with the communists.

Must Fight It Out

Peace could be achieved solely on communist terms. The only way to reach a clear-cut decision is by fighting.

If the Nationalists carry out the plans which they have been contemplating, we are witnessing the beginning of another stretch of deadlocked civil destruction. It is small comfort to note the bombardment of Canton will be only a further phase of the civil strife that has been going on intermittently since the Chinese revolution of 1911, which resulted in the overthrow of the Manchus and the establishment of the Republic.

Informed sources say that under the guidance of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek the Nationalists have been preparing to intensify their defensive efforts to meet the red invasion of central and south China. The Generalissimo's preliminaries have been more diction than fact. It was a big undertaking when we established a "peace front" in the capital to negotiate with the reds, and gave Chiang a chance to organize China south of the Yangtze for defence if peace talks failed.

Zones of Resistance

The Nationalists are said to have divided their whole territory into zones of resistance. This contemplates that opposition to the red invasion from the north will be made by stages.

Many observers in Chinese who have had instruction in the United States have been organizing this projected guerrilla warfare. Chiang is said to have been approaching his resources and is forging on making them go as far as possible.

So presumably the Generalissimo and his followers planned to undertake the job of defence—if this project of guerrilla warfare interests you. Otherwise they would seem to be abject surrender. Such a compromise peace we would take over all China.

And what if the defence failed? Well, at the worst the Generalissimo then will hop over to Formosa, the island lying just off the Chinese coast, and there establish a new government.

THE SERVICE FROM LATIN

The words czar and kaiser are both derived from the Latin caesar.

Temperance Fed. Gunning For Cocktail Bars

Toronto, April 22 (CP)— The Ontario Temperance Federation gave notice Thursday it is going gunning for cocktail bars this year.

At closing sessions of the Federation's 58th annual meeting, 175 delegates Thursday demanded a close-the-cocktail-bars campaign in the province's five biggest cities—Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor, London and Ottawa—where bars are permitted.

Delegates said the legislation introducing them specified that votes on the cocktail-bar question could be taken after a two-year trial period.

A storm of protest greeted a resolution commending the Ontario government for establishing a clinic for alcoholic research and treatment. The resolution was referred to the Board of Directors for action after a delegate said: "I'm not going to be content with the government for spending money to save the people they have already sent to death."

Rev. M. J. Allen of Peterborough was re-elected President of the Federation.

Strength for the Day

AN ANCIENT RECORD

If you want to enjoy a reading, be sure to include in your reading list some of the literary classics. Read and re-read over when we read only the books and magazines that are new and up-to-date. Certain books have persisted through the ages — giant mountain peaks rising out of the sea of the past. Hundreds of once very temporary literature have been submerged.

Right at the present time I am revealing Chaucer's Canterbury Tales. Written by him about 600 years ago by one of the greatest literary geniuses ever lived. They give us a vivid picture of the life of that day. Some of the stories are rough, others are supremely beautiful. Above everything else I am impressed by two facts: first, how little human nature changes over the centuries; and second, how when we read people admire good character, generosity and religion.

Chaucer was a mighty man of letters. He held high governmental office, yet at times he could turn aside from the affairs of kings and write poetry which has called forth the admiration of the world. So we read Chaucer's poetry to see the persistent elements of life. Also to bring down from the Jewels of faith and character the glitter in the ash heap of a coarse and cruel age.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BRIGHT EYE AND CLEAR BRAIN

The human machine is like every other machine in this respect — it must have the right kind of fuel to operate well, or be driven beyond its efficient capacity. Then there will be the bright eye and clear brain which are the evidence of health and efficiency.

Great care in the selection of the right kind of fuel for one of us, nor is such a one a good friend to himself.

We cannot concentrate in a peaceful, relaxed manner when the digestive system is out of tune or upset and abnormal in functioning. Our meals should be taken regularly, eaten slowly and with relish, and while in a cheerful mood. Anger, worry, or unhappy thoughts should never be allowed during one's meal. It is stimulating to eat with people who are cheerful and who take a happy outlook upon life. When away from home, I find it an attractive place in which to eat and where the waiters, as well, are cheerful and considerate.

The measure of each one of our days is sparked by the first hour upon leaving bed. It is then that we are set and our outlook is arranged. What better plan than to start the day with the 23rd Infinite Mind, with a prayer of thanksgiving for the rest of the night and for guidance during each hour of activity during the new day?

The bright eye and the clear brain are a reflection of our bodily condition and of our attitude of mind toward life and its pleasurable duties. Said old Walt Whitman: "Ah, the glory of the day's work, whether with hand or brain!"

Our individual success and happiness from day to day are reflected in the satisfaction of life that we make our own. In the words of Robert Browning: "There's a world of capability for joy, as spring virtue is for flowers, so human duty is for us, inviting us." Grasp it all and there is sure to be evidenced the bright eye and the clear brain.

Pearson Will Become More Influential Says London Paper

London, April 21 (CP)—The News Chronicle says today in a news story that Canada's L. B. Pearson may well be "one of the most influential figures" at the Commonwealth conference.

The newspaper says the only thing that has changed about Pearson now External Affairs Minister, is his job.

"He still has the easy, relaxed manner which makes him an admirable mediator at the conference table," the paper says. "He still faces questioners with a wise-cracking confidence that recalls, in his way, Roosevelt's (the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt) manner, and he thinks hard and fast.

"Pearson will be a junior at these meetings but his voice will not by any means the least influential."

ENVIRONMENT VERSUS HEREDITY

From the viewpoint of a student of health at least two other factors must be considered in any debate upon the relative importance of environment and heredity in the life of any career of the individual. These factors are nutrition and hygiene, of the four factors heredity, in my opinion, is the least important and nutrition is the most important.

Last Sunday's article dealt with the problem of a correspondent aged 54, who had just hospitalized his 82-year-old mother, because of her advanced senile dementia—mental deterioration due to old age. The correspondent said his great grandmother, grandmother, uncle and now his mother all went the same way. He asked what he could do to avoid this "material inheritance" also he called it because there had been no such cases in his father's side of the family.

Sounds like the familiar "Rx mark: No insanity in our family, that's nonsense. From time to time there is insanity, epilepsy, feeble-mindedness, cancer, tuberculosis, brain anaemia, alcoholism, or other illness or defect in every family. If the present generation escapes such misfortunes it is just luck, it doesn't mean that the family has acquired immunity to such afflictions.

Afflictions, misfortunes, illnesses, occurrences, accidents, etc., make no difference what you call them—there is no more and no less stigma in having insanity than there is in having migraine, cancer or tuberculosis in the family.

Nearly sixty years ago Dr. Wm. Osler wrote: "The opset of what may be called chronic vascular arterio-sclerosis depends, in the first place, upon the quality of arterial tissue, the material which the individual has inherited, and secondly upon the amount of wear and tear to which he has subjected it."

Osler said further that "senile families sometimes show this tendency early; arterio-sclerosis" (hardening of the arteries) — a tendency which can not be explained in any other way than that in the make-up of the man-child bad material was used for the tubing. More commonly the arterial deficiencies are from the bad use of good vessels."

By "bad use" Osler presumably meant the sins of wrong living, or bad hygiene which are the acquired factors of arterio-sclerosis—overeating, alcoholic indulgence, syphilis, work of the muscles and "the stress and strain of modern life." The great teacher was much impressed with the overeating habit; he quoted Georges Cheyne's advice.

George Cheyne was quite a guy, I often think of I must down in the kitchen at 1 or 2 a.m. to collect a few comestibles to nibble whilst I read. At the age of thirty, back in 1700, Georgie, by dint of assiduous eating and drinking, had built his weight up to 448 pounds. And for some reason he became very short of breath, listless and lethargic. There was no Hollywood then, but nevertheless Georgie dieted on milk—milk, I said—and vegetables and fish—a schedule of gradually increasing exercise, and so reduced to 150 pounds, regained his strength, and lived to what was then a remarkable age, three score and ten plus two years. There were no popular magazines or Sunday supplements in those days either, so George just wrote an essay on health and long life, for Mr. William and Doc Brady might have been interested in about later.

Having mentioned what the Hindus call the Jejunum have taught us about very small amount of nitrogenous food necessary for body requires to maintain perfect health, Dr. Osler quoted from Cheyne's "Essay of Dietetic wisdom" from Cheyne:

"Every man after fifty, after fifty, ought to begin to lessen at least the quantity of his food, and if he would continue free of great and dangerous Distempers and preserve his Intellectuals and Faculties clear to the last he ought every seven years to, on abating gradually and proportionally a tithe thereof out of Life as he ascended into it, even into the Child's Diet."

LAND NEEDED FOR OVERHEAD RAILWAY

Toronto, April 21 (CP) — Deputy Highways Minister Millar said today the department has decided use of land at Burlington Beach Bridge as a spiral ramp because some of the land will be needed for a new multi-million dollar overhead railway bridge over the Burlington Canal.

The new bridge, to be constructed when funds become available, will replace the present draw bridge over the canal.

TWEED

Choirs Unite, Render Special Easter Anthems

Tweed—The Easter service on Sunday morning attracted the largest church service in Tweed in months. Housewives in Canada with shortage of help, declare spending the store shelves and others who have small families find it difficult. Fruits and vegetables haven't the flavor they often do, but with thoughtful planning that goes into meal preparations in England even with all their planning, the best they can do is to eke out a monotonous diet.

On Saturday, Mrs. Percy MacMullin received a letter from an English friend, who lives near London along the Thames River, and from it is quoted, "All the rationed goods are in much small quantities that it is hard to make them do. One person can have per week, six or eight ounces of fat, (butter), margarine, or lard, which means a very small meat allowance, nine ounces of sugar, two ounces of tea, one or two eggs, one and one-half oz. cheese, and men doing real hard work may get a bit more cheese. There are no dried eggs except for the babies for the Summer.

"Just now the English people are pinched and tallis that can buy. There is no tinned meat on the market. We have only quantities of fresh herrings. Each person gets 24 points per month to buy the plentiful articles like flour, jam, tinned fish and cereal goods, but syrup takes 16 points out of the 24 so you don't buy much syrup.

"All food is very dear and suet is scarce and takes many points but the writer says—"We could be a lot worse off so we try to be cheerful."

At the evening service, the choirs "Christ the Lord is Risen Today", "The Strife is O'er", "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name", and "I Know That My Redeemer Lives" were sung.

The service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was featured with special Easter hymns with Mrs. C. Sharp at the organ, and Rev. M. W. Heslip giving an Easter message.

At St. Carthagh's, Solemn High Communion was celebrated by the pastor, Very Rev. Dean Garvin at 8.30 and the Easter morning Special Easter hymns were under the direction of Rev. S. Marr the direction of Rev. S. Marr Carmel Gordon, Rev. J. Buckley delivered a special sermon.

The Salvation Army held special services with band music and Easter hymns. Capt. Jones gave a special message to her listeners.

Tweed—Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Curry spent Easter in Toronto with friends.

Mrs. Ross and son Allen of Petawawa, were visitors this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight.

Mrs. Borden Rollins and two boys returned to their home in Montreal after visiting over Easter with Mrs. S. B. Rollins, in town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sager were Easter visitors in Peterborough. Their daughter, Mrs. Jas. Goldie, David, and Betty Jane, returned with them for a short stay spending the week's holiday in town.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Dawson and little daughters, Sally and Susan spent the Easter weekend with Mrs. Dawson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor, Mrs. Dawson and children are remaining for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Jack Connor and Doug Connor, Toronto and Glenn Connor, Cobourg, were Easter guests of Mrs. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor.

RAWDON

Letter Tells of Food Conditions In England

Rawdon—Follow here in Canada often ask what conditions are like in England and the following letter is interesting. Housewives in Canada with shortage of help, declare spending the store shelves and others who have small families find it difficult. Fruits and vegetables haven't the flavor they often do, but with thoughtful planning that goes into meal preparations in England even with all their planning, the best they can do is to eke out a monotonous diet.

The second letter received on Monday was from a resident of Abbott's Leigh Institute, at Bristol and she says "Yes, sweets and clothes are off-ration, but prices prohibits the buying of them as the purchasing power has not been removed. The most situation in Bristol is very grim but milk is off ration for three months. The meat ration this week is about one small chop per person per week, which means that in many families fresh meat is served about once a fortnight and sweets are unheard of here." The writer adds: "I try to buy nine ounces of fat, four ounces of cheese, two eight ounces of sugar, and three ounces of bacon per person per week, so it is a worry to try to make something appetizing for the days a week, and sometimes it is just impossible."

Food Parcels Acceptable

"You will see from this how very acceptable your generous parcels from River Valley Women's Institute have been and we are all delighted to have a way bit to carry home from our meeting as our share from the Canadian Red Cross."

Far Better Off

"We do hope you folks at River Valley are not stinting yourselves to send food to us. It's hard for us here to realize that Canada has abundance of food. Reserves we are much better off here in England than are the people in Europe so we are thankful for what we have."

RAWDON
Easter Cantata Presented at Wellman's Church

Rawdon.—On Easter Sunday evening, at Wellman's United Church, an Easter cantata entitled "The Glory of Eastertide", was given. It was prepared and directed by Mrs. Ralph Wilson. The Junior and Intermediate classes of the Sunday School all assisted in the cantata which opened with an exercise "Our Welcome" by three Juniors, followed by "Easter Belles".

An exercise "The Gardens Carol" was a scene in which seven of the smallest children carried in the flowers which Miss Doris Dunham arranged as they recited a lovely selection.

Miss Margaret Dracup recited "The Easter Lily" and Master Charles Nix recited "What Easter Brought to Mary".

Nine Junior Girls depicted "A Crown of Spring" as a acrostic while three junior boys gave an exercise "Let Us Make Up". Master David Heagle recited "An Easter Garden".

The senior pupils depicted "The Light from the Open Door".

A primary song, "Softly Blow the Wind" was sung with Misses Mildred Morton and Yvonne King singing the duet part.

The children sang several Easter songs throughout the cantata.

Mrs. Frederick Beckett contributed a vocal selection and Misses Mary Heagle and Ruth Clancy rendered a vocal duet.

Rev. Marshall Hall gave the "Good-bye Thought" by Miss Gladys Orange.

The pastor, Rev. H. C. Vaclavik conducted Holy Communion. The children members united with Wellman's. Miss Della Johnson, a teacher from Belleville, played the accompaniments.

Evening Dresses Hit the Parade In Spring Shows

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP)—Evening dresses are tops in British Spring fashion shows as everything comes down in price soon.

By the end of the year, the moderately priced creations should sell at £2 10s. ($10)—even full length, trimmed often—because of cuts in the administrative costs of fabric and rationing.

Dress manufacturers say the one thing delaying even quicker reduction in prices of all clothing is the "inadequate supplies of utility dress materials". But government spokesmen have promised greater production.

A favorite with all designers is the full-skirted ball gown with grosgrain lines or bouffant skirt. It comes in slipper satin, brocade, grosgrain and moire with jewel-set embroidery, an off-the-shoulder neckline or deep décolté.

Blanco Moose uses released fullness. A bodice-topped dress, cut skimpy to the hips, has a very full overskirt tied round a low hip line with enormous front bow and definite "back interest".

Hartnell gives the mermaid line with intricate neckline and tremendously frilling from knee length repeated in a frilled shoulder cape. He offers attractive ceremonial gowns in slipper satin, grosgrain and tulle, the grosgrain ideally for the young debutante.—Shipboard Model

For afternoon he gives a grey-white polka dot with tremendous skirt, tight waisted, with blouse top with tiny white collar and cuffs and matching bolero with white reveres.

A pre-1914 "hour-glass" dress models the figure, from a strapless shoulderline to the knee, where it swings into a one-sided chou of contrasting frilling.

There is a return to the crescent in loosely-flowing skirts, bustle effects, pulling Astrid Peterkin below the knees and floating panel pleatings.

There are beautifully draped chiffons and silks—with definite "new look" styling— by Worth and Stiebel.

Tulle is popular—especially with sequins. An example by Ravis, called blue heaven, has the tremendous double tiered skirt with tight bodice covered with minute sequin patterning which is repeated on cuffs and shoulderless shoulder neckline and tiny puff sleeves. It has a fitted summer-bound and very full skirt.

Recipes From Australia

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa (CP)— Pick up that teaspoon and measuring cup, and make a trip to Australia—the recipe says.

While no such universally known dishes as haggis and tortillas have yet been developed in the land "down under" authorities in the Australian housewife has several favorite foods she would like to share with others.

An official at the Australian High Commissioner's office thumbed through a homeland recipe book and came up with a couple of items which are bound to find favor with the Canadian housewife.

Muffins, Cutlets—Trim mutton cutlets and dip each lightly in curry powder and then immediately into beaten eggs and bread-oven-dried crumbs. Leave fillets minutes or until well coated with crumbs. Fry over a slow heat, in about one-quarter inch of fat. Turn once and drain.

Arrange the cutlets alongside a mound of cooked macaroni which has been "glossed" with a little bacon fat and dusted with chopped parsley. Serve with a bowl of curry sauce.

Preparation of Sauce: Peel and slice one large onion and 1 large cooking apple. Put into a small sauce pan along with a large tablespoon of cooking oil. Cover a low heat and when onion is a golden brown. Sprinkle in the mixture 1 heaped dessert each of flour and curry powder and add the juice of half a lemon. Stir well and add one-half pint of cold water. Stir until it boils and then add 1 teaspoon of sweet jelly, one tablespoon raisins and one of chutney (optional). Simmer 30 minutes and then strain. Add a dash of salt and stir.

Australian housewives who have no scales and weights at hand find even a most cup-and-spoon recipe which is easily measured. This cake may be plain or iced.

Crusty Walnut Cake—Ingredients: two thirds cup butter (or use a mixture of butter and margarine or lard and margarine); one cup sugar; two eggs; one cup cored walnuts; three cups (separated); one half teaspoon vanilla; 2 1-2 cups flour, sifted; three teaspoons baking powder; one cup milk; pinch of salt.

Cream butter and sugar with the minced walnuts until light, add vanilla, the yolks of the eggs and beat them well. Add the flour, sifted with the sifted flour and baking powder alternately with the milk. Fold in the beaten egg whites. Bake in a well-greased tin in a moderate oven, for about one hour.

When it comes to table decorating, the Australian housewife seldom makes use of her country's national flower the wattle (acacia or mimosa). Instead she usually chooses the leave of the Australian eucalyptus, the finds the red leaves of the young trees particularly effective for this purpose.

Holloway Hosts To Bridge and Tabernacle W.A.'s

The ladies of Bridge Street and Tabernacle United Churches were the guests on Thursday afternoon of Holloway Street Women's Association. A very large assemblage filled the Sunday School rooms with Mrs. A. Canby in charge of the meeting, who very graciously welcomed the guests, concluding her remarks with a poem, "What a Treasure is a Friend."

The devotional period was conducted by members of Mrs. F. Scott's and Mrs. B. McMurray's group. Mrs. G. Wyers read a verse, "The Garden of Resurrection", taken from Leslie Weatherhead's writings and the hymn, "There is a Green Hill Far Away", and Scripture reading by Mrs. B. McMurray from the 19th Chapter of John, fitted in with the topic. Mrs. B. Mason offered prayer and Mrs. M. Davidson favored with two beautiful solos, "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked", "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled". A reading given by Mrs. C. Moore entitled "The Lily" was much enjoyed.

Offering received by Mrs. S. Lough and Mrs. W. Jones.

The President of Presbytery of the Woman's Association, Mrs. Ralph Wilson, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Inglehart, of the Dominion Board, who spoke on "Our Responsibility". General Council last Fall in Vancouver.

Mrs. Inglehart spoke of some of her experiences, and about some of the people she met on her way to and from Vancouver, and the uplifting and inspiring days attending the council. She also told how Woman's Association is a large body of women with a membership of 182,000.

Mrs. L. Hopkins very graciously tendered Mrs. Inglehart a vote of thanks expressing appreciation for the giving of her time in coming to Rawdon and an interesting talk.

At the close of the meeting, a happy social hour was enjoyed by all present.

WEDDINGS

LORTIE—WOOD

In St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Morrisburg, on Monday, April 13, at 9 o'clock, Father J. F. Feeney solemnized the marriage of Margaret Anne Wood, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.-W. Wood, to Gerald Joseph Lortie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lortie, of Morrisburg.

Easter lilies, pink carnations, roses and carnations decorated the church. Miss Mary Lortie and Miss Bouck.

The bride wore a white satin wedding gown, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and a bouffant skirt, with long fingertip veil and waistline. The sleeves were long, ending in points at the hands. She wore a fingertip veil of white tulle illusion, caught in a crescent of seed pearls and a single spray of orange blossom, which the groom. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Following the ceremony, guests were received at the home of the bride's parents.

The young couple are spending their honeymoon in Northern New York State.

Mrs. Lortie's going-away costume was a two-piece grey gabardine suit with black accessories and grey accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Lortie will live in Morrisburg.

EGGLETON W.M.S.-W.A.

Madoc Junction — On Thursday last, a pot-luck dinner was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges with a fairly good attendance.

During the afternoon, the regular April meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held with the W.A. president, Mrs. H. Clarke, presiding over a program prepared by Mrs. Nelson Stapley.

After the opening hymn Rev. E. Burgess led in prayer. Miss Ferne Reid read the Easter lesson from the gospel of St. Mark and Mrs. Hugh McMullen gave the meditation.

A reading "An Indian Woman Won For Christ", was given by Mrs. W. Harlow.

Rev. H. Burgess gave a splendid address on "Easter".

Mrs. Harlow gave the W.A. report stating that with the funds raised by the W.A. and the generous contributions received from the homes in the community, there was enough money to pay for the redecorating of the church.

May meeting will be held at Mrs. Harlow's with Mrs. N. Wannamaker, and Mrs. Wilkinson to prepare the program. It was decided to hold the community social evening for April at the church on April 29 and to invite the Junior Young People Societies on the circuit.

Mrs. Brice Stapley gave the fourth chapter from the study book.

CENTENARY W.A.-W.M.S.

The April meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the church on Thursday with a good attendance.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. G. McDonald, Mrs. B. S. Hoblin gave the call to worship.

The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. L. Hall and Mrs. W. Shortt. Mrs. G. Sills gave a reading.

The W.A. meeting followed with Mrs. J. Ray in charge.

A letter of appreciation was read from Mrs. Geo. Shortt for flowers received at her during her recent illness. Letters of appreciation for parcels of food sent to England showed how very grateful the people are for the little extras they receive by these parcels. Care parcels were also sent to Austria.

Other items of business were also discussed.

The ladies in charge served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Wm. J. Doyle Elected Pres. Women's Canadian Club at Annual Meeting

The Women's Canadian Club held their last meeting of the season in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church parlors on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Dermont Morrah as guest speaker, who spoke on "Social Problems of the Young".

Preceding the open meeting, the annual business period was held with Mrs. Arthur May, president, presiding.

The annual report was read by the secretary, Mrs. E. Hickey, which showed that the club had enjoyed a fine and interesting season of programs under the capable leadership of Mrs. May. Four of the speakers had been furnished by the association, and five by the club, which in each figure had been outstanding, informative and interesting.

The annual luncheon had been held on November 11th in the Hotel Quinte, with Mrs. Frank Hope Sanders as guest speaker, whose topic had been "As We Women Equal to the Future." The attendance at this time had been 132, which exceeded the seating quota. One executive meeting has been held in the Public Library on April 5th with an attendance of nine.

The opening tea which had been held on October 14th, was one to close the annual season, were convened by Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Gilbert Scott.

Thanks and appreciation was extended to Mrs. Wm. J. Doyle, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. Dermont Morrah, Mrs. Arthur May and Mrs. Gilbert Scott, to the University Women's Club for the entertainment of the many guest speakers; to the press for help given and to Mrs. Nicholson for advance publicity on behalf of the speakers; to Mrs. Hutchinson of Bridge St. United Church Board of Management, and St. Andrew's for endeavoring to meet the requirements of the club for lecture accommodation.

There had been an increase of 20 members, or 50 or more.

Officers Elected

Following the report, the slate of officers for the year 1940-30 was brought in by the nominating committee, being sent up by W. H. Finkle presided: Immediate past president, Mrs. Arthur May; President, Mrs. W. J. Doyle; 1st. vice president, Mrs. C. Ross Sparling; 2nd. vice president, Mrs. Gilbert Scott; Secretary, Mrs. E. Hickey; Asst. Secretary, Mrs. H. R. Cameron; treasurer, Mrs. A. E. MacCall. Executive committee, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. E. A. Gee, Mrs. Dermont Morrah, Mrs. G. G. Wright, Mrs. R. J. W. Kinnear, Mrs. R. H. Pringle, Miss Stewart Mason, Mrs. Arthur Meighen and Mrs. W. C. McCutcheon.

Convenors and entertainment committee: Mrs. S. L. Jose, Mrs. St. Clair Herbuic advisory board, Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mrs. O. A. Marshall, Mrs. W. N. Ponton and Mrs. G. Graham.

Retiring President Thanked

Mrs. J Grant Sparling, on behalf of the executive committee extended a vote of appreciation to the retiring president for her splendid work and gracious leadership to which Mrs. May very charmingly replied that she, in turn, wished to thank the executive for their co-operation, stating that she had been fortunate in the speakers selected, and that she had enjoyed the work of the club.

After an intermission in which the ladies present enjoyed a social talk, Mrs. Doyle, the new president, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Dermont Morrah, one of Britain's most experienced social workers and honor graduate of Oxford University, who in 1946 became a magistrate of the Juvenile Bench of the Tower Bridge, London, Eng. Mrs. Morrah has had many opportunities of getting behind the scenes of a child's mind, and finding out the "why" of the social problems of the young, and the manner of dealing with them.

"For many years" said the speaker, "children were thrown into the adult prisons, and given the same punishment as old offenders, even to the extent of hanging, which sentence had been passed upon a child of nine years." Toward the end of the century, a wave of humanitarian spirit swept over the world, and the penological systems were reformed, and the methods of punishment. It was found that the punishment should tit the offender and not the offence. The welfare of the child was of primary importance and should be taught to appreciate the difference between right and wrong, whether they were 8 or 80 as actions mould the whole life.

Two Acts Passed

In 1908 two acts were passed one called the Children's Act, which included children ranging from 7 to 16 years of age, and the Young Persons Act, which dealt with those from 14 up. These two acts are inaugurated into the courts used today. A Royal Commission is used to inquire into the conditions of homeless or destitute children. English Juvenile Courts differ from the American or the Canadian, in that three magistrates compose it, two men, and one woman these are not paid, but taken from all classes of society, and are representative citizens of all communities.

When a child has committed an unlawful act, such as stealing, he is given a trial the same as an adult, since he has the same rights, only the trial is made to fit the child's mentality. Simple language is used, and very seldom a syllable easily understood The magistrate sits on the same level as the child, with but a small distance between them, so as to be on friendly terms, and not to induce fear. They are judged on evidence only, and not from previous offences, if the court is held in private with public by the press not permitted and no mention of the child's name is allowed publicity. They have the right to tell their own story of the offence, either under oath, or not. If they elect to be tried under oath, then questions can be asked, and anything a child says is worth listening to, since it shows his character.

Allowed to Go Home

If the offence has been a minor one, the child is allowed to go home if its parents are present on occasion, they are detained in "Remand Homes", which is simply one of custody, pending judgment. During this time, the child's background is studied, his mentality, whether he attended church, and the I.Q. If he is a pocket money, he must pay for the offence out of his own pocket. Under probation School is held, a child is taught to lead an honest, industrious life, and must report to the probation officer every week. They are encouraged to be good but "to try" to be good. If they do not keep their word, they are brought back to school. Sometimes they are boarded out with a family, under the care of the London Civic Council.

The Reform School is used for many more children than 100, as more than that prohibits individual instruction. Each child has a small school they are given the time and are then graded, the first of which has caused them to become delinquent, which gives a great deal for readjustment. Much of the delinquency was caused by the children being sent up to or from London during the bombing period to homes in the country where they were misunderstood. When they returned to their own homes, nor parents left, so drifted. There are no crimes of violence like there is in the United States. If there is no peace, there is no security, and children are insecure. A child must have security to develop normally.

"All those who work with children must have understanding, and above all, patience," were the closing words of splendid address, gratefully given.

A vote of appreciation was extended the speaker by Mrs. Arthur May on behalf of the club. Refreshments were served.

Interesting Talk on History Of Belleville Hospital Given By Mrs. W. C. Mikel to Auxiliary

The monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held at the Nurses' Residence with Mrs. Ira Sills presiding.

Numerous business items were discussed. The date for the tag day being set for September 12 and the garden party to be held at the home of Mrs. G. H. Hobbs on June 15. It was also decided to close the Opportunity Shop for the Summer season.

It was decided to give the hospital four baby's cribs at around $47 each as well as a cot which supplies oxygen and moist air for children. The cost being about $135.

The speaker, Mrs. W. C. Mikel, introduced by Miss Ivy Dickens and thanked by Mrs. F. Beebee, gave an interesting talk on the history of the Belleville hospital.

In 1879 Belleville had been a city for two years with a population of 10,000 persons. There was a hospital between Toronto and Kingston, no home for friendless aged and no society for the care of children. Aged and indigent persons and children were taken care of in the county jail

Formed W.C.A.

Mrs. Jacques, wife of Dr. Jacques, principal of Albert College, was responsible for the formation of the Women's Christian Association. Together the fourteen women of the different churches in the city. Among the several activities the Association undertook was that of establishing a home for the friendless aged where they could be properly taken care of and to build a hospital.

The ladies met much opposition from some of the citizens, but finally through the efforts of liberal minded citizens they gained their objective. The home was established in 1880 and in 1885 the hospital at the cost of $20,000. Was opened to the public. It contained twelve beds and the cost of a bed was found to be $5 a week.

The Board of Management of the Hospital was composed entirely of ladies, selected from the 53 trustees who controlled the various activities of the W.C.A.

East Wing Built

A one-storey building now called the "east wing" was built in 1888 for a home for the aged but in 1898 was raised to two storeys and later to three stories. The first four years of the hospital's wards. In this same year the home occupied a home on West Moira Street which was left to the W.C.A. for charitable purposes.

In 1910 the south wing was built at the cost of $20,000 and the east wing was then used as the nurses' residence. Later a legacy left to the Association by the late Thomas Bibby provided the present nurses' home.

In 1932 the north wing was added and at the same time many necessary changes were made including the isolation wards, completed at a cost of about $325,000.

Board Formed in 1923

In 1923 the management of the hospital was turned over to a Board of Governors composed of capable men of the city, selected by the W.C.A., besides representatives from the city and county councils, the medical staff and the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Association.

In 1945, the hospital was handed over to the city, a gift valued at $750,000. Quite a different hospital from its original cost of $20,000.

Many incidents were related which show too much cannot be said of the value of the activities of the Women's Christian Association. Their achievements are a monument to the noble women who conceived the idea 70 years ago of taking care of the sick, aged and poor of Belleville.

In the spring a young man's thoughts turn to baseball when Belleville and district baseball's many Canadian homes become the playground for youngsters after school and on weekends. Sometimes even Dad can be seen out having a catch with the boys. Three-year-old Guy Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cook, Roxbury, Mass., is no different from other boys his age — except that his form as a pitcher is superb, with a wind-up which is really something to see. Guy throws a fast, straight ball for a distance of 40 or 50 feet. This, you'll admit, is an unusual feat for one of his tender years. — Central Press Canadian.

Shower for absent guest at home?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My cousin is to be married soon, and has asked me to be a bridesmaid. She lives in another state, and therefore a great many of her relatives here will not be able to attend a shower. Is it proper for me to give a shower at my home and invite the relatives and close friends who will be unable to attend this shower?

B. B.

The only point to such a shower . . . with the guest of honor not to be present, I judge, . . . would be the garnering in of shower presents. And this would not, madam's give the proper impression. .

Necessary for acquaintances to send gifts for wedding anniversary?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have received a formal invitation to a reception in honor of a fiftieth wedding anniversary. I have never met this couple, but my husband transacts some business with the husband. Does the invitation received under these circumstances require a gift? "A" says that sending a gift depends on the wording of the invitation, and that no gift is required when, as in this case, the invitation reads "requests the honor of your presence." "B" says that this interpretation is nonsense, that an engraved invitation, regardless of the wording, certainly requires a gift. What's your opinion? Please say which answer as to which is correct.

S. B. T.

Neither "A's" nor "B's" point of view has anything to do with your question. It is not the wording of an invitation that indicates that a gift is "required", nor is it the fact that an invitation is engraved. One sends a gift if one wishes to give, regardless of the type of invitation received.

To this kind of large formal reception to celebrate a Golden Wedding anniversary, it is not at all necessary for guests who are not particularly intimate friends or who were only acquaintances of the couple to send or take gifts. If relatives and intimate friends haven't already sent their gifts to the couple, they often bring their gifts to the reception. Acquaintances with the couple, as you say, flowers golden-yellow in color, if possible, would be in good taste. Wedding gifts to arrive the morning of the anniversary.

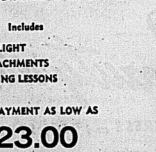
CHRIST CHURCH GUILD

Hillier—The April meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Thompson, with an attendance of 22. Owing to the absence of the President, Mrs. Warner McFaul, Mrs. Jones presided. Letters of appreciation from Miss Ella the honorary member, Belle; Mrs. Terry, Mrs. Mapes, Mrs. Percy, Mrs. King Terry, were read, also a paper clipping by Mrs. W. H. Anderson.

Mrs. Jones, an honorary member, also gave a few kind words of thanks for kindness received and a letter from the absent president, Mrs. McFaul, was read. Mrs. Warner McFaul and Mrs. Edwin Lott thanked the Guild for remembrance.

A letter was received from the Red Cross for blood transfusions; all were in favor of donating money for this needy cause.



Reverend C. P. Heaven spoke of the consecration of the church, which will be held on May 28th, with the Metropolitan of Ontario, the Right Reverend John Lyons, Archbishop of London, present. Archbishop Lyons also made the dinner for the visiting clergymen, and visited in the Town Hall on the same day.

Mrs. L. Jones offered her home for the May meeting.

The program consisted of reading, "Happy Easter in the Making," by Mrs. Thompson, and one by Mrs. Thompson, with Miss Sheila Terry doing the reading. Mrs. Terry doing the reading was won by Mrs. Arnold Chase.

Mrs. Jones and Mr. Heaven moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Thompson for her hospitality and grand refreshments.

The meeting was beautifully decorated with Easter flowers.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Conserving perfumes

Perfumes are more expensive than ever before, but as to evening gowns, a woman has to have them—they give her an uplift. And it is just as well for her to know how to conserve them. A precious ounce can be made to go a long way. One may invoke a happy selection in the first place. There are some scents, unlike some individuals you meet, that do not improve upon acquaintance.

There was a time, not so long ago, when perfume chemists had ideas that they proclaimed to the sisterhood, all to the interest of sales, of course. When you donned a white frock in the good old summer time, you used lily of the valley. If you regaled yourself in lighter vein, you applied old-fashioned rose. Sandalwood and other woodsy scents wafted around you when you tucked over the gold coupon.

It all sounds luxurious and expensive, but there is always a woman with a brain that clicks who would have none of it. She is thoughtful, sensible and practical. She finds one luscious, intriguing blend or bouquet sticks to it until her wardrobe is impregnated with it. She does not mix her perfumes. She knows that even two of the sweetest ones can slay each other, from an aroma that is not compelling.

She can protect herself with toilet waters

She keeps her perfume in an atomizer. It is a temptation not to have the container—one furnished by the perfume chemist—on her dressing table. Into the atomizer the fragrant liquid is poured, and the atomizer is tucked away in the bathroom cabinet or better still, on a dark shelf. With the stopper tight and no light striking it, there is no chance of evaporation. And that saves money.

She cannot expect perfumes to have long-lasting qualities if we prefer delicate ones. If the fragrance is strong enough to endure for a considerable length of time, it is likely to be heady and objectionable.

The girl who must keep in close watch on the balance in the checkbook will prefer waters diluted with alcohol. Eau de Cologne is always delightful to use as a friction after the bath. The fresh fragrance will remain with one throughout the day.

Many talcums are exquisitely scented. Rub some in the armpits now and then.

Sachets are a grand bargain. You don't have to buy the boxes into these days. You can get all sorts of decorative little pads to place between gloves and handkies.

Put sachet balls on dress and coat hangers.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Many "Ifs" in This Situation

It isn't easy to be wise when one is young. Two people, under two circumstances together usually think very differently about things rather than careful considerations.

There are, however, young people who do step and think before they enter into marriage, as for example, the young girl who "reads" for me.

I am 18 and have been planning to be married in June. My fiance is in the service.

We love each other very much but we have very little money saved up, and since I am still going to school, it's impossible for me to save. My mother thinks we should wait until we have a few thousand dollars saved. This would take us a long time. We both realize the hardships of marriage and that we must have to scrimp and save to make a go of it. But we're both willing to do this since we want to be together.

"Mother has been giving me lectures, and has made me wonder if we would be doing the wrong thing to marry without saving a little more money. In fact, she has sort of frightened me to the point where I don't know what to do. Please help me."

It seems to me that there are more important things to consider in a marriage between two very young people than the question of how much money they have in the bank. I would say that whether or not marriage would be wise from an economic point of view would depend rather on how much money the young man, together with his prospects were, and how sensible the two of them would be in making a systematic plan to cover their running expenses.

Then there is the matter of a place to live. Can the young wife and husband find a place of their own, or would they have to move in with the parents of either one?

In this particular case, I assume the girl will have graduated from school by the time she plans to be married. I certainly would think it a mistake for her or any other girl to stop school to be married.

In the first general, in favor of girls marrying as young as 18, I do not think they should give themselves a little more time to make the test of fun that they can only have while young and carefree responsibilities. I have had too many letters from girls who have married at a very early age, and within a few years felt cheated and frustrated with their lives and fed up by the responsibilities of marriage, many of them very often, and in most cases, by the care of babies, and who have no opportunity to go

A Taste of Spring

The pink, tender, juicy stalks of April rhubarb hold the very essence of spring. This first fruit of the year is enjoyed as a tasty treat in many homes as everyday dainty, to take the chill off dull, rainy days, or at Easter when they are scarce.

Pie plant, the name by which rhubarb is commonly known to our ancestors, indicates one opinion of its favored use. The uses of rhubarb are many. As a sauce, in pies, puddings, gelatine desserts, jams and cold drinks.

The first rhubarb may be enjoyed in the following delicious references very. Some like a soft sauce, others a chunky one; down others choose a delicious pale red syrup with firm pieces of rhubarb in it. If the sugar is added to rhubarb before cooking and the sauce not stirred, the pieces will remain whole. Cooking before the sugar is added and stirring to dissolve the sugar results in a smooth sauce.

Rhubarb Sauce

6 cups rhubarb
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar.

Wash rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces but do not peel. Cook by one of the following methods:

Note: If very sour garden rhubarb is used. Cover with boiling water, let stand five minutes, drain well.

Method 1. Combine rhubarb, salt and sugar in a saucepan. Cook over slow simmer about ten minutes or until tender, stirring occasionally. Chill. Yield: six servings.

Method 2. Cook rhubarb in a covered casserole in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees F., for 20-40 minutes. Remove from oven, add sugar and stir. Cover and let stand until sugar is dissolved. Chill. Yield: six servings.

Rhubarb Sherbert

1 tblsp. gelatine
2 cups cold water
1 cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
2 cups stewed unsweetened rhubarb
1 egg white

Soak gelatine in 1-3 cup of the cold water; add a syrup of sugar and boiling water and dissolve gelatine in the hot syrup. Add the remainder of the cold water and the rhubarb, which should be cooked until very soft. Freeze to a mush. Remove from freezer, beat well and fold in stiffly beaten egg white. Return to freezer and finish freezing. Yield: 6 to 10 servings.

Coldwell Charges "Monopoly" Prevents Development of New Daily Newspapers in Canada

Toronto, April 22. (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, charged today that what he called "monopoly" prevents the development of new daily newspapers in Canada.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a political rally here, Mr. Coldwell declared that "this year, in four short months, Canada's only Labor daily and only daily have suspended publication."

He said the Labor-owned Glace Bay, N.S., Gazette and the co-operatively-owned Winnipeg Citizen now are history.

"So is the Halifax Chronicle which disappeared in a merger on New Year's Day, 1949."

Continuing, he said:

"There are 11 cities in Ontario with over 30,000 people according to the 1941 census. Of these nine have a monopoly in the daily newspaper field, and a 100% Toronto, has seen two of its three dailies come under single ownership this year.

"To see great cities like Windsor, Hamilton, and London, subject to a monopoly in the newspaper field is to see freedom of the Press only a mockery in Canada. The attempt of the owners of the Winnipeg Citizen to break into the newspaper field has shown up two other aspects of monopoly's grip on the press of Canada.

"No newspaper can be successful without a national news service. There are two of these in Canada—the British United Press and Canadian Press. The Winnipeg Citizen was able to secure neither, and I believe the reason must be found in the vested interest of the two other Winnipeg dailies in those two news services.

Priority System Difficulty

"Another source of the difficulties of the Citizen was the priority system of obtaining newsprint complexes. This system allocates the available supply of print to existing users and makes no allowance for new papers. Monopoly prevents the development of new dailies in Canada and the evolution of capitalism steadily promotes amalgamations, superficially and so on.

"Add to these the power of the advertiser. Advertisers of such an important source of newspaper revenue that editors who want to stay with a financially successful newspaper often feel it is discreet not to disagree with the viewpoint of their advertisers.

"Without a truly free press Canadian democracy will become only a mockery. We have been complacent long enough. Let us now arise and tackle the problem of free expression in this land of ours, and make the will of the people better than the heartless money power of monopolistic interests."

Mr. Coldwell made other references to the press as well. He said the press had expected a C.C.F. victory in the next Federal election, but "the press has not learned much from what happened in the United States last November when its predictions were so far from accurate."

Claims Press Biz Business

The people of Canada no longer believed that the one old party was the real alternative to the other.

"The Press of this country may try to make us think so, but we must remember that the press is itself big business in Canada and almost without exception gives full support to the parties of big business," he said.

"The Toronto Star is one of the very few newspapers which does not give all-out support to the parties of big business. And you all know what the Conservative party through the Ontario government has done to it."

He referred to the Ontario Government's controversial charities bill which would force the sale of 90 per cent of the stock of the Star, left by its owner to be run for the benefit of charities.

ALLAN A. SIMMIE

The National Life Assurance Company of Canada announces the appointment of Allan A. Simmie as Agency Manager of the Company's Eastern Ontario Agency. Offices are located at 219 Front Street, Belleville.

CP Manager Commends

Toronto—Gillis Purcell, general manager of The Canadian Press, Thursday night made the following comment on M. J. Coldwell's references to suspension of publication by the Winnipeg Citizen:

The Winnipeg Citizen, which started publication March 1, 1946, made two applications for the news service of The Canadian Press. Neither was refused.

The first application was withdrawn by The Citizen before it could be acted upon by the CP Board at its meeting Oct. 3 last.

The second would have been considered by the Board May 2 next had The Citizen not ceased publication April 19.

The other Winnipeg papers (Free Press and Tribune) made no objection to either application.

Hydro-Electric Board to Have Wide Powers

By DOUGLAS GREEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, April 23 (CP)—If a bill now before the legislature is passed, the Manitoba government will set up a Hydro-Electric Board vested with sweeping authority over the provision of power in all its aspects.

Early last year, Dr. T. H. Hogg, power consultant to the province, recommended as the soundest long-term policy the establishment of a provincial generating agency responsible exclusively for developing the power requirements of Manitoba's main industrial and agricultural areas.

The bill before the house would implement this recommendation. The province already is venturing into the production of its own hydro-electric energy through the development of a plant at Pine Falls, on the Winnipeg River.

The legislature has approved capital expenditure of $7,000,000 on the Pine Falls project during the 1949-50 fiscal year. It's total cost is expected to be between $18,000,000 and $20,000,000, with a capacity of 114,000 horsepower on completion—enough to avert a shortage of power forecast by Dr. Hogg as likely to occur by the Fall of 1951.

Under Dr. Hogg's recommendations, the province would either lease or buy all power plants now operating on the Winnipeg River —those of the municipally-owned city of Winnipeg Hydro-Electric System and those of the private-ly-owned Winnipeg Electric Company.

Premier D. L. Campbell has emphasized that the government hopes to reach a "wholly voluntary" agreement with the city of Winnipeg and the surrounding municipalities.

A joint water power committee, upon which are representatives of the government, Winnipeg city council and Winnipeg Hydro, still is discussing the feasibility of effecting a reorganization of the Hydro-Electric Railway in Manitoba along the lines of Dr. Hogg's recommendation.

It is under discussion has been the transfer of the Winnipeg Hydro plant to the proposed provincial generating agency at a stipulated date some time after the completion of the first stage of reorganization, together with methods of valuation and changes of ownership involved.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

ife Begins With Discipline

BY ROY L. SMITH

There have been many misguided attempts to point at which life begins, but all too little attention has been given to the fact that it starts with discipline.

Every man, to be able to wring rewards out of life, must be disciplined almost from infancy. It is to those who are able to discipline their bodies and their minds that the rewards of life come. To those who are able to discipline their minds go the real intellectual rewards of life. To those but the disciplined ever come freedom or liberty. The great achievements are all reserved for those who are able to bring all the powers of their personality under control.

Possessed by our Possessions

The first parable of this week's lesson tells the story of a man who was possessed by his possessions. His barn, bulked so large and so high on the horizon that it shut out all the sky. He could think of no other terms. He could appreciate no other terms.

And there is also the man who has dedicated his life to the profits of the cash register. He is so busy counting the profits on the currency he handles, rise no higher than the width he owns.

If the doctrine of immortality means anything whatever it means that man is destined for a life that is to be independent of the body with all its sensations and appetites. The individual that would be given all of this life to the cultivation of the physical, only to leave it behind, will enter into immortality almost destitute.

Pitiless Lives

The parables in the second part of this lesson are a sober warning against pitiless living — against that sort of attitude that lives only today and gives no thought to consequences.

It is probably true that no man now living who has been caught in the terrible toils of alcoholism ever expected to be reduced to the unhappy state. He took his first drink in a spirit of adventure.

He became drunk the first time thinking it a lark. Then he began to depend upon alcohol for his courage, energy and brilliance. It was not until he was helpless that he sensed the fact that he was wielding deadly about his own ankles.

The worst slavery any man ever suffers results from the fact that he never took the trouble to discipline himself. He finds himself enslaved because he did not plan for freedom.

A Vivid Sense of Values

No man who has held his body in a high respect has ever become enslaved to drugs or alcohol.

The Sunday School lesson for April 24: "The Disciplines of Discipleship (Temperance)." Luke 12:16-21; 14:27-33.

No living creature has been equipped with such a physical instrument as has been given to man. The amazing things one can do with his hands, guided by his mind, and inspired by a spiritual understanding, cannot be equalled anywhere in all of nature.

To befoul the body or to betray the mind of a man made in the image of God is high tragedy. Any man who treated a fine automobile or an exquisite watch in any such fashion would be adjudged incapable of reason. It is only those who have no vivid sense of the superlative value of their physical equipment who are able to do it.

Spiritual Mastery

Every man lives in three worlds — the physical, the intellectual, and the spiritual.

It is so easy for the physical to tyrannize over the intellectual. He who would think clearly must stand guard at all times against the demands of his body.

Paul, the great Apostle, said: "I keep my body under," not because the physical is evil but because it must always be secondary.

There are vast areas of life which are completely shut off from the human intellect. There are ranges of experience in which we have neither logic nor sensation to guide us, and yet it is in these same areas that the richest rewards of life are to be found. To realize them, one must discipline his mind to the demands of a great spiritual purpose.

Intemperance, whether it be an indulgence of the physical appetites, or of the imagination, is an enemy of life at its best.

Life belongs to the disciplined. They and they alone, even know the abundance of living.

Toronto Mayor To Block Application For Downtown Tavern

Toronto, April 21 (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto said today he would exert every effort to have yesterday's recommendation of the Civic Property Committee, which approved application for another downtown tavern — blocked. Two weeks ago the city council voted 19-3 to urge the Liquor Licensing Board to refuse any further liquor licenses in Toronto. Yesterday's committee recommendation was contrary to the former council vote, the mayor said.

Somebody Tampering With Big League Standings; Cincinnati Moves Into First Position

Somebody is tampering with the big league standings.

Cincinnati, doomed by the experts to finish in the cellar, is the early season team in the National League.

The poor, old beat-up New York Yankees, severely hobbled by the loss of Joe DiMaggio and others, are out front in the American League.

Eddie Dyer's St. Louis Cardinals still haven't won a game and the powerhouse Boston Red Sox had to resort to bases on balls to break into the victory column.

Bucky Walters, starting his first full year as Cincinnati manager, followed the old custom of pitching lefthanders against the Cardinals. As usual, it worked.

Following up Kenny Raffensberger's opening day performance Walters called on another lefty, John Vander Meer, Tuesday. The 33-year-old veteran responded with a five-hit 5-0 shutout. Hank Sauer and Jimmy Bloodworth hit homers, each with a man on base.

The Yankees' replacements came through to give Manager Casey Stengel a third straight victory over Washington 7-3. Johnny Lindell, playing in DiMaggio's old spot in centre field, started the winning rally against Forrest Thompson with a single in the last of the ninth. After an error, Sauer, Charley Keller's sub in left field, came through with a game-ending double.

Went the Route

Tommy Byrne, a regular starting pitcher for the first time, went the route. He allowed five hits, including a homer by Buddy Lewis.

Cleveland thumped St. Louis 8-2 with the help of homers by Larry Doby and Joe Gordon. Steve Gromek pitched a two-hitter. Home runs by Jack Graham and Dick Kokos in the fifth ruined his shutout bid.

Boston Red Sox untracked themselves to salvage the finale of their series with Philadelphia A's. It was a scoreless battle with Phil Marchildon of Pentagunshone, Ont., and Mel Parnell until the ninth. Two walks with the bases loaded and a single by Parnell gave the Sox their final 4-0 margin.

Chicago finally stopped Johnny Groth's home-run splurge, bringing Detroit 5-2. Three White Sox pitchers held Groth to one single in two official at bats. He also walked once and was hit by Orval Grove. Grove, the winning pitcher, before he was knocked out in the seventh.

In the National, Brooklyn lost to New York Giants, 4-1. Homers by Sid Gordon and Mickey Livingston, each with a man on, accounted for all the runs after Jim Hartung turning in a neat four-hit job.

Bob Scheffing hit a two - run homer in the eighth for Chicago's 4-3 edge over Pittsburgh.

Boston Braves and Phillies were not scheduled.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Western Ontario sportswriters are suffering long and loud at the protest allegedly made in by the Gananoque Legion Hockey team management which claimed Don Gallinger, suspended Intermediate "A" Hockey League player, at being one of the master-minds of the Fort Colborne team which eliminated the Dons in the Intermediate "A" finals.

Chick (Stratford Beacon Herald) sports editor wrote as follows:

NOR SHOULD THEY

"Not likely the OHA executive will pay much attention to the announced protest of Gananoque Legionnaires against Fort Colborne Kitchener-Greenshirts, which they claim have never been disposed of, without adding to their headaches.

"The Gananoque protest should, and will likely, be given short shrift, unless Gallinger sat on the Fort Colborne bench and coached the team." According to all that can be learned via the press, there is no indication of that, and the only ground on which Gananoque has to file protest are that Gallinger was one of the masterminds of the Sailors.

ONLY FROM HOCKEY

"Indefinitely suspended by the National Hockey League, Gallinger is not permitted to take part in organized hockey in any capacity as long as the suspension exists, and the OHA is committed to the National League policy of honoring each suspension. Apparently it does not affect Gallinger in any other sport, because he is allowed to play baseball under the International League banner; lacrosse, under the OLA; and the OHA are members of the Ontario Sports Federation.

"Assuming that Gallinger is not designated as a coach of the Fort Colborne team and does not occupy a stool on the bench, then the Gananoque protest is ridiculous to an extreme. The NHL, CAHA, and OHA have handed out some peculiar decisions, but even they have not given the authority to bar a young man from getting up on hind legs from a seat among the spectators and bellow words of encouragement and advice to his home town team."

And here is what Tommy (Welland Tribune) opines on the matter:

"Everyone knows that Gallinger has been a close follower of the Merchants and will be a close follower of any Fort Colborne hockey team that may be in the Fort Colborne. He may be under suspension by the National Hockey League, but he,have hockey and no edict of hockey's governing body can make him other than an ardent supporter of the Fort Colborne team. And like any other hockey fan, he is entitled to shout, holler or yell advice to the players, just as any other fan does and is entitled to do."

Regardless of what happened, it would seem that the Gats are or would be wasting their time in such a protest. The Fords defeated them by disciplined team play last night and it is extremely doubtful if the down-casters have the power, or the ability to defeat the powerful team from the town with the one-sided Main Street.

Meanwhile the grass is growing, the pickerel running, the lanes and swains are contracting Spring fever; the old man is getting the rod and reel ready for the opening of the trout season come April 30; golfers are making practice swings in the sunshine of the back yard, the Two-Cs of the housewhold is saving Spring cleaning with the same old look, but prospects of the baseball front are anything but bright if you can believe the dope from Toronto.

Up in Peterborough, Oshawa, and probably Belawa, and down in Kingston, Napanee and other eastern points the boys have organized and are getting in the old practice line, but here in this hamlet, nothing but a pessimistic outlook is apparent, from a COBL standpoint, that is. Prospects of a senior senad wearing the colors of the Ye Olde Gas Eaters of Maira, if you are to believe the street corner gossip are darker than the inside of a mule.

Latest story extant is that the CNR Athletic Association gave potential master-minds carte blanche with funds to supply equipment, etc. "We'll supply the uniforms—if you'll supply the filling" was the story. True far it seems uniforms filling for senior ball players uniforms horsehoute is scarcer than snowdrifts city water mains, and unless a miracle happens, or something top secret is on tap, Belleville will be on the outside looking in as far as a senior club is concerned.

An authoritative source informed this corner the other day that a senior pitcher from Belleville is moving here for business reasons, while we have definite information that a mid-Toronto flinger who resided in the vicinity of Your Corners is anxious to play under the senior banner in a Belleville uniform. A more than passing fair second baseman is, we are told ready to trot his wares in Belleville baseball harcdashery.

Sergeant "Mike" Kelly man-of-all-sports at Trenton Air Station said yesterday that the Flyer team would be no easy set-up as it was last year and there are possibilities that the lads in blue might co senior (pending permission) if a group consisting of Kingston, Napanee and Flyers be arranged as an eastern COBL section, with Batawa, Oshawa and Peterborough on the Lakeshore side. All this of course depending on the absence of Belleville and the event that Smith's Falls and Brockville which have already filed applications for entry, are not considered. This is purely tentative and suggestive on the part of the Flyer crew.

Tonight the curtain rises on the current wrestling season in Memorial Arena. The popular Whipper Watson, his shining locks bereft of the British Empire bauble meets an arch enemy in the form of the huge Hi Lee, Ouarkian giant in the main bout of a highly attractive card. The faithful are rolling strongly for the fray, 'tis said, and once again the old familiar cries of local rassle fandom will echo in the Arena. Popular Pat Flanagan is back again and tangles with that bewhiskered bruiser from Tibet, Ivan The Terrible Rasputin, he of the chin shrubbery, fierce visage and savage ring tactics. In the opener Dan Valois, popular French grappler, meets Jim the Cardiff Giant, a new starpiling who tips the beam at 330 pounds. Looks like a neat evening's entertainment, wot?

Brandon Only One Game From Western Title

Brandon, Man., April 22 (CP) — Brandon Wheat Kings today are within one game of making a 17-year-old dream come true — gaining a Western Canada junior hockey title for the wheat city.

Thursday night the Wheatles walloped Calgary Buffaloes 5-2 to take a commanding 3-1 lead in games in their best-of-seven series for the Abbott Cup and the right to meet Montreal Royals in the Canadian final.

Not since 1932-33, when Turk Broda, now goaltender of the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs, played junior hockey for Brandon, has the wheat city seen such a strong aggregation. That year, Brandon was beaten in the western final by Regina.

Now odds-on favorites to wind up the series here Saturday night the Wheat Kings again displayed a powerful defence aggregation and brilliant goal keeping. It was through the terrific work of goalie Ray Frederick and his defencemen that Brandon came back to win the second and third games at Calgary 4-1 and 5-3 after dropping the opener 3-1.

The moves proved ineffective as Rea seemed jumpy and Cruickshank and Art Buffy only two penalties, one of which set up Brandon for a goal.

Jack McKenzie, tall right winger, bagged two goals for the Kings, while Frank King, Bryan Roche and Walt Pawtyshyn got the others.

Belleville Cage Teams Show Surprising Strength, Win In Tournament at Kingston

Kingston, April 22 — (CP) — Queen's University's basketball committee counted on its heavy artillery Thursday night to carry the opening game of the city high school tournament, but Belleville Collegiate Institute's huge Queen's gymnasium was a beehive of activity.

In one of the roster games of the day, Ottawa Glebe edged out a surprisingly strong Belleville squad 27-26 with a last minute rally. Spittle and Proctor with eight and six points respectively for Glebe while starry Ray Gallinith scored 16 for the losers.

Picton eliminated Morrisburg while they defeated them 25-18. Cornwall paced the winners 11, and they now will meet Picton.

Napanee team continued its winning ways with a 33-15 victory over Prescott in another C section game.

Ottawa Pushed Out

Ottawa Commerce was pushed out in the opening game in section B for schools with a registration under 300 when they were defeated them 27-20.

Albert College battled its way into the semi-final round of B section with a 40-23 triumph over Pembroke.

Ottawa Glebe downed Brockville by a 34-24 count in section A, for schools with a registration over 400. Murray led the Brockville squad, while hailing distance of the first Glebe team until the third quarter when King and Faills took over the scoring honors for the winners.

Albert College stepped into the final round of section B with a 25-16 win over Ottawa Negatan. The winners were down a single point at the halfway mark but Merkley and Buchanan led the way to a 14-point second half while the Negapa team was being held to two field goals by Roberts.

Reginolds College of Kingston encountered the semi-final bracket of section A as the 40-26 triumph over Pembroke to oust them from further play.

Peterborough remained the only undefeated team in section A by virtue of their 30-19 victory over Ottawa Glebe in the final game of the day. Wilkins, Faills and Hunter paced the attack for the losers while H. Dibben and Northcott paced the ball-breaking Peterborough team.

Regina Capitals Humbled by Fort Frances

Regina, April 22 — (CP) — Few of the 4,500 spectators who saw Fort Frances Canadians humble Regina Capitals 11-6 Thursday night in an old story. In the opening, back - to - the - wall outfit has a chance to snatch the Western Canada senior hockey title.

Their victory tied the best-of-five Allan Cup semi-final at two games apiece. The sudden-death decider is here Saturday night.

For Canadians, the long, hard comeback is an old story. In the previous playoff series leading to this semi-final Fort Frances came from behind to down Kenora Thistles, Fort Arthur Bearcats and Winnipeg Nationals. A victory Saturday night would make Fort Frances Canadians "Cinderella" team in Canadian hockey.

For the first time in Regina Caps' four - year history the floor to their dressing room was bolted after the game.

The only real excitement came in the Centenary Schriner, the former Toronto Maple Leaf and one - time junior National Hockey League players in the Regina lineup.

We got off to a bad start and then just went crazy," was Sweeney Swanson's explanation of defeat. He was tabbed after leaving the dressing room.

In Canadians' dressing room, Coach Fraser reiterated an earlier statement that Fort Frances' Saturday night now that we got the third game.

Willie Tonisato, playing with two stitches after a high stick caught him in the lip in the first period, picked up three goals to pace Canadians. He notched two in the first period on close-in shots and then scored on a long drive in the third period after Caps' goalie Bev Bentley made no effort to stop.

Caps had difficulty clearing the puck from their defensive zone but countered the semi-final bracket of section B as the 40-26 triumph over Pembroke to oust them from further play.

Peterborough remained the only undefeated team in section A by virtue of their 30-19 victory over Ottawa Glebe in the final game of the day. Wilkins, Faills and Hunter paced the attack for the losers while H. Dibben and Northcott paced the ball-breaking Peterborough team.

No Open Season On Moose in Ontario in '49

Toronto, April 21 — (CP) — There will be no open season on moose in Ontario in 1949, Lands Minister Harold Scott announced Wednesday. He said his department is acting on a recommendation of the Fish and Game Committee of the Ontario Legislature.

The announcement said the department plans a close study of the moose population of the now closed season.

There has been no open season on moose in Kenora and Rainy River districts for more than 10 years. Last year north of the Trans - continental Railway the season was open Oct. 1 to Nov. 25; east of the Canadian National Railways line from Port Arthur to Sioux Lookout, Oct. 15 - Nov. 25; in the Sault Ste Marie, Sudbury and North Bay areas, Nov. 1-25.

League Champion Red Wings Place Three on NHL All-Star Squad; Leafs Are Overlooked

By VIC MORRIS, JR.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, April 23 — (CP) — Three players from the National Hockey League champion Detroit Red Wings won berths on the mythical all-star team, but Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup winners, failed to place a man on either the first or second teams.

Here are the first and second choices of six N.H.L. coaches as announced by the league today:

First Team

Second Team

Maurice Richard's selection at right wing marks his fifth consecutive year on the first all-star squad. Another Montreal, Bill Durnan, gets a fifth nod although he failed to make the grade last year, giving way to Johnny Mowers of Detroit.

Cash awards of $1,000 go to each player named to the first team and $500 to those making second.

Canadiens and Wings stole the show, giving only one man place on the first team to Chicago's Roy Conacher, a first-timer, as an all-star.

Three Holdovers

Quackenbush, Stewart and Richard are the only holdovers from last year's all-star roster. Stewart made the first all-star team in 1942-43 with Detroit and came through again last year to bring his total up to three years on the team that coaches dream about. Quackenbush is on his second team, having won the award last season.

Another newcomer is veteran Sid Abel who took the centre spot previously occupied by Syd Lach who missed most of the season with injuries.

Durnan and Quackenbush were the only players receiving a unanimous selection. Both got a maximum of 25 points.

The points were awarded on the basis of five points for a first choice, three for a second and one for a third. Coaches were not allowed to vote for players on their own team.

Richard polled 23 points, Abel 21, Conacher 19, and Stewart 17. Harmon and Howe got 16 each, 15.

The left wing selection was close with Conacher gaining the nod over Lindsay by only two points. This is how the other second team members came out in the wastage voting: Rayner 10 Bentley 17; and Howe 11.

City Players, Teams Barred From League

Wingham, Ont., April 22 — (CP) City teams and city players won't be allowed in the baseball and softball leagues of the Western Ontario Athletic Association. Representatives from more than 20 communities met here to draw up rules for the association's ball leagues and decided on a $25 fine for teams using players from cities.

Baseball leagues will include intermediate, junior, juvenile, midget, bantam and girls' teams and softball leagues will include intermediate, A, B, C, women, juvenile, midget, bantam and pewee teams.

The W.O.A.A. will accept Ontario Baseball Association rules, except that no club can use more than 13 million from its home field.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, April 22 — (AP) — "I was in England with two fighters," said Ray Arcel. "One was 21 years old and the other 27. But mentally the 27-year-old is only 21 and the other is 37."

Arcel, one of the canniest trainers in the business was referring to Tony Zale, Jairo and Tommy Yarosz and the main difference, he explained is that Yarosz is a guy who likes to fight and to box while Zale just looks on boxing as a way of making money . . . "You never like the boxers who fought because they liked to fight and who never had to go to the gym because they were always fighting. The average fighter nowadays is too lazy to train the way he should . . . Tommy is going to be the fighter of the year you wait and see. I don't think that a guy who has discouraged and ready to retire . . . Dumb Dan Morgan, who had preserved unaccustomed silence too long, interrupted at this point: "I know some others who are ready to retire — daily double players."

Today's Guest Star:

Ralph Wentworth Bradenton, Fla. Herald: "Selecting baseball pennant winners has one big advantage over football prognostications. In football you can nominate Notre Dame, Army, Navy and be a bum Saturday. It takes five months to reach the bum status on a season-long diamond pick."

Canadiens; Charlie Conacher Chicago Black Hawks; Tommy Ivan, Detroit Red Wings; Lynn Patrick New York Rangers; and Happy Day, Toronto Maple Leafs.

Marlboros Back In Senior Race, Defeat Ottawa

Toronto, April 22 — (CP) — The surging Toronto Marlboros were back in the fight for the Eastern Canada senior hockey championship today on the heels of a startling reversal of form that saw the Ontario titleholders shut out Ottawa Senators 7-0.

Cheered by a hometown crowd of 12,946, Marlboros went onto the ice driving Thursday night and never let up for a second and they trounced the injury-riddled Quebec champions and deadlocked the best-of-seven series at two wins apiece.

Fifth game is scheduled for Toronto Saturday night with the sixth in Ottawa Monday and a seventh, if necessary, back in Toronto Wednesday.

Hockey Howie Harvey, hitherto apparent to Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs, starred in the Marlboro nets. It was his second straight shut out on the ice against the Senators who downed Marlboros in two straight games at Ottawa before Toronto won the opener 5-0 here last week.

Chuck Blair, young right winger, and Johnny McCallum, rangy forward, spearheaded the Toronto attack. Each got two goals and an assist. Blair opened scoring when Johnny McCormack, Hugh Bolton and Sonny Blair.

Many Players Injured

Senators, playing without Butch Stahan and Conny Tuttin, ace defencemen, were hobbled in uniform. Eddie Emberg played with a broken left hand and Hugh Copp had a broken thumb.

The listless Senators played loosely and all three Toronto goals in the first period were the result of poor Senator checking in front of their own net.

Marlboros added another in the second period and three more in the last 20 minutes.

The hard driving and close checking by the rugged Toronto team saw two brief fist fights, both in the Second period. Flash Hollett and Bill Robinson tangled in one and a few minutes later, Al Buchanan and Emile Bouchard traded punches. The only damage was major penalties to all four.

The Eastern winner meets either Regina Capitals or Fort Frances Canadians for the Alan Cup in the Canadian senior finals, opening in the East April 28.

Toronto Leafs Win Opener From Newark Bears

(By The Associated Press)

Don Newcombe, Negro right-hander of Montreal Royals, is off to a grand start in his bid to prove that Brooklyn made a mistake in not retaining his services.

Newcombe, who at first baseball on returning to Montreal, pitched the Royals to a three-hit 3-0 conquest of Baltimore Orioles Thursday night as the International League began its 66th consecutive season.

The Royals, with a crowd of 14,960 on hand, combat Byron Stephens and Johnny Wittig for 11 hits including home runs by rookie Lamar Bridges and Sam Jethroe.

Veterans Joe Judd of Jersey roll, Ont., and Johnny Hetki also turned in fine pitching jobs. Judd checked Buffalo Bisons Leafs to a four - hit 5-0 triumph over Newark Bears and Hetki of Syracuse blanked Buffalo Bisons, 3-0.

Jersey City Giants outslugged Rochester Red Wings 9-5 in the remaining game.

Judd, who along with Newcombe hurled a no-hitter last year, walked only two Bears and fanned three.

"Nature Unspoiled" — YOURS TO ENJOY — YOURS TO PROTECT

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer.

Put this in your pipe and puff on it for awhile. A new bid does not always show another trick. Only when a next bid is a raise in number does it consume an additional trick.

Keep working on this deal:

NORTH
♠K Q J 10 3
♥A 8
♦J 8 4 3
♣Q 3

WEST EAST
♠9 8 5 4 ♠7 2
♥Q 8 5 3 ♥K J 10 9 4 3
♦7 ♦A Q 10
♣8 6 5 2 ♣K 7

SOUTH
♠A 6
♥7
♦K J 6 5 2
♣A J 10 9 4

The bidding has gone this far:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 S	2 H
3 D

The next bid by north is three spades. This shows his suit is rebiddable. Does the show increase a trick? No. Over the south bid of three diamonds, three spades is not a raise in partnership number.

The north opening one bid promised five tricks. Since his three spades is not a raise, he shows no more tricks. Not yet has he told south of his sixth trick. Maybe he can do so later.

When east passes three spades, south bids four clubs to show his second biddable suit. It is a raise over partner's last bid of three spades. How many tricks does south show?

Before he is heard from responder is assumed to have two tricks. Each heaven by him consumes another trick in his hand. His raises, therefore, use up his tricks in excess of two.

Over one spade of his north partner, south first raised twice when he had to say three diamonds. This brought out four of his tricks; a raise of two with his two assumed tricks.

Four clubs over three spades is another raise and reveals his fifth trick. West should bid four hearts. But north now shows his sixth trick with an assist raise to five diamonds.

Should they be in five? South has admitted six tricks. South admitted six and five are 11. Right on the button.

Hollywood, April 23 (AP)—When will television become big time? Next Fall, perhaps. Fall of 1950 for sure.

That's the way it looks after a survey of TV plans of most of the big radio shows; it's apparent that most of the top television talent will come from the industry's older brother. Here is the latest news:

Eddie Cantor—Will definitely jump into TV next Fall with simultaneous radio and telecast for present sponsor.

Amos 'n' Andy—"We are working on an unusual idea for television and hope to come up with something in the next few months."

Burns and Allen—Going to New York in June to discuss a TV deal with CBS' William Paley.

Jack Benny—May do a monthly videocast in the Fall; was happy with his debut on the local CBS station.

Bing Crosby—Definitely plans a TV show, but many will be other year; will do show on film.

Bob Hope—Making big plans for TV; may start in Fall.

Radio Theatre—Not adaptable because film studios own most televisecasting of movie stories or stars.

Edgar Bergen—Plans a few telecasts next season, will probably be a regular in Fall of 1950.

Al Jolson—Laying plans for a ministrel show on TV.

Ozzie and Harriet—Have put their own children into the show, replacing actors who impersonated them; this is first step toward TV, which they may start in Fall.

Fred Allen—In no hurry; "Let the others pioneer it."

Fibber McGee—Definitely interested; both son and daughter in TV field; Molly calls herself a "television widow," since Fibber spends all his time watching the screen.

Spike Jones—Has been experimenting with show, but no commitments yet.

There seems little doubt that most of the radio stars will join Milton Berle, Arthur Godfrey, Perry Como and other air stars who have already leaped into the new field. It will happen when (1) Coaxial-cable televasting comes in, (2) There are enough sets in the United States for sponsors to put out more money.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting, Bob Scheffing, Cubs—Smashed homer with Andy Pafko on base in eighth inning for 4-3 edge over Pittsburgh.

Pitching, Ben Cleamons, Indians — Set down St. Louis Browns with two hits, both homers, in 6-4 victory.

Radio 'Oscars' And Citations Are Distributed

New York, April 22 (AP)—Ten radio "Oscars" and three special citations, known in the network industry as George Foster Peabody Radio Awards, were distributed on Thursday.

For the first time in the nine-year-old history of the awards, a special salute was paid to an "outstanding contribution to the art of television."

This went to the American Broadcasting Company's "Actor Studio" as "the first to recognize that drama on television is neither a stage play nor a movie, but a separate and distinct new art form."

For the second time, Edward R. Murrow, CBS commentator, received the award for "outstanding reporting and interpretation of the news." He won a Peabody plaque in 1943.

Other awards for outstanding achievement included:

Entertainment in drama—NBC's University Theatre.

Entertainment in comedy — Groucho Marx (ABC).

Entertainment in music — NBC for its over-all contribution to the broadcasting of good music.

Program in promotion of international understanding—CBS for its overall contributions with special reference to Larry Leseuer, U.N. correspondent.

A special citation was awarded station WNYC, New York, in promotion of international understanding for "initiative in creating 'little songs about U.N.'"

Three Are Slain In Saskatchewan Farm House

Wakaw, Sask., April 21 — (CP) — A young farmer was under police guard in hospital here today after a nightmarish affair at a district farm house that resulted in the death of three persons.

Police said Andrew Balatsky, about 35, had been given an "even chance" to recover from a slashed throat. The tragedy in which he was involved took the life of Mrs. Katherina Balatsky, 29, her six-year-old son, Bohdi, and Peter Adamyk, 70.

A police officer remained on duty in the hospital here to which Balatsky was taken. Police said Wednesday night that no charges had been laid up to that time. Details of the triple tragedy were meagre.

Wakaw is about 40 miles south of Prince Albert.

Police said three weapons — a rifle, an axe and knife — had been used in the slayings. An autopsy was scheduled for today.

Boy Swept Half Mile In Sewer, Rescued

Blackburn, Lancashire, Eng., April 21 (AP)— Five-year-old Kevin Wilson fell into a sewer while playing today and was rescued one hour later a half-mile away.

The boy's playmates told his mother he had disappeared into a narrow hole on a vacant lot. Watchers were posted at manholes all along the sewer, which contains a swift stream two feet deep. A fireman sighted the boy floating past and grabbed his legs until the policeman could bring him to safety, alive but unconscious.

Reeve Welcomes Lindsay, Podolsky To Kirkland Lake

(By The Canadian Press)

A parade of vehicles stretching for more than a mile formed an escort Thursday at Kirkland Lake for Ted Lindsay and Nels Podolsky as they returned to their homes here after a strenuous National Hockey League campaign.

The two Detroit Red Wings stars were met at the city limits and escorted to the Teck township hall where they were greeted by councillor Larry Longo-eillers and other representatives of the municipality.

Later Reeve Anne Shipley made a presentation to the two athletes.

Vancouver Clover Leafs clicked Thursday night for their third straight victory over Winnipeg Paulins Kings to win best-of-five western Canada basketball final and the right to defend their Dominion basketball crown.

Montreal Y.M.H.A. Blues took a commanding 14 point lead here Thursday night in the first game of the eastern Canada two-game total-point senior basketball semi-final by trouncing Saint John Saints 58-44. Second game will be played here Saturday.

At Sackville, N.B., Mount Allison University edged Sault Ste. Marie Algos 46-44 Thursday night but lost the Canadian intercollegiate championship to Ontario squad. Algos won the opening game Wednesday night 39-44 to take the two-game, total point series 101-87. The Algos now will open a two-game Canadian final at Antigonish, N.S., Saturday against St. Francis Zavier University.

At Montreal, a fast-moving Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. quintet scored a 45-38 victory over Montreal Y.M.H.A. Blues here Thursday night to take a five-point lead in the opening game of a two-game, total-point series in the eastern Canada senior basketball semi-final playoffs.

Officials of the Guelph Biltmores, Ontario Hockey Association junior A entry, said Thursday at Guelph they were seeking to sign Alex Delvecchio, former York Rangers player, to succeed Don Holmstrom as coach of the Biltmores. Pike has been conferring with club officials.

At Kirkland Lake, Thurso Lumber Kings moved two games up in the eastern Canada intermediate A semi-finals Thursday night by downing Roupn Flashes 6-4. Thurso now leads the best-of-five series 2-0 in games. The teams now move to Ottawa for the remaining games, with the third game Saturday night.

COUNCIL CHANGES MIND

Coldwater, Ont., April 21 (CP) —On April 14 Coldwater council voted to retain standard time. At a special meeting last night due to public reaction council voted four to one to go on daylight time this year but instructed the clerk to arrange for a vote on the question next Jan. 1.

Driving Courses Helping to Cut Accident Toll

Toronto, April 22 (CP)— The Ontario Motor League reports its members to number more than 75,000 this year, which will reach 100,000 by 1951, its president, A. W. Sandrock of Toronto, said today.

In an address prepared for delivery to the League's 42nd annual meeting, he said there was "a record increase" in membership during 1942, with 26,461 members added to the rolls. Enrollment of motorists this year will reach approximates 10,000.

"This remarkably increase bespeaks the value which motorists attach to the League's services," Mr. Sandrock said.

These services, as listed in the report of General Manager W. G. Roberston of Toronto, now include emergency road service to take car repairs or breakdowns, travel advice and road books, placing of black-and-yellow directional signs on secondary roads, legal advice and defence, automobile personel accident insurance and a monthly magazine.

Mr. Sanderock said the Toronto-Hamilton Safety Motor League and the League's affiliated clubs in other cities are continuing to support safe driving efforts, especially those aimed at establishment of driver training courses in high schools.

Michigan's experience in teaching driving to high school students were related by Richard Marsh of Detroit, General Manager of the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Formal education, if it is to meet the needs of this generation and of coming generations, must give public safety a far more important place in the curriculum than has been the case in the past," said Mr. Marsh.

"Last year 38,000 Michigan students received instruction. We know that drivers who have taken high school safe driving courses have only half as many accidents as those who have not received such training. And Michigan the State police say that, although our program has just begun, there are already indications of a reduction in accidents in the high school and college age groups."

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching pop smoking to himself in his private chair and wondering if it was a good time to ask him to sine my hom report card, and I said, Oh well, I guess I'll start to' do by homework.

Be careful not to overheet your brane, pop said.

Meaning it sarcoastic, only I pertended I thawt he meant it serious, and I said, O, pop, do you really mean that? actually watch a child as getting too smart and knowing too smitch.

But of course, pop said. There's nobody more unpopular than the man who knows more than anybody else about everything. Once I knew a chap named Hoppy Graysnatcher. There wasn't anything he didn't know all about, so when he was operated on for inverted appendix he kept advising the doctor ho wmany stitches to put here and how many to put there, and where to make this incision and where to make that one, and so on and so fourth until the doctor got so confused he removed his stummick instead of his appendix, and poor Hoppy everybody sits know more about everything than you do!

Let's not go to either extreme, pop said. It's better to be likes the man who dances well enough not to imbarrass his pardner, and yet not so well that he disconcerts all the other dancers from getting up on the floor, he said, and I said, Well hmmmiates, pop, that's just exactly the way I am in school. Lots of the fellows get worse marks than I do, and still I'm not so darn perfect that all the other guys think what's the use of them even trying, and if you dont believe it, here's my report card to prove it. I said.

And I gave it to him to sine. But instead he did saying the next time he'll let me do most of the talking till he has a better idea what the conversation is about.

Washington Spotlight:

Congress May Take All Summer To Consider President's Program

By GEORGE RONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, April 23 (CP) — Congress may have to stay on the job all summer if full consideration is given to President Truman's "fair deal" program.

The legislative log-score to date is not impressive. After almost four months, the 81st Congress has made only two major decisions: It authorized extension of the European recovery program and voted to retain rent controls.

The Truman program also includes civil rights, a new labor law, price controls, increased taxation, housing, aid to education, a new kind of aid to farmers, an amended reciprocal trade agreements act, more social security, a higher minimum wage and national health insurance.

None of these has yet been written into law.

Causes of Delay

Cited as chief reasons for the slow progress are:

1. The time-wasting filibuster in which southern Democrats teamed with Republicans in a successful fight to preserve the Senate's right to filibuster.

This battle had civil rights undertones. Southerners took on the filibuster as their one sure weapon against enactment of the President's anti-discrimination, anti-lynching proposals. They claim these are matters for action by individual states, not by the federal authority.

2. Delaying tactics which smack of political jealousy and which Democratic leaders call a deliberate slowdown.

This was most evident in the case of F. B. I. director J. Edgar Hoover, who won overwhelming approval, but only after a long, weary series of Republican criticisms and proposed amendments.

New Subjects

Prospects of a long, hot summer session are heightened by at least four highly important matters which have arisen since Truman's appeal to the public last November.

The North Atlantic treaty must be ratified. The measure to provide arms for the European members of the alliance also is slated for thorough study.

The international wheat agreement signed here in March will not take effect unless ratified by a majority of the 41 signatory countries by July 1.

And Congress has much to do if the Hoover Commission's long report on re-organization of government departments and agencies is to be more than a scrap of paper.

VALUABLE TOP SOIL

If an inch of top soil is lost from an acre of land, approximately 700 pounds of nitrogen, 155 pounds of phosphorus, and 3,300 pounds of potash are lost.

Saunders Urges More Efficient Use of Resources

Ottawa, April 22 (CP)—More efficient use of the power resources of the St. Lawrence and Niagara Rivers was urged Thursday by Robert Saunders of Toronto, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission.

"Every minute, every day potential power is being wasted by improper use of these great natural resources," said Mr. Saunders. He spoke at a joint meeting of the Engineering Institute of Canada and the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

By making full use of the power potential of the Niagara, Ontario could obtain an additional 400,000 to 500,000 horsepower.

He said more efficient use of the Niagara will be discussed with the Niagara-Hudson Company in Buffalo, N.Y., very soon. The waste, he added, should be stopped as quickly as possible.

The Canadian and United States governments will be asked to allow the Hydro Commission to go ahead with power developments on the St. Lawrence if they decide not to proceed with the joint seaways and power projects.

"I have no desire to be drawn into any arguments on the merits or demerits of the joint plan," he said, "but, as chairman of Hydro, I am anxious for the right to go ahead with the power portion of that project."

Mr. Saunders told of the Commission's efforts to meet new demands for power. . . . Every new home, factory or office means another consumer of power. Hydro was supplying 868,503 consumers today compared with 789,113 in 1945.

BLIND GARDENERS

Canberra — (CP) — The War Blinded Welfare Committee's paper, "Chins Up" has started a scheme giving "Many people," it says, "think it impossible for a blind man to cultivate a garden, yet our men have gardens, which, in beauty and design, are far above average."

STREET LAMP DADDIES

Bristol, England — (CP) — Residents here are being asked to "adopt" street lamps in the streets where they live so that the local authorities are told when the lights go wrong.

Three to Face Trial in Alleged Permit Dispute

Toronto, April 22 — (CP) — Three men are to face charges in Niagara Falls, as a result of allegations into an attempted shakedown of a Niagara Falls club which sought a liquor licence.

Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell announced Thursday night that the charges had been laid against Leslie F. Gallway, 35-year-old St. Catharines taxi driver, and William J. Horrigan and Michael P. O'Connor, both of Toronto.

Gallway is accused of obtaining money by false pretences. Horrigan and O'Connor are charged with conspiracy and obtaining money by false pretences.

The attorney-general said Gallway represented himself as an official of the Niagara Peninsula branch of the "Young Men's Conservative Movement of Canada" when he allegedly offered — for a price — to help a Niagara Falls club obtain a liquor licence.

Mr. Blackwell said there was no organization known as the Young Men's Conservative Movement of Canada in Ontario. But investigation indicated that Gallway used by certain persons to obtain money for the promise of political favors.

Gallway is said to have approached the directors of the Niagara City Club, which had an application before the Ontario Liquor Licence Board, Mr. Blackwell said. The taxi driver is alleged to have told W. S. Martin, a club proprietor, that for a price he could obtain the licence. Mr. Martin called in George Hughes, deputy police chief of Niagara Falls, and investigation led to Gallway's arrest.

The Ontario Liquor Licence Board then held an in-camera inquiry. Mr. Blackwell said that, as a result of that investigation, Horrigan and O'Connor were brought into the case.

O'Connor was one of the witnesses called during an Ontario legislature committee investigation recently into irregularities which arose when ballots were tabulated in Toronto St. George's riding last June. He was not mentioned in the committee's report to the House.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

From the station in the city she took a cab. When she went into the living room, the two sexties began to stir restlessly. She touched them and whispered, "It's Gay. Go back to sleep," and they went back to their pillows.

Lying in bed, her tight nerves relaxed. Tonight had been a hideous nightmare and her madness shamed her!

Penny's voice out of the darkness was soothing.

"It's all right," she said, "it's all right because you came back, Gay. I was afraid you wouldn't. I worried so about you."

She bit down on her lips. "It — it was horrible, Penny! I despise myself! Chris would call me a coward."

Penny's voice was gentle. "He wouldn't if he's the man I think he is. He'd say that we all make mistakes and he loves you because you are so human."

"Something else he said," said Gay, running her fingers through her hair. "He said that things could always be a little worse."

Afterward she knew that on this night of all nights in her life she had called upon the strength and wisdom of Chris, knowing that all the things he had said to her would be forever in her heart.

In Nassau the moon was full. In a quaint room Mac Bolton uncrossed his long legs, looked at Chris, and said, "Evelyn Ewing is a darn beautiful girl and she plays tennis like nobody's business. Why don't you get wise, Chris? I like Gay. She's gorgeous and all that but Evelyn is the daughter of a newspaper man and she'd make a swell wife."

Chris took the cigaret from between his lips and turned around from his typewriter.

"I don't like hair measures. I want what I want or I don't want anything."

Mac grinned. "But there's an old saying about a bird in the hand, Chris, you know."

"But the only eyes I want to look across my breakfast table at me for the rest of my life are Gay's eyes," he smiled. "Her face always gives her away. When she's hurt, she hides it with her lashes. When she's happy, they laugh with her." He started to smoke and to type again.

"Okay. But the English," said Mac, "are a pretty unbeatable race."

Outwardly Gay was the same girl she had been yesterday. But Alan's bitter denunciation of her had left throbbing wounds that could not heal. There was a new wisdom in her eyes, a wisdom that comes from experience and hurt, but in her heart Gay was wondering where the path of her life was taking her.

She did not see Gregg or hear from him. Her last memory of Alan, leaving her on the steps of the parsonage in the wind and cold, was a bitter one. The strain of Diana's work was telling on her. She looked old and very tired. Penny went about her life gallantly, drawing her pictures — drawing to forget Mac Bolton.

There was a feverish unrest at the studio. Gay went into Marchand's office one day.

"I'd rather you had selected one of the other models to be the bride in the fashion show," she told him. "It can't be a success with so much dissension. I don't want the spotlight."

"My dear little girl," Marchand replied, removing his glasses, "you'll have to be in the spotlight whether you like it or not. Don't take their jealousy seriously. And don't come to me with tales from the dressing room. I'm a busy man."

"It might have serious results," said Gay.

"Nonsense." When she walked to the door, his eyes followed her slim figure in a blue chiffon dress. "I don't see Mr. Randolph's car at the curb these days." He shook his head. "Foolish girl."

"Perhaps."

Linda, sweet with the fragrance of gardenias, came in that afternoon.

"How's my wedding gown coming along, darling?" She lighted a long English cigaret and crossed her perfect legs. "You've no idea how much you've saved me by those fittings. I just came from seeing Marchand and he told me you were going to be the bride in Mrs. Brent's charity show. Every one will be there! Every one!"

Gay looked like a schoolgirl in contrast with Lucia's severe elegance in a brown skirt and soft yellow sweater.

Lucia said, "I have only a minute, darling. So much to do! But Mrs. Brent's ball falls on the night of Alan's bachelor dinner and I told him we simply had to put in an appearance at the ball. Mrs. Brent would be hurt if we didn't." She got up, pulled a glove over the shining emerald. "I saw Gregg at Alan's dance last night. He is too divine looking, Gay, and all the debs simply fall at his feet."

"Was his mother there?"

"Yes, and what a gorgeous creature she is! If I don't see you before, I'll see you at the ball. Take care of yourself, darling. And I hope in the fashion show you will be as radiant in the fashion show as I shall be the next day." She gave Gay a scented kiss on the cheek.

When she went back in the dressing room, Nita's black eyes seemed to stare through her.

"All your old pals will be at the ball, won't they?" And lengthened her thin curving brows with a black pencil. "If I were you, I'd rather be in the background. You're not going to feel so good when you see all your old friends."

Gay sighed. Alan — on the night of his bachelor dinner. Gregg, Mrs. Randolph. And Lucia on the eve of her wedding.

When she turned and went out to cool her anger, the little blonde said, "Why don't you let up on her, Nita? It's tough for her as it is. I think she's pretty swell. There isn't a day that she doesn't have to swallow something that's hard-to-take. She hasn't complained and she works hard and minds her business."

Nita said, "I want the spotlight that night. Just wait. I'm not going to be cheated by a broken-down aristocrat with red hair."

It was snowing when Gay came out of the shop. It settled on her hair and shoulders. Ride or walk, she wondered. Better walk. It saved a dime and it was good to walk in the fresh clean air — and when life opposed you at every turn. She might have been Alan's wife now, she thought, edging her way through the heavy evening crowds, and Lucia would never wear that exquisite dress nor Alan give a bachelor dinner. She might have been Alan's wife with Lucia's ring on her finger had not that picture, "Night in Nassau", clear-ed the mist in her mind and recalled Chris.

Crossing the street, she paused, looking through the thick flakes and she heard her name. "Gay! Gay!" and a long sleek car stopped.

Millicent Randolph, luxurious in mink, cried, "Oh, my dear, get in this minute!" She opened the door and Gay got in. "I went to the shop and you were gone. I'm cold taking you home, my dear. I'm taking you to my apartment. You look positively frozen."

Frozen, shaking and discouraged, she thought, entering Millicent's spacious drawing room. Catching sight of herself in the mirror, she thought, "I look like a working girl now. My clothes show hard wear. Only my hair is bright these days. That, at least, hasn't lost its lustre."

The roaring fire felt good. A maid brought in tea and little sandwiches, and looked a moment in wonderment at the slim young girl curled up on the soft dressed so simply in a brown skirt and yellow sweater."

Millicent changed into a mauve tea gown.

"Gay, stop being a martyr, my child. Gregg is so much in love with you that since you refused him with that terrific honesty of yours, he's been going at a mad pace, to try to forget. Frankly, I'm afraid for him. So many girls, you know, are anxious to marry Gregg's money, but not Gregg himself. I don't want that to happen to my boy. I want him to marry the girl he loves."

"I won't take him as a refuge. I won't marry him to make my mother secure. No, not even for her. She wouldn't want me to."

"We can do so much for you, Gay. I feel close to you. I loved your father very dearly and I love Diana. When I saw you today, caught up in the crowds, picking your way across the street in the snow — oh, my dear, not Stephen's precious daughter!"

Napanee Youth Killed, 2 Seriously Injured in Crash

Car Hits Bridge Rail Near Morven White Church

Napanee, April 23 (CP)— One Napanee youth is dead and two are critically injured in Kingston Hospital following a fatal accident at 3 a.m. today on No. 2 Highway, five miles east.

Ian Mackinnon, 21, son of the late Dr. A. L. Mackinnon, former Napanee physician, was killed instantly when the heavy sedan he was driving crashed into the south rail of Kaylers bridge near Morven White Church corner. The left side of the car was torn completely off.

Donald Smith, 19, son of Dr. H. W. Smith, Napanee veterinary, and Raymond Giles, son of John Giles, Napanee were both unconscious following the accident and little hope is held for their recovery.

The three had attended the Queen's University basketball tournament in Kingston the night and were on their way home to Wolfe Island when the accident happened.

Headless Rooster, Lazarus, is Dead

Los Angeles, April 23 (AP) — The celebrated chicken succumbed unexpectedly in front of city inspectors who were serving notice to condemn Mrs. Martha Green, with an order to kill him within 12 hours.

New Automobiles Have Drawback SaysMotor League

Toronto, April 23 (CP)—That big, new automobile has its drawbacks.

The Ontario Motor League's annual meeting Friday unanimously passed a resolution protesting "the extravagant body styles and fin gadgets which add little or nothing but a heavy burden on the owner."

Delegates representing 75,000 Ontario Motorists and T. J. Mahoney of the Ontario Good Roads Association condemn what he called "the unnecessary expense and cost involved in the manufacture of cars in recent years."

T. N. Phelan, counsel for the O.M.L., said new designs had caused "unnecessary additional load of fragile construction and increased difficulty of repair work. Other features created added cost of extra width making the driver of the normal sedan, capable of shiny front fittings confusing past-eighteen people.

Bisptort, Me., April 23 (AP) —Lorenzo H. Calder, 75, succeeded in getting to burn a barn he fired a week ago while burning some near his home. He was born on Campobello Island, N.B.

WEST GERMANS BEING OFFERED BROADER POWERS

Big 3 Want Federal State in Operation

Washington, April 23 (AP) — The United States, Britain and France today held out an offer for broader self-governing powers to the western Germans in an urgent effort to get a federal state started in the former enemy country.

With a possible cold-war victory for Russia hanging on the outcome, the United States is keeping up trouble-shooter on German affairs, Ambassador Robert D. Murphy, overseeing all the compromise proposal to balking leaders of the German Social Democratic party.

The new concessions are aimed at meeting some of the Socialists' demands, which have blocked approval of the plan by the German parliamentary council working at Bonn on the draft of a constitution for the new state.

German rejection of the self-government plan would be regarded as a hard blow to the west in its struggle with Russia to keep Germany from Communist control.

Murphy, American political adviser on German affairs, is due in Frankfurt by air in time for a critical meeting Monday between the western military governors and the German leaders.

The new concessions are contained in a message from Acheson sent April 8 to the United States, Britain and French military governors with instructions that it might be passed to the Germans at an "appropriate" time.

Submitted to the Bonn council Thursday, the memorandum drawn up by the three Foreign Ministers was taken point-by-point:

1. Berlin cannot be included at this time in the new federal government for west Germany, which is to be made up of 11 lander or individual states.

2. The central government should be given "sufficient" power over matters involving more than one state.

3. "Financial independence" would be granted both the central government and the individual states.

Parents Located After Children Were Evicted

Toronto, April 23 (CP)—Mrs. Fred Thompson and children found Friday in a downtown home after they had been evicted from a rooming house Wednesday night and were put up in foster homes.

The five children—Ronnie, 11; Fred, 10; Jimmy, 8; Douglas, 22 months, and Dougie, nine months—were found in a dirty rooming house after their mother disappeared yesterday after having failed to return. They were fed by a police station while Children's Aid Society officials obtained a court commitment.

"We had no place to go," said Thompson, a truck driver "so we took the children to a rooming house while we went out and looked for a place."

The Thompson family had been evicted from a housing development earlier this week.

Armed With Drugs Hospital Squad Battles Flu in Eskimo Village

Edmonton, April 23 — (CP) — Armed with drugs and penicillin, a reinforced hospital squad today continued the battle against an influenza epidemic that has swept the Eskimo village at Aklavik, population 1,100 — and north, of Edmonton.

The disease has taken 15 lives, and left 42 natives ill, but Friday night latest reports received by Dr. H. Meltzer, medical director of the Charles Mansell Hospital here, said all the patients were responding to drug treatment and the epidemic appeared to be in hand.

First stages of the battle with the disease were led almost single handed by Dr. F. C. Gallagher, at Aklavik who learned of the sick-

Men and Women Weep At Funeral of British Sailors Killed by Reds

Shanghai, April 23 (Reuters)—Men and women of many lands wept unashamedly today as 23 British officers and men killed when Communists shelled British warships on the Yangtze River, were buried in the International cemetery here.

While the ceremony was still in progress, an R.A.F. Sunderland flying boat from Hong Kong upstream to inspect the trapped sloop Amethyst, was fired on again as she flew over the crippled warship.

The Sunderland's gasoline tank was pierced, but she returned to Shanghai safely. Low cloud, as four British ships.

well as the firing, prevented a thorough inspection of the position of the Amethyst, which is reported still held by Communist hands.

Those buried here today were 13 men from cruiser London, 10 from the destroyer Consort, and one from the Amethyst.

At the request of relatives of Lt.-Comdr. B. B. Skinner, Captain of the Amethyst, his body will be buried at sea.

Information received so far about the 23 British dead shows six dead and 34 wounded, as a result of the Yangtze incidents involving four British ships.

Indications Seen of Solution By Which India as Republic To Remain in Commonwealth

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 23, (CP)—Delegates from Britain and the seven Dominions attending the current commonwealth conference today face a weekend of private discussion among themselves in an atmosphere of growing optimism.

Indications were that a solution had been reached by which India, after becoming a republic could remain within the Commonwealth.

Prime Minister Attlee will entertain Prime Minister Nehru of India and Pakistan Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand during the weekend at Chequers, his country residency.

Canada's delegation, C. D. Howe, External Affairs Minister, will meet tomorrow his colleagues with Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan before visiting Wolverhampton Moor to take tea with Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The progress of the talks will be reviewed by the Cabinet on Monday when the conversations will be resumed at 10 Downing Street, official residence of British Prime Ministers.

One subject of the discussions between delegates will be met informally during the weekend probably will be a written document which Prime Ministers Attlee of Britain and Nehru of India, were reliable reported working on.

The document is expected to be the basis for their second formal meeting on Monday.

Word of official progress received tight-lipped, speculation centred along these lines:

Britain's new relation effective constitutional matters will be made within the Commonwealth on general agreement.

Since India probably will not obtain republican status until this Summer, there is a feeling that the conference will not end finally until then when the matter could be aired in a calmer atmosphere.

Ford Workers Give Approval To Call Strike

Detroit, April 23 — (AP) — Workers at the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant have voted by mail approval to a strike proposal, an official of United Automobile Workers (CIO) union here has reported Friday night.

Local president Thomas Thompson said a final count of ballots in the five-day strike vote showed 20,396 voters in favor of the walkout and 4,400 against.

The action by the union gave it a speed-up on production lines at the Ford Rouge factory group.

Only International Board approval would be needed to call a strike if the membership vote approval, Thompson said.

More than 100,000 union members of the Ford local voted in the election. It was called originally to protest the speed-up of single local trustee positions.

Meanwhile, negotiations early ahead with plans for 1949 contract demands at Ford. The National Ford Council of the U. A. W. is scheduled to meet next Wednesday to consider proposals.

Veterinary Profession Honors Prem. Kennedy

Guelph, April 23 (CP)—Terming the man who had done the most for the veterinary profession, Premier Kennedy of Ontario was honored here Friday night when he was presented with an illuminated address by the Ontario Veterinary Association. In conferring the honor, Dr. D. J. McLellan of Toronto, President of the Ontario Vet. Ass'n. well-built, well-staffed and well-equipped Ontario Veterinary College here, paid tribute to Col. Kennedy, who in his official capacity as Minister of Agriculture had been always a friend of veterinarians.

LAO CHOKETENG TO ACCOMPANY POPE PIUS IN SOLEMN MASS

Vatican City, April 23 (AP)—Some 3,000 child choristers from a dozen nations will accompany Pope Pius Sunday in a solemn mass. The ceremony will be broadcast throughout the world at 2:45 a. m. EST.

London, April 23, (CP)—Delegates from Britain and the seven Dominions attending the current commonwealth conference today face a weekend of private discussion among themselves in an atmosphere of growing optimism.

Indications were that a solution had been reached by which India, after becoming a republic could remain within the Commonwealth.

Prime Minister Attlee will entertain Prime Minister Nehru of India and Pakistan Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand during the weekend at Chequers, his country residency.

Canada's delegation, C. D. Howe, External Affairs Minister, will meet tomorrow his colleagues with Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan before visiting Wolverhampton Moor to take tea with Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The progress of the talks will be reviewed by the Cabinet on Monday when the conversations will be resumed at 10 Downing Street, official residence of British Prime Ministers.

One subject of the discussions between delegates will be met informally during the weekend probably will be a written document which Prime Ministers Attlee of Britain and Nehru of India, were reliable reported working on.

The document is expected to be the basis for their second formal meeting on Monday.

Word of official progress received tight-lipped, speculation centred along these lines:

Britain's new relation effective constitutional matters will be made within the Commonwealth on general agreement.

Since India probably will not obtain republican status until this Summer, there is a feeling that the conference will not end finally until then when the matter could be aired in a calmer atmosphere.

Search For Plane Is Cancelled By Poor Weather

Halifax, April 23— (CP)— R.C.A.F. here said poor flying weather cancelled today's continued search for an R.C.A.F. aircraft, missing on a flight from Ottawa's Rockliffe Airport to Gresham, N.S., on Thursday.

Eight planes, seven from the Greenwood, N.S., base and one of yesterday, were recalled and were standing by for a break in the weather. Fog patches and intermittent rain-squall in the search area.

Stockholm, April 23 — (AP) —

Paul Robeson's concert Thursday night turned into a political row. The trouble started when the noted American Negro baritone sang Russian, Swedish, Czech and Negro folk songs. Robeson sang the second verse of the Swedish national song in English. Then most of the audience understood, the crowd started a demonstration that lasted a time drowned out the singer.

ENRAGED CROWD PELTS BRITAIN'S TOP COMMUNIST

Man Besieged in Building for Hours

Dartmouth, England, April 23 (AP) — An enraged, stone-throwing crowd besieged Britain's top communist, Harry Pollitt, in a building for hours here late today.

He finally escaped unharmed after the incident, which followed the breaking up of a political meeting where Pollitt had criticized the shelling of four British ships by Chinese communists.

Walled Till Crowd Left

Pollitt waited till the crowd gave up and left. He then drove away from the daybreak through deserted streets.

For a time neither police nor reports could get through to Pollitt. reporters discovered he had taken refuge in a private home at the village of Dartington, near Totnes.

Pollitt scheduled to speak last night at Totnes under police protection. His host, F. Seyd, said the meeting had been held as was scheduled. Pollitt would not come out because a mob had gathered and surged through the area looking everything they could lay hands on.

Car catcalling crowd shouted "down with Russia" during the incident in Dartmouth.

A shower of stones and other missiles had broken up an open-door gathering Friday night where Pollitt, general secretary of the British communist party, attempted to discuss the sight of British warships to be in the Yangtze River when Chinese Reds shelled them. A father whose son was killed on one of the warships figured prominently in the discussion, and invited Pollitt to hang himself.

Stones started flying when the meeting, burned the communist banner which had flown from the speaking platform, and followed when the police removed Pollitt to a private home of Ernest A. Holtman, local communist secretary.

Some were in the crowd shouted: "We'll fight the Russians."

Pollitt remained in hiding in Holtman's home for about five hours, then, when the crowd dispersed, he drove away in the direction of Totnes. Police stopped west of here, where he has a home, and informed him of those they expected he would address that meeting. He also is scheduled to speak tonight at Falmouth which, like this city, is a Royal Navy base.

The trouble started when Pollitt halted his speech to answer a question and asked if anyone had questions. Things started to go to a line when he said he would like to "ask the same question as many of you are asking, that is why the British sloop Amethyst going in the Yangtze with food for starving people."

A man stepped forward, handed Pollitt a rope and a note which read:

"Judas Iscariot was presented with one of these. Will you be invite you to do likewise." The man denied responsibility for it. Akhurst, father of Petty Officer John C. Akhurst, who was killed aboard the destroyer Consort by Chinese gunfire.

Pollitt and the crowd shouted Pollitt's name should be "Polliteau" and fist and stones began to fly.

Rationing Major Factor in Lives Of 48 Million Persons in Britain

London, April 23 (CP)—Rationing isn't what it used to be in dollar-short Britain. Though it's still a major factor in the lives of the 48,000,000 Britons, they point out proudly that clothes ration ended last March.

Ration coupons are still as vital as cash for many foodstuffs. But housewives and even "Forsyte" come off the ration tomorrow. Milk and eggs now are available in greater quantities as well, though still rationed.

Gasoline is highly controlled but motorists will get a bit extra for summer touring.

Most Britons agree they've come a long way from the tight days when they were out to less than half the calories they could buy in pre-war years.

But the future remains a question mark.

Britain's rationing machinery, which controls the flow of commodities in its administration, started rolling Sept. 25, 1939, with control of gasoline.

In January, 1940, food rationing was introduced for butter, bacon and sugar. Later it was extended to cover almost all foodstuffs except fruit and veg.

June 1, 1941, saw cloth and clothes rationing and shoes came under the coupon system.

Troops Blow Up Railway Station Before Departure

Negotiations to Turn City Over to Communists Begun

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

Nanking, April 23 — (AP) — The Chinese government abandoned Nanking today and departing Nationalist troops blew up the big railway station just outside the undefended walls of the capital.

All along the Yangtze, demoralized government troops gave away before the Red assault that breached the great river barrier. Four Nationalist armies, totalling nearly 100,000 men, retreated southward.

Negotiations for turning the city over to the Communists already were reported under way.

Here soon the Reds, would take over no one would say — if they knew. There was only one reason they had not yet come: they had not yet chosen to do it. There was nothing to stop them.

Planes and cranes billowed up all along Nanking's river port from fires set by departing government troops as they pulled out. Mobs surged through the area looting everything they could lay hands on.

Saw Teams at Work

I saw Nationalist demolition teams blast the Nanking railway station just outside the city's north wall, they worked quickly and efficiently in an area controlled by thousands of fierce "liberators" scurrying around the stripped warehouses.

I heard the blasting port area for the second time today; it was a scene of utter destruction and desolation.

There were no regular Communist troops to be seen, although fire was going on steadily all along the south bank of the river. I saw some bronze-clothed soldiers carrying rifles — probably Red guerrillas.

Foreign military quarters reported the Communists. Big Red flags were flying over the Japanese war Nanking—Chinkiang, Yang and Kuyong, all between three points, ranging from 35 to 70 miles downstream from the Nanking's flank from northeast to southeast.

Phone Line Cut

Earlier reporting that no Red had entered by about noon, Nanking time, Topping's telephone to Shanghai was cut. Since it is possible the line was cut, Shortly Shanghai time, Communist troops swept Shanghai that the Reds had entered Nanking.

Whether government troops would hold inside the city was in question.

Premier Sir Ying-Chin took over the defence ministry and presumably flew to the uncertain haven of Shanghai.

With Red troops in overwhelming force between the Yangtze between Nanking and Shanghai, the Nationalist cause was hopeless in position.

(Shanghai said few troops could be seen there. This raised speculation that Gen. Tang En-Po, commander in the Nanking-Shanghai area, already had sent his main Shanghai defence forces south.)

May Use Canton

Canton seemed likely to become the seat of government.

Daylight Saving Begins at 2 a.m., Turn Clocks on Daylight Saving goes into official effect at 2 a.m. Sunday.

You don't have to get up at that unearthly hour to advance your clocks and watches, but don't forget to do it before you retire tonight.

And don't use it as an excuse to stay away from church tomorrow morning. Last year a number of red-faced residents arrived at their places of worship to discover the service was nearly over.

So advance those time pieces an hour tonight—and don't say it weren't warned.

PHONEY $100 U. S. BILLS

Ottawa, April 23 — (CP) —A number of phoney $100 bills in U. S. currency may be circulating in Canada, the post office warned Friday. Postmasters have been notified of the dates and numbers of the bogus bills. Printed on one sheet of paper on the red and blue lines simulate the colored fibers. They might easily be mistaken for the real thing.

ALBINO MUSKRAT TRAPPED AT FLINTON

Stated to be of rare occurrence in the animal world a muskrat with snow white fur was trapped in the Flinton district just before the close of the trapping season.

The albino muskrat which was of normal size was trapped by Gordon Hasler. The muskrat had white fur, tail and feet.

Game overseer Robert Davison said a white muskrat was an unusual novelty and the one trapped by Hasler was the first to be taken in the Tweed district in many years.

Albert College Wins 'B' Section Of Tournament

Kingston, April 23 (CP) — A foul shot by Don Griffin in a sudden-death overtime gave Peterborough Collegiate its second championship in the four years of the Queen's University invitation tournament Friday night after a fighting Brockville team whipped the champs in the final game of "A" section, 29-27.

In a second 16-minute game, the two teams battled to a tie and forced another overtime. Griffen settled the matter after two minutes of play when he made the overtime's first free toss.

Napanee C. I. captured the "C" section title by sweeping through the tournament without a loss, downing Renfrew C.I. 28-21 in the final game. A tired Renfrew team kept pace with the speedy Napanee quintet until half-time but faded badly in the last quarter.

Albert College of Belleville made a winning jump into "B" section by tying Ottawa Nepean 30-30 in their final contest, and, under tournament rules, captured the crown by carrying over an nine-point advantage from their previous encounter in first round play Thursday.

Nine-Year-Old Boy Lost in Bush For Five Hours

Bancroft, April 23 (Special)—Lost for five hours late Friday afternoon in the bush, nine-year-old Ralph Chamberlain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chamberlain, of L'Amable, five miles south of this village, was found by a posse of 75 men.

Friday afternoon the young lad had gone with his father to the bush and while Mr. Chamberlain was cutting logs the lad wandered away. Some time later the father missed the lad and made a frantic but unsuccessful search in the thick bush.

A quick trip to the farm home showed the lad had not returned there and police at Bancroft were notified with O.P.P. Cpl. Stan Palmateer and Const. W. Fitzsimmons in charge of operations.

Assistance of the Bancroft telephone operator Miss Reta Jenkins resulted in the 75-man search party being formed in less than half an hour and armed with flashlights and lanterns the men commenced their search. Personnel of the Department of Lands and Forests at Bancroft, assisted.

The immediate area where the lad had disappeared was thoroughly searched without success and the search widened. Finally at eight o'clock in the evening the lad was located on the banks of L'Amable Creek, about two miles from where he had disappeared. Provincial Const. Ray Lee had prevented the boy from wandering farther away.

Cpl. Palmateer gave much of the credit for the successful search to Miss Jenkins for her work in quickly rounding up the search party by telephone.

Snoozer Gets Rude Awakening

He sat peacefully snoring in his automobile parked on Station Street.

A smile of contentment played over his face as he dreamed of better things to come.

Nestled in the crook of his right arm was a bottle of rye and all was right with the world.

Then came the rude awakening. He "came to" with a start. He was in strange surroundings. The car had disappeared. So had his pal, the bottle. Even the rye had nearly disappeared.

Fully awake, his dreams gone, he realized that he was in the safety of the police station, where Sgt. Hobbs police officer furnished him with lodging for the night.

New West Belleville School Will Include Latest in Modern Features

With plans for the building having been completely approved by the Department of Education at Toronto, tenders for the construction of the new school in West Belleville are now being solicited. Construction will commence immediately the contract is let.

Harold C. Sellen, chairman of the special building and accommodation committee for the Belleville Board of Education and architect, Wm. Thomas Sellen administrator on Friday visited Kingston and went over in detail with architect Brewer and Smith, the specifications for the building.

Eight-Acre Site

The new school building which will be of the most modern design will be constructed approximately 120 feet north of the present northerly limits of Ridley Ave. on the Yeomans Street property recently deeded to the Board of Education by the city. There will be adequate grounds surrounding the building. The site contains more than eight acres.

The new school in West Belleville will be of one-storey construction with the walls of brick with some stone facing to give the building an appealing appearance. There will be no basement with the exception of provision for boiler space and coal storage.

The school will contain six rooms and auditorium and will include a well designed kindergarten as well as principal's office, staff room, health room and a more generous space for supplies and stocks.

Floors in the main corridors and in the washrooms will be of terrazzo, with classroom floors to be covered with battleship linoleum. All floors on which traffic will be considerable traffic will be covered to facilitate cleaning.

Another feature of the new school building calls for soundproofing of all classrooms.

Plenty of Light

Ample window space will be another feature of the building with one complete wall of all classrooms to be open. Draw curtains will be used for light control. Artificial lighting will be of the incandescent type, well positioned and diffused.

School furniture will be of the modern type and will be removable.

Mr. Kells stated the school building committee was satisfied that architects Drever and Smith of Kingston have designed a fine school building of which the city of Belleville can be proud and the construction of the school will commence as soon as the plans are finished for immediate construction.

Three Gunmen Escape Bank Without Loot

Fergus, April 23 — (CP) — Three nervous gunmen fled without loot from the Fergus branch of the Imperial Bank Friday after firing a shot through the brassering of the bank's accountant.

Provincial police radio cars were patrolling the area for the bandits, who fled to the East in a stolen car.

The shot pierced the trousers leg of accountant Aubrey Walker as the bandits, apparently excited by the sounding of the bank's burglar alarm, fled. Assistant accountant William Beacon followed them to the street and fired several shots after them.

Wearing khaki overalls, the three masked themselves as they entered the bank just before closing time and said: "This is a stick-up."

In the bank at the time were manager Fred W. Kyle, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Beacon, several girl clerks and about a dozen customers.

Mr. Kyle sounded the burglar alarm with his foot, which tripped the bandit as he fired at the accountant.

Provincial police from detachments at Guelph and Mount Forest converged on the area and set up road blocks.

"My accountant was very fortunate," Mr. Kyle said. "The shot just missed him, passing through the leg of his trousers at his hip.

"One covered me and another covered the two tellers . . .

"The man who entered my office was pretty nervous. His revolver was shaking around quite a bit."

The men covered their faces with dark-coloured cloth caps and shoved customers away from the bank's counters.

The bank is on the main street of this town 12 miles north of Guelph.

Poultry Offering Fairly Good On City Market

For the second weekend in succession wintry weather put a quietus on the local produce market as the morning downpour put a damper on business at the market square.

On the saddle market eggs held at the usual 47 cents per dozen although the quantity seemed rather in excess of the demand. Mediums were quoted at 45 cents the dozen.

Fowl was fairly plentiful with best grade chickens bringing 55 cents the pound and the general asking price 50 cents for medium fowl. Broilers sold at from $1.80 to $1.95 per pair.

A few farmers' wives offered dairy butter at 60 cents per pound.

Mudcats and smelts were plentiful on the saddle market with both fetching 25 cents per pound and the latter at 21 for five pounds.

Potatoes sold at $1.65 to $1.75 per bag and carrots, beets and parsnips at 50 cents the peck. Winter onions were a dime per bunch and hothouse lettuce 25 cents.

Talman Sweet apples sold at 80 cents the small basket and Delicious at 75 cents. Ben Davis were $2 the hamper.

A few flowering panales and other potted plants were offered at varying prices, according to size Hlips sold at 75 cents per pot.

Young pigs were in demand at $12 to $13 each.

TROOPS

Canton asked Foreign Emissaries to move to that south-coast metropolis from Nanking.)

Acting President Li Tsung-Jen also was reported gone from Nanking, source his battle maneuverings for peace. His destination was not known.

A member of his family in Hong Kong said Li had arrived in Canton.

Li and "retired" President Chiang Kai-Shek met Saturday in Hangchow, 150 miles southeast of Nanking. They issued a declaration that they would fight "to the end." But where? And with what?

The situation was deteriorating rapidly.

Thousands of Communist troops were racing out from a vast bridgehead 60 miles southwest of Nanking. They easily could drive straight east across the line of the Nanking-Shanghai railway.

Has Authority to Evacuate

In Nanking itself, there was no immediate word on whether T. C. Davis, British ambassador to China, was planned to leave. He has authority to evacuate his staff if he thinks it necessary. The staff is made up of C. A. Ronning, Valhalla Centre, Alta.; J. A. Menzies, Guelph; H. L. Starnes, Ottawa; Janet McLeod Toronto; Col. P. Wilmot, Ottawa; and the unidentified military attache.

About 250 Canadians, mostly missionaries, live in the Yangtze basin area. Many have already moved to Shanghai.

Still in action but under frontal attack was the 200,000-man army of Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi defending Hankow. This central-China base is 400 miles southwest of Nanking on the Yangtze.

(Associated Press correspondent James Burke said he learned on a trip to Hankow earlier this week that Japanese had left Canadian Hankow.)

The situation in Nanking was chaotic at that time before volunteer militia brought about a semblance of order. The city was without water or power.

Looting looted stores and homes. Among the homes looted were those of many government officials, including that of acting president Li and Premier Ho. Looting of Nationalist-held

IN MEMORIAM

LLOYD—In loving memory of a dearly beloved wife and mother who fell asleep April 23rd, 1948.
Sadly missed by husband and children.

As a candle that has burned,
Within a single room,
Warming hearts beside its flame,
Lightening the gloom;
Is carried by a shielding hand,
Through a darkening land,
To be lit in a brighter room.
Then that which was before
So those we love must sometimes pass
Beyond our present view,
Must leave us and must leave our world, too.

Without their radiant light to guide us,
Without their love to shield the candle flame is just away,
That another room is brightened
By their warmth and loving ray—
And in Heaven's candelabra,
Where they shine divinely bright,
Each candle burns forevermore,
Each flame is love.
Lovingly remembered by husband and children.

WILLIAMSON—Suddenly at his home 1st concession of Ameliasburg township on Friday April 22nd, Carl Adams Williamson, aged 65 years.
Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Cannifton Street, until late this Saturday afternoon and then to the family residence where the service will be held on Monday at 2 p.m. Interment St. Thomas' Church Cemetery, Ameliasburg.

Girl Guide Activities

Plans are well under way for the annual local association tea to be held early in May at the home of Mrs. A. S. Lewis, 20 Bowen St. This is under the direction of convener Mrs. Jas. Forrester. Mothers of Guides and Brownies will be personally contacted with regards to this affair.

It is expected the annual church service will be held on May 22nd. Watch this paper for further details.

July 24th-August 4th is the tentative date set for Girl Guide Camp. This if it is for an Area Camp at Carruther's Point, Kingston, for Second Class Guides only. So, come on Guides' don't miss out on this chance of having fun where is still time to get your Second Class Badge. More of this later.

The Commissioner, Mrs. J. Watson will hold a meeting of her Brownie Leaders shortly to plan for a joint closing ceremony of all Brownie Packs.

Two of the local Guiders, Capt. Audrey Stewart and Lieut. Dorothy Stewart are making arrangements to attend the hiking expedition, going to Banff in August. There will be 33 Guiders from all parts of the Dominion under the leadership of Miss Shirley Cameron, Provincial Trainer of Toronto.

Co. 7 News

"Strap your Sack to your back with a sandwich for a snack and we'll take to the road, with a song," was the theme of the Guiders, Patrol Leaders and Seconds at our meeting held on our first hike of the season, Monday morning. We soon found & should have been "The rain is raining all around", but that didn't dampen our spirits any for we unanimously agreed it was fun.

We hiked along the bank of the Moira River until we found a satisfactory stopping place. After a brief bit of exploration, we set about collecting dry wood and building our fires. It was decided to form three groups and practise the three types of fires required for the hiker's badge. By that time it had started to rain and although we had picked a fairly sheltered spot, the Guides erected shelters as a further protection against the wind and rain. When these had been completed, the fires were lighted and dinner cooked. We all gathered around the one fire to take some pictures, then we cleared up the camp site and started for home.

It was a real test of woodcraft skill to build these shelters and keep the fires going in spite of the wet weather.

The Guides are making satisfactory progress in their test and badge work. A number of Guides are working on their cook's needlewoman's, housemaker's and world knowledge badges. A group of Guides under the instruction of Acting-Lieutenant Phyllis Archard, graduate of the St. John's Ambulance course, passed their Second Class First Aid. As the Company now has 10 Tenderfoot Guides, we expect to hold an enrollment ceremony in May. At this ceremony there are several badges to be presented, including one First Class.

Song of Robin Heard in Land

Written For The Canadian Press
By PEGGY GHENT

Spring comes to Canada once again with a rush of robins. From the new province of Newfoundland, all across the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and over the prairie lands as far as central Alberta the eastern robin is waking his silver flute.

But the bird is not a robin at all but a large migratory thrush for of no consequence are to the professional ornithologist, and does not influence the robin's song to the extent of a single sour note. Robin redbreast the bird was named by first arrivals from Europe in remembrance of that beloved bird "back home," and the name will always stick.

Bird songs have had an irresistible appeal for Canadian poets. Duncan Campbell Scott tells of the redbreast's song in the alliterative line, "Ringing from the reverberant harrow, rills the robin's tune." Sir Charles G. D. Roberts, in his "Ave" writes, "Again I heard the song of the glad bobolink, whose lyric throat pealed the tangle of small bells afloat." Of the same bird, Robert's cousin, Bliss Carman, has a musical line, "Bobolinking in the meadows, leisure in the purple shadows." Archibald Lampman, too, tells of the bobolink, "Sprinkling his music about the meadows," like "... the links of glassy bells."

"From the wild, spiced with dark cedars, cried the whip-poor-will;" wrote Isabella V. Crawford. Ethelwyn Wetherald hears the indigo bird sing "A song like a bird laugh, blithe and clear, as though of some slyy jest he had heard." Helen Merrill speaks of the bluebird's "...magic of the spring."

But an hour of listening with heart and ear attuned to the spring is no consequence save

UNITED ACTION

The war on cancer has taken the form of widening people's knowledge of the disease and of the dangers of this dread malady and at the same time of stressing the importance of early treatment and the recognition of its earliest symptoms. Widening knowledge will lead more and more who might be potential victims to security by taking advantage of these guards which modern progress in knowledge of the disease has made available to every man. The Health League of Canada has been doing a fine work in bringing the public's attention to these matters.

This effort should lead to new safeguards against the toll which this disease takes. The fact that the people are becoming cancer conscious is seen as one of the most hopeful signs of the times.

The cancer problem poses great responsibilities on those who are in charge of health measures and of the health education of the people. This campaign deserves the earnest support morally and financially of all people for it is by united effort and co-operation with the health organizations that new light will be gained on this disease and as to the means to combat its increase.

VALUE OF TOURISTS

Other nations can see in Britain's efforts to expand the number of visitors to the British Isles during the coming season how earnestly the people have gone to work to draw the largest possible number of visitors from this side of the Atlantic to their homeland with its innumerable attractions. Special arrangements have been made whereby visitors will be able to enjoy the opportunities of visiting Britain this summer, all that is required being to fill out a simple form for journeys over 20 miles. This is to provide means whereby the driver or hirer of the car can reclaim the gasoline expended on such journeys. Extra gasoline will be issued to owners of motorboats hired by overseas visitors. Those who bring their cars or buy one in Britain receive an allowance of coupons on landing to cover a journey to their farthest destination in Britain as well as back to port and a generous touring allowance.

This stressing of the importance of visitors from abroad indicates the advantage such a country as Britain has of entertaining a large number of visitors.

FORECASTING

The sun expert of the Smithsonian Institute, Dr. Charles G. Abbott, recently stated that weather predictions may be possible for any day for as far as a year ahead. This thought is based on his studies on the periodic fluctuations in the heat radiation of the sun. He has had a success in approximately hitting the mark last year in Washington. He claims the same method could be applied to any other area. Drops and increases in temperature he claims have found coincide with the periodic fluctuations in radiation given off by the sun. He says that there is a uniform periodicity of slightly more than six days in the sun's heat radiation — for it rises and falls in intensity due to sunspots or other solar phenomena.

These claims leave no doubt that an immense amount of knowledge is being assembled in relation to the sun's radiation and the weather and it may be that some day there will be foretelling long in advance of conditions of weather. Man has learned much about the universe in which he plays his part on this terrestrial ball.

PLACE FOR MEDITATION

It has been announced that there will be a special chamber for prayer and meditation in a secluded part of the new skyscraper headquarters of the United Nations in Manhattan, New York. For as Archbishop Spellman of Christiance Bourne Monitor, "many people have been disquieted by the fact that the United Nations, dedicated to the concept of one world, has taken no cognizance of One Supreme Being without whom unity of spirit and action is inconceivable." It says that though opposition may be encountered toward such a project of man's need for spiritual guidance, there can be no legitimate grounds of offence to the most fanatical sectary or militant atheist in an unadorned, quiet room where one may voluntarily withdraw to be alone with one's best thoughts.

The article added the thought that it is in such moments of humble aloneness and acknowledgment of values above the level of acrid debate "the true togetherness of men may dawn on human thought. For this unity-in-adversity toward which humanity struggles with sweat and tears requires a spiritual unity which can arise from time to time the pre-existent spiritual unity of creation fresh from the hands of its Creator."

The test of every religious, political or educational system is the man which it forms.—Amiel.

DIAMOND AND MAN

The diamond perfect seemed to be
Without a single flaw.
The expert looked and said that he Could see
Some imperfections saw.

Said he: "This stone I cannot pass.
'Tis not the perfect kind!
But I've used a powerful glass
To find
Each little fault to find.

Oh, when on men the Lord must pass
His judgment, can it be
That He will use a powerful glass
To see
Each hidden flaw to see?

And since unto the souls of men
Perfection seems denied,
Will all our little failures then
Be found and magnified?

Capital Closeups:

Man in Blue Guides Tourists, Knows all About Senate, House

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 23 (CP)— Did you know that the ceiling of the Senate Chamber is painted with telltale gold, that the ceiling of the Commons is hand-plastered and that the parliamentary library contains 500,000 volumes?

Just follow the man in the blue uniform and he'll tell you about it.

The man in blue is one of the half-dozen members of the parliamentary protective staff who daily, year in and year out, escort thirsty hordes of tourists about the big-grey-stone building on Parliament Hill and give them neat, thumb-nail lectures on the Commons and the Senate.

He'll tell you, for example, that the wood and stonework on the walls of the Senate Chamber were laboriously hand-carved and that the gilt-and-velvet chairdellers in the Senate tip the scales at more than two tons apiece.

He'll point to the fossil-bearing Manitoba limestone that forms the walls of the parliamentary corridors and tell you that there are a centuries-old part of the rock, the easily-discernible outlines of fish, crabs, pheasants and other small game. The pride of the guides is a fossil in one corridor which shows the perfect formation of a squirrel stop a log.

Tourists

The protective staff handles tourists by the thousands per day and as many as 2,000 or more on Sundays and holidays. The all-time record was set last year when 35,000 visited the buildings in a single day. They came mostly from the throngs which gathered in the capital for the Roman Catholic Marian Congress.

The tourists come from many places, from all of the provinces and many of the States across the border, and they ask many questions. Perhaps one of the strangest was the young woman who entered the building and asked a constable: "What is this big building used for?"

The constable explained patiently that it was the seat of government and of parliament, that the law-makers of Canada met there to discuss and to pass upon legislation.

And then he asked from what far-away place did she come.

"Oh," she replied blandly, "I live right here in Ottawa."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 23rd, 1929.

Mr. Austin Walters is home from Queen's University to spend the weekend.

The partnership existing between C. H. Ketcheson and M. L. Hancock, trading under the name of The Belleville Nursyries, has been mutually dissolved and the business will be continued by Mr. W. C. Reid under the same name.

Mr. R. J. Graham has purchased the Bellevue Terrace on Pattersons Street and will convert the building into high class apartments.

The Quinte Cycle Club was formed last evening at a largely attended meeting at the Y.M. C.A. Officers will be elected shortly and until then a committee composed of Harry Lennox, Sandy Thompson and Joseph Shortt will receive applications for membership and attend to other necessary business.

30 YEARS AGO

April 23rd, 1919.

At a meeting of the city council Ald. Hanna moved, seconded by Ald. Wood, that the city council give serious consideration to the Provincial Government Housing Scheme at the next meeting and that a by-law be introduced appointing a housing commission consisting of five members. The motion was unanimously carried. Ald. Rigg gave notice of a motion that a pavement be constructed on Pinnacle Street from Mill Street to Dundas Street.

Mr. S. J. Fisher of Campbellford, who recently purchased the Hudson Fire Insurance Agency here, has purchased from Mrs. S. A. Lockwood, the fine residence at the southwest corner of Bridge and Albert Street and will take up residence there shortly with his family.

40 YEARS AGO

April 23rd, 1909.

It now seems practically certain that a by-law will be submitted to the ratepayers to provide a sum of $70,000 with which to pay for the erection of three public schools in this city.

Mr. Harry Flagler went to Brockville today.

Mrs. Mrs. Leavitt and young son, Spencer, left this morning to visit friends in Detroit, Mich.

The Rev. G. R. Beamish, rector of St. Thomas' Church, will address the men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Arthur D. Ostrom of Vancouver, B.C., accompanied by his two sons, is visiting in the city. Mr. Ostrom is an old Sidney township boy and this is the first visit he has made in eight years.

Arrangements are being made for the 15th. Battalion, A.I.F., to visit Picton on May 24th.

50 YEARS AGO

April 23rd, 1899.

There will be a meeting of the members of the Historical Society in the Officers' Quarters this evening.

Mr. T. J. Wills went to Toronto today.

Mr. E. H. Palen went to Albert College to settle a fire loss.

Mrs. Charles Miller of Picton is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Woodley, Murney Street.

Mr. Paul Lalonde, who has been with the Al. G. Field's Minstrels for some time, is home on a short visit.

Dr. Charles Milton Reeves of this city will please accept our congratulations on having obtained the degree of Licentiate of Dental Surgery.

FIVE CANDIDATES

Mr. Blackwell, whose black unruly hair gives him a boyish look, is a great lover of Shakespeare during the First World War.

He has publicly taken responsibility for Ontario's liquor policy which permits larger cities to have cocktail bars. And during the recent legislature he sponsored the police and fire department bills which extend aid to municipalities for the operation of police and fire departments. He introduced police radio communication system in Ontario and announced recently that it will be put in the Northern Ontario.

Educated at Osgoode

He was educated at Osgoode Hall law school and the University of Toronto where he was an outstanding athlete.

Suave, scholarly Mr. Porter is of mid the youngest of the five candidates. He was named Ontario's first minister of planning and development in May, 1944. In October 1948 he was appointed to his present post of Education Minister and Provincial Secretary.

As planning minister, he was responsible for organizing Ontario's air immigration plan which brought thousands of Britons to the province. He represents Toronto St. George in the legislature and was first elected in 1943.

A student of labor affairs, he is a member of the advisory council of the Labor Research Institute.

Born in Belleville

He was educated at the University of Toronto Schools, the University of Toronto, Oxford University and Osgoode Hall law school.

Mr. Roberts, 50, was born in Belleville. After graduation from Osgoode Hall he practised law for a short time at Port Credit, near Toronto, and then for six years at Cobalt in northern Ontario, where he specialized in mining law.

He was elected to the legislature in 1943 to represent Toronto-St. Patrick's, a seat he held until the election last June. He has carried on an active campaign for the leadership, particularly in northern Ontario.

Mayor McCallum was appointed Judge of Toronto in February, 1948, when former Mayor Robert Saunders resigned to accept the chairmanship of the Provincial Hydro-Electric Power Commission. He was elected to another term as Toronto's Mayor last January.

At 48, he is president of a Toronto printing company. Born in nearby Caledon East, he spent several years as a boy at Bow River, Alta., where his family moved in 1919.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The best trout streams are those which have stretches of inaccessible water. In the older districts of the provinces of Canada, the reason for the disappearance of the trout has been the clearing of the land.

With the removal of the woods, the very nature — the chemical nature — of the water in the brooks has changed. And even if the farmers have left a strip of wild land along the streams, the raging freshets of spring — caused by the lack of woods on land, far and wide, which would hold back the water — would soon have washed away and destroyed the cedars and brushwood along the banks.

Here and there, swamps, the main where, in the almost inaccessible rivulets, a few refuges to the carry on their race. What few good-sized streams enjoy a reputation for trout invariably have stretches of their length protected by swamps or tangles where a head of trout may preserve itself.

In the eastern United States, the conservation authorities now set up or expropriate sections of all streams where trout may be found. Once they plant these back to cedars, alders and every species of vegetation that will make impenetrable thicket. As much as a quarter of a mile on either side of stream is given back to wild nature at will—without fishing. Within these, the planting of hatchery-reared trout would be hopeless as showing them down knot-holes in the hatchery floor. But sanctuary areas are closed to all fishing and are stocked naturally. The overflow from these sanctuaries fills the stream with wild, true trout.

For one trout fisherman on the streams twenty years ago, there must be twenty or thirty today. Trout expansion of public interest, in outdoor sport does not spell ruin for the out-of-doors. It may spell salvation, if a large enough section of the people demands — not conservation — but restoration of wild nature near at hand.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE MIRACLE OF DESIGN IN BOOKS

I was intrigued a few months ago about a new publication that was projected that should tell about America's Heritage. The publisher was a young man by the name of Malcolm Forbes, who at that twenties was one of the sons of the publisher — a young man by the name of Malcolm Forbes, who is but twenty-four years of age, when he explained his purposes to a large group to which I was a well-wisher. He gave an inspiring talk and each one present was invited with the first issue of his publication, which he calls "Nation's Heritage."

Well, I took the first issue home and went through it carefully, and can truthfully say that it is one of the most beautiful and inspiring creations I have ever seen. I would like to see the look on Stalin's face could a copy be set before him in the careful personal! In fact, I would like to see the entire Politburo sit around a table looking it over. It is a very world view, in magic beauty, the evolution of the American Republic.

Every school, college, club, public reception room, and every library in the land, should have a copy to which to refer for reading and meditation. It would be an investment in character, for no one can go through this publication without being thrilled with pride over the opportunities that our land has attained, and which had made it the greatest nation of all time. Indeed a heritage to thank God for, and be glad that we have served at any cost.

In a single issue of this remarkable publication I note some 300 pictures, reproduced paintings, photographs, maps, and scenes of the story of America. Beauty rich and rare, taste in typographical arrangement, simplicity of style. My first though was, who but the very opulent can afford this unique magazine? Single issues are $30.00 each, but I have several books in my library, that have meant sacrifice to attain, that cost more — and none more beautiful in color and material than a single issue of Malcolm Forbes' Heritage.

There has never been a time such as right now when we should appreciate and be grateful to preserve this Miracle of Democracy. I believe that the patriotic service initiated by this idealistic young publisher will go far toward accomplishing this.

"CADDY" SEEN AGAIN

Ucluelet, B.C. — (CP) — Vancouver Island's legendary sea monster, "Caddy," has made another appearance. A fisherman reported he fought a large sea serpent with a snouted head 20 feet from his boat on the Island's west coast.

Dr. Edward Joseph O'Leary, prominent figure in sports throughout the Ottawa Valley 35 years ago, died in hospital in Shawville, Que., Friday. He was 68. Dr. O'Leary, a lacrosse player of note, was a member of Capt. Billy Bay, Que., and Dr. O'Leary was a National Hockey League referee for a number of years after retiring from active sports.

At New York a petition to have the daily double declared illegal by the New York Courts has been taken under advisement Friday by Supreme Court Justice Lloyd E. McGeehan, who heard the state described as the operator of a gambling business conducting to juvenile delinquency, corruption and deterioration of the petition brought by former Magistrate Joseph Goldstein for Murray Mellman of New York. The State Racing Commission and the various New York racing associations were named as defendants.

MILK DIET FOR HARDENING ARTERIES

Discussing the case of the man, age 54 who has been caring for his 83 year old mother for advanced senile dementia, although her physical health had always been excellent, I said two years ago, day that I should not be greatly concerned about the man's activity. He said his great grandmother, grandfather and uncle had gone the same way. Now what could be do to prevent senile dementia from overtaking him?

I gave him three good suggestions—and just between ourselves I recommend the same medicine for everybody who hopes to grow old enough to get senile dementia.

Senility (old age) or rather longevity (long life) depends upon the state of the arteries. Hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis) manifests itself in many instances as senile dementia. It may be true that this young man has inherited from his forebears some peculiar defect or fault of the tubing that predisposes to impairment of the cerebral blood supply. But I believe there is no such history in this case, and I think I should start a bit I said to myself "See here, now, Brady, you have prescribed a certain skim milk diet for people to flood Death Valley. Isn't it time you were tried a little of your own medicine?" So I tried it—and dreadful, took a few ers and hesitated. It was not bad, not at all bad. By the time I had finished the quart I had acquired an actual liking for it.

It is not the fat, often or weak with hardening arteries should attempt to follow a milk diet exclusively, but I should advise any one with a tendency of or any of the manifestations of arterio-sclerosis to make a minimum of 4 to 5 pints (quarts) daily of fresh milk or skim milk; the former skim milk or buttermilk Bulgarian or Acidophilus cultured milk or yoghurt a basic article of the diet I had acquired a liking for it.

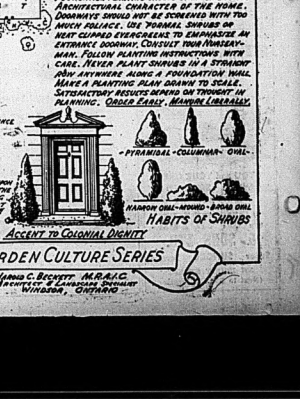
Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE NAME OF ACTION



Shakespeare's most famous play, Hamlet, has been popular ever since it was written, almost three hundred and fifty years ago. The thousands crowding to see Laurence Olivier's screen version prove that its interest is as great today as ever.

Hamlet is popular because it deals with a subject of importance to everyone. Hamlet hated to make decisions. Like many of us, he could act quickly and effectively in some matters, but when it was time to think; but when the matter had to be considered, the longer he thought, the less ready he was to act. He knew what he should do. But first he worried about the correctness of his information, then about how he should act. If his information was correct, then about actually he should act, and finally about how he could best carry it out and act.

Important decisions are not easy for most of us. We all want to be sensible and practical before making the choice. But once we have the facts, we should decide. In the end, we cannot even decide between two evils. How much better to "commit nothing too precisely on the event" and put our problems behind us!

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

SHE WINS

When it comes to the matter of home arrangements, even in Birdland it is conceded that "mother knows best". In most instances, notably with our song birds, the male appears from the south some little time before the female, takes over the territory or section of country to be held by her pair, and there goes house-hunting. He may even start to build several nests. At any rate the border lines are staked out, and he has a choice of many sites to offer the lady on her arrival. Together they do a great deal of inspection, but she invariably gives the final verdict. If there is any discussion as to how high or how low the home should be placed, she wins.

Sea birds and Arctic waders that pair on migration together pick the territory which is to be theirs for the breeding season. Once birds have nested in a certain locality, the tendency is for them to return to it. There are occasions when this makes for difficulty between husband and wife. Ducks mate in the south and travel north already paired. When the male has nested in Ontario and the female in Quebec the previous summer, naturally there is a difference of opinion. Where do you suppose their family will be brought up? Of course near her old home!

Quite frequently the mother bird does most of the actual building of the nest; the male may pass her bits of building material to and fro while she weaves them in where she sees fit, or perhaps add something himself. Generally speaking, it is the female that spends most time sitting on the eggs and incubating feeding and rearing, and so her dress is nearly always dull looking, that she will not draw attention to her home and children. But there are rare cases when all this is reversed. A good example is the Phalarope. She is the larger bird, wears the more conspicuous plumage, and even does the courting, showing off her beautiful feathers before the male. It is she that chooses the territory; but she obliges him to construct the nest without her help. Then as soon as she has laid the eggs, she goes off to the married women's club.

There is yet much to be learned about the roles of the sexes at the building and breeding time, but certainly the great majority of mother birds are bosses in their own home".

MAILERS RETUEN TO JOBS

Louisville, Ky., April 22 (AP) —Union mailers who stayed away from work Thursday night and halted distribution of early editions of the Louisville Courier-Journal because of a dispute with another union, returned to their jobs early today. The mailers had attended a "continuous" meeting in a downtown building but later night workers returned to the plant and started distribution of the newspaper's late editions.

CENTENARY

Centenary—A large congregation was present at Centenary Church on Easter morning to hear the message of hope given by Rev. A. C. McCallum. Special numbers by the choir included a duet by the Misses Betty and Gwen Rafford "The Old Rugged Cross" and an anthem "Must Jesus Bear the Cross Alone" by the choir. It was a lovely service and everyone returned home feeling much better after an inspiring message.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Shorey and children, Wallbridge, attended services at Centenary Church on Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bitz and Barbara, Thurlow, spent Sunday with the latter's mother, Mrs. W. Calvert.

Mis Emma Warden, Toronto, is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray and family.

A few from the community attended the Easter service at Bridge St. Church on Sunday evening.

Congratulations to Miss Margaret Moody on winning a Pulova watch on "Talent Unlimited."

Friends of Ted Atkins were sorry to hear that he fell and broke his ankle, and hope he will soon be around again.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Wright and children spent Easter Sunday at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Radford.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Wilson and family and Miss Brenda Churchill, Toronto, spent the Easter weekend with Mr. and Mrs. F. Aikens and Ted.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Hart, Syracuse, N.Y., returned home on Monday after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. R. Hart and family.

Quite a number from the community have taken advantage of the TB X-ray clinic now in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sinclair and daughter, Shirley, of Detroit, Mich., spent a few days with the former's mother, Mrs. H. McCloud and Mr. McCloud. Mr. Sinclair returned home on Monday and Mrs. Sinclair and Shirley remained for a week's visit with relatives in the vicinity.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hart on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton and Marion and Mr and Mrs. B. Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Slingerland spent the Easter weekend in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Holton, Mack and Bob and Mr. C. Holton spent a Sunday recently with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Elliott and family, Halloway.

Miss Doreen Hall, Kingston, spent a recent weekend with her mother, Mrs. L. Hall and Shirley.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—The members of the Endeavors Sunday School Class assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke on Tuesday evening for their April meeting. There was a good attendance and a most helpful meeting was enjoyed by all. Mr. Howard Cooke presided.

FOUR BRITISH WARSHIPS SHELLED ALONG YANGTZE RIVER

Amethyst is Dealt ever of This Type

Shown above is H.M.S. London, which was shelled when it was diverted to race up the Yangtze River to the aid of two small British warships, the sloop Amethyst and the destroyer Consort which were under artillery attack by shore batteries. The Amethyst was driven ashore and suffered heavy casualties. The Consort, which fought her way 15 m iles up the river to aid the sloop, was also damaged, according to an Admiralty announcement. The Nanking government blamed the shelling on the Communists. Another warship, Black Swan, was she lled. The toll of shelling at this writing is 45, dead, 121 wounded.—Central Press Canadian.

WEDDINGS

BOYLES—FRAWLEY

On Monday morning, April 18, at 10.30, a very lovely marriage was solemnized by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when Mary Rita, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal St. Frawley, became the bride of Michael Boyles, son of Mrs. Boyles and the late J. P. Boyles, of Regina, Saskatchewan.

The wedding music was played by Sister Mary Bernard, and Mrs. Sharon Lacey was soloist. During the ceremony "Ave Maria" and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother," were very beautifully rendered.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of brocaded silk, fashioned with a train. Her veil fell of tulle. Illusion was held with a Juliet cap of pearls, and she carried a miniature muff of brocaded silk covered with Talisman roses.

Miss Jean Frawley was maid of honor, in lemon organza taffeta. The bridesmaids, Miss Joan Finkle, and Miss Madeline Kelleher wore similar gowns of turquoise organza taffeta and lace, flower head-dresses and carried baskets of Spring flowers.

Mr. Charles Frawley, brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers were Mr. William Holmes, and Mr. John Bennett.

Immediately after, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother receiving in grey crepe with matching accessories.

The happy couple left for Regina, Sask., with showers of good wishes, the bride choosing for travelling a navy shardine suit with matching topcoat and grey accessories.

Out-of-town guests were from Montreal; Saguenay, Cardinal, Campbellford, Read, Kingston and Milltown.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Boyles will live in Cardinal, Ont.

Rev. N. Rawson Special Speaker At Ladies' Night

The Rotary Club of Belleville last night held their Ladies' night in the Canadian Hall at Albert College and they had one of the best speakers that they have had in quite some time. The principal speaker for the occasion was Captain, the Rev. Norman Rawson, wartime padre and at present pastor of Grace United Church at Hamilton.

Mr. Rawson is a highly educated man and wonderful speaker. In his talk he dwelt partially on the theme of "You Can't Go Home Again". He emphasized the fact that the people of today should expel from their minds the thoughts of ever going back to the good, old days of individual liberty and independence in medicine nor should they go back to the days of old religion. It is his observation that the churches of today are better equipped for the teaching of religion than at any other time in history. He also pointed out that the institutes of today are training out better men into the world than they were at any other time during Wesley Method.

"We are trying to run church, as" he said, "in a jet-propelled world with horse and buggy ideas and equipment. The British Empire is one of the world's greatest teachers of co-operation. I had it all to do over I would spend much less time trying to make outside contacts and spend more time with my family and building friendships. My idea of a friend is one who knows how I rotten you may really be but still loves you. Men and women should never plow their friendship under because there is really nothing worth their while when they do get there. The things that people really influence the world are not the real factors, but it is the invisible and intangible core of mankind that will decide our true destiny."

The point that Mr. Rawson put across was the fact that you can not go back into the past, but you can take your memories and learnings from the past and really go forward. During his talk he also highly praised Mrs. Ida Grant Spalding of Belleville, for the great social work that she did in Hamilton during the war.

A dance was held for those in attendance following the club dinner and prizes were awarded to the ladies. Jimmy Buck, president of the "Men's Club and Mrs. Bert Howard, president of the Ladies' Night were Rev. Dr. Howard Hamilton, president of the Rotary Club and Mrs. Madeline Mc. and Mrs. Simmons, Mr. John Ryan, president of the Optimist Club and Miss Monique Laporte, Mr. Jerry Buck, president of the "Y. Men's Club and Mrs. Buck, Mr. J. Frank Lang, president of the Kinsmen Club; and Mrs. Lang. Mr. and Mrs. Al Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mayor D. L. Storey and Mrs. Storey.

Queen Alexandra School Assoc. Holds Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held in the school auditorium. The President, Mrs. J. E. Buchanan, presided.

Plans for the forthcoming school "hobby fair" were completed and this event will take place on May 6th.

Miss Trinita May, music instructress of the public schools gave a demonstration of teaching singing to a Grade 1 class, from the kindergarten of the school term to the present. Miss N. Arkles' class was used to demonstrate. Many parents learned what their children meant when they were taught lessons in birds and redbirds. While the band training is conducted by Miss May she impressed upon her audience the great contribution made by Grade teachers. After the technical part of the demonstration was completed Miss Arkles conducted her class in original little songs they'd had learned since September, and it is remarkable the progress that can and has been accomplished in training children to sing.

Following the demonstration the children were given a treat before leaving for home and the parents enjoyed a social get-together while refreshments were served.

BELLS FOR FUSSY

Red Deed, Alta. — ((CP) — Council recently decided to enforce a 1940 by-law which requires all cats to be belled or else. Cat-belling became a "must" when it was found the removal of trees from the city streets was seriously reducing nesting places of birds which fell easy prey to cats.

GOOD MANNERS

Always there are tipping problems

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am from a small town in the South where tipping is not practised. I would like to know the proper procedure for tipping in the nicer beauty salons in New York. For example:

1. If several operators work on you, should you wait until you're entirely finished and then go back and look for each operator to tip?

2. Should you just hand the money to the operators, or slip it into their pockets, or leave it on their table, or what is the correct procedure? Is it all right to leave the money with the girl at the desk, directing that it is "for Mary" . . . if at the moment you don't see or can't find "Mary"?

3. I feel so silly tipping a man who has cut my hair. I guess it's because I'm not used to it.

D.D.

1. From my own experience in New York, I suggest that when you have appointments with several operators (one for a shampoo, for example, one for a set, one for a manicure) you give your tip, whenever possible, to each when you are finished with that operator. This, of course, isn't always practical, since the girl who gives you the shampoo may be the one who returns (after or during) to give you the manicure. But it is usually more convenient both for you and the operator to have the tipping done when the service is finished; then you don't have to have it on your mind if the operator goes to lunch, or interrupt if she or he is busy with another client.

2. . . . tip should be wrapped in a pleasant manner and with a pleasant smile, as it is handed by the giver to the receiver, it is customary, whenever possible, that . . . be given personally. So whenever it's at all convenient, hand it to the operator with a direct look at her or him, with an appreciative smile, and with a "thank you very much." Best not to leave the tip on the operator's table . . . this is never necessary . . . her hands aren't free, slip the tip into her pocket.

And if you've postponed your tipping and "Miss Mary" has gone to lunch, you may, and with complete confidence leave it at the desk with full directions.

3. Instead of having the slightest embarrassment when you tip a man operator, keep in mind that he is the majority of beauty parlors, at least . . . operator's wages are based . . . is custom (whether you approve of this or not), and therefore . . . ing tip is really a question of using fair to the operator's dependence on them.

A friendly manner to a kindly maid

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A dear friend of mine has a general housework, a part-time maid she has had for several years. I was recently married and now when my husband and I go to dine at the home of this friend and her husband, I always greet this devoted and cheery maid in the friendly manner I've always used when we met, and also when she serves at dinner, I just naturally say, "Thank you, Margaret,' or 'No, thank you, Margaret.' My husband, who is very conventional, objects to this, and says I am too "informal" in my manner with our maid. Do you think so, Mrs. Beeckman, in such a situation as this I have described?

Mina W.

No. . . .I don't agree with your husband. This faithful, pleasant part-time maid is apparently a devoted family and their friends as they are to her, is as genuinely interested in them as they are in her . . . and it is most natural, therefore, for long time family friends to like to greet her cordially and to thank her, at table, for her kindly service. Don't discuss this situation with your husband . . . let nature take its course, and till we get that Margaret's kindly warm-hearted manner will very soon conquer your husband's conventionality!

British Designers Hold 1949 Secrets

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — The newest creations in the 1949 London fashion cupboard will be unveiled next month.

It will be done with appropriate ceremony, audience will be thousands of foreign buyers come to look, and designers hope, to buy. Hosts will be British houses and the Board of Trade. And the occasion will be a repeat of Britain's "Fashion Fortnight," first held last year.

The show is regarded as more important than even last year. The government has emphasized the importance of more exports to dollar countries like Canada which took some $92,000,000 worth of British clothing, textiles and woolens last year. Authorities hope the Dominion will hold last year's mark.

The thousands of foreign buyers and journalists who will arrive from 50 overseas countries will be wined and dined and entertained in London's fashionable showrooms. There will be daily shows and the British couturiers aim to make the best of it.

1949 "Look" A Secret

Last year British designers introduced a "modification" of the "New Look." But what they plan for 1949 will be held under wraps until the two-week show, May.16-27. However, it's known the newest idea for London fashions is to carry the simplification further—to a smooth, body silhouette, with "back interest."

The straighter lines cunningly emphasize the richness of satin, cloth of the garment.

Important news event being displayed at the British Industries Fair (May 2-12).

Last year "the straight" ended with a buffet luncheon given in the Windsor country house of the Queen's dress designer, Norman Hartnell. Squatting on the grass, with "Waits in E. Flat" Mrs. Grant Lewis favored a vocal solo, "Far Away Places," accompanied by Miss Irma Burris. Miss I. Burris then played "Just-A-Wearying For You."

Progressive crokinole was enjoyed during the remainder of the evening with six tables in play. Dainty refreshments were served, which brought the meeting to a close. Miss Ashe thanked all who took part in the event, Mrs. Burris for her kind hospitality.

BEAUTY

Restoring the slender waistline

When a woman gets out last summer's frock and finds she can't zip herself into it she is likely to do a bit of heavy thinking. For the first time in months she comes timidly into bathroom scales. Is it possible that she has taken on that many inches? And why, in heaven's name, must fat cells invariably appear on the mid-section? She believes that the hand of fate has dealt her a cruel blow.

Let us ask her this: was it the hand of fate which placed her the cream puffs and the chocolate eclairs and the fried potatoes that she consumed with such delight? Was it the hand of fate that held her back from doing exercises? Let her suffer removal Over-indulgence in groceries plus lack of activity are helped a woman on to retain the silhouette of the young gazelle that she was at eighteen.

When adipose tissue start to form, they keep right on growing especially if you feed them sweets, starches and fats. They are large families. The more fat cells there are, the more difficult it is to send them into a state of dissolution. They should be cared for young. One way to avoid them is to have sufficient exercise to keep the muscles firm and well nilent. Another: cultivate correct eating habits. Stop eating while you are still hungry. Most people consume more than they burn up through physical activities.

Exercise seldom appeals to the heavyweight. She fancies it is hard work and that it will not be fun. If she will once start a regular routine, she has a special line each day for a ten or fifteen minute session of knees twisting ,bending and stretching. she will look forward to it because it will refresh her, make her feel peppy, enjoy a sense of well-being.

Here is a humdinger for slenderizing the waistline. Stand, hands on hips; stand tall, chest lifted, abdomen held in, feet four or five inches apart. Lift the hands high above the head, bend forward with the legs rigid, touching the right foot with the right hand, the left with the left hand. Then, still bent over, rise and return to the side with your hands, sending both in the same direction. Now reverse, touching each to first position and repeat.

Here is a good way to bump off that little shelf that is souh of the waistline; its face downward on the floor. Lift your feet until they are at right angles to body. Grasp your ankles. Then roll back and forth like a rubby horse. Your shelf will be in the rocker. The rolling motion will not only delete the shelf but will tighten sagging muscles. You should let the family see you do it. They'll have a grand laugh.

Another: Lie on your back in bed, hands under the buttocks. Lift the legs slowly until you are practically standing on the back of your neck; lower them slowly.

Club Activities

ST. PETER'S W.W. CLUB

Madoc — The April meeting of the Young Women's Club was held at the home of Miss M. Robertson with 21 members and three visiting guests.

A poem, "The Crucified Christ," was given by Mrs. B. French.

Mrs. D. McCoy conducted the business session, during which letters were read, a roll call and a message sale.

Mrs. B. French and Mrs. K. Nicol had charge of the program. A reading of the "Book of Books" was given by Mrs. A. V. Bell. Mrs. French read an article on "Our Easter Lily" and "April Showers" was sung by Miss Mina Coverne. Miss C. Connor read an interesting account of the Easter celebration and humorous readings were contributed by Miss M. Robertson and Mrs. J. Bailey.

Mrs. R. Clarke assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

Easter Monday Dance

The Easter Monday Dance, an annual event under the auspices of the Eastern Star, was the outstanding event of the season. The decorations was tastefully designated for the occasion and the crowd all that could be desired. Good music was furnished by Bill Arnold's orchestra and refreshments were served by the Club members. The members and officers appreciate the favorable comments made on the event.

Rev. A. Pouliot and Mrs. Poulier will attend graduating exercises at Victoria College on Friday in Toronto.

Trinity Ladies Club

Trinity Ladies Club met at the home of Mrs. Allan Burris on Tuesday evening last with a good attendance of members and visitors. Miss Orvetta Ashe, president, presiding.

There are 49 paid up members. The treasurer's report showed that the Afternoon Tea and Home Cooking Sale was a decided success. The convener of the Sick and Visiting Committee, Mrs. Hatfield, reported sending several "Get-well" and "Best Congratulation Cards." Plans for the rummage sale on May 7th were discussed. Mrs. White reported that arrangements have been made to purchase a rug for the church.

Scott Easter service was in charge of Mrs. P. H. Naylor. Her opening remarks were in connection with Miss Margaret Hamilton who was a speaker at a recent W.M.S. Rally. Mrs. Naylor has been in charge of and responsible for the group of religious literature in China, and Mrs. Naylor suggested that the members read Miss Brown's address. Mrs. H. Stickwood read an article, "The Sunrise Trail," by Negawa.

Miss Joan Burris played a piano solo, "Waits in E. Flat." Mrs. Grant Lewis favored a vocal solo, "Far Away Places," accompanied by Miss Irma Burris. Miss I. Burris then played "Just-A-Wearying For You."

Progressive crokinole was enjoyed during the remainder of the evening with six tables in play. Dainty refreshments were served, which brought the meeting to a close. Miss Ashe thanked all who took part in the event, Mrs. Burris for her kind hospitality.

Vota Vita M. C. Holds Special Easter Meeting

The Vota Vita Mission Circle held its monthly meeting at the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Tuesday evening in the form of an Easter program open to all the church family.

Miss Marjorie Hales took charge of the devotional period. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Luella Carson, followed with prayer by Marjorie. Special music was provided by Mrs. William Bonnell, soprano, "The Shepherd of Galilee" and "Alone" on her banjo, accompanied by Dorland Houston on the piano.

Mrs. Eastman and Miss M. Hales sang "India, Dark India." A reading entitled "A Better Way" was given by Dorothy Reid.

A skit "Our Bible Women," was presented by Miss Nora Hales as leader and Marie Lowery, Kathleen Hall, Doreen and Jean Thompson as girls from India, giving their testimony to the saving power of Jesus Christ. Miss Edna Jelsen favored with a solo "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

During the taking of the offering Mrs. Marjorie Nesbitt, the pianist for the evening, played a delightful solo.

A play entitled "The First Easter," depicted the happenings of the Easter morning, showing the appearance of the risen Lord by the angel, directing the walk to Emmaus and the convincing or doubting Thomas was very effectively presented by a group of members.

Misses Jean Cook, Doreen Groves and Marjorie Hales rendered "Where You Are" in three part harmony which blended so perfectly with the theme.

Rev. H. O. Eastman closed with the benediction.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Afraid she's losing her man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am not married, and have been keeping company with a fellow for quite a while. He was married once but lost his wife. He is in his 40's but I am not quite that old.

When he first started seeing me he used to take me out every time he came. Then all of a sudden he quit asking me to go out in his car with him. He still comes to see me but doesn't take me out. I was told by one of his friends that he is taking another woman out in his car.

I love this man and I would not want to lose him, but do you think he really loves me if he is also seeing another woman?

Heart-broken Lady"

Dear "Heart-broken Lady":

To be quite frank, I am very much afraid that this man is not very much interested in you or he would want to concentrate on you more than he seems to be doing. If you want to keep his friendship, however, in the hope that it may perhaps turn out to be something more later on, then you had better just go along with things as they are for a while and try not to prod him into paying you any more attention than he feels like giving you. The quickest way to lose him would be to do this.

If he finds you always agreeable, understanding and a good companion when he is around you, he may in time want to see you more often. But if you give him the impression that you are peeved because you aren't the only woman in his life, he'll probably drop you entirely.

An airline hostess is 'all mixed up'

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm an airline stewardess and meet many men friends. They all want to date me, as they tell me I am very pretty and have a lovely figure.

Is it wrong to date married men and to make love to them when I am overseas? I don't do anything wrong. All we do is drink and have lots of fun. . I am very popular with all the pilots and they all tell me they wish they were married to me instead of their wives. I always invite one of the pilots up to my apartment to rest up and have a bite to eat. I date a lot of passengers too. They invite me up to their apartments for a drink and I go. My old boy friend is awfully mad at me for doing this. I broke up with him as he had me. I was boy crazy. He says it is wrong for a girl to go to a strange man's quarters. We haven't seen each other for over two years, but he sometimes calls me up just to tell me off. Do you think he would take me back, and should I quit the airlines? I'm all mixed up and not happy.

"Unhappy"

Dear "Unhappy": I think your boy friend is right. He sounds like a sensible person and I believe you would be smart if you mended your quarrel with him.

If you can't behave in a more dignified and self-respecting way than to play around with married men and go up to their apartments, then I think you would be wise to do as you suggest and get another kind of job. The kind of life you are leading now is not going to end in anything very good. I think most airline hostesses respect themselves and their jobs more than you seem to do.

FURTHER HUNGER REPORTS HEARD FROM LABRADOR

Airlift Remains the Only Medium for Transporting Supplies to 400 Residents

St. John's (April 23 (CP)—The grocery-run from Goose Bay by food-scarce hamlets in northern Labrador may start today.

An R-C-A-F remains the only medium for transporting supplies behind the ice-curtain where some 400 persons in the settlement of Blac Tickle yesterday were reported living on stale bread and flour alone.

Weary over the icebreaker Saurel rested in Dartmouth Nova Scotia, after a two-week battle with encroaching icefields. Capt. C. A. Chouinard sailed north from here April 11 with $35,000 worth of provisions and slugged his way to the eastern Labrador coast. Supplies were unloaded at two points and dictated by dog teams.

Friday night, a message from Albert Bartlett of Blac Tickle arrived at Port de Grave, on nearby Conception Bay, begging a supply firm to rush food.

Bartlett spoke of the shortage gripping Black Tickle, the Battieu region, spotted islands and other hamlets 100 miles north at Battle Harbor where Saurel dumped part of her 66-ton cargo last week.

Saurel Counted Out

Northlanders said Saurel could be counted out of the rescue picture for at least six weeks until mountainous ice barriers relax under spring thaws.

The air crossroads of Goose Bay is about 100 miles west of the food-short settlements and relief planes may take off today.

Saurel's skipper told of her struggle with relentless piles of ice. She jammed in heavy fields for 10 hours before reaching Battle Harbor.

Twenty tons of food were unloaded and Saurel headed back into the ice. Two days later she still was only eight miles out of Battle Harbor. Gale free winds lashed the ship.

She lay just 1,000 feet from where 42 men were killed a few years ago when surging floes sank their ship.

Capt. Chouinard said: "All the time we were caught, we were thinking about this."

The ice loosened its hold after four days and Saurel made it to St. Charles Harbor in a half hour.

Arbitration Plan May be Means of Settling Strike

Quebec, April 23 (CP)—There is both optimism and pessimism today as a new proposal for settlement of the asbestos strike that has kept 5,000 men idle in Quebec's eastern townships for 21½ months.

Labor Minister Barrette expressed hope of an early end to the wage dispute Friday night when he announced that an arbitration Board will be established during the weekend to study the points at issue.

Mr. Barrette said his department would choose a chairman after the workers and the company have chosen their board representatives.

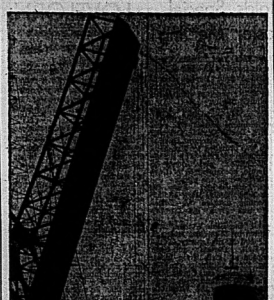
Under the proposal, the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor would select its men back to work as soon as the board chairman is named.

Meanwhile, at Abestos, Secretary Jean Marchand of the C.C.C.L. expressed doubt that the arbitration plan would bring about an early settlement since it was possible choice of the board's chairman might not be acceptable to the other two arbitrators.

Strike Called Feb. 13

The strike was called Feb. 13 when workers demanded an increase of 15 cents an hour to raise the basic hourly pay to 81, the Rand formula, three weeks holidays with pay and a social security plan.

The walk-out stopped production in several plants in Canada's serpentine belt which produces more than half of the world's asbestos.



Mr. Barrette, in his announcement, said it was possible for the strike to be settled in two or three days. He said names of the arbiters selected by the workers and the company would be announced today while choice of the board chairman would be made at 5 p.m. Monday.

After the workers had returned to their jobs, the arbitration tribunal will take up in Octail contract proposals made by the company and its employees, plus other settlement proposals made since the dispute arose.

Plan Multi-Million-Dollar Bridge at Burlington, Ont.

The day of fuming motorists waiting for a slow freighter, while the bridge at Burlington, Ont., canal is up will be a thing of the past if the multi-million-dollar bridge to be built as soon as the steel shortage ends. The lift bridge is called one of Canada's most spectacular projects. It is related to every ship which goes into Hamilton harbor. The provincial department of highways has already acquired land in the vicinity for the new developments.—Central Press Canadian

'Catch-all Law' in U.S. Chief Weapon Against Reds

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 23 — (CP)— A catch-all law barring aliens whose presence would be "prejudicial to the interests of the United States" is one of the United States' chief weapons against Communism.

But Communists are not its only target. It provides for exclusion of any member or former member of any organization which "advocates or teaches overthrow of the government by force."

The government is not obliged to give any explanation of its decision to the person it bars.

Immigration-service investigators decide whether an alien's record has been potential danger to the country's security; But the decision must be confirmed by either Attorney-General Tom Clark or State Secretary Dean Acheson. Deputy Ministers then order barring five Canadian citizens. They had sought entry, authorities said, to attend conventions of the United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.).

One is George Harris of Toronto, secretary of the U.E.W. in Canada. His boss, U.E.W. President Clarence Jackson of Toronto was also denied under the same law.

Although both men have been associated with Canada's Labor-Progressive (Communist) party, that connection was not mentioned when they were excluded.

And although the U.E.W. is considered Communist-dominated both in the United States and in Canada, there was no reference to the union when Harris and the four others were barred. To the regular "best interests" statement was added a remark that the five were excluded after investigation and charges that they "belonged to an organization reported to oppose all forms of government."

Immigration officials did not say by whom the charges were made nor did it identify the "organization."

Authorities declined to say how often the law is applied or how many Canadians come under the ruling each year. The law has been invoked, however, in cases involving persons of several nationalities and various callings.

Evidence used to determine whether an alien's presence would be "prejudicial" is considered and only part of the decision is a hearing held, officials said. The law does not require that individuals be informed of the nature of the evidence against them.

Theatre Guild, 30 Years Old, Plays Big Part in U.S. Stage

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 23 (CP)—The Theatre Guild, which has become an institution in the annals of Broadway stage history, celebrates its 30th anniversary this week.

But the organization is not forgetting the future while looking back on the past.

Since 1919 it has staged dramas by a number of distinguished playwrights and has brought together at least two celebrated teams in the theatrical field. Its list of writers includes George Bernard Shaw, Eugene O'Neill, Terence Milnar, Maxwell Anderson and William Saroyan.

Top Teams

It brought Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine together for the first time in "The Guardsman." Since then this couple has appeared in 19 plays, including the current "I Know My Love."

Theresa Helburn, for the last 10 years a co-director, established Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein 2nd as a collaborating duo. She acquired a play, "Green Grow the Lilacs," by Oklahoman Lynn Riggs and got the barest! was a failure as a play but it will make a musical show.

Autumn Plans

In addition to "I Know My Love," the organization's plans for next season include a vehicle for Helen Hayes, "Mrs. Mississippi," a musical show with book and lyrics by Herbert and Dorothy Fields and music by Dorothy Lana composer for the hit show, "Finian's Rainbow," and a revival "As You Like it," with Katharine Hepburn.

For the record, seven of the Theatre Guild's 168 plays produced in New York have won Pulitzer prize drama awards.

Judith Evelyn

Judith Evelyn, who began her acting career in Winnipeg, is to take over the lead role of Blanche Dubois in the road company of "A Streetcar Named Desire" on May 26. Uta Hagen, now with that company, will step into the New York version of the Tennessee Williams play June 1, succeeding Jessica Tandy.

One Cliche Too Many

"Magnolia Alley," a weak comedy with Jessie Royce Landis and Jackie Cooper of the films in the leading roles, opened Monday at the Mansfield Theatre. It closes this Saturday.

The author, George Batson, threw in an odd conception of wisecracks, farce and stock situations. There's even mint julep without mint and a southern colonel who turns out to be a chop-

COLOR EFFECTS

Use of lighter and softer paint colors in jails tends to give inmates a more co-operative attitude and a more optimistic outlook.

High rigging a lofty fir is a B.C. specialty but no monopoly. These high altitude lumbermen are found in the U. S. and far-off Australia. Wood-pulp and paper are also certain to rule in International affairs. Delegates to the Montreal conference have the opportunity to take pioneering steps in the right direction of defining pulp and paper products and revise recommendations that may result in important national and international action.—Central Press Canadian.

Americans Beat Travel Tax by Buying in Canada

New York, April 23 (AP)—Americans have discovered they can beat the 25-per-cent travel tax by buying their airlines tickets north-of-the-border from Canada. And the mailed-ticket business is booming.

The bargain "gimmick" was created March 22 when Canada lifted its per-cent tax on travel. That tax still is in effect in the United States.

But tickets between any two places in the world are exempt if the air airline can be purchased in Canada, without restrictions as to the departure point.

Thus, a New Yorker wishing to fly to Los Angeles, for example, can write a ticket agent in Canada and pay that city for a round trip ticket which in the United States would cost about $44.94 more because of the travel tax, a spokesman said.

The situation on train tickets is somewhat different, because the railroads have agreed to sell tax-free tickets only on trips originated in Canada, a spokesman for the New York Central Railroad said.

However, since the railroads do issue tickets for the entire trip from the Canadian point to any place in the United States on connecting lines, persons living near the border can effect evasion by crossing to Canada for their tickets.

Detectives by the hundreds are reported to have crossed the Detroit River to Windsor, Ont., a mile bus fare to save 15 per cent on plane, train or bus line tickets to places all over the United States.

Drew Completes Maritime Tour

(Canadian Staff Press Writer)

Saint John, N.B., April 23. (CP)—Concluding a three-day tour here Friday night, George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, departing shots at Liberal leaders, Progressives (Communist) party, that connection was not mentioned when they were excluded.

And although the U.E.W. is considered Communist-dominated both in the United States and in Canada, there was no reference to the union when Harris and the four others were barred. To the regular "best interests" statement was added a remark that the five were excluded after investigation and charges that they "belonged to an organization reported to oppose all forms of government."

Immigration officials did not say by whom the charges were made nor did it identify the "organization."

Authorities declined to say how often the law is applied or how many Canadians come under the ruling each year. The law has been invoked, however, in cases involving persons of several nationalities and various callings.

Evidence used to determine whether an alien's presence would be "prejudicial" is considered and only part of the decision is a hearing held, officials said. The law does not require that individuals be informed of the nature of the evidence against them.

He said Defence Minister Claxton had at first decided that long-range planes were in storage. Later newspaper pictures and stories had confirmed Mr. Drew's charge that they were actually in storage.

Confronted with this evidence Mr. Claxton had indicated he could not be expected to know every detail of plane disposition.

"It wasn't until after I had demanded his resignation that he made this statement," declared Mr. Drew. "Mr. Claxton has shown his word is worth nothing. Now that Mr. Claxton has been found out, there is no option for him but to resign.

"And if the prime minister doesn't insist on his resignation then the people will have to do it, but their trust in the government."

He devoted a large part of his speech to a reply to what he termed bad taste in references made on him by Liberal Premier John B. McNair of New Brunswick.

He said that Premier McNair had made the attack on the provincial legislature in 1945 because it was "the first stump speech in the general election campaign."

The premier had criticized Mr. Drew's attitude in the 1945 Dominion-Provincial conference and Mr. Drew said the Premier's speech had contained "a mass of inaccuracies and misinterpretations."

He quoted the Hansard report of the conference to show that he had opposed Ontario sharing its advantages with other provinces and that he had prevented agreement.

FIVE ADMIT THEFT OF MAPLE SYRUP

Orillia, April 23 — (CP) —Five Penetanguishene men yesterday were remanded one week for sentence on charges of stealing a gallon of maple syrup. They are Lawrence Duquette, Rodger Dorion, Oliver Borden, Medore Jolin and Jack Lacroix, all pleaded guilty.

Albert Russell told police he found the men in his store and he managed to get the license number of their automobile as they fled.

SLIPPED OFF DECK AT SEA

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP)— Mrs. Virginia Pitcairn, 25, was drowned in a stormy sea during a cruise from New York to Bermuda, her mother-in-law disclosed Mrs. Ira N. Hayes said that the young Mrs. Pitcairn slipped on the deck of a 70-foot racing schooner April 12 and fell overboard, four days out of New York.

200-POUND HOG LIVES 18 WEEKS IN OLS WELL

Newsville, Ala., April 23 (AP)— A 300-pound hog survived more than 18 weeks in an abandoned well, it was learned. Held a dozen other persons vouched for the story as told by farmer J. D. Hatton. Hatton found the emaciated hog, which had long been given up for lost. The only apparent harm to the animal was loss of weight.

Newfoundland Retains Control Over Prices

St. John's, April 23 — (CP) — Newfoundland, Canada's youngest province, is the only one with price controls of its own.

Premier Smallwood has announced price controls on soaps, eggs and pulp tobacco and has warned that more controls could be expected.

Before Confederation March 31, Newfoundland imposed tariffs on almost all imports, some products as high as 60 per cent.

On March 31 all tariffs automatically were lifted.

Because merchants knew tariffs would come off with Confederation, they bought as little as possible to tide them over. Trade with Canada dropped off drastically before Confederation, creating a shortage of some goods.

With stocks getting low and normal flow now is a rush to buy items that were in short supply. Prices have started to rise on the account, leading to the government controls on three items.

It is believed it will be some time yet before Newfoundland's trade with the rest of Canada gets back on an even keel. When it does, prices should come down. At that, prices on the average, although now above those last prevailed before Confederation.

SLAPSTICK CEREMONY

An old Scottish custom called for a bride to be hit over the head with a currant bun by the groom's mother.

Rude Youngster Given the Boot In Proper Place

The dour-faced gentleman stood like a statue near the Dominion Bank Saturday morning. He carried a market basket in his hand and was apparently waiting for a bus.

Five clenched between tooth-less gums, he stood waiting. Suddenly, from behind, a boyish urday morning crowd.

Some small urchins, mischief bent, decided the gentleman was fair prey for a prank.

The youngsters apparently fancying himself as a comedian , of the group decided to stage an imitation act. He mimicked the gentleman in question, even to clutching a pencil in his teeth to represent the pipe.

The man paid no attention. The urchin grew bolder. His antics became cruder and "more corny."

Tiring of the fun, the urchin turned away. Then it happened.

The right foot of the "victim" suddenly shot upward and outward. It caught the urchin squarely on the most prominent part of his spine, lifting him an inch or two off the ground. He looked around in amazement. The victim had resumed his former pose. Not a flicker of expression was on his face.

The urchin looked around again. People smiled in both, and the crestfallen "Jack Benny" suddenly realized that other parts of the city were more conducive to boyish pranks.

SECRETARY HELD ON SUSPICION

Riverside, Calif., April 23 — (AP) — Sheriff's deputies today held Mrs. Agnes E. Garnier, 53-year-old secretary, on suspicion of murdering her employer, John E. Owen, 68, president of the National Apartment House Owners Association. Owen, a wealthy realtor and formerly of Detroit, was shot fatally Friday night in the bedroom of his home.

GAS WELL ERUPTS NEAR WELLAND TOO

Fort Erie, April 23 — (CP) —A gas well which erupts irregularly at intervals, spouting mud and water, has kept officials mystified for two days. Reeve Roach, D. G. Sinclair, assistant deputy minister of mines, wrote to the village council admitting "inability to offer anything as to remedy the situation." A nearby gas well was sealed off, but that didn't end the geysers.

MAY RESTORE FOOT TAX

Toronto, April 23 — (CP) — City officials may have the old 2-cent foot tax restored. The City Historical Committee yesterday passed a recommendation requesting $148,500 from the city to carry out the job. The restoration project coincides with the committee's plans to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the founding of Toronto.

CANARIES FLOWN TO BRANTFORD

Brantford, April 23 (CP)—Nine Yorkshire, Eng., canaries today are safely tucked away in cages here, after their long trip across the ocean—even though they didn't make the journey under their own steam. Bird fancier, Charles Green picked the canaries up at Malton airport yesterday and whisked them away to his farm at nearby St. George .

PROLIFIC RODENTS

Without the chemists' poisons and ignoring the death rate, the offspring of a single pair of rats could exceed 350,000,000 in three years.

Cornerstone Laid For Children's Hospital

Toronto, April 23 (CP)— R. A. Laidlaw, chairman of the Board of Trustees, Friday laid the cornerstone for Toronto's new Hospital for Sick Children. Construction of the $12,000,000 building, originally planned for 1939, began in 1947. It is situated on University Avenue, one of the city's main north-south thoroughfares, in the near downtown area. The Toronto General Hospital is nearby and across the street is the site of the new Mount Sinai Hospital.

One-Third of Budget Spent on Highways

Toronto, April 23 — (CP) — Deputy Highways Minister J. D. Millar Friday told the Ontario Motor League, Ontario is spending more than one-third of his annual budget on highways. He said $68,000,000 was spent by his department last year and that this year's estimate was $69,07,-000.

TWO MALAYANS HELD

Boston, April 23 — (AP)—Two Malayan crew members of the British freighter Menestheus were held today after seizure of opium valued at $25,000 from the vessel. United States customs agents, raided the ship when it docked here yesterday, en route to New York.

5,000 Facing Eviction From Toronto Homes

Toronto, April 23 — (CP) — About 5,000 Toronto families have notice to vacate their present living quarters on May 1, and an undetermined number of these so far have not acquired new accommodation.

City welfare commissioner H. S. Rupert said he was hopeful that new housing being built on the city outskirts might provide a partial solution, but he conceded that the city has no plans to cope with any mass evictions.

The department estimated that of the total, 2,000 families have notice to vacate self-contained housing units, resulting from government decontrol that permitted landlords who owned their houses before Nov. 1, 1947, to give tenants six months' notice.

Meantime a survey showed that rents are soaring on housing accommodation freed from control. Increases were said to be from $35 to $135 for the same accommodation in some cases. The rest on one house in a high-class residential district jumped from $100 a month to $100 a week.

No opinions wanted!

EACH day we get letters from readers. They praise and condemn, approve and protest. They are a yardstick of freedom.

As long as you can pick up your pen and express your opinions, one way or the other, about something that appears in this newspaper, you are a free citizen. And when you cannot comment because this newspaper cannot print the facts and opinions that stir you to write, freedom in this country is dead.

Look through this issue. Note the array of happenings, good and bad, that are reported so that you can be informed and shape your life accordingly. Read the opinions—ours and those of lawmakers, labor leaders, businessmen and educators. Some may please. You may disagree with others. But they are here for you to read, study, accept or reject as you wish.

Imagine not having a line to do so! Don't think it can't happen. When the war was raging, you were concerned about freedom. Perhaps for the first time you saw how much people need a free press in order to be free. Because Mussolini and Hitler are dead, don't take it for granted that freedom is safe. To keep it intact calls for ceaseless vigilance.

Today there are men and women—some well-meaning but short-sighted, some malignant—who would enslave you. They form committees, pass high-sounding resolutions and agitate for laws.

One of their first attacks is on your freedom to know. They would deny you access to information—facts and opinions—except that which they claim is good for you. In effect they want no opinions published except their own. They know that, if they can control what you read, they can control your mind. They seek to limit the free exchange of facts and opinions now available. They talk about the necessity of limiting the press. When they say that, they mean limiting you.

Freedom of the press doesn't belong exclusively to newspapers. It belongs to everyone. The newspapers are minority owners. Freedom of the press means freedom to read as well as freedom to publish. When newspapers become propaganda mouthpieces, they are not free—and neither are you.

The choice is yours. You can shut off your access to what is going on in this country and throughout the world by following these self-styled leaders. Or you can refuse to be led into ignorance and slavery—refuse to give up your right to know as a self-governing free citizen.

Your right to know is the key to all your liberties

Gananoque Wins Protest Against Port Colborne

Toronto, April 23 — (CP) — Protest by Gananoque Legion against Port Colborne Sailors was upheld Friday night by the Ontario Hockey Association's executive committee, which ordered a sudden-death game at Toronto to decide the O. H. A. intermediate A championship. The game will be played on the first available night at Maple Leaf Gardens, probably next Wednesday.

Gananoque protested that Don Gallinger, former N. H. L. player with Boston Bruins suspended from organized hockey, had assisted Port Colborne in coaching duties in the third game of the best-of-five series at Kingston last Saturday. Port Colborne won that game 5-3 and went on to win the series by three games to one.

The O. H. A. executive awarded the game to Gananoque, leaving the series tied at two games each.

Representatives from both clubs presented written and oral argument and J. J. McFayden of Galt, O. H. A. president, told the Port Colborne delegation "I might say that you got off very lucky." The Ports had been warned on two previous occasions against Gallinger having any connection with the club. A referee's report said that Gallinger was playing at the players' bench and in the third period he was "at the gate opening it and yelling for player changes."

Trainer Suspects "Tampering" by Stable Prowlers

Lexington, Ky., April 23 (AP) —Calumet Farm's Kentucky Derby hopes all but collapsed today as trainer Ben Jones announced his ace, De Luxe, "tired" and said he suspected "tampering" by prowlers.

The trainer of the leading American stable said he based his suspicion on a sluggish race turned in by De Luxe at Keeneland Friday. The horse was "never better" in a workout the day before, he said.

"I don't think we have a Derby Horse now," Jones said dejectedly.

He said De Luxe's condition after the race left him little hope of getting the lone ready for the Blue Grass Stakes next Thursday and the Derby May 7.

The nature of his treatment that De Luxe might have been subjected to Dr. Leroy Goltz determined immediately. Jones said he might never be able to prove it, but his best guess, he said, is that De Luxe was given some sedative.

Cornwall Golds Win First Game From Toronto

Toronto, April 23 (CP)—Cornwall Golds Friday night won the first game in the Ontario senior basketball finals by defeating Toronto Montgomery Debs 22-16. The second game of the best-of-three-point series will be played here tonight.

The Cornwall team held a slim 7-3 edge at the first quarter ended. Cleila Burke sent the Golds into the lead early in the session with a foul shot and a basket. Ernestine O'Bryon followed up with two baskets while Gloria Kalik and Billy Sarove each counted one for Golds.

Golds broke away from the Toronto team in the second quarter and led by six points at half time. Ernestine O'Bryon notched all the points for Golds while Charlene Hodgins was top scorer for Golds nothing two baskets. Gloria Kalik and Billy Sarove tallied one apiece while Joan Robertson garnered a point on another foul shot.

In the third quarter Debs made their bid to overtake the Golds but couldn't break down their tough defence.

In the last quarter, Teresa Dorose, guard for Golds a decided margin with a basket and then followed with a single point.

Over the whole game, Rose McGill was top scorer for Debs, collecting 11 points. Gloria Burke was the outstanding shooter for the Golds with five points.

Lineups:

Cornwall (22)—Hodgins (4), Burke (5), Derose (3), Horton (1), Herbert, Richmond, Kalik (1), Robertson (1), Sarove (4).

Toronto (16)—Bolton, Brannston (2), Cameron (4), Fowler, Loraine, Manser, McGill (10), Shea, Tufford, Legge.

BEVENS SIGNS

Seattle, April 23 — (AP) — Floyd Bevens, who came within a whisker of pitching the only no-hitter in World Series baseball a couple of years ago, has signed a contract with Seattle Rainiers of the Pacific Coast League.

Bevens was within a put-out of his no-hitter in the 1947 World Series, pitching for New York Yanks against Brooklyn, before Cookie Lavagetto doubled in two runners and the Dodgers walked and broke up the contest.

Bevens has been troubled with a sore arm since.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

Meeton, Mowbray, Leicestershire, England — (CP) — Tenants on a new housing estate spent hours laying out lawns. Then council workmen arrived and planted a tree in the middle of each. It was the architect's idea of beautifying the estate but the tenants protested — so the same workmen dug the trees up again.

CRANES CAR IN GEAR, LEAPS OUT OF WAY

Brantford, April 23 — (CP) — Leonard Brunet, Brantford, missed being run over by his own truck Thursday. He cranked it while it was in gear and leaped aside as it started. The truck flew off and broke a window in a nearby automobile and the truck finally crashed into the same car.

RATIONING

From 1941, onwards more and more goods came under control.

The bacon ration got progressively worse from 1944 when it was four ounces a week Now it's two ounces. Sugar which began at 12 ounces now stands at 10 ounces weekly.

Meat hit a high ration of two shillings, two pence worth weekly by September, 1946. This day it was cut from a shillling to 10d. weekly made up of eighteenpence worth of free meat and twopence of corned beef.

Other food products are still under rationing like tea at two ounces weekly, cheese at 1-2 ounces, butter at three ounces and margarine at four ounces.

Canned meats, fish and vegetables, biscuits, condensed milk, dried fruits and syrups still are controlled by a "points" system. Housewives get 24 points to spend monthly.

The coming of spring brought milk back to the free market for six to eight weeks.

The ration and the extra egg or two available, egg-nogs again are a possibility in these rationed islands.

FUJI MICRO SAFETY

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Make a better mouse-trap and the world will beat a pathway to your door," so crath a wise man of old days, implying that advice to sport. It appears to be the answer insofar as wrestling goes. Last night at the season inaugural at Memorial Hall, where Whipper Billy Watson always appear her, snatched out a last-minute victory over the towering Ted Lee, pride of the Ozarkian Mountings, the faithful rallied to the call and practically packed the honorable edifice.

* * *

It was a good show. The first bout between the vaunted bewhiskered Cardiff Giant (he claims the Cardiff is that of Venus with a whalebin accent!) and one Frank Valois was a dull affair, but the agile Pat Flanagan, jowl-to-jowl pal of Whipper Watson's new Prime Minister, two gentlemen of Whipper Watson's new Prime Minister, two gentlemen of spectacle out of a threatened dullness, with a rip-snorting fall-of-caiden bout. The lads went about the business at hand in a lively manner. It was a slip-add-lock affair and went the limit but the Flanagan agressiveness in the dying minutes of the bout earned him the nod on points from Referee Clifford Fox.

* * *

In the main event, the Whip was extended to the limit, and in a last minute frenzy of action turned on the full power of his offensive ability and crashed the giant El Lee to the canvas for the finish and deciding fall of the bout. It was smart action with both men taking plenty of punishment as the tide of victory swayed first one way, then the other. The Whip's win was a popular win with the crowd and it is quite likely the pair will be seen in action here again soon.

* * *

Soccer football will get a much-needed shot in the arm here this season with no less than six teams entered in the City and District Association Football League. Latest entry and what appears to be a strong one is that of the Northern Electric Company. Two boys of that plant have organized with Bob Beauvelack as chairman; Jack Jones assistant chairman, Bill Gardner, team manager, Moe Forgette, referee, Harold Lewis, secretary treasurer and the ubiquitous Jerry Mahoney, in charge of public relations.

* * *

According to Jerry, the N. E. publicity hound, many players have already been out for practice and shown plenty of promise. Among the fifth crew of the plaintiers are Jack Jones, Harold Leach, John Rapple, Bob Murphy, Claire Eggo Inness, Jim Minetia, Jack Carter, Don Culley, George Young, Bill Salter, Tommy Calbcart, Jim Williamson, Bob Allen, Sandy Lee Hinkins, Randy Leuhens, Lew Arsenault, G. Feenan, Forky Yorke, J. O'Brien, Frank Andrews and Bill Gander.

* * *

Final selection of the team will not be made until a later date and in the meantime any player of the company is cordially invited to turn out for practices. Players must be residents of the City of Quinte district, Jerry declares. The team is seeking permission from the Board of Education to use the Pine Street School grounds for practice purposes.

* * *

Belleville's veteran bagler, Joe Legault, captain of the Belleville Golf Bowling team, newly crowned champions of the Major "A" League headed a city team that left for Toronto on Sunday where they will participate in the Ontario Bowling Association Tournament held in the Karry Alleys in the big town.

* * *

Incinded in the Belleville team are Bill Bateman, Tom Pappas, Hank Dyer, Joe Draghy and Lyle Hyall. Best of luck to you, gang, and let's hope you bring home some of that tournament bacon. The last time Joe Legault played in a out-of-town tourney, he came back with a perfect score, and a lot of the foeolan knockoodle in his bowling jeans. That happened in Peterborough last year, if the memory is correct.

* * *

And speaking of bowling the Northern Electric laddies tell us that a crack bowling team from their Montreal plant is due here on May 7th when they will take on the best the company here can offer and perhaps a few "city" teams as well.

* * *

They tell me that "Joe" Jones, pappa extraordinary of those extraordinary young gentlemen Peter and Davy Jones of hockey and baseball repute is an athlete in his own right. "Joe" is a soccer player of more than passing ability, and in the days gone by perhaps "Pete" and "Davy" may be seen on the sidelines cheering "Dad" as he gallops over the turf with the goal ahead. "Pa also said that "Joe" swings a mean cricket bat, and has performed with some outstanding teams both in Canada and over 'ome. "Joe" is one of the popular "imported" citizens that came here with the arrival of the Northern Electric Company. He has and is living up to the spoken desire of high-ranking N. E. officials, that "we want to become a part of, and good citizens of Belleville." It has been a distinct pleasure for us to meet "Joe" and his clever athletic representatives, Peter and Davy, both of whom have contributed greatly to the efforts of hockey and baseball teams in the city.

Vernon Gomez was one of baseball's most fabulous characters in his pitching days with the New York Yankees and he hadn't changed with his retirement.

The story goes that he was called upon to fill out a routine employment questionnaire before accepting his job with Wilson Sporting Goods. One of the questions asked for his last job and the reason for leaving.

Gomez merely wrote, "Pitching baseballs" to the first question and "Couldn't get the side out" to the second.

Brandon Goalie, Ray Fredrick, Real Prospect

Brandon, Man.-April 23 (CP)—Saving goals or saving lives, it's all the same to Ray Frederick, the lanky Brandon Wheat Kings' junior goalkeeper who likes doing both.

Considered the best goalie to rise in the West for some time, Frederick keeps in condition in hockey's off-season as a lifeguard with the Fort Frances Ont., recreational council.

Born in Fort Frances in 1929 of Romanian-Ukranian parents, Ray started his hockey career at left wing and it wasn't by his own choice that he became a goalie, then.

Frederick was playing for his school team in 1941-and all was set for the playoffs. Waiting in the dressing room, the players were informed that their regular goalie had gone north with his trapper-father. Their gaze then centred on the team's smallest player— Frederick. Ray, now more than six feet tall, wasn't big enough to argue in those days and he went between the pipes.

At 14 and believed then to be the youngest puck-stopper in senior competition, Frederick played for Fort Frances Maple Leafs. His record against such players as Edgar Laprade, then with Port Arthur Bearcats, and Wally Stanowski, with Winnipeg RCAF Bombers that year, drew rave notices.

He reverted to junior company with Port Arthur Bruins the following season, then moved to Hamilton Lloyds in 1945-46.

Followed another season with Fort Frances Senior Canadians, Frederick drifted to Brandon where he has spent the last two seasons. Brandon now is playing off with Calgary Buffaloes for the Western Canada Junior title and leads the best-of-seven series 3-1.

His record of only 151 goals against him in 35 games this season, for an average of 2.7 goals a game speaks for itself.

On Minneapolis Millers' negotiation list, Frederick won't sign a pro form until he is "good and ready."

O.H.A. Wrestles In Long Session With Draft Rule

Toronto, April 23 (CP)— An Ontario Hockey Association committee adjourned during the small hours of the morning today after failing to complete the final form on a player draft rule. No date was set for the next meeting.

The rule, which is designed to eliminate bidding for players' releases and ensure that teams developing players and then losing them to other teams of a higher series, should be compensated.

As far as they went, members decided that Senior A club or Junior A club may draft players from a club of lower classification but no club can be required to surrender more than two players by draft. For each players drafted, the drafting club will pay $150 to the O.H.A. to be distributed at the association's discretion.

Officials said a drafted player must be retained for one full season and not released or transferred. However, a junior player may advance to a senior team belonging to the same club.

Yankees, With Four Straight Victories, Surprise Those Who Called Them for 2nd Division

Casey Stengel's New York Yankees, unbeaten in four starts, are the surprise team of the major baseball leagues in the first week of the season.

When the crippled "Bombers" polished off Washington in three straight, the critics said: "Wait until they start playing the big leaguers." Friday they took Boston Red Sox. Maybe it's time to take them seriously.

Nobody has given the Yanks much of a chance at the pennant, even before Joe DiMaggio's heel started acting up. When Joe was last for an indefinite period, the club seemed doomed to the second division.

Allie Reynolds required no-hit relief help from Joe Page in the last three innings to top the Red Sox Friday 2-1.

Tex Hughson failed his first real test for the Yanks' whipped out of the Sox pennant hopes hinge on Hughson's ability to come back after last year's arm trouble. Hughson walked six Yankees and was yanked for five hits in six innings.

Bearden Goes Distance

Cleveland drew 63,725 for their first home appearance as world champions. Gene Bearden went the distance to trim Detroit, 4-3 in 10 innings. It took a single by Mickey Vernon to score Lary Doby with the winning run. Rookie Johnny Groth of Detroit had one hit in four trips.

Clark Griffith got the night season under way at Washington in the Nats' second home game. A crowd of 29,011 turned out to watch Carl Scheib of Philadelphia's A's blank Washington with four hits, 2-0. Four double plays by the A's infield helped.

Chicago White Sox staged a four-run rally-in the fourth inning to down St. Louis Browns, 5-2. Rookie Gus Zernial's homer touched off Chicago's uprising against Ned Harris and Tom Ferrick.

Ralph Kiner started his campaign for the home - run title by blasting one with two on bases loaded in Pittsburgh's 5-4 victory over Cincinnati. Kiner's wallop and a triple by Clyde McCullough helped the Pirates come from behind before 32,167 opening - day fans.

Cards in Win Column

Al Brazle set down Chicago Cubs with four hits as St. Louis Cardinals broke into the win column for the first time. Stan Musial hit his first homer, Nanny Marion unloaded a three-run double and Red Schoendienst came through with three hits.

Rain and darkness forced the umpires to call the New York Giants game with Boston Braves at the end of nine innings with the score tied at three. The Giants gave the 24,221 customers a thrill by loading the bases with one out in the last of the ninth. Bobby Thomson was nipped at the plate, trying to steal home, and Nels Potter struck out Dave Koslo.

The seven "second openers," with Brooklyn at Philadelphia rained out, drew 182,886, with only the Phils still to open, the 15 others totalled 431,316 for their first home games. In 1948 the 16 openers including one doubleheader, drew 492,180.

Ottawa Senators And Marlboros Ready for Tilt

Toronto, April 23 (CP)—Deadlocked at two victories apiece, Ottawa Senators and Toronto Marlboros tonight renew their best-of-seven eastern senior hockey final. The winner in this series, which produces the eastern representative in the Allan Cup final seems to be a toss-up.

Topsy-Turvey results in the previous games left supporters in a quandry. Toronto won the first game 5-0, Ottawa the second 5-2. Ottawa crushed Toronto 8-2 in the third game, then Toronto blanked Ottawa 7-0 in the fourth game Thursday night.

The sixth game is at Ottawa Monday, and a seventh, if necessary, at Toronto.

Senators, champions of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, have sent out a call for defenseman Butch Slahan and he will dress for tonight's game although bothed by an injured knee. Eddie Emberg likely will be dropped. He also has an injured knee.

A doubtful starter for Ottawa is Bobby Copp, one of the strong men in the Senators all season, whose broken thumb was aggravated Thursday when he also suffered chest bruises.

Coach Joe Primeau of the Marlboros said he would stick along with the line-up that won Thursday. The former National Hockey League star, referring to the 7-0 Marlie victory, said "I just hope they play as well tonight, because Ottawa will probably be better."

Boston Braves Showing no Signs of Discord

New York, April 23 — (AP) — If Bston Braves are a dissatisfied set of ball players, as has been reported, then it is equally true that they are keeping their feelings well concealed.

Paying their first visit of the season here, the National League champions show no signs of the discontent which was said to have seethed through their ranks in spring training. Their manager, Billy Southworth, still stoutly maintains the whole thing was a myth.

"All I can say is this," he replied to a direct question. "I only hope that every club I ever manage has as much spirit and enthusiasm as this team has shown me since the season opened. As far as I am concerned, the whole thing is water over the dam."

Another source close to the club says the original report of dissention was true to this extent that four or five Braves stars were hurt at salaries offered them this year and for which they eventually were forced to sign.

"Sure, some of them grumbled," this authority conceded. "One of them, at least, felt that Southworth was responsible for his not getting more dough. But so far as I can see, that's all about forgotten now and all they're thinking about is winning another world series cut."

Southworth himself is downright enthusiastic about his club. He thinks it is a stronger, sounder outfit than the one which battled through six games before succumbing to Cleveland in last autumn's play-off.

Big Flies For Big Trout

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

Noted Sportsman, Author And Creator of Salmar Tables

Fishing for large trout more often than not is a heartbreaking piece of business, particularly dry-fly fishing. You know the time-worn lament of the fisherman: "You should have seen the one that got away." That certainly is no laughing matter with the fellows who fish floaters.

As a matter of fact, dry-fly fishing for the big fellows is something of a paradox. If you use tackle that is heavy enough to hold them, they decline to take your fly. If you use terminal gear that is light and fine enough to interest them, they'll smash things to flare-you-well before you can bring them to net.

In a stream whose crystal waters flow within ten minutes of my home, I have learned the names, addresses and telephone numbers of fifteen or twenty lunkers — trout that weigh anywhere from five pounds up to goodness knows what. Every season I spend a good deal of time fishing for these tackle busters.

Most Watch Periods

In my regular job as an outdoor writer, it is my pleasant duty to put in a lot of time each year on trout streams. We have not yet learned all there is to know about the Salmar Theory. Thus, the day-to-day progression of the Salmar Periods must be watched and checked carefully against the published schedule. In addition there is always new tackle to be tested—rod actions, line tapers, reels, new flies, lots of things. I find plenty to keep me busy.

Bringing home trout is of little importance. We have about two trout dinners a season and the rest of the time all the trout that we catch are returned to the water. To make necessary observations and to do experimental work, I may just as well occupy myself with the big fellows as by annoy the lesser fry. Tackle that will work out well with the big ones surely will deliver the goods with pan-size fish.

Rarely does a season pass that I do not raise and hook eight or ten of these big fellows on dry-fly tackle. Always the story is the same. Either they pull free of the small hook or they manage to fracture the fine leader points. Now and then I do manage to bring in one of perhaps three pounds but more often the trout comes off top dog.

Wants To Get Big Ones

The trouble is, I'm a hard-headed guy. Firmly fixed in my mind is the determination to land one of these monster brown trout on orthodox dry-fly tackle. Believe me, its a large order.

A few years ago I fought one of them to a standstill, only to have him snack a 6-x leader point against a projecting root no longer than my finger after a battle that lasted one hour and forty minutes by my wrist watch.

This year it's going to be different. Here's the reason. Of course you are familiar with the spiders and the variants. These are big flies; the trouble is that fish finders are tied on small hooks and, to be effective and float high, they should be fished with fine leaders. Rather late in the season I hit on the idea of tying a different sort of fish finder.

Instead of using the conventional small hooks that are standard in ordinary variants and spiders, we are using top-grade, long-shanked hooks in sizes six and eight. For durability, we use hair wings and tail and the body is tapered, like that of a May fly, with a palmered hackle in addition to the hackle at the thorax.

The accompanying sketch is a faithful representation of one of these flies. We tie them in a series of color shades, ranging from the light gray of early spring to the light tans and buffs of the late season.

Special Technique

In order to use leaders that are heavy enough to put the larger hooks to work, a special technique is required. Ordinary dry-fly methods are impractical with such heavy gear. We've had two opportunities to test out the new method last June.

In a big, rough riffle of one of our large trout streams we found the big trout rising at the tail of a May fly drakes. I happened to have with me two of these new patterns which came fairly close to matching the hatch both in color and size, so I rigged up with a heavy leader and one of the flies.

There was no trouble locating the fish as they were rising actively, sending up showers of spray and sometimes coming clear of the water. Just to make sure, I tried a few orthodox drifts over the nearest fish. Nothing doing. I reeled in my line, went ashore, and then waded out to a position upstream from the fish. Then I cast my fly well out so that it would pass outside of the fish's position of the trout if allowed to drift unmolested.

Just before it came abreast of the trout I raised my rod top and caused the fly to jump and skip across his feeding position. Smash! fell the big fellows as he ran a rabbit. With comparatively heavy gear I was in my task to get his two and three quarter pounds.

Moving down to the next feeding fish, I repeated the process. This time I was short to the first cast but took the second one solidly.

Hooks Six Pounder

My son, Dick, who had been watching the performance from the bank, took the other fly and moved downstream to fish for a big fellow he had located, feeding under the bridge. This one, a trout that surely would better the six-pound mark, also took solidly on the second cast.

Dick and the trout fought it out, hammer and tongs, for about twenty minutes. Finally the big fish managed to wedge the leader between the bridge pier and a sunken log, and that was that.

Two days later we duplicated the experience on another stream. Then the hot, dry days of summer were on us and the trout retired to the depths of the spring-fed pools while the streams dwindled to mere trickles. That was the end of the good dry-fly fishing.

For a great many years, the fly fishermen have shown that ordinary dry-fly tackle simply is not equal to the job of handling big fish with fine leaders. Rather late in fish. Trying to land heavy trout on tiny hooks and gossamer leaders is much like shooting elephants with a twenty-two rifle.

Let the downstream technique at least we can use terminal gear that is rugged enough for the job in hand. In addition, the dancing, skipping flies seem to have greater appeal to the big fellows.

If you plan to try out this system, don't forget to keep close track of the daily Solunar Periods. Not only will the main insect hatches be drifting then but the big trout are more disposed to feed at that time. Believe me, it pays to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

Whipper Watson Snatches Last Minute Victory Over Towering Hi Lee, Pride of the Ozarks

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

A be-spattered, be-jabored, be-labored darling of the wrestling faithful here, emerged triumphant over a rootin', tootin', shootin' son-of-a-gun from Arkansas, in the wrestling inaugural in the Memorial Arena last night.

Whipper William Watson, his sleek locks bereft of the haughty tackle, emblematic of the British Empire heavyweight wrestling championship, withstood the savage onslaughts of one Hi Lee towering mat epitome of "Ozark Jake" and in a dazzling last-minute display of reckless endeavor turned what looked like certain defeat into a razzle-dazzle, dizzy victory.

Given Terrific Punishment

Yep, the Whip, after winning the first fall in nice or so minutes, was subjected to terrific punishment at the hands of the Ozarkian giant in that hectic second fall.

Hi Lee, built like the Empire State building, favored a Venetian-blind hair-do. The tawny mane draped over his broad face like the family mop hung up to dry. Down the sides of his face he wore sideburns which curled almost to his jowls, independencing the duck-tail cut of his hair.

Lee towered over the stockily-built Watson like the city hall over Folwell's Folly.

He emitted savage grunts of protest whenever Referee Clifford Fox clawed at him to break a hold, and squealed like a stuck pig when the Whip's carefully-groomed locks came in violent contact with a ring post.

Made Four First Downs

Lee made four first downs with this method. Opposite ring posts swung with the force of impact as he galloped hither and yon with his human pigskin. Finally as a glassy-eyed Watson examined the Arena rafters—from a prone position, Referee Fox blew his whistle for half time and that was that. Sympathetic spectators assisted the dazed Whip to his feet and the clock read eight minutes to go.

Lee strode back in the ring, waving impatient arms. Watson climbed slowly through the ropes, apparently still existing in another world. Lee ripped into him at the gong, intent on repeating the second-fall tactics.

Caught off Balance

Then it happened. An infuriated Watson spun into action. He caught the towering Ozarkian off balance. Quick as a wink the Whip and Lee spun dizzily over his head. Again and again went the glamorous Whip applied a punishing lock on his massive frame.

The Pride of East York sailed the massive 297 frame of Lee to the mat in 9 minutes of the first fall.

Wins Second Fall

Emitting gusts of wrathful fire from his widespread nostrils, the relentless Lee, huge torso gleaming and glistening with the sweat at wrestling toil, tore into the second game foe with intent to maim, mayhem or just plain murder the Idol of 1799 fans (There were 1800 present, Lee was rooting for himself) in that furious second fall.

He favored a jack-hammer attack, swinging gorilla-like arms aloft like the wings of a Dutch mill, to descend with crushing force on the Watsonian noggin. The Whip wilted like last week's lettuce under the fury of this attack and appeared to favor faraway places.

Then the Ozarkian mountaineer from Barked Tree, Arkansas, decided to go football. Tucking the befuddled Whip under his arm like the conventional fugitive, Lee ran for yards clear across the ring, stopping only when the Whip's carefully-groomed locks came in violent contact with a ring post.

Brockville Fans Ready to Back Their Favorite

Toronto, April 23 — (CP) — Fight fans are looking forward to what shapes up to be one of the best amateur fights here in months.

Promoter Deacon Allen has lined up a rubber match between hard-hitting Toronto lightweight Alan McFster and Norm Thompson, Brockville welter for the main event of his 10-bout card Monday night.

This is the third meeting of the two. McFster took the first match last fall and Thompson won an upset victory in February.

In Monday's scheduled five-rounder, Thompson is expected to outweigh McFster by 10 pounds.

Thompson is a hard puncher and has a confusing awkward style. He said he was off his form when he first lost to McFster, but now he appears raring to go.

The Toronto fighter has been warming up for the match. He took on Angelo Rizzo of Niagara Falls, Ont., Thursday, and pulled up an easy victory with his powerful left jab and right hook.

A large contingent of Brockville fight fans will be on hand to cheer on Thompson.

on that whip hold. Finally as the faithful went into ecstasy, the Ozarkian crashed to the mat with a victorious Watson draped over his torso for the winning fall. The clock read two minutes to go.

Popular Pat Flanagan and Prince Michaelovich from Prince went the time limit in a fast, exciting semi-final, with Flanagan getting the referee's nod on points.

Frank Valois and the Cardiff Giant opened the show with a dull bout, the Giant getting the verdict after nine minutes of wrestling.

Toronto, April 23 (CP)— After winning the Stanley Cup for the third successive season—and picking up $2,150 extras from the National Hockey League along the route—Toronto Maple Leaf players couldn't get aboard the all-star gravy train.

Not a single Leaf was picked for the all-star team this year, announced Thursday in Montreal.

Last season, only Turk Broda picked up $1,000 for being picked on the mythical squad and the previous year no member of the cup winners made the team.

Even worse, says Andy (Toronto-Star) Lytle, "not a single Leaf made the second all-star squad, (this year) and voting shows that if a third team had been in the money running—which it wasn't —Brooks, Watson and Thompson only would be the choices."

"What we must conclude," adds Lytle, "is that the league closes its observing book at season end and ignores the playoffs completely . . ."

"Obviously," he concludes, "the players on the Leafs segment, except perhaps to shake the customers hands a few more times, they may still have in pocket."

Smart Cookie Foiled

The smart guys who yell "fake" at every excuse were certainly fooled by the Leafs taking the Stanley Cup final in four straight games, writes Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon.

It doesn't make any difference what the rules are or even if the team finishes the series without a defect, the players are always ready to make a lot of noise, Gaynon added.

"We wouldn't be so mean as to call a sport participant crooked because things didn't end without a reverse for his opponent."

Hiya Stan

Matt (Chatham News) Denulk puts the three successive Stanley Cup victories by Toronto in one basket and says: "Now that the Toronto Maple Leafs have captured the Stanley Cup for three years running, they should be fairly set for any boss they may still have in pocket."

Longboat Legend

Jack (London Free Press) Park tells the story of Tom Longboat, the Brantford, Ont., flash, and victory at the Boston marathon in 1907.

"Longboat had been warned by doctors not to run but he was soon into a good lead . . .

"The course crossed a railroad track and Longboat suddenly collided. He crossed the track well ahead of the field just as a long freight train rumbled over the crossing. Indian Tom shuffled along. When the train passed and the road to the field got under way, he was so far ahead he won —virtually in a walk."

Buffalo Bisons Defeat Syracuse

(By The Associated Press)

Ernie Silverman, who acted as a relief pitcher most of last year, is off to a good start in his bid to be a starting pitcher for the Buffalo Bisons.

Silverman made his first start in the infant International League season Friday and pitched the Bisons to a 5-1 seven-hit triumph over Syracuse Chiefs.

Silverman lost his bid for a shutout in the eighth inning when Carden Gillenwater homered.

The Bisons collected eight hits off starter Johnny Bebber and reliefer Miles Serafin. One of the Bisons blows was a two-run third inning homer by Chet Laabs.

A scheduled ninth game between Montreal and Baltimore was postponed because of rain. The other clubs were idle.

Regina Capitals And Fort Frances Tangle Tonight

Regina, April 23 — (CP)—The Western Canada senior hockey champions will be crowned here tonight after Regina Capitals and Fort Frances Canadians meet in the fifth and deciding game of their best-of-five series. If the previous four games are any indication, it's a risky bet either way.

If Regina comes out on top, the eastern champions — either Ottawa Senators or Toronto Marlboros — will face a smooth-passing squad that also can throw plenty of weight around on defence. It is steeped in experience, boasting three former National Hockey Leaguers — Sweeney Schriner, Mel Hill and Wilf Cude—and defenceman Vic Myles.

Should Fort Frances collect Saturday's chips, the west will be represented in the Allan Cup final by what is perhaps amateur hockey's greatest Cinderella team. It is a squad of lightweights who skate like lightning.

Regina defencemen have been instructed to "hit 'em hard." In tonight's game. That's what they did in the second and third games of the series which Caps won 7-2 and 6-2. Speed and the will-to-win gave Fort Frances 5-4 and 11-6 triumphs in the first and fourth encounters, respectively.

Regina hasn't been in the Allan Cup final since the Rangers were crowned champs in 1941.

Fort Frances has never been in the semi-final before, let alone the final. Hailing from a town of little more than 10,000 population, the Canadians boast a two-run third period goal by Chet Laabs.

A scheduled ninth game between Montreal and Baltimore was postponed because of rain. The other clubs were idle.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In due time an adolescent player learns the facts of bridge. Or at least one of them. It is that every correctly bid contract will not make. Some will be defeated despite the soundest bidding.

This may happen when unseen cards are bunched in the hand of an opponent. Or when two or more unseen high cards of a suit are split between opponents. Or some such unexpected division.

On the other hand, bunched cards in one hand could be a help to declarer. When? If they happen to be in the opponent hand under the gun. As in the case of the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠ K Q J 10 5
♥ A 8
♦ 9 8 4 3
♣ Q 3

WEST
♠ A 9 8 6
♥ Q 9 8 5 2
♣ 8 6 5 2

EAST
♥ K J 10 9 4 3
♦ A Q 10
♣ K 7

SOUTH
♥ 7
♦ K J 6 5 2
♣ A J 10 9 4

South became the declarer at a contract of five diamonds. This was doubled. West who felt reasonably confident of defeating such a bold South, however, redoubled from confidence in the count.

Since east had stuck in a heart bid somewhere along the line, the opening lead from west was a heart. When dummy hand in north was spread, south imagined to take stock of his chances.

A spade will lose to the opponent ace, but dummy may lose if unseen big diamonds are not neutralized. A club may lose if the king of clubs is in the west hand.

Dummy ace of hearts won the first attack. A trump led from there was hoped on the part of diamond ace. A return heart was ruffed by south who led a spade toward dummy.

Wert took the ace and came back another spade, hoping east could ruff. But east followed suit. A trump through east was finessed by south. The last east trump was pulled with the south 8 highest.

Now a small trump entered dummy and the good spade there were run. Then the club queen was ruffed. This caught the east king in a lock and it was all over but the east disappointment.

Being under the gun can destroy all your fun.

Hollywood, April 23 (AP) — A birthday bouquet and some memories for Shirley Temple:

Little Miss Marker is 21 today. For me, it adds another milestone in my coverage of the saga of Shirley.

I picked up the story at Shirley's graduation from the Westlake School for Girls.

Her boss, David Selznick was there and asked if she wanted to go to college. "Yes," she said, "but I don't think I have the credits." She never did go to college.

Romance Rumor

At the graduation there were rumors of romance. It flowered into an engagement to John Agar a few months later. The first thing I knew I was watching Shirley and her mother shop for a trousseau.

Then came the wedding. It drew a bigger and noisier crowd than a premiere.

I went to the fifth birthday party. I was on-the set the day she announced she was going to have a baby. No, I didn't have to face the hospital waiting room with Agar.

I recorded the news when she bobbed her hair. I have seen her at night clubs, premieres and at home. And now she's 21.

Modest And Loyal!

What kind of a girl is she? She seems modest, but not overly so. She likes to tease and loves practical jokes. Temperamental? Not much. She has a good mind for publicity, but never mentions a story after it's printed.

She's loyal to her close friends, but not too easy to get to know. She never seems bored, even with the tedium of making movies. She's bright but not intellectual. She's serious about her work, even if she talks lightly about it.

That's Shirley Temple. And I suppose I'll be covering the births of her other children and her 25th birthday and her children's marriages and so on until she's playing character roles. Fate, I guess.

CLAIMED TO BE OLDEST MOTORCYCLE RIDER

Lewis, Wis., April 23 (AP) — Joe Lepolis, who had a lot of pride in his boasts that he was the oldest motorcycle rider in the world, died yesterday of injuries suffered when his cycle skidded into a ditch. He was 91. Lepolis took up cycling after retiring as a farmer when he reached 60, wore out five motorcycles in covering some 100,000 miles.

STOKOWSKI INJURED

Spartanburg, S. C., April 23 — (AP) — Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, was injured slightly, here yesterday. He was unable to conduct the orchestra at a concert here tonight.

Stokowski bruised his right shoulder when he fell while getting out of a taxi.

AT THE BELLE—Brian Donlevy, Walter Pidgeon and Clark Gable represent the "brass" seen in "Command Decision", a story of men's daring that will tear at a woman's heart. The big cast of this MGM drama starting today at the Belle also stars Van Johnson, Charles Bickford, John Hodiak and Edward Arnold.

AT THE CAPITOL—Tyrone Power attempts drastic means to learn the true identity of sly and ubiquitous Cecil Kellaway who needles Ty about many things—but especially about Anne Baxter—in "The Luck of the Irish", new Twentieth Century-Fox comedy opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Incident", a suspenseful drama starring Jane Frazee and Warren Douglas. Both hits are first city run. Matinee daily at 2.00 Daylight Saving Time.

Teachers Endorse Stand Taken By Dr. G. E. Hall

(By The Canadian Press)

The Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation has endorsed the stand of Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Western Ontario, that players of "the wholesale exploitation of young high school students in this country."

The semi-annual meeting Thursday of the federation's 80-member council passed a resolution endorsing "the stand taken by Dr. Hall . . . with respect to the undesirable situation existing in organized hockey, as it affects adolescents in Ontario secondary schools."

The council-members represented some 14 districts throughout the province.

Annis (Big Stuke) Stukus Friday night came up with the results of a lightening sweep to Eastern Canada's football fields. He lined up a solid core of veteran footballers of Edmonton's entry in the Western Canada Senior Football Conference. He plundered his own back yard for players including Jackie Hill, quarterback ,for Argos two seasons ago, halfback Frank Hickey from Argos, and outsides Mel Aull, Ralph Bertolini and Dante Difrancisco from Hamilton Tigers.

At Regina, Al Pickard, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Friday night announced dates and venue of the Memorial Cup final between Montreal Royals and the winner of Calgary Buffaloes-Brandon Wheat Kings series.

If Brandon wins, the first game will be at Winnipeg April 28, the next two at Brandon April 30 and May 3, and the fourth game at Winnipeg May 5. Remainder of the games will be played as necessary at Brandon May 10 and 11th.

If Calgary wins all games will be played on the same dates in the Alberta city, starting April 28.

Clarence (Happy) Day signed his 1949-50 contract as coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey club, general manager Conn Smythe announced. Day has coached the club to five Stanley Cups since taking over other coach in the league's history.

At Georgetown, Bucko McDonald's Sundridge Beavers Friday night retained the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate B championship by defeating Georgetown 7-5 in the sixth game of their best-of-seven series, Sundridge won the round 4-2 in games.

Little Benny's Note Book

The little stationerry candy store has a big new sine in the window saying, Attention, boys, Absolutely free! A genuine plated wrist watch if you sell 3 duzzen cakes of Angel Breath bath soap.

Seemnig like a lot of duzzen cakes of soap to sell, and Saturday morning I was talking to Puds Simkins about it in front of his house, and we decided to go into partnership and sell 3 duzzen cakes between us and take terns wearing the wrist watch, and Puds said, Oh boy they're some watches. They tick so loud everybody will know you've got a wrist watch without you even having to tell them, he said.

And we started to walk to the store, me saying, I hope none of the other fellows have noticed the sine. It'll be hard enough arguing ladies into buying unknown soap even if we're the only ones trying to sell it to them, I said.

Jeez, look who's in back of us, Puds said.

Marching Sam Cross and Sid Hunt, and Sam said, Where are you 2 guys going?

Oh, nowheres, I said. Where are you 2 going? I said, and Sid said, Oh we're just walking.

Sounding stupicious, and we came to the store and who was outside looking at the sine but Glasses Magee, Shorty Judge, Skinny Martin and my cousin, Artie, and Puds said, What are you guys all doing here?

The same thing you guys are, Glasses said and Shorty Judge said, Aw rats, what's a use?

Being what everybody was thinking, and I said, Heck, let's all walk out of the Park and have some fun.

Which we did, proving it would be mutch easier to go into biznes if there wasn't so mutch competition.

Abbot Predicts Federal Election Not too Far Away

Prince Albert, Sask., April 22, (CP)—The current wheat contract with Great Britain has produced the greatest stability ever known in wheat prices, Finance Minister Douglas Abbott said at a public meeting here Thursday night.

Mr. Abbott, speaking in support of F. H. Heine, who was nominated Federal Liberal candidate at a meeting here earlier, referred to the "dismal" outlook prevailing for wheat prices at the end of the recent war. A decline was in sight and the government felt that the western farmers would forego large immediate returns if they could be shown a profit accruing over a long period.

It was with this in mind that the wheat convenant with Britain had been formulated. Predictions had held true and the farmers who supported the move had benefited by a steady rise in prices. A second benefit was now becoming apparent in the payment of participation dividends.

Mr. Abbott predicted that the Federal election would "not be too long deferred."

$750,000 Arena For Kitchener

Kitchener, April 22 (CP)— A five man building committee was named Thursday night to sit with architects on plans for the Memorial auditorium. It is expected the building will seat 6,000 and cost about $750,000.

Ratepayers voted $450,000 for the project in 1945. The additional money necessary due to rising building costs will be partially met by public subscription, it is expected. The K-W Junior Chamber of Commerce will conduct the campaign.

James and Wright, Kitchener architects, will draw the exploratory plans.

The sith building committee named Thursday night included contractors Harold Ball and Albert Dunker, Mayor Washburn, and Aldermen Henry Sturm and Harry Ainlay.

LONGEST TUNNEL

The longest tunnel in North America is that through Cascade Mountains in the state of Washington. It is 7.79 miles long and cut through solid granite, perfectly straight.

SHORE FISHING POOR

Lunenburg, N. S. (CP) — Scarcity of fish and bad weather have greatly hampered shore fishing here, but fishermen are expecting increased catches as weather improves. Most bank fishermen have completed changing over from fresh-to the salt fishing industry and have sailed for the Banks.

Mayor McCallum May Enter Race For Leadership

Toronto, April 22 (CP)—Mayor Hiram E. McCallum of Toronto said today "I will let my name stand" if nominated for the provincial leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party at its convention here next week.

If Mayor McCallum enters the race, it will bring the number of candidates to five.

Already in the leadership race are Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost, Attorney General Leslie Blackwell, Education Minister Dana Porter and Kolso Roberts, a Toronto lawyer.

Social Services Costs Gradually Being Lifted

Welland, April 22 (CP)— The cost of social services is gradually being lifted from municipalities in Ontario, Provincial Treasurer Frost said today.

Speaking to the Welland County Municipal Association at their fall annual convention, Mr. Mrost said this was being done in line with the present trend of relieving real estate of burdensome taxation.

"More and more it is felt that the cost of social services should be borne by Ottawa," he said.

C. W. Hagar of Crowland was elected president of the association.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Gay's eyes filled. Millicent said, "You've been very brave to carry on this long alone. Won't you love my son a little? I want my son to marry Stephen's daughter. Gay, I want to see you bright and lovely — as you were meant to be."

This room. How peaceful it was. Not cluttered or disorderly as the little studio was. Gay could live in a room like this. There was no confusion in this life, no awakening out of a tired sound sleep by the shrill cry of an alarm, no hurriedly prepared breakfasts eaten with one eye on the clock, no impatient, jostling crowds . . . There was peace and order and refinement in this life offered to her by a woman who loved her and a man who wanted to marry her.

She took a deep breath and smiled sadly. "Do you want Gregg to marry a failure who ran into his arms because she wasn't big enough to face her own problems?"

"They're too big for you, child."

Gay smiled again and met Millicent's wise, tolerant eyes. "They are mine. I'm stuck with them and I won't run out on them. It will hurt Gregg more if I know he married a girl who doesn't love him than if I never see him again." Her eyes softened. "You have been wonderful."

"I want you," Millicent said.

Gay had been gone only a little while when Gregg came.

"I saw Gay. She was here," Millicent said. "Poor child." She looked at her tall blond son. "Gay will have to touch deeper depths than she has touched yet before she'll marry you. She'll have to be — like me."

"That won't be quite fair," he said.

She smiled. "Love rarely is, my dear. Be patient."

Gay's shoulders were covered with snow when she opened the door of the studio.

Penny came toward her. "Gay, I have to tell you this. They say they took Diana to the hospital. She's had a nervous breakdown."

They would not let Gay see her mother the first week and she went only for a brief visit, scarcely realizing that she was eating and sleeping and working. Mixed with her fears for Diana's life was the constant thought of money. She did not know how she would pay the hospital and specialist's bills, and she wondered how, without Diana's small salary, she would pay her share of the rent and other expenses of the studio.

ANTALGINE

At dinner Penny said, "I have a little money saved, Gay. It's yours."

"I can't take your money, Penny. You want to take a cruise this summer and you've worked hard." Her mouth, usually red and curving, was grim. Diana in the hospital, prostrate and ill. The thought tore at her.

"Have I failed Mother in any way?" Gay looked up from a dinner plate she had scarcely touched. "I might fail other people but never her. I'm helpless and tied. She can never work again. How am I going to support her when I can do nothing except what I'm doing now? I've seen her fighting this, and there was nothing I could say or do."

Tired as she was she could not sleep. She looked the long night and that and barred doors met her.

Gay had phoned Patti the night their mother was taken to the hospital but Patti and Richard were out of Washington on a motor trip. The butler was noncommittal. He did not know where they had gone or when they would return.

She went to see Marchand.

"What is it this time?" he asked testily. "Your child's ill?"

Gay put her hands on his desk. Her eyes had never been more deeply blue. "I'm sorry to disturb you, but I'm in trouble and I've got to have more money." She hurried on . . . "I've been married three months and I've wished a hundred times that I had sent and those Gordon had sent gave a cheerful note.

Diana was like a white-haired fragile doll on the very white bed.

"I've been away," Gordon Bannister said. "I didn't know your mother was ill."

"The flowers you've been sending are very lovely," said Gay.

Diana looked rested and peaceful as she looked proudly at her daughter. How sweet and gallant Gay had been! She had not said a word about the staggering bills that must be piling up! Not a word except cheer and comfort. Did she still love Alan? Did she think of Chris? How safe she'd be if she could love Gregg!

Gay looked at the woman that her mother liked Gordon Bannister though she wondered about him. Beneath his humor, his quick smile, there was a keenness she could not penetrate. White was mixed with the black of his hair and though his brown eyes had experience and wisdom in them, his smile was youthful.

When he drove her back to the studio and said casually, "I was in the war," she knew that the war had given his eyes wisdom. There is something in the quiet of every man who was in the war. They have looked so often upon death and if they were fortunate enough to come out of it alive, it has given them spirituality and tolerance.

Very often she found him with her mother during the days that followed. Humor was an effort for her. With Lucia's wedding day and the night at the charity ball drawing closer and the desk in the studio piled high with bills, her strength and humor were drained from her. Gordon could make Diana smile with stories of the places he'd been and the people he'd met.

He took Gay to dinner one evening.

He looked at her steadily, penetratingly. "I've had enough experience with specialists and hospitals to know they're expensive."

"I know what you are going to say. Please don't say it. Thank you, but I can't." Was she foolish? Her pride, the Van Avery pride. Her stubbornness. "My mother never liked you. I should hate myself if I couldn't take care of her now. You're very kind but there's come out of this debt — if I can."

"Often it's simpler to accept favors from strangers than from people one knows well." He smiled at her. "We're going to the gayest show we can find in town tonight. If there are any good stories, you can tell them to your mother."

Gay laughed. "You tell them much better than I."

He said, "I've always wanted a daughter." Walking toward his car, he said, "I have a son."

As the days went on she knew Gordon loved her mother, and she knew nothing about him except that he had been in the war, that he had a son, and that he was amusing and generous.

It was a cool sunny afternoon. Sandy and Macduff were scampering playfully about the studio. The curtains blew in the breeze. Penny, wearing a bright red smock, was at her drawing board. She painted a few strokes and then took a rag from an apple red as her smock.

When the phone rang, she said, "Darn it. I wonder who it is," and let its shrill cry annoy her several minutes before she went to it. If it were Alan, she'd tell him to stay away from Gay. Did he? Gay gave enough on the mind with Diana in the hospital, and every one in the show making it difficult for her, and all these terrible bills! "I'll tell that young man a thing or two," Penny thought indignantly. If it were Gregg . . . She liked Gregg.

But the deep rough voice did not ask for Gay. It asked, "Is that you, Penny?"

And all the loneliness and heartbreak of the past months went into the sound of his ghmy. "Mac!"

His voice was restrained. "How are you? What are you doing?"

He did not like her solemn, she knew. She brushed back the tears that were about to spill over her lashes and said, "I am drawing a woman in a polo coat. She's smoking a cigaret. I have on a red smock and blue shoes. My new spring shoes. I have a blue hat, too, that sits on the back of my head and looks awfully silly. I'm thin as a rail. I'm apple bespoke I'm hungry."

She waited for him to speak, holding her breath. Don't shut me out of your life, Mac, now that you've come back! Have you come back because you love me? Did you miss me a little? I don't care about the scar on your face and your limp, dearest. It's been so lonely and dull without you. Mac, tell me, tell me something! Don't keep on sitting like that before you speak!

"Meet me," he said and told her where, "in fifteen minutes and I'll see what I can do about your hunger." He rang off.

She was too surprised and excited to look for a moment. Mac! Mac was back! He wanted to see her! Fifteen minutes! She danced around the room. The scottie looked up at her, startled.

She went into the bedroom and took off the red smock and put on her new blue dress, and looked down at the tiny blue shoes with the absurdly high heels she always wore to make herself look taller. Mac always said, grinning down at her from his height, "You're a little thing, Penny." She combed her bangs and put on the silly hat that made her look even more like a child.

Brushing the tears from her lashes, she looked at herself in the mirror. Mac, don't hurt me more! Don't hold me off. Don't be cold and hard and aloof.

Her high heels seemed to fly across the pavement. She was like a child who is late for school. When she came to the restaurant, she looked around but did not see him. She took a corner table by the window, and told herself she must be calm. "I must," she thought, compressing her red mouth, "put a tight lid on my heart. They're soaring too high."

He was late. He had always been late, she thought.

She did not look up or peer out the window for him. He limps, she thought. He has a scar. He'll be very self-conscious. So she would not look up.

It took Mac's voice to make Penny lift her eyes.

"Hi, Penny."

She held out both her hands and smiled warmly at him. She did not look at the scar but smiled into his eyes, thinking how sunburned he was and how well he looked.

"You look good to me," said Mac, sitting down across from her and giving his cane beside the table. "I've never seen a woman who wasn't hungry. I haven't much cash so don't order the whole menu." He smiled at her. "I forgot. You never do that."

When the waiter went away they just looked at each other.

"Why did you come back?" Penny asked a little breathlessly.

"To see if some producer won't buy Chris' play."

"Why didn't Chris come back? Because of me?"

He lighted a cigaret. "Yes and no. You see, most of us could come. We're short of cash. Chris is writing another play in case this one flops. So I came."

You came back, too, because you love me, she thought, but you will never say it.

"How is Chris?" she asked.

"Fine. Texas is swell. He writes and plays tennis with Evelyn Ewing in the daytime. At night he doesn't say much. He's pretty moody."

Los Angeles — (AP)—Angelo Pollizi had a bet on a horse at the recent Santa Anita meeting.

There was a photo finish. Pollizi pressed in front at the finish line, awaiting the decision.

Suddenly, he said, he was hit on the head by the photo plate as it slid at a fast clip on a cable from the camera booth on the roof to the Judges' sub-basement stand.

Pollizi said his scalp was gashed and he was knocked cold. He sued the track for $25,000.

Otherwise it was a fine day at the races. When he came to, he found his horse had won the race. The photo had proved it.

Poland, Me. — (AP)—A steamshovel operator's cool head paid off on a hot seat yesterday.

George Patchell, 38, hit an 11,000 - volt power line with the shovel crane.

Sparks jumped from the rig like fireworks. Patchell sat tight, while a frantic foreman called the power company.

The juice was quickly turned off. Patchell, grinned, stepped down from his cab.

Power company officials said he would have been electrocuted had he left his padded cushion or touched his feet to the metal floor.

USES LUNCH PAIL TO BEAT OFF YOUNG ASSAILANT

Toronto, April 22 — (CP) — Walter Greaves, 67, used his lunch pail to beat off an attack yesterday by a heavy-set youth who knocked him to the ground as he alighted from a street-car in North Toronto. Police said they believe the assailant was intoxicated. The thug escaped on foot.

Candidates Wage Strong Campaigns For P-C Leadership

Blackwell, Frost, Porter And Roberts Still in Race

Toronto, April 25 (CP) — Four candidates today launched vigorous campaigns for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party. Delegates arriving for the three-day convention here into appeals for support at the voting Wednesday to pick a man who will become premier of Ontario Thursday.

Booths will be set up on the convention floor of the downtown Royal York Hotel distributing literature on behalf of the four known contestants — Hon. Leslie Blackwell, Ontario provincial treasurer; Hon. Leslie Frost, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Mines; Hon. Dana Porter, Minister of Municipal Affairs; Miss Roberts, mining lawyer and a former member of the Ontario Legislature.

Set Up Headquarters

Each of the four has headquarters — Mr. Blackwell's in the main part of the morning greeting friends and well-wishers. Part of Mr. Frost's is in the basement, delegates and clustered on the mezzanine floor.

A possible fifth candidate, Hon. Thomas Kennedy, Minister of Highways, was not available. Friends said he had gone to the country for the morning and took this as an indication his name would not go before the convention when nominations are held this afternoon. Mr. Kennedy had indicated Sunday night he might make a statement today.

Many MacClellan

Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto said he would not be a candidate. Friday it was reported he would run if nominated.

Predictions as to the outcome of the voting were a dime a dozen, depending on the way the supporting delegate skinned to vote himself. However, the general view appears to be that the race is wide open unless one's for a sudden swing of support to one candidate from the first ballot. Some delegates thought the question would be settled on the first ballot; others thought it would take three.

Civilian Doctors To Hear Addresses On Aviation Medicine

Toronto, April 25 (CP) — Foremost aviation doctors in civilian medicine assembled here today for the opening of the first government-sponsored meeting of the subject for civilian doctors.

For a week 34 selected post-graduate students will hear lectures on aviation medicine. The long-term objective is explained as creation of uniform examining techniques of the 300 medical officers appointed by the Transport Department to test civilian pilots.

Experts in crash pathology and other specialities have mapped out a two-year instruction program to cover the subject. The scheme's originator is a former country doctor from Ship Harbor, N. S., Dr. Harry Wilson, 40, now chief of civil aviation medicine of the Dominion Health and Welfare Department.

MINISTERIAL MODEL

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, April 25 (CP)—Synopsis: Ontario's recent cold snap ended early today with warmer weather promised for almost all regions today and Tuesday. Warmer air pushing in from the west is causing rain in the James Bay region with variable cloudiness reported north of the Great Lakes. Southern Ontario is mostly clear today with some cloudiness forecast for Tuesday.

TRUCK-TRAIN LEVEL CROSSING CRASH KILLS 3

Driver Had Adequate Warning of Train

Perth, April 23 — (CP) — A truck-train level-crossing crash which killed three persons in this town 40 miles southwest of Ottawa early yesterday today.

The crash, between a light parcel truck and an eastbound C.P.R. freight train, occurred at the Wilson Street crossing early Sunday night.

It took the lives of:

Gordon Chaplin, 27-year-old driver of the truck and popular district sportsman and dairy — owner, his wife, Mrs. Lorna Chaplin, 25, and their 15-month-old son, Brent.

The three were driving home to Glen Tay about four miles west of Perth when the crash occurred.

The puzzling point about the crash, police found, was that the wig-wag warning signal and bell at the crossing were in perfect working order.

It appeared that Chaplin had adequate warning of the train's approach yet tire marks pressumably made by the truck was found on both tracks. Witnesses believe the rays of a late but strong sun may have temporarily distracted Chaplin's attention at the crucial moment.

The force of the impact drove the truck 40 feet off the track, demolishing it completely.

Body of the infant son was found on the locomotive's cowcatcher. It was noticed by the engineer when he had halted 400 feet from the accident. The body was removed and the train backed up to the scene of the crash.

Chaplin himself died instantly but his wife was still alive when Perth residents reached the wreckage. She was removed to hospital but died a few minutes later.

The crash will be the subject of an inquest May 3, district coroner Dr. H. C. Hagyard announced after viewing the bodies.

Chaplin played hockey and baseball on Perth teams. Mrs. Chaplin was the former Lorna Barry of Glen Tay. She is survived by a brother, Arthur, in Oshawa and another brother in Glen Tay.

Papers Link Moscow With Chinese Reds

Lake Success, N.Y., April 25 — (CP)—Britain's intelligence service is preparing to release copies of captured orders and papers showing the Soviet Union is aiding the Chinese Communists. A British source said Saturday these papers showed close co-operation between the Moscow government and the Chinese Communists. He gave no details.

NATIVE OF TWEED DIES

Ottawa, April 25 (CP)— Wilfred Laurier Clairmont, Dominion Fire Commissioner, died in hospital Sunday night from colitis. He was a Native of Tweed, Ont., Mr. Clairmont was appointed fire commissioner in 1939 and was noted throughout Canada and the United States for his keen interest in fire prevention.

Lewis Likely to Stress Security Benefits Rather Than Wage Boosts

Washington, April 25. (AP)— John L. Lewis today met with his aides to frame new soft coal contract demands that may set a 1949 pattern bargaining for other United Unions.

The Union's bituminous agreement is due to expire June 30.

Lewis is expected to put more accent on requests for more working hours and higher miner welfare benefits than on increases in wages.

This is a trend many United States Labor Relations experts have anticipated. C.I.O. President Philip Murray plans to call his Steelworkers' Union Policy committee into session next week at Pittsburgh to get a bargaining policy, too. And it is reported Murray will put pension improvements ahead of other demands.

Lewis has permitted a fairly clear advance indication of what his demands will be among them some "improvement" in the present 20-cents-per-ton royalty on coal production for the Union's Welfare Fund.

There have been indications that the $10,000,000-a-year fund is being spent on pensions, business, death and other benefits faster than the royalty revenues.

Miners in the United States now get a basic $14.05 daily wage for an eight-hour day.

There has been speculation Lewis may ask for a seven-hour, or even a six-hour day, at the same $14.05 daily wage—a step designed to combat unemployment now that coal production has lessened.

Some American miners now work only 4 day or two a week, others four or five.

Difference in Living Under Democracy and Communism Staggering

—STEINHARDT

Montreal, April 25 — (CP) — The difference between living under a free system and under communist regime "staggers the imagination," Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt of the United States said today.

"Make no mistake about it," he told the Montreal Canadian Club. "Only one who, like myself, has lived for years within a communist state, is qualified to tell you" of this difference.

Mr. Steinhardt, who held diplomatic appointments in Moscow and Prague before coming to Ottawa, spoke of communism as a "creed, foreign and repugnant to the peoples of both our nations" which "stalks the world."

The seed of communism if planted in North America would "first undermine, then shatter, and finally obliterate every vestige of the way of life we hold so dear."

But he believed North America, because of its belief "that we are not slaves," would be poor soil for such planting.

Prosperity and full employment in a democracy such as we have here always continued faith in its solvency as a political philosophy, he said.

"In this connection," said Mr. Steinhardt, "may I suggest that there is on the eve of economic developments comparable only to those which took place in the United States between 1850 and the outbreak of the First World War.

"I foresee in the near future an expansion of mining and industry in Canada on a scale as yet undreamed of."

"I have little doubt that the next 10 years will mark the beginning of a new era of industrial expansion in Canada far transcending anything you have here before witnessed or even anticipated."

The American Ambassador urged his listeners to share his confidence of this expansion which will "strengthen the foundations of democracy on the North American continent."

Court Decision Says Bribery Evident in Halifax Purchases

Halifax, April 25 — (CP) — Mayor A. E. Lloyd as the intended recipient of a $3,000 bribe for which Lloyd would have voted against city purchase of six snowblowers from manufacturer's agent John A. West of neighboring Dartmouth, Lloyd said today he had been informed of the decision but would go on record as supporting the Halifax's mayoralty contest. Civic elections are Wednesday. Lloyd resigned his council seat to contest the office now held by Mayor J. E. (Gee) Ahern.

Supreme Court Justice Hardy mayor said: "That investigation was asked for by me in the public interest.

"It serves to illustrate the necessity for a change in civic government." Lloyd has advocated the city manager form of administration.

Judge Pottier said $1,000 of "a $3,000 bribe" was paid Lloyd by West at a hotel-room conference on May 16, 1948. "Seven, though Mr. West had claimed in his evidence this payment had been in three parts," he said.

"I believe, however, it was established . . . that the sum was to be taken as part of the $3,000 notwithstanding that they tried to give it an air of respectability by calling it a loan."

He criticized Mayor Ahern, City Solicitor C. P. Beth and a second alderman for the way they handled the matter.

There was no indication from official sources what action, if any, would follow the decision.

TEN IN TRUCK KILLED IN CRASH WITH FAST TRAIN

Sunday Worshippers On Way to Church

Carthage, Tenn., April 25 — (AP) — A fast freight train rammed a truck crowded with Sunday worshippers at a crossing near here, Sunday night, killing 10 persons — nine of them one family — and severely injuring another.

The truck caught fire and was dragged some 100 yards down the track before the speeding Tennessee Central locomotive came to a halt.

Some of the dead were scattered along the tracks, while the were pinned in the cab of the truck.

All 11 were returning from church services in the Macedonia area when the accident occurred at a passing point eight miles south of here.

Killed were:

Jess Bennett, 50, driver; his wife, Mattie Bell Bennett, 45, and their children, Douglas, 17, U. S. Navy, and Melvin Earl, eight.

Mrs. Harvey Bennett Dickens, 24, daughter of the Bennett's; her husband, Paulie Bennett, 27, and their one-year-old daughter, Catherine.

W. E. (Coonie) Bennett, 49, Jess Bennett's brother.

Ira Lloyd Gibbs, 17, died in hospital.

Ruth Robinson, the sole survivor, was in hospital. Doctors said she suffered a broken pelvic bone.

Rips Truck in Two

State Safety Commissioner Sam Neal, who hurried to the scene, said the train ripped the 1½-ton truck in two. He said it appeared five persons were seated in the cab and six on the chairs set up in the back.

He said one of the Bennett's, John Overstreet, told Commissioner Neal he had stopped his car at the crossing to let some passengers out when the truck came up behind him.

Aim Lightning Blow at Hangchow To Trap Troops

Feeling Grows That Capital To Capitulate Without Fight

By FRED HAMPSON

Shanghai, April 25 (AP)— Communist armies today aimed a lightning blow toward the sea at Hangchow hoping to trap 300,000 Nationalist troops below Shanghai.

Other Communist forces, which took Nanking Sunday without effort, were reported just 19 miles from Shanghai.

The feeling grew among Shanghai's 5,000,000 inhabitants that the great Asiatic commercial center, handed over to the Communists without a fight, just as Nanking did Sunday morning.

Seymour Topping, Associated Press correspondent in Nanking, reported the Communist Nationalist capital received the Communists quietly at 9:20 a.m. Sunday, Nanking time.

The Communists took their stations before some foreign embassies and all government buildings and utilities in Nanking.

At the time Nanking fell, the Communist radio at Peiping announced the capture of Taiyuan, Shansi Province capital and industrial center 300 miles northwest of Nanking. Taiyuan had been under siege for months. The radio said all of the city's 150,000 defenders were wiped out. Pilots who flew over Taiyuan later reported it in flaming ruins.

The speed of the attack drive southward from the Yangtze appareatly had thrown a panic around the government defenders. Two close Chiang Communists were to Hangchow, big port 100 miles southwest of Shanghai, was reported to be unofficial. The best and lack of accurate military information.

Situation Grows Serious

Kashing, the vital rail junction 53 miles southwest of Shanghai apparently had not been touched by the Reds.

Five Britons On Border Patrol Held by Russians

Hamburg, Germany, April 25, (AP)—The Russians are holding a British officer and four men who stumbled into a border shooting Friday, a Soviet zone army spokesman announced today.

At first British authorities had announced that a British army soldier was captured by the Russians.

British military government officials yesterday said the soldiers were within the Soviet zone in pursuit of railway track at Klein Schwechten on the Russian zone border when a Russian sentry opened fire with a machine gun.

Today the army spokesman identified the British group as one which was on routine patrol of the border.

Fleet in China Being Reinforced With Carriers

London, April 25 — (AP) — Britain is reinforcing her fleet in China waters, where a cruiser, a destroyer and two sloops have been pounded by Communist shore guns on the Yangtze.

Two aircraft carriers and a cruiser, Newfoundland, have been learned reliably today, will join the Far Eastern fleet.

The Admiralty confirmed that reinforcements had been ordered, but a spokesman declined to disclose their nature, where they were going from or when they would arrive. Based at Hong Kong are the cruiser Amethyst, destroyers and four sloops. They have no air cover.

The Communists first shelled the sloop Amethyst while it was attempting to sail up the Yangtze from Shanghai to Nanking with food and other supplies for the British legation there.

Then on Thursday the sloop Black Swan and the cruiser London were shelled and damaged.

On Friday the destroyer Consort was damaged.

Winston Churchill, angered by the Communist shelling of four British warships in the Yangtze River last week with the loss of 44 lives, notified Prime Minister Attlee he will demand a full explanation when he is in the House of Commons reconvenes tomorrow after its Easter recess.

The Conservative Party leader will get his explanation, a Cabinet spokesman said today, but the Cabinet hasn't decided yet exactly how it will be given. Attlee will say tomorrow.

Attlee cancelled a full Cabinet session to consider what a government called "this grave development" but he instructed Defence Minister A. V. Alexander and Viscount Hall, First Lord of the Admiralty, to write a statement of the situation.

An admiralty investigation of the shelling is in progress now, a spokesman said.

Mixed Reception Given Recent Ruling of Board

Ottawa, April 26 (CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioner's order Saturday, removing the "anomalous mountain differential" rate on freight charges, got a mixed reception in Canada's western provinces but in most cases it received a warm and happy welcome.

In Vancouver, business leaders hailed the decision as "economically sound" but the mountain differential had been removed, but it was only one of the "difficulties" to be ironed out.

Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan said removal of the mountain differential was "the first step" in abolishing freight rate inequalities.

But Alex Aitken, Secretary of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, said removal of the differential would give Pacific Columbia cities a larger trading area to the disadvantage of industry on the prairies.

Premier D. L. Campbell of Manitoba declined any immediate comment. His province had opposed the differential every time it was moved but they would have to share the burden of railway costs in the mountain area.

The verdict wiped out a differential that had been in effect in varying degrees ever since the railways started operations in the Rockies late in the last century. It had been on its present basis since 1922, when it was revived downward from 1½ times the prairie level.

Bodies Recovered 400 Miles Down St. Lawrence R.

Quebec, April 25 (CP)—Provincial police said today a man whose body was recovered from the St. Lawrence River April 9 about 50 miles below Quebec has been identified as Aaron Norman Darling of Belleville, Ont.

Police said his identity was established by a ring of his wrist watch and finger-print records of the Royal Canadian Regiment with which Darling served.

Darling disappeared from Brockville last November. Drowning was the cause of his death and his body evidently floated about 400 miles down the St. Lawrence before it came ashore at St. Francois where it was discovered by a railway repair gang.

Research Scientist Invents Rain-Repellent but Won't Get Rich

Ottawa, April 25 (CP)— A 49-year-old National Research Council scientist has invented what is believed to be one of the best rain-repellents in the world, but won't get rich.

Dr. R. F. Stedman of the N.R.C.'s chemistry division who has been doing constant experiments to improve the aircraft windscreens for the last seven years.

Today, mostly through his efforts, the research council is in possession of a patent, the resting of which will bring it a pile of cash in royalties from a commercial firm which has undertaken to get only his pay.

The rain-repellent is a wax-like substance, applied to the windscreen through a secret bonding method. Its application in aircraft transportation operations is expected to cut down the number of air crashes caused through lack of visibility.

The reason for many of these crashes, N.R.C.—found, was because of-optical errors caused by rain—beating against the windscreen, distorting the pilots vision.

But when the repellent is applied, it restores accurate vision by clearing the screen. The way it acts, explained N.R.C. is by breaking down rain drops into droplets which in turn are passed off into the airstream by the strong wind.

The big secret, something which the United Kingdom and United States scientists have yet to find out, is the bonding material which makes the wax stick to the windscreen.

In tests by the R.A.F. and the R.C.A.F. the Trans-Canada Air Lines, the repellent has been found to work even in air speeds of 600 miles per hour and through the heaviest rain.

Whether it could be applied to automobile windscreens is unknown. Unless there was a strong wind and the vehicle moving at rates of more than 50 miles per hour, Dr. Stedman believes the repellent would be ineffective. He does believe it will ever replace the windshield wiper but he does believe that it may prove of some value to tanks and other army vehicles which are not equipped with wipers.

Commercially it will sell for about $9 a kit, containing 10 applications, each application lasting about two months.

SAMUEL C. FISHER WALKING ON ROAD KILLED BY CAR

Accident Occurred at Honeywell's Corners Early Sunday Morning

Struck by an auto as he was walking on the highway north of Corbyville on Highway No. 37, Samuel Clayton Fisher, Thrasherburg farmer, was instantly killed early Sunday morning.

Driver of the southbound car which struck Mr. Fisher was Ed. Cronin, 26 Harriett Street, Belleville.

Fisher was stated by provincial police to have been driving home from Belleville, when at Honeywell's Corners his car is thought to have been driven into the ditch. He parked the car just off the highway on the 5th concession of Thurlow and is believed to have started to walk north.

Two northbound cars passed him and Fisher is believed to have stepped away from them directly into the path of the southbound car driven by Cronin. The accident occurred about 3.30 in the morning.

Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott has ordered an inquest and the accident was investigated by Cpl. Ernest Hawkins, provincial C. P. Hardinge of the Provincial Police.

Samuel Clayton Fisher was born in the 6th concession of Hungerford township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah J. Fisher.

A successful farmer, Mr. Fisher was a member of Bethel United Church and had resided in the district all his life.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ethel Palmateer, one daughter, Mrs. Lorne (Gertie) Holmes of Tweed, and two sons, Kenneth of Tweed and Samuel, at home. There is one sister, Mrs. Wesley Harrison, Plainfield, one brother, Jesse Fisher of Foxboro, and one grandson, David Holmes of Tweed.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

'HAZARDS' PROHIBIT BASEBALL AT B.C.I.

Owing to the small size of the grounds and to the fact that there are too many natural "hazards" such as school windows, lights, windows of flowers beds, baseball practice will not be permitted on the collegiate grounds, it was made known today by an official of the local board of education.

Officials of the board feel that the collegiate grounds are not big enough for baseball, and if this was permitted the many windows, flower beds and shrubs on the property would be almost certain to suffer.

FIRST PAYMENT OF EDUCATIONAL GRANT RECEIVED BY B.C.I. & V.S.

The initial payment of educational grants to be received this year from the provincial treasury have been paid to the local board of education, it was announced. Payments received were approximately 50 per cent of the total grant.

The final payment received for the public schools was $23,000, for the collegiate, $15,000 and for the vocational school $25,000.

VEHICLES COLLIDE ON BRIDGE ST. WEST

Damage amounting to approximately $00 resulted early Saturday morning when two vehicles collided on Bridge Street West.

The accident occurred as Borden Lucas, R.R. 8 Belleville, started away from the curb and as he was pulling out into the line of traffic was struck by a car driven by John R. Barrett, RCAF, Trenton. No personal injuries resulted although the front of the Barrett car and left side of the Lucas car, received considerable damage. Both vehicles were westbound at the time of the accident.

Muskrat Catch Not as Great As Last Year

The catch of muskrats in the Bay of Quinte district, Belleville area ranged from 50 to 70 per cent of last year's harvest, it was estimated today by local fur dealers and trappers. One dealer stated inspectors estimated the catch across the province was about 50 per cent of last year, but stated the quality to be a bit better.

Price for the muskrat skins was also a bit lower than last year with the average price being about $3 per skin. Top prices ranged from $2.25 to $2.50 while last year the top was $3.

Trappers reported there seemed plenty of muskrats but that their spring run was over before the trapping season commenced. Veteran trappers believed this was due to the mild winter.

Trappers have ten days following the close of the trapping season on April 31st to dispose of their skins.

I.O.O.F. Members Attend Church

Observing the anniversary of the founding of the Order, members of the local Independent Order of Oddfellows, attended church services in a body Sunday morning at Bridge Street United Church.

Members of the Order, approximately 300 strong paraded from the Oddfellow hall on Front Street, marching up Front Street and along Moira to Holloway St. Church. The Rev. H. E. Pettypiece was in charge of the service with Jos. E. Short of the Oddfellows reading the lesson. Following the service the members marched back to the Front Street hall by way of Bridge Street.

Carrier Boys Getting Results In Drive for New Subscribers

Less than two days after it was announced by R. L. Cowen, circulation manager of the Ontario Intelligencer, that 400 carrier boys were to be given a trip to Toronto as guests of the Ontario Intelligencer, the results began to pour in.

The boys are to be taken in two groups to Toronto to see the Toronto baseball club in action. The carriers were given a choice of which Saturday they wish to go of the two and to enlist the required number of new subscribers. There are over eighty carriers and to be fair to the boys this was the only way to decide who would be going on each of the two days. It did not take long to start the ball rolling as Mr. Cowan also announced that there will also be cash prizes for those who turn in the best results. Joe Deryaw was the first carrier to turn in the allotted number and he has his three of watching the champion Montreal Royals or the Baltimore Orioles play the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Robert O'Sullivan and Jack Evans are still knocking on doors to get their final counter. Joe Asbury, Bud Cook, Don McLeander and David Deryaw are also near their quota. Others have many new subscribers but they are not yet officially recorded in the list. The ball game the boys will have a chance to meet the Toronto players personally and receive a few pointers on the science of baseball. Pictures will also be taken of the boys with the players.

The boys are really working hard. It is a great experience for them and they are all delighted with the opportunity of making such a trip.

Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Gray and A. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce And Your Payroll

The Chamber on your payroll costs less than a part-time office boy's wages, less than a sizeable newspaper ad; yet the Chamber functions on behalf of every business, professional and laboring man in Belleville and district every working day of the year—and every night, too.

The Chamber is sustained by the voluntary memberships of public-spirited citizens who are interested in their community's progress and improvement and who realize that their attendance at these matters will directly or indirectly pay substantial dividends to the investors.

Chamber membership is not a donation. It is an investment in goodwill, a high standard of publicity and low cost business insurance.

Yes, Chamber membership equals a legitimate business expense that pays dividends.

MARMORA

Archbishop Lyons Pays Official Visit to Parish

Marmora. — Most Reverend John Lyons, D.D., Archbishop of Ontario, paid his official visit to the Anglican parish of Marmora on Sunday as read the lessons and was the preacher at Morning Prayer at St. Paul's, at which the rector, Rural Dean, J. M. Brownlie, officiated. Appropriate music was rendered and "This Joyful Eastertide", and a Dutch carol to the setting of Charles Wood.

Humanism vs Christianity

Archbishop Lyons took for his text "For I am with you always even unto the end of the world". He pointed out that people are living in a changed age. Two world wars within the past fifty years changed the world's outlook on life. Economically and otherwise it has been undergoing a distinct change.

Humanism has made a marked change in the outlook upon the world, but it lacks the ultimate inner life. Those with Christian faith have something that humanism, which fails to relate Christianity and light. Some would think of social service alone as the essence and epitome of Christianity.

Christ, the Cornerstone

Whereas, psychology, and theology, allike point out the value of the inner life. It has been said "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he" and it might be added "So does he act". The people of today however great they appear to be, are not to be compared to the change which took place in the world with the resurrection of Christ. That was the cornerstone of the Apostles' faith, and history has proved it.

The salvation of the world is not through the archbishop, or by education as some have asserted, but by the only Saviour of the world.

In the afternoon the Archbishop held a confirmation at St. Mark's Bonarlaw, at which candidates from both churches were presented, numbering fifteen in all. St. Mark's choir was augmented by members of St. Paul's choir. The Archbishop at both services expressed his appreciation of the congregations' organization, accorded him on his arrival to the metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 23 (CP)—Industrials "declined steadily in a very dull session here today. Fractional losses were widely scattered as the industrial groupings continued under selling pressure. Golds and base metals were also easier while western oils were the only group to show any strength.

Volume for the first three hours was 297,000 shares, about 22,000 shares more than Friday's similar period.

Papers, Utilities and Steels backed quietly downwards in the industrial groupings.

Base metals dropped slightly in a quiet gold list.

Consolidated Smelters lost 3-8 at 96 7-8 in base metals and Noranda was down 1-4 at 55.

Four-Year Course At Osgoode Hall Begins Next Year

Toronto, April 23 — (CP) — The Law Society of Upper Canada announced today students entering its Osgoode Hall law school next year will have a four-year course with more emphasis on academic training.

The move was an apparent concession to criticism of the Osgoode Hall course which resulted in the resignation of Dean C. A. Wright and three lecturers at the school last January.

The change was announced in a statement by G. W. Mason, treasurer of the law society. He said the new scheme is designed "to preserve the best in the existing system and at the same time meet the views of those who feel that more time should be devoted to academic training."

Mr. Mason said the new four-year course will apply to university graduates entering the school next fall. High school graduates will need a one or two-year preparticleship before entering the course.

The first two years of the course will mean full-time apprenticeship in a law office, Mr. Mason said. The final year will combine specialized lectures and apprenticeship.

The new curriculum will be based on recommendations of the treasurer, the education committee of the law society, who called for establishment of a post-graduate law school in Ontario.

Picton Likely Scene of Reunion For Hasty Pees

If tentative plans formulated at a meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Association held yesterday materialize, the 1949 reunion of the regiment will be held in Picton.

A committee of the 15th Regimental Sergeant Major Angus Duffy and Sergts. Art Hobb and M. Hadley, met with Mayor Bateview Picton authorities with regard to holding the reunion together in that town.

A report on the regimental Scholarship Fund revealed that to date the fund embraces the amount of $2,000. The fund was started originally to provide educational funds for a son or daughter of a member of the regiment, killed in action or died of wounds. Mr. Gordon Spencer, Trenton High School principal is administrator of the fund which is controlled by a committee comprised of Judge C. Con. D. Ponton, Belleville and Major Gordon Walmsley, Picton.

Mr. Spencer told the meeting the thirteen applications for benefits from the fund have been received, but these applicants are of an age group under 16 years, and was felt that eligibility should be confined to applicants of 17-18 years of age. With yearly contributions swelling the fund, by the time applicants are of that age a substantial sum should be available to them. It had been decided to break the fund down into two giving a lump sum to a single applicant.

Editor Transferred

The Hon. Captain J. Goforth, war-time padre of the regiment, who edited the regimental bulletin "Plow Jockey" has been transferred from Kingston to Fredericton, N.B., there resuming a pastorate for the editorship. Names mentioned to fill the position include Mr. Ken Smith, School of Graduate Arts, Queen's University, Major Bill Graydon, Belleville, and Lieuts. Mcilroy and Cliff Bowerman of the Public Relations Office, Ottawa.

It is hoped possible the regiment will secure a bronze plaque upon which will be engraved the names of the "While Battalion" those members who were killed in action or died of wounds. The plaque will be taken to all regimental reunions and to the various cenotaphs on Memorial Days. In the interim it will be placed in a prominent place in the battalion area. In lieu of the plaque it was suggested that an illuminated scroll be obtained to serve the same purpose.

The next issue of the "Plow Jockey" will contain the honor roll of the regiment. This will be amended and taken as final, and the result engraved on the plaque or scroll.

Body of Boy Drowned in March Found in Bay

Drowned when he broke through the ice at the mouth of the Moira River last March 13th, the body of Howard Vernon House, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson G. House of Preston, was found floating off Victoria Park on Sunday afternoon.

The House boy was a student at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville and on March 13th had gone for a walk along the shore of the Bay of Quinte. When he failed to return an intensive search was made by police. Dragging efforts were also unsuccessful.

The boy's body was found approximately 50 feet off Victoria Park by four young lads who were out for a Sunday afternoon row. The boys, Jack Valleau, Bob Royal, Chas. Adams and Daniel Daryaw, notified police who brought the body ashore.

A preliminary inquest was held this morning before Coroner Dr.

Richard Potter. The coroner's jury empanelled by Sgt. Roy Milligan were Frank Creegan, W. R. Bartlett, Frank Corrigan, Thomas Thorn and Harry Knott.

Mercury Slides Below Freezing During Night

Old Man Winter made what is hoped to be his dying attempt last night as temperatures went plummeting to a point well below freezing.

Official thermometers at the Purification Plant here read a low of 27.5 degrees during the night, four and one-half degrees below the frost point.

Joe was apparent in all parts of the city, when a cool citizenry awakened this morning. Apartments and houses were definitely cooled off during the night, and this morning householders stoked furnaces or jacked up oil-burners to get a degree of comfort.

Automotive water puddles throughout the city at an early hour, but these gradually disappeared when Old Sol shed some warmth later in the morning.

It is not believed that any damage to spring shoots was caused.

HOUSING SITE VS INDUSTRY

The charm of any city and other urban centres depends to a great extent on well-planned residential areas, the architecture and surroundings of the homes and the relationship of these districts to the business and industrial sections. In the past most Canadian and American centres have permitted an intermingling of industry and residential sites in the scramble for new wealth and prosperity entirely ignoring the fact that future growth would be handicapped by ugliness brought about by well-meant generosity.

In recent years there has been considerably planning to avoid mistakes of earlier years so that industrial areas will not affect desirable districts where homes may be built. Our own city, as a matter of fact, has prepared a city-planning project that has much to recommend it, and is along the lines we have mentioned above. By this means it is hoped that some of the mistakes made in other years will not be repeated.

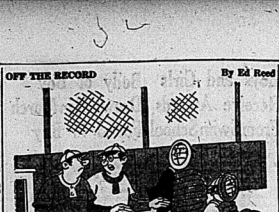
With these thoughts in mind we would like to refer briefly to the controversial matter of what is to be done with the county home property south of the highway. Everyone who has driven past this property must have been impressed with its superb outlook and perhaps thought idly that there was a place where it would be nice to own a home.

It is by all odds the best site for homes left in the city limits. It has good drainage, an unexcelled view of the bay and pleasant surroundings. Sometimes we used to think the same thing when walking over the former Belleville Golf Club and now that that has been made into a residential area, we still are of the same mind.

However, some dissension has developed of late as to what should be done regarding this site. Some believe it should be kept for housing while others are inclined to use it for some industrial sites. Our thought on the matter is that it should be reserved for housing of a desirable type. We are just as anxious as anyone that we should do everything reasonably possible to induce new industries to locate in our district but not at the expense of choice residential ground. It might be said that factories are blind for the workers are too busy to bother much with looking out the windows at scenery, but when people are in their homes then they have a chance to really appreciate their surroundings.

There is another thought that deserves consideration. The property is faced on the north by what will be a convalescent hospital while on the west is the Belleville Hospital. The city has a large investment in these buildings and it should take every care the immediate vicinity about them should not be marred by undesirable alien to the area. We do not believe that any industry, no matter how attractive its buildings might be, should be permitted to locate in this section, therefore let us make this development as pleasant as possible by keeping it reserved for prospective home owners alone.

We believe, too, that industrialists generally are reasonable men and are reluctant to do anything inimical to the best interests of the community. Naturally they will select the best sites they can, if permitted, but if they are given to understand that no one else is to be given a more advantageous privilege there can be no cause for complaint.



If we bow our heads and permit any stranger to demand something to which he is not entitled under the threat that he will locate elsewhere then our troubles would be few. So far as we know there have been no demands in regard to the home property but merely an expression of preference as a site for a plant. That is quite in order. At the same time we strongly believe that choice housing sites should be kept free of anything but that and citizens should be able to build homes in the city secure in the knowledge that at some future time a factory may be built in the neighborhood to the detriment of real estate values. Let us adhere to our city planning project as much as possible. We recall a phrase "Build with Confidence." Our city could well adopt it for a slogan.

MOUNTED POLICE TO WEAR FOOTLIGHTS

London's mounted police have been ordered to wear footlights. The lamps are strapped to the policeman's right foot, near the stirrup, and shine a white light in front and a red light in the rear. This type of lighting was adopted as a precaution at night time when the policeman is moving among traffic in dimmed-out streets.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The radio is doing a remarkable job of sickening us of our ancestral ties.

Last Saturday was St. George's Day.... And possibly because it was a Saturday, good old St. George got off a little easier than St. Patrick or St. Andrew. Saturday is a very accepting radio day; and the disc jockeys did their best to screw with St. George that they might have had St. Swithin's Day and fallen on a Monday or a Wednesday.

There really has to be said about St. George, however: that Saturday's dark day fallen on a Wednesday, the worst that could have happened to us was a great deal of boring advertising and considerable of Elgar in his worse style. The Irish go in for tenors, singing plaintive and mournful songs about colleens and little bits of this and that. The Scots go in for the soprano, singing melancholy lyrics about something gone but not forgotten.

But the English go in for baritones and basses who bellow vigorous if not downright martial ditties. After a day dedicated by forty disc jockeys all over the world to 15 hours of tenors chestily bewailing mavourneen, or to soprano gloomily groping through the mists of time, a day devoted to sergeant-majors moving through their noses to such tunes as "Jerusalem, mother land, or, to put it more accurately, the Land Unknown to England — is not too bad.

With every generation, the number of us whose ancestry is mixed grows larger. But there remains in each of us a secret prediction towards one or other of the strains we bring together. If this could be encouraged, it might be a good thing. Radio is most vigorously discouraging it. My own affinity is great to Edwards the Irish, but before St. Patrick's day, I'm afraid, I'll be speaking with a marked Cockney accent. And yesterday, mild as was the dose of St. George, I went all day muttering in Scotch.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE WELL BALANCED

Two of the greatest painters who ever lived were Rembrandt and Rubens. In their greatness they looked at life from two distinctly different points of view. The painting of Rembrandt revealed a spiritual greatness that of Rubens revealed one who was interested in the mundane and the carnal, even though on a grand scale. Rembrandt's interest was in the soul; Rubens' interest was in the body.

We all have to look at life from two standpoints — the spiritual and the worldly. The trouble with most of us is that we look at life almost exclusively from the worldly standpoint. Jesus recognized this in saying that there was a broad highway which most people travelled, and a narrow pathway entered by a narrow gate which few found. The highest life although there are only a few people living that way.

When life is well balanced between spiritual and things between the unseen world and the seen, between Rembrandt's outlook and that of Rubens, then we have a well-balanced life. The Greek philosophers advocated the necessity for balance. Christianity has nothing to say about balance but it tries to restore it in the human soul and maintain it by a simple expedient: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," said Jesus, "and all these things shall be added unto you."

London Parley Expects to Solve Difficult Problem

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The conference of British Commonwealth Prime Ministers in London, to try to figure out how India can become a Republic and still remain in the Commonwealth, is fascinating in its potentialities.

We are witnessing a further historic development in the metamorphosis of the ties between Britain and her far-flung political structure.

Different World

Most of the Dominions in the Commonwealth have Big British populations. Their ties with the mother country are natural. But the situation is different as regards India and Pakistan and other Asiatic peoples. They belong to a different world racially and culturally.

That's the problem which the London conference is trying — and confidently expects — to solve.

The solution must be flexible enough to keep Pakistan and Indian India. For others may adopt the Republican form of government.

Dr. D. F. Malan, Prime Minister of South Africa and leader of the Nationalist party, aims to wean the English-speaking section of his county from what he describes as "Dominion status" down to the Union of South Africa and to England. He has said that this is a matter of political and spiritual separation."

Three New Categories

There are many observers who feel Dr. Malan would welcome a change in Commonwealth requirements so that South Africa could still be a member if she chose to establish herself as a Republic with complete independence. Of course carried many economic advantages and valuable military protection.

In 1931 the Statute of Westminster provided that "Dominions are autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate to one another in their domestic or external affairs though united by a common allegiance to the crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Now the time has come to revise that statute. Indications are that England's relationship ultimately will be divided into three categories: (1) The present relations with the colonies; (2) The Commonwealth Association with the autonomous Dominions which still retain allegiance to the crown; and (3) The special association with the Asiatic Dominions that will not acknowledge allegiance to the King.

Junior Farmers From all Ontario Meet at O.A.C.

Guelph, April 25 (CP)— Some 500 junior farmers from all parts of Ontario are assembling at the Ontario Agricultural College today for a two-day annual meeting and conference of the Ontario Junior Farmers Association.

Among the prominent speakers to address the large group will be Donald Sullivan, Washington, D. C., representative of UNRRA, and Dr. W. J. Dunlop, Toronto and Prof. W. M. Drummond, O.A.C. Those attending will include representatives from U.S.A., Alberta and Prince Edward Island, who will report on similar activities in their localities.

Airline Pilots State Nanking Streets Jammed

Shanghai, April 25 — (AP) — Airline pilots arriving from Nanking on the last flights in Shanghai's civil airline of the capital.

Cedric Ma of Prince Rupert, B.C., pilot for the Central Air Transport Company, circled the city three times at 500 feet. He said the streets were jammed with people hugging household goods. Some he identified as looters.

Outside food shops the streets were splashed white with flour. In the harbor one Nationalist gunboat was circling in the river while a number of other craft were burning and speared out-lined. No neither heard nor saw artillery fire.

He attributed much damage to Nationalist dive-bombing. He said all air force planes had left the capital. He reported 20 Nationalist gunboats in the river 25 miles east of Nanking. Two of them were afire.

The road leading south from Nanking was jammed with refugees for 70 miles.

Jimmy Doolittle of Los Angeles reported he had brought out Nationalist troops from Hankow to where his plane took off.

In his plane with three others were all of his airline's office equipment and company furnishings and files.

Capt. Earl Norman, China National Aviation Corp. pilot, of Houston, Tex., said he saw heavy fighting at Nanking before he went downriver. He said Nationalist troops were streaming south.

London (Reuters) — Whitehaired Charles Hart, 53, yesterday was 20 minutes late in getting into London at the rate of three miles an hour.

"Continuous motion Charlie" who, at 53 won a world record for pluodding continuous motion contest in California by keeping on around for 48 hours — set out from Slough, Buckinghamshire, at 12 noon and arrived in the city two soft boiled eggs and toast.

Soon he slipped into an easy shuffling pace of 3 to 4 miles an hour, and by 4 p.m. he was 20 miles he slowed down, and telling reporters that he would "go to sleep now," closed his eyes and jogged on.

But his triumphant he arrived in Trafalgar Square at 1:50 p.m.

Wickersley, England, (Reuters) — Lightning has made the Yorkshire village's clock strike five minutes early every hour.

The villagers have decided to leave it that way because they find it helps them to be on time.

The local policeman, the village schoolmaster and the rector of the village church all favor it.

The schoolmaster knows that they have five minutes before the hour when the clock strikes, said one citizen. "And they are more punctual. The boys can run to school in that time. It might be a good idea if all village clocks struck the hour five minutes early."

London, (AP)—The "tapering look" is the current fashion in men's clothes says the boss man of the Bond Street tailors.

H. C. Taylor, vice president of the federation clothing designers, issued the edict as the federation Saturday. He wore "tapering trousers" — trousers designed to be breasted with long narrow lapels, narrow sleeves, narrow shoulders.

The dress habits of the British male were the most slovenly found in the world—now are disgraceful, he says. The federation decided to stage the fashion parades to promote the renewal of sartorial elegance.

But they fear it will be a lost battle in the long run. H. R. Brockhurst, another designer heeded British schoolmasters for the worst dressed section of the community" who teach boys, by example to wear "most slovenly dress."

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TALK TO A BOY

The kind of a man that you want most to be is the one you will be at 25 provided you keep alive within you heart. Every step along the way of life you will be met by temptations that promise much, but which give you no guarantee of happiness.

Keep shy of them.

You will meet with opposition all through your years. Pay no attention to it as long as you have a set purpose and have faith in yourself and ability and self-control can well be your guides. Welcome hard work and hard problems. And work will give you independence and difficult problems will give you the highest self-confidence, influence, and ease of understanding among all with whom you come in contact.

Be friendly, tolerant and considerate. Think well drew others to you and train you toward leadership among your companions. Be critical of no one. Keep your own counsel. Be modest over your successes. Commend the success of others. Give encouragement to those about you who need it, whether appreciated or not. Often it is not. But you will be a rare lover for it.

Have an inward reverence for that body of yours, and treat it kindly. Always keep the harmful habits. This will pay big dividends later in life. Keep your mind clean. Try to excel in all healthy sports and cheer those who do. Be jealous of no one. Always be magnanimous.

Keep your vocabulary when once given. Be punctual in all engagements. Try to do each task better than you have ever done it before. Take pains with your work. Be neat in all things. Often develops into habits. Be quick to see opportunity and quick to grasp it. Be a good enough, unless it is the best that can be done.

Form the habit of reading. Select your books to read as you would your friends, which you hope to keep throughout life. Books are human beings in the larger sense. Cultivate them. Make them your allies. They will win many a battle for you. Keep informed. Be a good listener. Take it all in all, be an all-round boy and you will be an all-round useful and respected man.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

DEAR PLEASE, MR. WISEACRE!

I also have your booklet C V D and am studying it carefully (begins page three).... two differ local doctors told me. I don't think from your booklet that my trouble is in the valves. (toward the end of page five) No, Dr. if you spare a little more of your valuable time..I'd be willing to pay you for your advice, although I haven't much to pay with .... (O. M. P.)

Oh, never mind about that, sir—there is no charge. What have to tell you, and a million others like you, this newspaper pays for. Information, instruction, education and a health service that is. Not medical service.

When I wrote you for the booklet, about heart and artery troubles cardiovascular degeneration— I felt, if you will excuse me, I was most inspired, at least in some chapters of it, with the —evil, I felt I was doing good. I hoped the booklet would bring reassurance and a reasonable degree of relief to many sufferer. I believe it has done so in many instances. But when I get a letter like yours, Mr. Wise-acre (excuse me, I mean Mr. P.) I become depressed and wonder whether I am doing more harm than good. I sometimes feel like chucking it all and trying to get out of the Indian Famine relief area.

Indin Ration

I inclose twenty-five cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope. Please send me your pamphlet on "Indian Rations" and "Rice Recipes in Modern Medicine. I think you for much help in the past, particularly the Indian Ration which cured nagging headaches I'd had for years. I found I've sent too much drop it in a "Heart" box at the C. P. R.

Answer — For any pamphlet send stamped self addressed envelope. If you have a few dimes one, inclose ten cents for each additional pamphlet. Small (that the a nickle out of the "Heart" box? Any reader who sends for Dr. Brady's booklet (and it is not free) and supplies stamped self addressed envelope may have the pamphlet The Indian Ration. I believe everybody needs a little bit of calorie chart, and tell me how many calories I should have each day in order to reduce. (Mrs. A. B.)

Answer—Don't be silly. Your weight is normal.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:

Resolution Will Open Lengthy Debate on Radio, Television

(By the Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press)

Ottawa, April 25 — (CP) — One of the tasks facing the Commons as it reconvenes after the Easter recess is the establishment of a parliamentary committee on radio.

A resolution providing for the committee has been on the order paper for some weeks, but members did not find time to deal with it prior to the recess.

The resolution will open the way for a lengthy debate on radio and television in the Commons.

Under the policy announced March 16 by Transport Minister CBC was given the nod to develop television, starting in Montreal and Toronto. Private stations were told that, for the time being, they would not be given more than one channel in any city or area. Conservatives have been quick to criticize policy.

Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglington) contended that the Commons committee be re-established so members could study the CBC's activities. He frequently criticized the CBC's independent body other than the CBC be established to control all radio matters in Canada.

Mr. Fleming has supported charges from time to time that the CBC competes with the private stations and at the same time has the power to tell private stations what they may and may not do.

The operation of radio and television in Canada is guided by the royal commission on arts, culture and sciences under the chairmanship of Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey. The commission is expected to start to work in the not too distant future.

Budget

The Commons is expected to resume the budget debate when it returns to its legislative tasks following the two-weeks Easter recess.

This is the debate in which members may speak on any subject they wish and, with a general election in the offing, they are likely to direct their speech-making towards the winning of votes and public support for their party.

As it resumes the debate, which was opened briefly before the Easter recess was taken, the Commons will have before it two motions of non-confidence in the government. They were moved by the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. parties.

Three Killed When Automobile Hits Street Car

Toronto, April 23 (CP)— A careening automobile carried three men to their deaths early today in a collision with a street car on Yonge Street in North Toronto. Two others were injured.

The dead, tentatively identified by information in their wallets, are Phillip J. Casinizi and Liguori Doucet, both of Toronto, and Kenneth Planet.

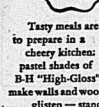
The injured, one with a possible skull fracture, are George Wallis, 21, of Toronto, and Kenneth Miller, 43 Borden St., Kitchener. All five were occupants of the car.

Police said the motorcar, travelling at a high rate of speed, passed an approaching taxicab in the wrong side and then veered across in front of an approaching street car while crossing to the right side of the road again.

The impact tore off the right side of the car and hurled it back across the road where it landed against the base of a light standard. The street-car continued on later, with only light damage.

Pedestrians told police they had had to dodge the car as it careened down the street just before the crash.

Chief coroner Smirle Lawson said an inquest would be held and that blood tests would be taken to determine if the men had been drinking before the accident.



BACK TO MILL AT 73

Livesey, Lancashire, England—(CP) — Mrs. Rhoda Stone, 83, has returned to work at a cotton mill after 19 years because, she says, she and her husband cannot manage on a combined old age pension of $8.40 a week. A half-timer at the mill, she will work on two looms in a five-day week from 7.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m.

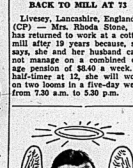
PC Convention Opens in Toronto

Toronto, April 25 (CP)—Today is the last day for nominations for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party in Ontario. So far five candidates have indicated their intention to run.



A three-day convention to choose a successor to George Drew starts today and ends Wednesday afternoon when 1,682 delegates cast their ballots.

Candidates have set up booths on the convention floor of the Royal York Hotel, scene of the convention, amid red-coat red-white-and-blue banners, flags, and over-sized photographs.

This afternoon's opening ceremonies include addresses by Chairman A. D. MacKenzie, Premier Kennedy, former Premier Drew and Mayor McCallum. Progressive Conservative women and young Progressive Conservatives will hold general meetings tomorrow and in the evening candidates will be allowed to make 15-minute speeches.

Following Wednesday afternoon balloting, the new leaders will address the convention. Premier Kennedy said he hopes to swear in his successor as premier the following day.

Mr. Kennedy agreed last fall to accept the leadership on a temporary basis following the resignation of Mr. Drew who now is National leader of the party. Mr. Kennedy has said he will not be a candidate for the leadership.

Self-Confessed Russian Spy Under Close Guard

Winnipeg, April 25 — (CP) — Deportation seemed the probable fate today for an admitted Russian spy who tripped in an effort to establish himself in this country as a Latvian displaced person.

Dimitry Leshchenko, 36-year-old former Russian army officer, has been under close guard at a detention home here pending disposition of his case. Leshchenko, arrested at Calgary last Tuesday, is charged with entering Canada by "misrepresentation."

R. C. M. P. and Canadian Army intelligence officers teamed in catching Leshchenko. But only one clue was given as to what slip the Russian had made that betrayed his spurious role. A police officer said one of the things that betrayed Leschenko was that his papers were false.

Leshchenko worked first as a railway hand and then in a Calgary bag factory since coming to Canada 11 months ago.

Justice Minister Stuart Garson said in a statement that the short, fair-haired man who admitted "to being an active agent for the U. S. S. R. in the British Isles stressed Leshchenko's apprehension would not mean any halt in the flow of D.P.'s into Canada although it was probable that future entrants would be subjected to a stricter screening than heretofore.

Soviet Embassy officials in Ottawa chose to ignore the case so far as comment was concerned. Leshchenko's arrest was the first disclosure of Soviet spy activity in Canada since the smashing of a ring in 1945 through revelations of Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet Embassy cipher clerk.

In his pose as a Latvian D. P. Leshchenko had been a critic of the Soviet. His friends and acquaintances in Calgary knew him as a rabid anti-communist. Nevertheless, the warrant for his arrest described him as a man "who believes in or advocates the overthrow by force of the government of Canada," who advocates the overthrow by force and violence of constituted authority and who advocates the "unlawful destruction of property."

PLAN ANTELOPE CENSUS

Drownings Heavy In Accidental Fatalities List

(By The Canadian Press)

Three persons killed in a level crossing at Perth, three more in an auto-street-car collision in Toronto and three others drowned in the Detroit River off Windsor topped a weekend fatality toll of 17 in Eastern Canada.

A Canadian Press survey showed 11 of the deaths were caused by traffic mishaps; the other seven resulted from drowning. Ontario bore the brunt of the deaths with 13; three died in Quebec and one in New Brunswick.

The three passengers in a light panel truck which was wrecked near Perth by a Canadian Pacific Railways freight train, were Gordon Chaplin, 37, his wife, Lorna, 25, and their 15-months-old son, Brent, all of Glen Tay, Ont.

In the Toronto street-car crash, Phillip Casinizia and Liguori Doucet, both of Toronto, and Kenneth Plante, whose address was unavailable, were killed. The trolley ripped open the side of the car in which they were riding.

Three Detroit residents drowned near Windsor in two separate fishing accidents. They were Barry F. Means, 33; Garfield Harris, and Kenneth Rossell, 37.

In another fishing accident near Montreal, Roch Dore, 33, and Edward Robidoux, both of Montreal, drowned when their boat overturned. Another man, unidentified, fell from a pier on the city waterfront and was drowned.

At Sussex, N.B., Douglas Tidd, 39, of Saint John, was killed when his truck overturned. And near Napanee, Ian MacKinnon, 20, died when an automobile crashed into the railing of a highway bridge.

Eleven-year-old Albert Forsyth was fatally injured near his home at Holyrood, near Walkerton, when he was hit by a bus. Albert Challis, 56, of London, Ont., was killed Sunday night in a collision at Woodstock, and James Greaves, 55, died at a Toronto street intersection Saturday when he was hit by a street-car.

AIM LIGHTNING

The refugee situation in Shanghai is growing serious. Late today roads leading into the city from the west contained lines of rain sodden peasants. Most of them had only enough food for a few meals.

No one knows what to expect in Shanghai.

There was no indication of where Gen. Tang En-Po had his 300,000 government troops— or if he still had them under his control.

Shanghai garrison headquarters kept repeating that this city would be defended to the last man. How, when and with what was not apparent.

Tung, Nationalist defence commander of the gigantic Shanghai-Tsanking-Hangchow triangle, reportedly had fled Shanghai for the south. So had Premier Ho Ying-Chin and other top government officials.

Acting president Li-Tsung-Jen was reported to have gone to Kweilin and retired president Chiang Kai-Shek to Amoy.

Obviously the time was getting short for an evacuation by sea from Shanghai.

But as yet there was no large movement of government forces falling back on Shanghai.

Americans Warned

John Cabot, United States Consul-General, warned Americans in Shanghai that any wishing haven aboard United States naval ships here should report to the consulate immediately.

Because of the Communist shelling of British ships on the Yangtze last week, United States naval authorities said their ships would be pulled out of Shanghai and "anchored in the lower Yangtze. This would put them out of range of Communist guns.

At the same time, British Consul-General R. W. Urquhart said evacuation of Britons was not justified by present developments. Official in London announced that arrangements had been made to take 4,000 British subjects from Shanghai whenever it was deemed advisable by authorities "on the spot."

ELECTION DATE

4. A general feeling among Liberal members of parliament during Mr. St. Laurent's western tour that an early election would be a wise political move.

If the election is to come in June, dissolution of parliament will have to take place this week. Date of the election has to be fixed at least 60 days before polling day.

After the last Liberal caucus April 6, the Prime Minister said the election date would be fixed to meet the wishes of the majority of the party. The life of the present parliament does not expire until August, 1950, but Mr. St. Laurent has already indicated that an election will be held prior to another session of parliament.

May Have Bearing

Guesses of the date were ranging over such a wide period of time as between June 27 and early spring of 1950.

Provincial elections may have some bearing on the federal date. British Columbia, where the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives form a coalition government, has called an election for June 15.

Newfoundland is due for a late May or early June vote and there are rumors that Nova Scotia may also call a summer election.

Then the annual dip in matters the cabinet will consider after hearing the views of members at the caucus.

George Drew, Progressive conservative leader, took advantage of the Easter recess to visit Newfoundland and the Maritimes. M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, visited part of Quebec and Ontario, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, visited Alberta.

ROSLIN

Roslin—On Easter Sunday the services in the village churches were well attended.

On Sunday morning there was a service of Holy Communion in St. Paul's Anglican Church with seventy communicants. Easter lilies and cut flowers adorned the altar. Special Easter music including a solo by Rev. F. C. Beaver was sung.

Mr. Everett Harrison spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Arnold, of Toronto spent the Easter weekend with Mr. and Mrs. C. Chapman.

Mrs. Thompson who has been staying with her daughter in Monte-Bello, Que., is visiting her sister Mrs. F. C. Beaver for a time.

WEDDINGS

SCOTT—WANNAMAKER

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Bethesda United Church, on Saturday, April 12, at 7.30 p.m., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. and Mrs. J. Honan, Belleville, when Pearl Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wannamaker, Belleville, became the bride of David Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Scott, Belleville. The Reverend C. A. Perkins officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by the bride's sister, Mrs. K. Honan, and during the signing of the register, Mr. Stanley Hawthorne, Madoc, sang "I'll Walk Beside You".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an aqua blue suit of gabardine with navy accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Miss Zilth (Scott of Belleville, was bridesmaid, and wore a suit of grey gabardine with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses and maidenhair fern.

Mr. Clifford Wannamaker, West Huntingdon, was groomsman.

The reception was held at the bride's home, and a buffet luncheon was served to about eighty guests from Belleville and Madoc. bride's table with its three-tiered pillared wedding cake, white candles and daffodils.

The bride's mother, wearing navy crepe with matching accessories, and corsage of yellow Talisman roses, was assisted in receiving the guests, by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy suit, and matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

For travelling to Watertown, N.Y., and other points, the bride wore her wedding suit with topcoat. Upon their return the young couple will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from, Toronto, Madoc, Bath and Oshawa.

FIRST PEACH BLOSSOMS

Illustrated Lecture of Western Trip Given Good Companions

A fine spirk of "good neighborliness" was displayed on Friday evening when Rev. J. G. Hornsby of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church gave an illustrated lecture entitled "Coast to Coast West" to an attentive audience in the Bethesda United Church parlors.

Mr. M. Hackett, president of the Good Companions Club welcomed the guests and Rev. E. J. Harback introduced the guest speaker saying he had learned to appreciate Mr. Hornsby because of the fine friendship that had sprung up between them for the fine fellowship and the neighborliness.

Mr. Hornsby's lecture was in the form of a travelogue, interesting, informative and humorous. He had been asked to go to the Pacific Coast and occupy a pulpit in the month of August, twelve years ago. He showed a view of Hamilton city, where he resided at the time, then a view of the Canadian Pacific Railway locomotive which took him from Toronto Union Station "West". Four days and three nights of most remarkable and enjoyable scenery. Over Lake Superior one of the loveliest sunsets ever to be seen. The multitudinal flower beds at Port William and the grain elevators, each containing fifty-four million bushels of wheat.

Winnipeg Lovely City

His pictures showed great tunnels and construction of the railway through forest and rocks to the prairie and the lovely city of Winnipeg with its wide streets and stately buildings; leaving this city he passed more elevators on the prairies with a capacity of one hundred and fifty million bushels. On to Medicine Hat and the Princess Valley, with sheep grazing quietly while the train glides on westward. Into Alberta farms, hundreds of acres in size, to Calgary, the loveliest and largest city and the commercial metropolis of that province situated in the valley of the Bow River.

From Calgary one can see the snow capped mountains sixty miles away "where man seems himself to be very small." One could stand for hours just gazing on that beauty. The view from the observation car on the splendid Continental Limited passed, the Three Sister Mountains towering 9,594 feet above sea level, and Cascade Mountain, the 9,825-foot heap of majesty and on to Banff whose grandeur has never been overestimated.

Emerald Lake reflects the snow capped mountains, — mountains everywhere. The Rockies present to the traveller an endless variety of scenery, which ranks with the finest in the world. The mountains themselves are unspeakably grand. There is no monotony in them, for the jagged outlines of the huge masses of rock flung high against the sky are ever different, ever changing, as the traveller journeys on. There is endless variety too, in the narrow canyons in which far beneath, the mountain torrents rush headlong to the distant sea, and in the green valleys and grassy meadows nestling at the base of the frowning mountains. To them the eye turns with relief when wearied with the vain attempt to grasp the gigantic proportions of the mountains.

Feast of Color

There is a feast of color everywhere, said the speaker, the dark gray of soaring pinnacles of bare rock the dazzling white of the snow; the brilliant green of grassy plots, and the ever deeper hue of the forests; the green and white foam of turbulent streams; the glint of lakes; the blazing patches of vivid red, purple and yellow which splotch the canyon walls. The Rockies never grow wearisome to the traveller; not in a whole lifetime could he discover all their beauty and grandeur.

"Now after the "Crow's Nest" and Nelson, Vancouver looms before the eyes." Mr. Hornsby commented. "At last, the long, loud groaning of wheels beneath us will soon stand still in silence as if to pay tribute to the "Western Gateway of the Dominion". Losing no time we go sight seeing—Harding Monument, the churches and the modern buildings and industries of which Salmon from the great Columbia river is the chief and Oh yes—English Bay! Oh how we yearn for the land of our birth—but closing our eyes for a moment we drift across that great expanse and once again we catch a glimpse of these beautiful bays and beaches. Surely this is rightly named for English Bay is as beautiful as anywhere in all the world.".

Go West For Holidays

"If you ever get a chance to go West, do so. You will give you a thrill, an education and a physical tonic" said Mr. Hornsby in his closing remarks.

Mr. Hornsby illustrates his lecture with beautiful colored lantern slides. He takes his audience on this long journey trip with gracious descriptive ability. His romantic scene of Bow River, his story of the "Lady of great beauty from Missouri" and his dramatic interpretation of a three hundred pound American woman mounted on a spirited horse, are anecdotes long to be remembered.

Miss Rachel Fox voiced the appreciation of the Good Companions to Mr. Hornsby for the educational travelogue.

Remember: Right Breakfasts Are Important

HERE'S something many overlook. Here are the facts. Read them. Then, today take these 2 steps to feeling better—acting better. Your folks will benefit. You'll benefit.

Smart People DON'T Skimp Breakfast

Breakfast is specially important to you because it should start you off RIGHT for the day. If your business demands that you be keen . . . bright . . . pay extra attention to the day's first meal. Here's why. To eat no breakfast or a poor one simply results in fatigue, irritability and lessened efficiency.

Smart People PREFER Grape-Nuts

Grape-Nuts is a special breakfast cereal. That's why you make breakfast more nutritious, more enjoyable by including just two tablespoons of Grape-Nuts—appetizing, golden, crunchy kernels of whole wheat and malted barley. That's why you benefit from useful amounts of carbohydrates, minerals and proteins: fine food values. So flavorful with milk or cream. Different recipes are on the package. Grape-Nuts is the most economical part of a good breakfast. Order from your grocer today.

"For breakfast we like our Grape-Nuts with milk. For supper we like them baked with raisins, milk and sugar", writes a Kitchener, Ontario, fan.

...for making aluminum!

RAIN! It may sound strange, but it's a fact: Every thing you see made of aluminum was made with raindrops—even the bus for which you scurry to escape the rain!

It's like this: Rain falls on high land in our north country. It runs down as rivulets and creeks. It becomes tumbling rivers. By trapping it behind dams, and guiding it through powerhouses, Alcan develops electricity—and uses it to make aluminum.

Smelting aluminum eats up vast quantities of electricity. Enough goes into making a single ton to light your house for fifteen years!

Today Alcan is prospecting for still more waterpower because Canada needs more aluminum for use at home and to sell abroad.

RAIN MEANS DOLLARS FOR CANADIANS:

- Alcan jobs for 15,000 Canadians
- Alcan pay envelopes holding $35,000,000 a year
- Alcan aluminum for more than 1,000 independent Canadian manufacturers—some 50,000 more jobs.

Combined W.I.'s Hear Address On Personality

Rawdon.—Friday last about 25 ladies from Chatterton, Pine Grove, River Valley and Stirling Women's Institutes gathered in Stirling Community Hall for a District Conference.

Miss Nora Creyke from the Department of Agriculture, Women's Institute Branch, Toronto, gave a splendid address on "Personality and Dress", and conducted the conference

Miss Creyke said "our appearances are judges, on a bus, on a street, in church and elsewhere Your voice, conversation and manner all register to a stranger."

In a community your first requisites is honesty and dependability. You should never support something vocally when you had no intention to help carry out that project. You should use your talents and be willing to take some responsibility."

Good Freedom

"A good president is one who builds self-confidence in others, and who strives to have as many members as possible participating at every meeting. She does not just have a chosen few, or do it all herself.

"Have a sense of humor, learn to laugh, instead of cry. Don't let yourself get over tired. Learn to rest for an hour every day. Learn self-control and build for success but have a few props, a prayer, a poem or something to get you thinking again.

"Self-control will let daughter Mary, make that cake even if butter is expensive, but it is kinder to let Mary profit from her experience."

The speaker pointed out that drunken driving comes first of accidents, with driving the car after a quarrel, as second.

She gave a fund of helpful advice to presidents along lines of "getting the timid woman to speak on her feet".

Having every woman answer roll call. How to train your vice president and conveners to preside, and a fund of useful information on parliamentary procedure.

The speaker also gave helpful hints for orderly, correct speech; public speaking, getting acquainted in a new neighborhood, and quoted "If you can't leave your troubles at home, stay at home with them."

Have a good full length mirror, check up on appearance before you leave home and then forget about it.

The speaker felt that a book on etiquette, by Emily Post, would be a worthwhile addition to any Institute library

All enjoyed a bountiful potluck dinner with Stirling ladies as the hostess group.

Talk on Mannerisms

The afternoon session opened with "Mannerisms". Many people annoy others with their unconscious nervous mannerisms, which could be corrected by persistent thought along that line. Keep your hands occupied.

The speaker demonstrated the correct way to have your photo taken, to sit gracefully, proper way to travel up and down stairs, and a wealth of information along the line of carriage and posture.

Exercise Routine

Each lady received printed leaflets of exercise routine and all were endorsed by a prominent doctor. Several of these exercises cost $10 each in Toronto and Miss Creyke passed them out free. She gave many pointers for smiles, how to eliminate frowns and have a pleasing appearance and closed this series with: "God grant us courage to change the things we should change; strength to endure the things we cannot change; and wisdom to know the one from the other."

Choosing Your Wardrobe

The next topic "Choosing your Wardrobe" explained that clothes should be suitable to your pocket book; your station in life; your figure, coloring, age, outlook in life, etc. Women should ever remember that thought and effort can take the place of an unlimited budget. She gave helpful hints on style; how to wear a suit properly; how to choose textiles. Each lady was given twelve minutes to try on various colors as a test.

Remodelling Clothes

Miss Creyke gave some splendid pointers for remodelling clothes, cleaning spots at home. How to spread your money in order to buy a coat and an evening dress. She advised labelling spots for the dry cleaners, and gave helpful hints for removing fresh stains.

Beauty Aids

Her closing hour was spent on beauty care and aids to the well groomed woman. She gave a special demonstration on the proper way of applying make-up.

The speaker was tendered a vote of thanks for all her helpful advice at both sessions.

Doctors go North To Visit Eskimos With Poliomyelitis

Winnipeg, April 25 (CP)—Four doctors, a nurse and a physiotherapist left here today aboard an R.C.A.F. Dakota on a 1,000-mile flight to chilly Chesterfield Inlet to re-examine Eskimos stricken with poliomyelitis earlier this year.

Also aboard the aircraft were two young Eskimo boys who are returning to their homes after 1½ months in hospital here.

The two were among the 13 Eskimos evacuated to Winnipeg March 6 following the initial flight by a medical crew to the Inlet, 200 miles south of the Arctic Circle. The plague, which claimed 13 lives, affected approximately 60 Eskimos, both children and adults, in varying degrees.

Dr. W. J. Wood, regional superintendent of Indian Health Services, who headed the party that left Sunday, said 13 Eskimos still were in the Grey Nuns Hospital at Chesterfield Inlet in addition to those remaining in Winnipeg's isolation institutions.

After two or three days at the Inlet, the present medical group will return to Winnipeg with the exception of Connie Beattie of Brockville, a 24-year-old physiotherapist. She will remain at the Inlet for approximately four months.

Hockey League Holds Banquet

Frankford—The Frankford District Hockey League held a very successful banquet in the St. James Hotel, Trenton, Thursday evening. The banquet was opened with the singing of The King and Grace. Followi ng very bounteous repast, Lea ue President Oscar Farrar called on assistant secretary Gene Lohnes to give a report on the league's past season. President Farrar then spoke a few words to the players, and their guests, and called radio commentator Jack Devine to present the trophy to the league championship Bethel-Zion Club. Ray Dickey, playing manager of the B-Z team, accepted the trophy, and spoke briefly to the gathering. President Farrar called up Mr. Robsco, M.P.P. who gave a very interesting talk on part the government is taking in the development of sports in the rural areas. Jack Devine gave a short talk on the subject of sports. In turn, each of the team managers, Russ Sills for West Huntingdon, Ken Kingston for Wallbridge, Ray Dickey for Bethel-Zion and Earl Rogers for Frankford, were called on for a few words. All expressed their satisfaction in the way the league had been handled for the past season, and their wishes for a bigger and better league another year. Highlights of the evening as far as laughs was a special "consolation trophy" presented to the Frankford Hockey Club. Presentation was made by "Skyrocket" Salmon, oldest player present at the banquet. Manager Earl Rogers accepted the "trophy" which was seen at his home. The balance of the evening was spent in renewing acquaintances among the teams.

The Trenton-Frankford Mixed Bowling League wound up the schedule Wednesday night, as the Egg Graders copped second place, by blanking the Petunias in all three games. The Petunias made a desperate try for second place, but were able to gain only three points from the league leading Spark Plugs. A postponed three game series between the Petunias and Shmoos, will not be rolled as the games could not affect the standing in any way. Playoffs begin with the Spark Plugs and Petunias tangling next week, and the Egg graders and Shmoos.

Four Deadlocked For Second Place In Golf Tourney

(By The Canadian Press)

Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill., Sunday took first place in the $10,000 Wilmington, N.C. open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 276.

Ransom, who moved from fifth to second place Saturday after running eighth on opening day, collected a $1,800 first-money per 70 for top money of $2,000 He had a steady 68-69-68-71.

Four wound up in a deadlock for second place at 278. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Bob Hamilton of Landover, Md., finished in 69s for the final round; Fred Haas Jr., of New Orleans, La., carded a 69 to join them, and Bobby Locke, of Johannesburg, South Africa, closed out with a 70.

At Antigonish, N.S., St. Francis Xavier University put on a blistering closing rally to nip Sault Ste. Marie Algos 49-46 here Saturday night in the first game of a two-game, total-point series for the Canadian intermediate basketball title.

The Nova Scotia champions with only the two-point lead into the final game here tonight. Algos are defending champs.

Fred W. Hooper's Olympia churned through mud and rain in the final yards Saturday to capture the $46,000 Wood Memorial before 43,000 fans at New York's Jamaica race track. Olympia beat out Isidor Bieber's Palestinian in he last 40 yards to haul down the winner's share of $31,-850. Olympia was clocked in 1:45 to win the 1 1/16 mile race.

Toronto Globetrotters won the eastern Canada junior girls' basketball championship at Toronto Saturday. They defeated Montreal Park Extension 74-47 in the two-game total points series here, winning the first game 36-25 Friday night and extending their 11-point advantage Saturday night with a 38-22 victory.

Brandon Meets Montreal Royals For Memorial Cup

Brandon, Man., April 25. (CP) —For the first time on this Wheat City's history, it has a team in the Canadian Junior hockey finals.

Brandon Wheat Kings ended the dearth Saturday night with a 4-1 victory here over Calgary Buffaloes which gave them the best-of-seven Western final four games to one.

The Wheaties now will meet Montreal Royals, Eastern Champions, for the Memorial Cup in a best-of-seven series opening in Winnipeg, Thursday.

After dropping the opening game 3-1 at Calgary, Wheat Kings took the next two at the Foothills City 4-1 and 5-3, then walloped the Buffs 9-2 in the fourth game at Brandon last Thursday.

Against the Royals, Wheat Kings are conceded a slight edge because they will have five of the seven games scheduled for their home ice. They also played many of their league games at the Winnipeg amphitheatre, site of the two other games.

Royals knocked off Barrie Flyers for the Eastern championship, and only once before—in 1941—have they reached as far as the Eastern final.

In winning Saturday's game to take the Western group, Brandon took a 2-0 lead in the first period, added two more goals without a reply in the middle session, then held Calgary to one goal in the final frame.

The Wheat Kings goals were divided evenly among Walt Pawlyshyn, Reg Abbott, Bob Chrystal and Mac Beaton. Calgary's lone counter went to Sid Finney, the slim centreman who sparked the Buffs throughout the series.

Down four goals, Calgary in the last session threw every man up in an effort to break through the tight Brandon defence. Their only goal came less than two minutes after the start of the period when Finney slapped Bob McDonald's passout from behind the Brandon net into the top corner.

Motion Quashed After Stormy Debate at O.L.A.

Toronto, April 25 (CP)—A move to make Ontario senior lacrosse players free agents at the end of each season, was quashed after a stormy debate at the annual meeting of the Ontario Lacrosse Association here Saturday.

The move, in the form of an amendment to the O.L.A. constitution, was proposed by Dan Miller, secretary of the St. Catharines Athletics, and caused considerable discussion before being defeated by a close vote.

It stemmed from the one-season suspensions of Stu Scott, Bill Nelson, Jim McMahon and Roy Morton of the St. Catharines Athletels, Bill Evans and Jack Hogan of Hamilton Tigers, and George Cleverly, former coach of the St. Catharines Club. They were suspended for playing several games in Rochester, N.Y., during the winter without O.L.A. sanction.

James McLeod of Owen Sound was chosen to head the O.L.A. for the coming season, succeeding Fred Sanford of Mimico.

Other officers elected: First Vice-President, Geoffry Hipkin, Brampton; Second Vice-President, A. E. Brown, St. Catharines; Third Vice-President, Jack Worthy, Brampton; Secretary-Treasurer, Chas. Rowsen, Mimico; Assistant Secretary, E. C. McDermott, Toronto; executive, Frank Bayne, Weston, Ken Kingston, Peterborough; Mel Whyte, Orchawa; W. Cahill, Dundas; M. J. Chilton, Garnia.

Richie Ashburn Now Swinging For Distance

Philadelphia, April 25 — (AP) — Richie Ashburn has taken his father's advice and is swinging for distance.

As a result, the 23-year-old star who led both major leagues in stolen bases last year won a ball game from Brooklyn Dodgers for Philadelphia Phillies Sunday.

The speedster stepped up in the seventh inning with a mate aboard, the score tied 4-4, and slammed a Carl Erskine pitch over the high right field wall of Shibe Park to win the ball game.

It was the first homer Ashburn ever hit out of a major league ball park. He hit two roundtrippers last season but both were inside-the-park jobs.

Richie hit .333 in 1948 to trail only Stan Musial, National League batting champion, in the final averages.

While the performance was good enough to win Ashburn the Sporting News nomination as "rookie of the year," it didn't set too well with Poy Ashburn.

So, when the Phillies reported to their Clearwater, Fla. training camp, Pop, a gatekeeper in the Phillies park, took Sonny aside and informed him of the facts of baseball life.

"Kid, they don't pay off in the game for bunts and beating infield hits. You have to drive runs and hit the long ball.

Cornwall Golds Win Cage Title In Overtime

Toronto, April 25. (CP)—Cornwall Golds won the Canadian Girls' Intermediate Basketball championship Saturday night although they dropped a 29-24 decision to Toronto Monigomery Debs in the second game of a total-point two-game series.

Cornwall held a six-point lead after the first half victory here Friday night and won the round 46-45.

The Cornwall girls soon lost their carry-over lead Saturday and were hard pressed to tie the score when time was called and Debs forced the series into overtime.

The Toronto team showed early superiority and led 4-2 at quarter time. However, Golds started the second quarter with a determined effort and led 9-6 at half-time.

The third quarter was all Toronto's and Helen Manser led her team with some well executed passing. Toronto gained 13 points during the quarter against Cornwall's seven.

The last 10 minute quarter saw two players leave the game after the maximum number of fouls. Debs lost Verne Legge their captain and Golds lost Rieta Burke, who was their highest scorer. Golds tightened their defence but Helen Manser, however, broke through to score to tie the series at 27-27 as regular time ended.

Charlene Hodgins caught the ball from the tip-off play and scored for Golds in the opening seconds of overtime. Terry Hebert added another on a foul shot and then Cornwall netted nine out. Golds gave up two foul shots during the last minute in favor of a throw-in trying to keep the ball and maintain the lead. Jean Cameron got possession for Toronto and scored on a screened shot, but they couldn't score again.

Lineups:

Cornwall Golds—Hodgins (9), Burke (7), Derosters (2), Mocton (3), Heber (1), Kalli (1), O'Bryn (2), Sauve, Richmond, Kamb.

Montgomery Debs—Fowler (2), Branzon (1), Cameron (4), Legge, Manser (18), McGill (2), Shea (1), Tufford, Bolton (1).

STIRLING

Newly-Organized Rotary Club in Village Formed

Stirling—The newly organized Rotary Club of Stirling Tuesday night was formally admitted to membership in Rotary International, the world wide service organization which has over 6,500 clubs in some 80 different countries. Delegations from the Rotary Clubs in Belleville, Picton, Orillia, Toronto, Gravenhurst, Oshawa, Peterbrough, Lindsay, Leaside, Port Hope, Barrie, Pickering, Acton, Cobourg, Minden, Fenelon Falls Haliburton, Campbellford, Bowmanville, Whitby, Havelock and Trenton were present at the meeting to welcome Rotarians of Stirling into the fellowship of 320,000 business and professional executives throughout the world. The charter night program and banquet was arranged by the Rotary Club of Trenton which sponsored the local club. Banquet For 160

Following the invocation by Rev. A. J. Anderson of St. John's Church, Stirling, some 240 sat down to a delicious banquet served by the ladies of St. Paul's Women's Association. Rotarian Herb Smith, president of Trenton Club presided over the program. Reeve Harold J. Wells extended a civic welcome to the visiting Rotarians, and guests and Rotarian Clarence Saylor of Trenton called the roll of visiting clubs.

Community singing was led by Rotarian C. Maxwell of Trenton, with Miss L. Alexander at the piano. Rotarian C. L. Hatton voiced the appreciation of the Rotarians to the ladies for the very fine meal and Mrs. W. T. Elliott made a fitting response in which she paid tribute to the principles of Rotary.

Proud to be Born in Stirling

Introduced by Rotarian Hatton, as an old Stirling boy, Rotarian E. Aylmer, ex-Mayor of Campbellford, stated he was always proud to say he was born in Stirling, and would endeavor to visit Stirling Rotary as often as possible. This occasion in Rotary was the biggest moment of his life and if the enthusiasm displayed tonight was any indication of what is to take place in Rotary in Stirling, it was going to be big.

Principles of Rotary Emphasized

Harold Gully, president of Rotary Club of Toronto, responded to the welcome to visiting Rotarians and gave a brief address in which he emphasized the principles of Rotary.

The official Rotary charter was presented to president Allen Hadley, by Ed Simmons, Rotary District Governor of Trenton, whose address to the club outlined the history and purposes of the Rotary movement.

Service Above Self

"He profits most who serves best" said Mr. Simmons, who pointed out that Rotary Clubs are all united in the practice of "Service above self." Referring to the classification principle of Rotary, one man from each business, or profession, in the community, the speaker stated. Your classification is only loaned to you as long as you earn it. If you don't earn it, there is always someone else who might do something about it. He also emphasized the practice of regular attendance at meetings by Rotarians. The attendance rule calls for two-thirds but this was not good enough, stated Mr. Simmons.

"If you can't attend more than 66 per cent of the meetings, why don't you quit and give somebody else a chance?" The practice of high standards in business and professional life, the sponsoring of community betterment endeavors and the advancement of international understanding, good will and peace were also emphasized as objectives of Rotary by the speaker.

President A. Hadley in accepting the charter voiced his pleasure and privilege at being president of the Rotary Club of Stirling and extended the thanks of the club to their sponsors, the Rotary Club of Trenton and all those who contributed to the success of charter night.

Presentations Made

Rotarian Orliff May of Trenton had charge of the presentation of gifts to the Stirling Club, and representatives from the various clubs presented the following: Campbellford, Union Jack; Picton, Stars and Stripes; Port Hope, IT name badges; Bowmanville, IT Rotary lapel buttons; Picton, Rotary clock; Campbellford, Barrie, framed portrait of the King.

Trenton Falls donated 17 advertures in service; Gravenhurst, 3 road signs; Haliburton, Portrait of Paul Harris, framed; Lindsay, 1 road sign; Guelph, Speaker's gavel; Sauna, road sign; Leaside, 7 service is my business; Glendon, Frame for the charter; Orangeville, Rotary wheel inside; Havelock, guest register; Cobourg 17 framed objects of Rotary; Belleville, Rotary banner; Orillia, a meeting sign; Peterborough, song books.

A Gavel Presented

The presentation of a gavel on behalf of the Trenton Club was made by H. Smith, president, after which president Hadley voiced the appreciation of the Stirling Club for the many useful gifts.

The program included a group of three solos by Frank Oldfield, baritone, Toronto; piano solos by Miss Lenna Alexander, Trenton; numbers by Sgt. Taylor, whistler, and Fit. Sergt. Burrows, on the musical saw, both of the RCAF and impromptu piano duets by Miss Alexander and Chas. Allen of Peterborough.

A Sad Comedy

The three act comedy "Ragged Nan" was presented by members of Frankford Y.P.U. in Stirling theatre on Wednesday night, under the auspices of St. Paul's Y.P.U., before an appreciative audience of some 250. Rev. R. W. Barker acted as chairman and Miss Phyllis Davis of Frankford, directed the play. Members of the cast played their parts exceptionally well, and provided the audience with numerous laughs.

Boston — (AP) — Two men walked into a Charlestown house while the five-year-old son of the family was alone.

"Where's money around the house, sonny?" they inquired.

"Oh, sure, lots; wanna see?" the tot replied.

Police said the youngster obligingly led them to a box containing $208-in cash and jewelry. They walked off with it.

Only a hair brush was left in the box.

There was no report whether the family used it on "sonny."

Chicago — (AP) — Two Chicago policemen worked so fast Friday they had a robbery solved before they reached the scene of the crime.

En route to a restaurant where they had been called, policemen Frank Rogers and Hans Hansberry picked up John Tyrus, 39-year-old ex-convict. They remembered arresting him last year for a robbery at an elevated station.

When their squad car pulled up in front of the restaurant, the manager, Harry Xenogula, pointed out Tyrus as the robber.

Austin, Tex. — (AP) — Three Texan fishermen caught the fish that caught the fish that caught the fish.

They brought the 17-pound blue catfish to Bill Brill, camp operator near here.

"I noticed the tail of a fish in the catfish's mouth," Brill related. "On cutting the cat open I found it had swallowed and was choking on a white bass weighing nearly two pounds. Then I opened the white bass and found it had been carrying a crawfish swallowing a seven-inch shad.

"I figured this had gone far enough and did not cup open the shad."

ROBBED OF HIS BOOTS

Hamilton, April 23 (CP)—Stanley Rolfe didn't like walking the streets in his stocking feet Friday night. He had no choice. Rolfe told police a man he had met in a downtown hotel attacked him and stole his shoes and watch. He suffered brad bruises. He still is minus the shoes and watch.

SILENT FORESTS

Cranberry Portage, Man. — (CP) — Prospector Bob Hassett foresees the time when the forests will be silent due to the influx of the white man "north of 54" and to his habit of poisoning what he doesn't want. He said even in the bush today you seldom here a chirp or a call.

No More Dosing For Constipation

Famous cereal frees women from harsh laxatives

Searching desperately for constipation relief? Then read this unsolicited letter:

"For 10 years I was an atrocity victim. Nothing relieved my constipation until my doctor in England advised KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. I began to eat this breakfast cereal and soon realized I was better. I eat ALL-BRAN regularly now and can definitely say I am free from constipation!" (Name given on request).

You, too, may never have to take another harsh laxative for constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. Just eat an ounce of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily—and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is not a purgative, but a wholesome regulating cereal. Eat as a cereal, or in muffins for constipation relief. If after using one package you are not entirely satisfied, get double your money back guaranteed on the package. Buy delicious ALL-BRAN from your grocer. Made by Kellogg's of London, Ontario.

White Sox, Doomed to Cellar In Pre-Season Ratings, Surprise With Five Straight Victories

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

"Dear Mr. Undertaker: Kindly hold off on those flowers. It seems that a grave error has been made. The patient is far from dead."

The patient could be Chicago White Sox, the club that was doomed by the experts of loneliness in the dreary confines of the American League basement.

Apparently the White Sox have different ideas on the subject. Judging from today's standings the Sox are very much alive.

The end of the first week of play finds the White Sox tied with Philadelphia Athletics for second place, only a half game behind the fast-moving New York Yankees. They have won five and lost two, all their victories coming in a row.

Splendid pitching by Bill Wight and Randy Gumpert Sunday enabled the White Sox to whip St. Louis Browns twice, 3-1 and 4-0. Wight needed the help of some fine relief pitching by Matt Surmont and a two-run ninth-inning rally. Gumpert's performance was pure gilt-edged. He permitted only three singles.

Philadelphia Athletics continued to fatten up at the expense of Washington pitchers, combing Sid Hudson and two relievers for 13 hits to whip the Senators 8-3. It marked the sixth straight loss for the Senators. Lou Brissie went the distance for the second time in a row. Ferris Fain's double with two on, and Sam Chapman's two-run triple, highlighted a four-run seventh inning for the winners.

Red Sox Flounder

Boston Red Sox continued to flounder around, dropping their fourth game in six starts, when the Yankees came from behind to defeat them, 8-4. Trailing 4-0, the Yankees scored six runs in the eighth, and added three more in the ninth to salt away their fifth triumph against only one loss. Joe Dobson was the victim. The big blow of the six-run inning was Gene Woodling's home run with two on.

Brooklyn's scrappy Dodgers retained their first-place half-game margin in the National League race, splitting a doubleheader with the Phillies in Philadelphia. The Phils won the opener, 7-4, and the Dodgers took the second, 6-5. Home runs by Richie Ashburn, Stan Lopata and Eddie Miller highlighted the Phils' victory. In the nightcap Jack Banta relieved Ralph Branca in the seventh, and halted a Philly uprising.

Reds Divide

Cincinnati Reds fell into a second place tie with New York Giants when they divided a twin bill with the Pirates in Pittsburgh. The Reds won the first game, 3-2 in 10 innings with Charley Kress singling home Johnny Wyrostek with the winning run. Eddie Boekman drove in all Pittsburgh's runs with a pair of home runs in the Pirate's 3-1 second-game victory.

Sheldon Jones went all the way, scattering hits, as the Giants defeated Boston Braves 6-2. Bobby Thomson provided the winning margin in the first inning with a three-run homer off Vern Bickford.

Joe Garagiola singled home Enos Slaughter with the run that gave St. Louis Cardinals a 3-4 ninth-inning triumph over Chicago Cubs.

The scheduled game between Cleveland and Detroit was postponed by rain.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

One of the main reasons for the marked resurgence in industrial sport since the war is the formations of plant athletic organizations sponsored usually by employees with the full co-operation of management.

The importance of recreation in industry has been recognized by management, and is being developed to the best extent. In former days industrial plant recreation was usually limited to a company baseball or softball team, although in some instances other phases of athletics were included in the sports agenda.

But isolated sport in those days, and in the present era, had and has its drawbacks. Companies sponsoring a baseball or softball team, or both discovered that they were catering to the athletic well-being of layers of the various branches of recreation. There were a number of employees who did not care for either of these sports and consequently were, so to speak "left out in the cold." And in cases where employees were contributing weekly donations to the company athletic fund, this naturally caused some discontent.

This situation, however, is gradually being remedied. Management and athletic association heads have got together most instances, and are throwing the recreation amphitheatre of the organization wide open, so at least are advising matters so that almost every form of athletics will appear on the athletic association agenda. This has resulted in a general satisfaction among "all ranks" and there has been a marked change in plant atmosphere. In other words it is a democratic version of the famous Three Musketeers slogan "All for one—and one for all.

Two instances of this co-operation and especially efforts of plant sports organizations are apparent here. One is the recently-formed Canadian National Railway Athletic Association which sponsored a senior "B" hockey club last winter and plans to enter various phases of sport in the future, and the Northern Electric Club Incorporated. We have dealt with the CNRAA on numerous occasions and now Quinte's widespread athletic activities of one of the "baby" industries of Belleville is attracting plenty of attention and is worthy of mention.

Northern Electric entered the sports field of the district shortly after the ink was dry on constructional contracts. We understand the Montreal plants of the company boast one of the finest sports associations in the eastern metropolis, and has produced many championships in various lines of athletic endeavor. An association or "club" as it is called, was formed here shortly after production started, and with the experience and advice of former Montreal staff associates, has gone ahead by leaps and bounds.

The Northern Electric Hockey Club, as is now history, fought its way to the runner-up position for the championship of the Belleville and District Hockey League last winter and gave the powerful CNR Diesels some bitter struggles before finally bowing out of the picture. A very creditable performance indeed for a team in its first year of activity.

Last summer an N. E. baseball team under "Cuffer" Noakes played in the City Baseball League and gave a good account of itself despite the fact that it was handicapped by a dearth of good material. The team has been entered for the coming season, and will be bolstered by a number of star players. It should finish well up in the first division.

Softball will play a big part in Northern Electric sports activities this year, a company team having been entered in the Belleville Commercial Softball League. Herby Henn, veteran of many a senior softball team and battle in this city will coach the squad, and his experience and ability should take the plant squad a long way towards a loop title. Henn will act as playing coach.

The name of Northern Electric has become familiar in many bowling leagues of the city. The company club had two entries in the Major "A" League, top-flight kegler organization of the city as well as other loops and like two large interdepartmental leagues. Bowling is becoming one of the most popular winter sports of the club.

In its efforts to cater to the sports appetites of one and all the club has arranged facilities for golf, billiards, dancing, Christmas and other holiday social functions. An authoritative club source informed this department the other day that the sports organization of the company planned every application for sponsorship of various sports, and if at all possible the sport mentioned is taken under the wing of the club.

One sports activity which is rare along industrial athletic organization lines sponsored by the Northern Electric Club is billiards. Elsewhere in this edition is a picture of the newly formed club which came into being in mid-February. So popular did it become that today it boasts a membership of 150. Regular sessions are held every Monday at the National Billiards Hall in the city and winners are presented with handsome prizes at the end of every session. It is hoped that in the future the club will be able to play in quarters of its own.

At the present time the Billiards Club is engaging in a snooker tournament which will be completed about May 1. The completion of the tournament will complete the activities of this club, which is the first of its kind to be formed in the Northern Electric Club. The snooker champions will be presented with a handsome trophy upon which the names of the winning team will be engraved. Individual prizes will be presented to winners and runners-up.

Albert College senior basketball team made an auspicious bow in the charmed "B" circle of the recent Ontario University Basketball Tournament last week when they swept through their group undefeated to walk off with the "B" championship. Five times they lowered the colors of the opposition, although the final game with Nepean was tied. Albert however won the round against Nepean because of a margin of nine points.

Coach Johnny Hayman, was justifiably proud of his basketball charges, and especially of the efforts of brother Jimmy. Jimmy who held down the centre spot for the collegians rose to near dizzy basketball heights when he held the high-scoring six-foot five Nepean centre Roberts to one lone basket till two hard-fought games. Making Jimmy's feat all the more outstanding is the fact that Roberts averaged twelve points a game in the tournament and was adjudged the most valuable player in the "B" grouping.

Shining lights in the Albert victory besides Hayman, were Johnny Merkley, diminutive athletic star of the college, Jim Taugher who also schillilaws in football and Keith Buchanan. Merkley is playing his last season for Albert, and he leaves behind him a trail of athletic glory. To Coach Johnny Hayman goes the columnar orchid for a job well done. He gave his proteges of the court the full benefit of his large store of basketball knowledge and experience and that this "paid off" is evidenced in the brilliant feat of the collegians in sweeping the "B" grouping of the University Tournament undefeated.

Toronto Leafs Win and Lose Over Weekend

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals thrived on doubleheaders in winning the International League pennant last year but they're off to a bad start if they plan to follow that method this season.

Sunday the Royals played their first doubleheader of the season and dropped both games to Newark Bears, 3-1 and 6-5.

Billy Woop bested Omar Lown in a mound duel in the opener, yielding four hits, the same number given up by Lown. The Bears won the game in the seventh inning, scoring twice on a walk, Fenton Mole's triple and a wild pitch. The Bears staged a three-run last-inning rally to win the night-cap.

Jersey City Giants slop won two games from Buffalo Bisons 5-4 and 5-3. The Giants won the first game in 10 innings when Pete Pavlick's pop fly fell safely for a hit which enabled Monte Irvin to score from second. Irvin and teammate Pete Mackiewicz homered as did Coaker Triplett for Buffalo.

Some smart relief pitching by Roger Bowman held the hard-hitting Bisons at bay in the second game.

Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs split a pair of 10-inning games. The Wings took the opener 7-4 and the Chiefs the final 4-3. Five straight singles off Letty Mike Schultz turned the tide for the Red Wings in the first game. Carden Gillenwater, former Red Wing, broke up the second extra-inning game with a base-loaded single.

Baltimore and Toronto Maple Leafs also divided a pair of games the Leafs taking the opener 8-5 and the Orioles the night-cap 5-3.

Al Widnar, tagged with the defeat in the first game, came back and pitched four innings of relief ball in the second and was credited with the victory.

Ottawa Senators Defeat Marlies By 7 to 0 Count

Toronto, April 25 — (CP) — Hockey fans will be surprised if Ottawa Senators fail to retain the eastern senior title with a victory on their own ice tonight.

Senators lead three games to two in the best-of-seven eastern finals after trouncing Toronto Marlboros 7-0 here Saturday night, with two cripples on the ice and another pair of players out of uniform because of injuries.

On their own ice surface, the Quebec champions should win again over Marlboros but anything is possible in the queer series.

First Toronto won 5-0. Then Senators won two easily at home 5-2 and 8-2. When the teams returned to Toronto ice, the surprising Marlboros walloped the favored Senators 7-0.

But the fifth game here Saturday was the "clutch" contest and Ottawa came close to humiliating the Ontario champions.

A win tonight for Senators will give them the right to meet Regina Capitals, western champions in the Allan Cup finals opening Thursday on the home ice of the eastern champions.

Saturday Coach George Boucher's Senators failed to count in the first 39 minutes against the close-checking Marlboros, making a total of 149 minutes without a goal on Toronto ice.

Then with Toronto a man short, Lods Check finally beat Howie Harvey in the Marlboro nets.

Once Harvey was beaten, the Ottawa team appeared to regain confidence.

Nils Tremblay, centre for Ottawa's pony line, fired three goals, his second hat trick of the series. Check added another. Alex Smart and Emile Dagenais also counted for Ottawa.

Regina Capitals West Finalists For Allan Cup

Regina, April 25 — (CP) — Regina Capitals, sporting new blue blazers and grey flannels left by train early today for eastern Canada and the Allan Cup final. They will meet the winner of the Ottawa Senators-Toronto Marlboros best-of-seven series which Ottawa leads 3-2.

The senior hockey final gets under way April 28. Caps won the Western Canada title Saturday night from Fort Frances Canadians with a 5-0 victory in the deciding game of the best-of-five Allan Cup semi-final.

Caps finished the season atop the Western Canada Senior Hockey League, eliminated Lethbridge Maple Leafs in three straight playoff contests, and tied one and won four against Edmonton Flyers, last year's Allan Cup champions.

In the Western Canada semi-final, Regina knocked Trail Smoke Eaters out in four straight games and then came up against Fort Frances.

The Canadians edged the Caps 5-4 in the first game but dropped the next two contests 7-2 and 6-3 before slapping a humiliating 11-0 defeat on the Caps in the fourth game.

Caps allowed no repetition of the free-scoring in the deciding tilt. Caps went into a 1-0 lead in the first period, added two more in the second and salted away two more markers in the final period.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JIM BASTABLE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 25 —(CP)— A well-known Toronto editorial columnist has presented a poser to sports fans. Should successful athletes be given a civic welcome or should the athletes offer some token to the city for making their profession so lucrative?

J. V. (Globe and Mail) McAree figures the gears don't mesh in the whole machine. His view: "Success in the realm of sports and athletics ought to be reward enough."

Commenting on a suggestion in Toronto City Council recently to give the Stanley Cup champion Maple Leafs a rousing "well done boys," he said:

"We cannot imagine any great city acting like a small village whose young athletes have won a championship in something or other. In the latter case the boys were in all probability friends or neighbors.

"The people of Toronto, when making such presentations, are not merely taking part in a neighborly celebration. Most of the recipients of its corporate recognition are not even citizens."

McAree thinks the Athletes were "the better and than the average taxpayer," and adds: "Indeed it would seem more reasonable that these victorious professional athletes, as a gracious gesregard to the city . . ."

And the publicity angle adds little more. He feels that the assumption that athletes attain advertising for the city is irrational.

"Is it likely that more people will move to Toronto because we have championship teams? . . . The existence of various cultural groups in any city would be an attraction. But have we heard of the city honoring such groups, or making presentations to our educationists?"

Athletes Safe

Meanwhile Clayton (St. Catharines Standard) Browne is sure the hockey athletes' position is safe—at least the ones that progress.

"We grant that boys who make good and go up, make good money and far more than they might get clerking or in a trade and certainly assure themselves and families they will not become pure hockey tramps."

No Point New

As for the playoff system Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller wrote recently that the "playoff system was instituted at a time when clubs needed money, but it has served its purpose and no longer is necessary. There is no doubtful if they can be talked into abandoning the playoffs."

Which gets us back to the civic reception, Council hasn't decided yet, anyway.

DETROIT CONTENDERS

Rome, April 25 (AP)—Delegates from 30 countries today began talks on the site for the 1956 Olympic games.

Detroit was regarded as the strongest contender. Other strong bidders were Melbourne, Australia; Mexico City and Buenos Aires.

Avery Brundage, vice-president of the International Olympic Committee, said yesterday after the opening ceremonies that it was likely that Japan would be readmitted to the Olympic competition, but that the question of German participation probably would have to wait for the formation of a German government.

ENGINEER RISKS LIFE TO HALT RUNAWAY TRAIN

1. The Toronto-Vancouver train was speeding through a desolate part of Northern Ontario. Everything was normal until a pipe uncoupled in the cab.

2. Suddenly the cab was filled with live, scalding steam. Their hands badly burned, both engineer and fireman were forced to crawl out the windows.

3. Finally bringing the runaway express to a halt, Ryan fell exhausted in the snow. None of the passengers realized how close to disaster they had come.

NEW TEST PERFECTED

Chicago, April 25 (AP)—A simple "virtually 100 per cent accurate" pregnancy test was reported Friday by a Northwestern University gynecologist. It takes only a few minutes and can be done at the doctor's office. Dr. Garwood C. Richardson, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the university's medical school developed the test based on urine reaction to simple chemical reagents.

This week many thousands of Canadians will be reading the story told in Imperial Oil's annual report. It is a story of how, to meet your needs Imperial last year found more crude oil, produced more crude, transported, refined, distributed and marketed more oil and products than ever before.

To do this we had to spend a lot of money. We sent men ranging over thousands of square miles in the search for new oil fields—and we found new oil. We built new ships . . . new pipe lines . . . new refining units . . . new marketing facilities . . . and a host of other things. Again last year we spent more money than we earned, but it was an investment in Canada's future as well as our own.

We raised most of the money we needed by borrowing and by selling some of our major investments; the rest was earnings put back into the business after paying dividends.

On the year's business we made a profit of less than a cent a gallon on products sold. This amounted to 4 and 9/10ths cents out of each sales dollar we received.

It was a busy, successful, interesting year. When it began we were sometimes hard pressed to meet all your needs; when it ended supplies were assured. It saw new oil discovered, making Canada less dependent on foreign supplies; new equipment added, helping to serve Canadians better with the products they need.

Bringing you oil is a big job—and a costly one.

If you're interested in facts . . :

1948 set new records in all phases of Imperial Oil's operations.

If the wells drilled by the company to find and produce oil in Canada during 1948 were placed end to end they would total 183 miles.

Five large tank cars were added to the company's fleets; the Leduc pipe line was extended to Edmonton, and plans progressed for a pipe line from Edmonton to Regina; 4,711 tank cars moved more than 150,000 car loads of crude oil and products.

Imperial's eight refineries processed an average of 135,027 barrels per day, a new record.

Sales totalled 1,819,000,000 gallons. On its operations the company earned $16,873,163—a profit of 93/100 of a cent per gallon for each of the 1,819,000,000 gallons sold. From the investments the company earned $3,958,907.

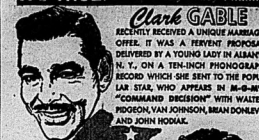
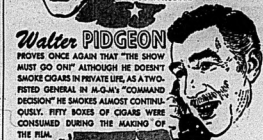
WOUNDED SAFE IN SHANGHAI

Wounded when Chinese Communists shelled the British warship Consort, one of 16 injured crewmen is carried to a Shanghai hospital after the vessel docked. Ten sailors were killed by five shore batteries when ship went to aid the Amethyst. The Amethyst was shelled again when she tried to limp up the Yangtze to Nanking.



WINTER OLYMPICS FOR CANADA?

Sydney Dawes, chairman of the Canadian Olympic committee, and Councillor J. O. Asselin of Montreal have left for Rome to appear before the executive Olympic committee to make their bid to bring the 1956 winter games to Montreal. The U.S. committee, on behalf of Lake Placid, New York, is also bidding for the games. Should the Canadian bid be successful, the skiing competitions will be held at Mont Tremblant, and the figure skating and racing in Montreal.



AT THE CAPITOL — Tyrone Power's introduction to Wm. Swingley portends a lively free-for-all over Anne Baxter in "The Luck of the Irish," the new 20th. Century-Fox comedy-romance opening today at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, suspense and action in "Incident", starring Jane Frazee and Warren Douglas. Both hits are first city showings. Matinee daily at 2.00 p.m., Daylight Saving Time.

IT'S TRUE! By Wiley Padan

Clark GABLE RECENTLY RECEIVED A UNIQUE MARRIAGE OFFER. IT WAS A FERVENT PROPOSAL DELIVERED BY A YOUNG LADY IN ALBANY, N. Y., ON A TEN-INCH PHONOGRAPH RECORD WHICH SHE SENT TO THE POPULAR STAR, WHO APPEARS IN M-G-M'S "COMMAND DECISION" WITH WALTER PIDGEON, VAN JOHNSON, BRIAN DONLEVY, AND JOHN HODIAK.

Walter PIDGEON PROVES ONCE AGAIN THAT "THE SHOW MUST GO ON!" ALTHOUGH HE DOESN'T SMOKE CIGARS IN PRIVATE LIFE, AS A TWO-FISTED GENERAL IN M-G-M'S "COMMAND DECISION" HE SMOKES ALMOST CONTINUOUSLY. FIFTY BOXES OF CIGARS WERE CONSUMED DURING THE MAKING OF THE FILM.

Van JOHNSON IS ONE OF HOLLYWOOD'S AMATEUR PAINTERS. ALTHOUGH HE STARTED DABBLING IN ART ONLY ONE YEAR AGO, HE'S ALREADY SOLD A PICTURE TO A GREETING CARD FIRM FOR $500! HIS CHECK FOR THE CARD AND FUTURE ROYALTIES ARE BEING DONATED TO A CHARITABLE ORGANIZATION.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, April 25 — (AP) —

If there's a rainy spell in Louisville next week, you probably can look for a lot of people to risk a few bucks on the possibility that Olympia isn't a muddier . . . M. Isidore Bieber and Hirsch Jacobs, a couple of cagey horsemen almost proved it in the Wood last Saturday . . . If Palestine hadn't slipped — or tried to jump a puddle — a few strides from the finish, he might have beaten Olympia for the first time in five attempts in that rainstorm . . . And the mud at Churchill Downs is heavier and gooier than Jamaica's. A muddy track there might make the difference.

Polo Grounds Opener

Red Barrett, Braves cherubic pitcher, approached Leo Durocher and asked if Leo remembered a statement he had given out in reply to rumors that he would trade Bobby Thompson for Barrett . . . Leo did. It was "We've already got lots of that kind of pitching." . . . Asked Barrett: "Which of my kinds of pitching were you referring to? Intelligent pitching, control pitching, or old fast ball"

Monday Matinee

Leon Culbertson, former Red Sox outfielder now with Newark Bears, is considering professional golf after he quits baseball. He's taking to par most of the time . . . Pro baseball scouts have their eyes on Southern California's socking first baseman, Rudolph Valentino Regalado.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Bridge Expert

Elva Tyme has a cute way of saying: "That's one thing I always wanted to know." And she says it when each different subject comes up. Also when any subject is repeated.

One of her first problems is how to decide when she has used up her third trick as responder. What should she bid next when a first response does not increase the number of the opener.

Suppose south opens with a heart and she has a hand containing exactly three tricks and exactly three high cards. Suppose in the hand she has is also a biddable spade suit.

Since a takeout comes first, her first response is one spade. It is not an increase in the last partnership number. But she could not have bid at all unless she had more than two tricks.

Therefore, she admits having more than two tricks. But she has not consumed her third trick. All she has done is announce that her hand contains a third trick or more.

Suppose the opener then bids two hearts for which she now has the required trump support. She can now raise to three hearts to use up the third trick she had already said she had.

This troubles her. Having already announced the fact of having the third trick she thinks it was used up when she bid one spade. But this is not so. She does not use it up until she raises.

South opened one heart when her north hand contained these cards:

♠K 9 5
♥7 4 3
♦K 10 8 2
♣Q 9 6 5

Having no takeout biddable suit and lacking support for a biddable heart suit, her bid is one no-trump.

She has thus shown three high cards. But she did not use up the third trick by a raise in number. If south then bids two hearts, she has support and can raise to three hearts.

Only an increase in number consumes a trick.

FOUR U.S. SOLDIERS KILLED

Yakima, Wash., April 25 (AP) — Four soldiers returning to camp were killed yesterday when a truck in which they were riding overturned and pinned them beneath it. Seven were injured.

Only Nine or 10 Will be Shooting For the Roses

New York, April 25 (AP) — The question "who's going to Kentucky?" was pretty well answered today.

Now the puzzler is: How many of the three-year-olds will be in the starting gate in the $100,000 Kentucky Derby May 7?

It still looks as if a field of nine or 10 will be shooting for the major prize of North American horse-racing.

Olympia still tops the list, not just because the winter book makers say so but because the Fred Hooper colt has come through a rugged winter and spring campaign with flying colors. They can't take four straight victories in a row from him.

The No. 1 colt flew down to Kentucky early today after besting seven rivals in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica Saturday. The fact that Eddie Arcaro just got him under the wire a nose in front of Ralph Lowe's Palestinian may be the reason several eastern contenders have decided to take another chance in the derby.

Among these are the Greentree pair of Capot and Wine List. Model Cadet, a poor seventh in the Wood Memorial, obviously is a better nag than that.

As for the horses already in Kentucky—waiting for the outsiders to arrive—it could be there is a warm welcome in the offing.

Clifford Moore's Old Rockport is one. "Rocky" beat Olympia in the Santa Anita derby in February and won at Keeneland 19 days ago. Ky. Colonel, owned by Joseph A. Goodwin, equalled the Keeneland track record Friday in winning a 6½-furlong event in his first start of the year.

Russia Claims To be Building Largest Telescope

London, April 25 — (AP) — Russia claimed yesterday to be building the world's largest reflecting telescope. The report, broadcast by Moscow radio, did not give the size of the reflecting mirror. The world's existing biggest telescope is in California. It had a 200-inch mirror. Moscow radio said the new Russian instrument will be installed on the southern slopes of Mount Alagez in Armenia.

AWAIT WORD ON MISSING RCAF PLANE

Mrs. J. H. Drury, Ottawa, and daughter, Carol, 10, await word of Flt.-Lieut. Drury. He is one of the seven men missing aboard a RCAF plane. Planes have been searching 50,000 square miles of New Brunswick lands for the missing men. The plane was on a flight from Ottawa's Rockcliffe airport to Chatham, N.B.

Men's Commercial Bowling League Holds Annual

Jimmy Doig will head the Men's Commercial Bowling League for the 1949-50 season, it was decided at the annual banquet of the loop held at Golden Acres last week. Doig succeeds J. Darvell who assumes the office of past president.

Other officers of the league are, vice president, W. O'Brien; secretary, D. Lee, and treasurer, H. Ryan.

The banquet climaxed a highly successful season, and it was fitting that all teams competing in the 1948-49 season will be back in the bowling fold next year.

Presentation of prizes saw Bodaks, league champions, given the loop trophy with each player being presented with miniatures. Mono Lodge which won the play-off championship, were presented with a trophy and eight miniatures.

Individual championship prizes went to H. Ryan with high average of 228, high-three spring, J. Dunphy, 981; high single, R. Burd, 321, and consolation, Eddie Lynch, 68.

Inventor Found On Lonely Heath

London, April 25 — (Reuters) — Guy Bazeley Petter, 76, inventor of a novel oil engine who has been missing for seven months, has been found dead on a lonely Berkshire heath. Police launched an intensive hunt for the inventor when he disappeared after watching a rugby football match last October. His son, Dr. Lane Petter, said yesterday he was satisfied the death was due to natural causes.

IMPROVE FIRE PROTECTION

Bergen, Norway — (CP) — A new radio system has been installed in the fire department here which will provide contact with all mobile units and fire boats in the harbor area.

16 Square Miles Awarded Arabs Near Jerusalem

Jerusalem, April 25 — (AP) — The Trans-Jordan-Israeli armistice committee Saturday night awarded about 19 square miles of land north and south of Jerusalem to the Arabs. The territory includes the village of Beit Iksa, Katana and Battir. In return Israel got the village of Walaga.

MAID OF MIST TRIPS DELAYED

Niagara Falls, April 25 (CP)— High winds prevented the scheduled maiden trip of the year for the famous Maid of the Mist steamship Sunday. The little vessel which chugs around the foot of the falls will have to wait until its dock can be floated to the American side of the Niagara River.

Russia Agrees to Lift Berlin Blockade

Paris, April 25 (AP) — Russia has agreed to lift the Berlin blockade, it was announced today by the Big Four foreign ministers' conference.

The announcement was made by Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet foreign minister, at the end of a meeting of the ministers.

The announcement said that the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France have agreed that on May 12 all restrictions imposed by the Soviet Union on communications, transportation and trade between Berlin and the western zones of Germany and between the western zones and the eastern zone will be removed.

The announcement said that on the same day the Soviet Union will lift restrictions imposed by it on communications, transportation and trade between Berlin and the eastern zone of Germany.

The announcement said that the Big Four foreign ministers will meet in Paris on May 23 to consider questions relating to Germany, including questions relating to the implementation of the present decision.

ANNEX 9,000 GERMANS AND 28 SQ. MILES OF AREA

Paris, April 25 (AP)— About 9,000 Germans and 28 square miles of west Germany's frontier territory were taken over by four allied zones countries Saturday. The Netherlands, Belgium, France and Luxembourg occupied various small sectors. Most of the Germans in the affected areas accepted their new status with reluctance, but resignation. Britain and the United States concurred in the agreement for annexation, announced March 26.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop came home erly on account of Saturday, and I said Hay pop, here's a swell chance for us to walk out to the Park and play catch an stuff.

He's rite, William ,ma said. It's a bewtiful day and an ideal chance to get some exercise in stead of just talking about it, she said, and pop said, How rite you are, my dear. I wish Benny had suggested it sooner, but I just made an ingagement with myself to loll irresponsibly around the house this afternoon, and she must who, always keeps the promises he makes to himself can be relied on in his relations with others. In the words of Shakespeare, "To thine own self be true, and when others seek a man to trust, by gollies it'll be you," he said.

That suits me just as well from a selfish standpoint, ma said. The laundry man may take it into his contrary head to ring the bell just when I'm out doing my marketing, and if he does I want you to tell him he was 3 lowels short last week, and I want you to ask him how it happened and what he intends to do about it, and I want you to make careful note of his explinations and promises. You'll find this weeks laundry neatly piled in a heap next to the hamper, and when you put it in the laundry bag I want you to check the list with the laundry man, she said, and pop said, What list is that?

The laundry list, naturelly, ma said, Wasn't find it planned to the laundry bag, and I want you to make sure that the laundry man dubble checks it, she said.

On 2nd thawts I made that ingagement with myself rather elastic, pop said, I told myself that either this Saturday or next Saturday would suit me equally well, he said.

The result being we walked to the Park.

British Writer Will Remain In Russia

Moscow, April 25 — (AP) — The Communist party newspaper Pravda said Sunday a British embassy official has accused the British government of warmongering and of selling out Britain to the United States.

The official, identified as Archibald R. Johnston, was quoted as saying he had decided to remain in the Soviet Union-in order to devote all of his "energy and talents to the question of peace."

Johnston, a Scot, is editor-in-chief of the Russian language newspaper Britanski Soyuznik (British Ally), published by the British Foreign Office for distribution in Russia.

Pravda devoted almost a third of a page to a letter it said was signed by Johnston. The letter asserted that the British embassy here is not interested in improving British-Soviet relations "but in fact does everything to worsen these relations."

Apparently the letter took the British embassy completely by surprise. No statement was forsured by the embassy immediately.

Britanski Soyuznik comes out in Moscow once a week in an edition of 40,000 to 50,000 copies. It was started during the war. The paper carries articles on British, British-Soviet relations and official speeches of British leaders.

NEW USE FOR FLAX

Amsterdam — (CP) — A New Dutch factory is manufacturing insulating material for packages from flax shoves, which were regarded as a waste product. Flax shoves are the woody fibres of the stalk of the flax plant which are left after scutching dried retted flax.

SOUTH AFRICA POPULAR

Pretoria, South Africa — (CP) — A record number of 67,000 visitors came to South Africa last year and spent more than £13,000,000 ($52,000,000), the South African tourist association announced. The pre-war record of visitors was 40,504 — in 1948.

Runaway Freight Car Laden With Stone Plunges Off Wharf

North Bay, April 23 (CP)—A runaway Canadian National Railways freight car laden with stone shot off the end of Muskoka Wharf at Gravenhurst Friday afternoon after smashing through a stop lock and plunged down into 40 feet of water in Lake Muskoka.

The car has not yet been recovered.

Officials said they believed the brakes of the car had been released by a gang of boys. The car was one of several held in readiness at the siding for spring washouts which may occur on the line in that division. It was heavily laden with stones.

SUPER EXPRESS TRAIN

Stockholm — (CP) — A new super express train, the "Scandia Arrow," will go into operation between Malmo in south Sweden and Oslo. The new express will shorten the time between the Danish and Norwegian capitals by approximately three hours.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"Is he in love with Evelyn?" "He's trying to be" said Mac. "He's trying to aid himself into thinking he is. How is Gay?"

Penny told him about Diana.

"She's having a tough time," he said.

They talked a long time. First Penny's heart leaped and then it was heavy. Mac smoked. "He's still smoking," she thought, "fighting against loving me. He told Gay he loved her."

They walked to e Washington Square. He looked tired. Always when he walked for any length of time he breathed heavily and the lines between his brows became deeper.

"Let's sit here awhile," said Penny.

She did not want to cry like a hurt child but she knew when he left her today it would be a long time before she saw him again. Their conversation in the restaurant, strained and tense, had been maddening. They had not said any of the things foremost in their minds and hearts.

She pulled off her hat and looked at him with glistening eyes.

"Mac, I never ran after you. I've always been patient. But I can't bear this waiting and hoping. If you love me. . . ."

"I do love you, but I won't let you marry a man who is poor and crippled."

"Mac, have I got to spend the rest of my life drawing, drawing to get you out of my mind, waiting for little glimpses of you like this, jumping when the phone rings because I hope it's you? I don't want the material things. I've never been used to them. All I want is you."

"I don't have a job and I've got to sell this play." He looked at her, frowning. His eyes were hard blue in the sunlight. "We could . . . No, it's not fair to you. You'd have to go on working."

"Drawing isn't work," said Penny. "Mac, you and I belong together. I'm as dependent upon you as you are on me. We don't need money to make us happy. Do you want the years to pass just waiting and hoping? I've never talked so much in my life! I never begged a man to marry me before. . . ."

"I want to marry you," he said soberly, touching her flying dark hair. "I don't deserve a love as big and as unselfish as yours, Penny. You don't want to marry a man who is—grounded. I probably won't amount to much because all my ambition when to smash the day I crashed."

She put her small hand over his. "Do you always want to be as lonely as you are now? And drifting? You see, Mac, I'll always wait for you to come back to me. I could never marry anyone else if he offered me the world." He turned away. "Please, let's go. I—I can't bear this."

When they got up he pulled her close and, brushing away the blowing bangs, kissed her.

It was rather late when Gay came in from the hospital that night. When she opened the door, she saw Mac Bolton stretched out on the divan before the fire. Penny sat beside him, smiling down on him. Gay felt as if she were an intruder.

Penny's laugh was a happy song. It was good to hear her merry laugh again.

Mac said, "Hello, redhead." He took Penny's left hand and held up her third finger. "Look what we found today!"

Penny said, "Mac and I were married today, darling. I did want you to be there but I couldn't wait. I was afraid my bridegroom would change his mind about me! Gay, please don't hate me for being so impulsive! I know I have no right to leave you now. . ."

Gay came toward them, put her arm around Penny, and gave her hand to Mac.

"I'm glad you did, Penny. I'll make out. You must go with — with your husband now."

Penny and Mac took a small furnished apartment not far from the studio. They were like happy children, content with today and unafraid of tomorrow. Gay, busy, saw little of them, but when she did she always thought of Chris. She saw Chris and herself married, sharing little, enclosed in a little world they had made for themselves, and happy just to be together.

She did not see Gregg, but in the lists of guests appearing at parties she always saw his name. Lucia and Alan were being extensively entertained.

She was lonelier than before with Penny gone. The hospital bills were still unpaid. They were like an evil omen, staring at her from the desk and, despite the lean meals she allowed herself, she was in arrears in her rent.

There was a rehearsal for the fashion show and Gay found herself in the enormous ballroom of the Brent home where she had danced so many times.

Mrs. Brent asked, "Isn't this Gay Van Avery? How is your dear mother? This must be very trying for you, but you will make a beautiful bride, my dear."

The rehearsals were tiresome. Nita's whispered sarcasm was almost unbearable. Marchand's temper flared and the fitter wept. After each rehearsal Gay felt as if she had been through a laborious physical ordeal.

MARMORA

Chamber of Commerce Honors Three Village Hockey Teams; Dit Clapper is Guest Speaker

(Delayed in Mail) . . .

Marmora, (Special.) — The prowess of the three Marmora hockey teams of the 1948-1949 season evoked widespread congratulations at the annual Sports Night dinner meeting of the Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, in the Royal Hotel, on Thursday evening, at which the teams were guests.

The gathering was favored with the visit of Dit Clapper, well known Boston Bruins player and coach, as guest speaker.

Following a banquet served by Mrs. H. J. Neath and staff, President Alex Fraser, assumed the duties of toastmaster. Fred Wells acted as song leader with Rev. J. M. Brownlie as accompanist.

President Speaks

Introductory remarks by the president called attention to the fact that the same co-operative spirit shown by the three teams being honored was in evidence among residents in general whereby not only did the village have a rink but a recreation centre as well. A lot of further work is required to put the latter in shape and projects were now considered to assist in wiping out the deficit. All should strive for the full realization of the project. The levelling of the grounds was one of the first considerations and much might be undertaken along that line by voluntary effort.

As he congratulated the teams present the gathering joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." In concluding his remarks, Mr. Fraser said that he hoped at the next Sports' Night not only hockey players would be present but representatives of local rugby and baseball teams

He then called on the captains to introduce the players of their teams as follows:

Gus Leonard, Trent Valley team; Michael Forestill, Juveniles; Ray Darrah, Midgets.

The toast to the teams was ably proposed by Bernard Hughes who sketched their accomplishments of this past season. The captains of the teams in response made appropriate speeches in which they thanked their supporters. W. R. Hamilton B.A., secretary treasurer of the intermediate team read, intimated in the complete harmony in the teams and read Frank Carlton Nelson's poem "If I Had a Boy."

Percy Gray manager of Juvenile and Midget teams which were sponsored by Marmora Kinsmen read a letter from Jack Chrislett O.M.H.A. secretary congratulating the Midgets on being finalists. He also made comments on the finances of the team and its coaching under Mel Borland.

The next speaker was Marmora's reeve, Vincent M. Lynch. As chairman of the Marmora District Recreation Centre Commission, he extended congratulations to the teams and had a deserved word of praise for the rink's caretaker, Manley Lavender for the way in which he did his initial season's duties. He urged the citizens to stand by the Commission morally and financially that their worthy project might materialize. In a brief business session Bernard Hughes gave his report of the "Waterworks and Sewage Disposal Committee."

Introduction of the guest speaker, Dit Clapper, was allotted to Joseph O'Neill, manager of Marmora's Trent Valley League team. Mr. O'Neill, who has known Dit since his younger days mentioned a few of the highlights of the latter's hockey career.

In his address, Dit congratulated the three teams on their performances. He directed his remarks largely to the younger hockey players in the gathering and said the possibilities were greater now for boys than when he was a boy. He then gave a short sketch of his hockey background, raising smiles among his audience as he referred to the old Trent Valley League as the Blood and Thunder League. He said that what was true of hockey was true of most life in general. You go through it step by step, graduating from the one grade into the other. He advised the players to be good sportsmen off the ice as well as on the ice. "Be good losers. "Good sportsmen make good citizens," he continued. "Doubtless among those who are supporting you today are many who were sportsmen in their younger days."

In moving a hearty vote of thanks, Bill Shannon said that all had profited from the interesting talk they had listened to.

INQUEST VERDICT DEATH WAS NOT SUICIDAL HANGING

Mystery Death of Mrs. Louisa Kent May be Further Probed by Atty.-Gen.

Embro, Ont., April 26 (CP) — The mysterious death of Mrs. Louisa Kent, 61, found hanged in her West Zorra Township home last March 2, may be investigated further by the Attorney-General.

A five-man coroner's jury early today returned a verdict that the case was not one of suicidal hanging. Crown Attorney Craig McKay said he would order a transcript of the evidence for forwarding to Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell.

Clarence Kent, the woman's husband, denied in testimony he had anything to do with the death.

Dr. John H. Fisher, provincial pathologist described injuries on the body which included a fractured vertebrae, five fractured ribs and multiple bruises.

He said it was highly unusual for vertebrae to be fractured in suicidal hanging. The fractures frequently resulted from manual strangulation or judicial hanging.

The verdict was returned shortly before 1 a.m. by the jury which was out 44 minutes after closing a hearing lasting more than four hours.

Two sons, Ralph and Wallace Kent, both testified they had told police should be notified immediately after they examined the scene of their mother's death. They said they told police against the advice of the Embro physician.

They also told of years of unhappy domestic relations between their parents.

Verandah Like Slaughter House As Gangs Meet

Toronto, April 26 (CP)—A fierce gang battle in a rooming house early today resulted in several injury to one man and the arrest of the wanted man, police drug traffic leader.

Edward Mikkal was found with four tendons severed and Vernon Ester was arrested on a drunk charge. Police say Ester is the "big shot" west end drug leader.

A detective said he believed a gang attempted to force Ester into a house and was met at the doorway by another gang. The verandah was in shambles and covered with so much blood "it looked like a slaughter house."

A professional boxer is being held for questioning and two other men are being sought.

May Seek Reduction Quarantine Period Of Scarlet Fever

Toronto, April 26 — (CP) — Reduction of the scarlet fever quarantine period may be sought by the Ontario Health Officers Association. Present regulations call for three weeks' quarantine.

Dr. J. B. Cook of Sudbury raised the question during the Association's 32rd annual convention yesterday.

Dr. G. P. Jackson asked the meeting to prepare a resolution on the quarantine question for the convention's resolutions committee.

Washington, April 26 (AP) — The United States said today "the way appears clear" for lifting the Berlin blockade provided Russian terms actually are those published by Moscow.

It was understood the United States, Britain and France had discussed the published Soviet terms and found them acceptable.

The only reservation appears to be whether the Russians intend to propose any further conditions.

The formal state department pronouncement came after a round of top-level government conferences. One of these was a report to president Truman from Dr. Philip Jessup, the American delegate to the United Nations Security Council. Jessup had discussed the Soviet proposal at Lake Success, N.Y., with Jakob A. Malik, the Russian U.N. delegate.

Moscow, April 26 — (AP) — Moscow's press published today the terms under which Russia offers to lift the blockade of Berlin.

A statement distributed by Tass, the official news agency, said that if an agreement can be reached on a date for a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers, then:

1. The Russians will lift their communications ban, provided the same step is taken by the governments of Eastern Germany;

2. The Berlin currency question, which hampered the four-power talks in Moscow last summer, can be discussed by the four powers after the communications restrictions are lifted.

3. The entire German question should come up for review by the four foreign ministers.

The Russian proposals here said this offer was the first sign in months that some agreement might be possible between the East and the West, but they warned against either hasty optimism or undue pessimism. One diplomat said the soviet statement "holds a promise" which was worthy of consideration by the United States, Britain and France.

It would appear here, from the terms of the offer, that a unified Berlin currency is dead. The compromise condition for the lifting of communist restrictions tallies with Germany's first city. It this be true, it represents a step forward from the point where the four-power discussions broke down last summer.

MOSCOW—Page 3

By JOHN TRACY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, April 26 — (CP) — A slight touch of hard times is falling upon "The Main," where Montreal's biggest and gayest city shows its seamy side.

Things have always been tough down there where Montreal's main north-south street — Boulevard St. Laurent or St. Lawrence Boulevard, depending on which language you speak — runs into a Little Bowery on the fringe of the Stephenson section and onetime red-light district.

The Main's two movie houses with their garish hand-painted signs and the vaudeville theatre advertising "exotic dancing" are drawing their usual crowds but not so many are coming to Joe Lavigan's place for a bowl of anchors and mermaids tattooed on their chests and arms.

It gives the little French-Canadian more time to talk about conditions in the street where he has kept shop for 25 of his 59 years.

"I can tell that things aren't as good by the number of rubby-dub artists," says Joe, whose English is punctuated with the hard words of the street. "There's more of them than ever.

Another sign of the times is the restaurant across the street which advertises a three-course meal for 25 cents.

The cafe serves soup and coffee for a nickel each, beans with two slices of buttered bread for a dime and pie or pudding for another nickel. A few years back the ragged customers "Please do not ask for credit."

Now a larger quarter the homeless, nameless men who mooch along the street use the word "flop" on the floor of a rooming-house around the corner. Rental is 25 cents for a bed in 30-35 cents.

The one-eyed tattoo artist recalls the night a man was kicked to death in the doorway of a restaurant. Police found the killer 20 minutes later at a nearby flophouse. He was still wet with the blood of his victim.

The Eden Wax Museum, which portrayed the crimes of the times including the man who murdered his wife and seven children has disappeared from the street. The commercial district is gradually creeping in but the accent can still be on violence in the Main.

"Why there's a place up the street," said the professor, "where it's as much as your life's worth to flash a $10 bill."

SHELLING OF SHIPS CALLED OUTRAGE BY CHURCHILL

Says U.S. Should Have Carriers in China Waters

MISSING FLIER?—Claiming to be Pit. Sgt. Wilfred Mashet Sutherland of Vancouver, missing since a bomber raid over Germany in 1943, a young man walked into the office of a Toronto newspaper Monday. He claimed he had been a victim of amnesia and only recently recovered his memory while under treatment at Sunnybrook Military Hospital in Toronto. A picture taken in London, Eng., of a sandwichman carrying a placard offering £100 reward for his discovery helped him to remember who he was. He said then he disappeared. Miss Mary Barret of Vancouver is currently in England seeking the missing airman. (CP Photo)

London, April 26 (CP)— Winston Churchill angrily told the house of commons today ought to have aircraft carriers in the China waters for "effective power of retaliation' against Chinese communists who attacked British warships.

"This is not a matter of warfare," Prime Minister Attlee replied in the house of Commons, "there is no suggestion of making an attack on anyone at all."

Churchill called the shelling of British destroyer Consort, Yangtze an "atrocious outrage" and the subsequent sinking of "throwing the whole burden" of responsibility on naval commanders in China.

The sloop Amethyst was disabled by Communist artillery fire last Wednesday while en route to Nanking with supplies for the British embassy at Nanking. Other ships which went to her aid were fired upon and turned back. Attlee gave official casualty figures as 40 dead, 53 wounded, and 12 missing.

Attlee's Statement

Attlee declared the decision to send the Amethyst up to Nanking was made by the naval commanders on the spot, was "correct."

Churchill broke out when he said the Admiralty should not attempt to guide the man on the spot by detailed orders.

Labor members drowned out some Conservative shouts and cries of "the Tories want war."

Attlee said Britain's attitude to the Chinese Civil War was governed by Moscow declartion of December, 1945.

At that time Britain, Russia and the United States announced a policy of non-intervention in China's internal affairs.

The Prime Minister was making a statement to a crowded house on the shelling of British warships in the Yangtze last week just before the Communist armies crossed the river.

He added that in view of considerable British interests in China and the presence of large British communities, the British government decided some months ago that the British Ambassador and consular officers in China should remain at their posts.

"We were not alone in the decision to remain at Nanking. Other governments represented with the exception of the Soviet Union have instructed their envoys to forward from the point where the four-power discussions broke down last summer.

Speculation Keen in Race For Ontario PC Leadership

Toronto, April 26 (CP) — Four lawyers — three of them Conservative cabinet ministers, today plunged into the next-to-last lap of the Ontario Progressive Conservative race.

The program of the three-day party convention gives them ample time today for personal appeals for support among the 1,682 delegates and 1,260 alternates. Women and young people meet in the afternoon but the only general convention session is tonight when the four aspirants make their official campaign speeches.

Corridor speculation before and after nominations closed yesterday gives the inside track to Hon. Leslie Frost, provincial treasurer, and Hon. Leslie Blackwell, Attorney-General, in Wednesday's balloting. But still very much in the race are Hon. Thomas Porter, Minister of Education, and Kelso Roberts, former member of the legislature.

The winner dons the leadership mantle George Drew dropped last fall after his election as National Progressive Conservative leader. He also becomes Premier of Ontario.

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, who became leader and premier on a temporary basis after Mr. Drew resigned, has said he will turn over the premiership to the new leader this Thursday.

Mr. Drew, who was elected leader in 1938 when the party was in opposition in Ontario and won the three provincial elections since, reported on his stewardship yesterday. However, he will not be present for the voting tomorrow, returning to Ottawa for the resumed session of the House of Commons.

Delegate Robbed Suspect Charged

Toronto, April 26 — (CP) — Trapped by a Progressive Conservative convention delegate and hotel detectives in the corridor of the Royal York Hotel Monday night, John Colenas was arrested and charged with robbery of $77.

Gordon Darling, of North Bay, met two men in the upper hall and was invited to attend a reception on another floor. Thinking the two men were delegates from Toronto, he accompanied them down the stairs where he was grabbed and his wallet removed.

Darling's yells brought other delegates and the hotel detective who caught one of the suspects after a chase through corridors and down the freight elevator.

Police are seeking the second suspect.

Wages Offensive Against Tentacles Of Soviet Influence

Toronto, April 26 — (CP) — A world counter-offensive against the spreading tentacles of Soviet influence was urged here yesterday by one of the top - ranking strategists of the United States air force.

Maj.-Gen. Orville A. Anderson, former aide to Gen. Eisenhower and adviser to President Truman, told two service club gatherings that the democratic countries had already lost three vital preliminaries to a future conflict warfare on the political, economic and psychological fronts.

A continuation of these reverses would prejudice the outcome of a shooting war, he said.

Port Hope Man Pleads Guilty to Theft

Port Hope, April 26 — (CP) — John S. Milloy, Port Hope stockbroker, today pleaded guilty to 49 charges of theft of about $18,000 in securities and was remanded to May 4.

Milloy's stock activities were suspended last August by order of the Ontario Securities Commission, and after an investigation he was charged with theft of $200 in securities and remanded on $5,000 bail. As investigations continued, further charges were laid.

Edmund Whetmore, auditor for the Ontario Securities Commission, testified on audit of Milloy's affairs showed liabilities exceeded assets by $15,000.

Defence counsel said a business opportunity was open for Milloy which would mean he might be able to repay the funds.

Sullivan Resigns

Washington, April 26 — (AP) — Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan today resigned in protest against scrapping the 65,000-ton super aircraft carrier.

His action, which had been expected, was based on his belief that the navy is not being given proper consideration in defense policy.

Defence Secretary Louis Johnson's order directing to stop work on the $189,000,000 carrier was just one of a series of incidents against which Sullivan is protesting, associates said.

HOUSE DISCUSSES BUDGET, FAMILY ALLOWANCES

Bills Quickly Put Through All Stages

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 26 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent told a cheering Commons last night that Canada's 20th Parliament will be dissolved at the end of this week. He indicated that a general election will be held June 27.

He told members it would be improper for him to announce a date until the Governor-General had taken his advice on dissolution. But, he added with a smile, if members would consult the Election Act, they would learn for themselves that it would be possible to have the election on June 27.

Later in an interview with The Canadian Press, he said forcefully:

"Here is the situation, we want an election as early as possible and June 27 is the earliest possible date."

The announcement came at 10.25 p. m. EDT, only a few hours after members had returned from a two-week Easter recess. There were many vacant seats as Mr. St. Laurent, who returned Sunday from a tour of Western Canada, rose to make the announcement.

Among the missing was George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader in Toronto attending a provincial party convention called to select a new leader in Ontario. The post, formerly held by Mr. Drew, is being vacated by Premier T. L. Kennedy.

U.N. Calls on Russia to Lift Restrictions

New York, April 26 — (CP) — The United Nations Monday formally called on Russia to lift the restrictions barring Soviet wives from joining their husbands outside Russia.

The Soviet measure, introduced two years ago, was denounced by the General Assembly as designed to impair friendly relations among nations, and contrary to the principles of the United Nations charter and diplomatic usage.

Russia gave no indication she would heed the appeal. Soviet diplomatic delegates said the United Nations action was unlawful interference in Russia's internal matters. They said the ban was made to protect Soviet women from "humiliating" experiences abroad.

Coaches and Four Appear Again In Old London

London, April 26 (AP) — Coaches drawn by four horses returned to London streets today to haul people around.

The coaches are gifts from Britain's new interest in tourists. Britain badly needs the tourist's money.

A company that unearthed a couple of coaches announced that one driver is a fabulous character of York's yesteryear who used to drive 40 horses right abreast for a circus. But police ruled four horses is the capacity of London streets.

Army's Time Gun, An Antiquated Artillery Piece, Due for Retirement

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, April 26 (CP) — An 8-ton gun-and-carriage type known daily as one pound of gunpowder into the ears of Haligonians today and every day, except those when a shot marks the noon-hour.

Today, the army put a shiny new 25 -pounder will be in its place for this city's June bicentenary celebrations.

During her three-year sojourn on Citadel Hill, the old gun has compiled a hefty record of destruction.

Twice, her concussion blew the storm-door from an army wireless station 150 yards away. A signalman was left holding the door-knob.

They swung her around and she spitefully blew a half a dozen windows out of the engineers barracks.

The gun's tolerant master is 28-year-old John O'Connor, Second World War artilleryman.

He gets the firing order from a signalman in the wireless hut. A yank of the firing lever and his somnolent charge awakens with an earth-shattering roar.

Down in the city, people stop and check watches.

O'Connor says he's been off only three times in a year. Once a fireman's strike kept him off the time, the firing lever stuck.

Last winter, the 1903-model weapon grumbled under a four-foot coating of ice but never broke down. She has filled in for salutes and blown light bulbs from unprotected fixtures. She once boomed a tourist into a 10-minute daze and his ears rang for hours.

"An old piece of outdated steel," one army officer called her. But he said it in a whisper.

U.S. NAVY PULLS HEAVY SHIPS OUT OF SHANGHAI

Trying to Avoid Involvement in Civil War in China

Shanghai, April 26 (AP) — The United States navy today pulled its heavy ships out of Shanghai to avoid involvement in China's civil war.

British authorities followed the American lead and withdrew warships of their own from the Yangtze Estuary. Movement of the ships into the Yangtze Estuary will put them out of artillery range when the Communists arrive in the world's fourth-largest city. Most of the city's 5,000,000 inhabitants expect them to walk in and take over as they did the Nationalist capital at Nanking.

As the situation grew tense, British ordered the cruiser Amaracks from her base in the British West Indies to far-eastern waters.

The Central News Agency, in Nanking, garrison commander, said operations in the Nanking-Hangchow-Shanghai triangle had ended during the last 48 hours. Military men do not think the Communists have enough troops across the Yangtze yet to start rolling in strength toward the big targets of Shanghai and Hangchow. But they think it will any time, and when they do they probably will come fast.

Meanwhile Shanghai, which had taken the situation with relative calm, was beginning to show evidence of panic. Shanghai's commerce seemed grinding to a halt. The money market was so chaotic as to be meaningless.

A female fox terrier has been found wandering the city streets minus collar and tag. It is being held at the city pound awaiting ownership, after being picked up last Saturday.

200 MORE BICYCLES GET SAFETY TREATMENT

The Scotchlite-a-bike campaign is still going strong with the members of the Optimist Club giving their full time and co-operation to this safety drive. Last Saturday another successful day was marked up as they applied Scotchlite to over 300 bicycles.

The first Saturday was the most successful to date as the official number of applications was stated, that they had equipped 625 bicycles. The Optimist Club is also trying to arrange to visit each school on Wednesday afternoons, but no official announcement has been made as yet.

Don Rose Heads Key Club

At the regular Monday luncheon of the Belleville Key Club at the Kiwanis Centre, Donald Rose, son of the Belleville Collegiate was elected president of the club. Besides being president of the local club, he was recently elected as a trustee of the Key Club International, at Washington, D.C.

Other members of the executive are: Kevan Doyle, vice president; Leo Marcus, secretary; Bill Baker, treasurer. The four directors are: John Hagerman, Charles Deloug; Roy McMullip; and Rollin Legate.

Last weekend a Key Club conference was held in London Ontario, and Leo Marcus and Don Rose representing Belleville at the conference. Don Rose conducted three of the business sessions.

Before the close of the conference it was announced that the Belleville Key Club had taken second prize for achievements. It is believed that Belleville will be the site of the next Key Club conference.

Tickets Available For Cooking School

Tickets are still available for the Moffat Cooking School, conducted by Miss Elaine Collett, Home Economist of Moffat's Ltd., and may be obtained at the auditorium door of the Collegiate when the sessions open.

Salvation Army Requires $7,500 For Year's Work

Organization for the Salvation Army's annual appeal for funds is completed according to Mr. M. J. Vanneer, campaign chairman, who is anxious that every local comes in Belleville should know that the general canvass will begin on Monday next, May 2nd.

National objective for the 1949 Red Shield Appeal is $1,200,000 which will meet the deficit incurred in a year's operation of more than 90 social service institutions.

Local quota is $7,500, the campaign chairman stated.

Major Ken Graham, local commanding officer of the Salvation Army, reports that his organization is meeting greatly increased demands in both service and institutional fields, and that the local objective must be reached and passed in order to support these additional obligations.

This year, the local Salvation Army Appeal has a special significance. People of this district are well aware of the wonderful effort that has been made by the Belleville Kiwanis Club on behalf of the boys and girls of this district, by the operation of their Kiwanis Camp on Boblin Lake. The conducting of this camp and others like it throughout the country is becoming ever more difficult for organizations such as a Service Club. The Belleville Branch of the Salvation Army has undertaken this year to operate the Kiwanis Camp for the month of August. Very much needed assistance will be supplied by the Kiwanis Club, but the supervision, management and part of the cost for the month will be borne by the Salvation Army. This is just one more manifestation of the work carried on by this organization right in your community, and surely another excellent reason for your excellent support.

FLIGHTS HALTED

Amsterdam, April 26 — (AP) — Royal Dutch Airlines decided yesterday to stop flights on the Batavia - Shanghai run because of the communist advances in China. The weekly connection between Batavia, Singapore and Bangkok will be maintained.

William Miller New President Of Bridge Club

William Miller, manager of the Bell Canadian Company in this city, was elected president of the Belleville Bridge Club at the annual meeting held on Monday evening held at the Sprice Club on Sunday evening. Other officers are H. N. Becker, vice president; Mrs. Vanderwoort, secretary treasurer, and W. N. Belair, Frank Domenico and L. E. McLean as the executive. The membership committee will be composed of James Preston, James Wood and William VanTassel and who will conduct the social evening arranged for the wives of the members during the playing season.

The question of postponed games occupied the attention of the members in a lengthy discussion and it was finally decided to leave the matter to the incoming executive. It was also decided that merchandise instead of cash prizes would be given but that would be up to the winners when they wanted. The admission fee to the league will not be changed and no major prize winners will be able to win sectional prizes.

Prizes Distributed

The meeting was presided over by George O'Brien, who thanked the officers for their co-operation and believed that the league had enjoyed a most successful season. He congratulated the players for their interest and hoped that the league would continue to function for some years. Bill Miller, the new president, distributed the prize money to the winners who were Frank Domenico and George O'Brien, William Coulby and N. H. Becker, Mrs. Shiels and W. N. Belair, William VanTassel and Morley Ward, Ted Hughes and Frank Martin, Jerry Townsend and Harold Mott. The second, third and fourth were Ted Hughes and Frank Domenico, Les Shiels and Walter Reid, Morley Ward and William VanTassel and Homer Townsend and Harold Mott. George O'Brien and Frank Domenico won the prize for the least number of misses throughout the season.

Prizes for the evening's play went to Dr. Jack Empson and Mrs. Pugh Bradden, donated by the new president, Frank Domenico and W. B. Vandervoort, and William Miller and Jack Gibb won the consolation. Before the evening closed a presentation was made to "Skit" Vandervoort, who has so capably filled the position of secretary treasurer since the league's inception.

Woman Pays Double Fine

Drunks, speedsters and a woman who dallied with the wine when it was red, occupied the attention of T. Y. Wills' time in magistrate's court this morning.

Mrs. Marie Alfen, 1715 Bridge Street West, paid a double fine. She was arrested at 9.30 and $5.50 cost for permitting drunkenness in her home and was tabbed another fine of $100 and costs of $5.50 for "illegal possession."

A minor who pleaded guilty to assault of a young girl recently, had his case enlarged for sentence till May 3rd.

John Finkle charged with assault of one Thomas Stevenson had his case enlarged till May 10.

Fourteen cases of breach of the Liquor Control Act were on the docket and disposed of in the usual manner. "Ten and costs", or else. . .

Sea Cadets Sail Whaler to Trenton

With the orders "All hands aboard, cast off fore and aft," the Sea Cadet sailing whaler left Belleville for Trenton. The crew members were Leading Cadet R. Up-P.O. of the Belleville Sea Cadet Kourt as signalman, and Cadets Cooney, Phillips, Richards, Newton, Wese, Godet as well. Count on the sails and sheets.

The trip to Trenton was for the most part fair sailing with strong, favourable winds, and the run was two miles into the harbor, the boat averaged about four knots an hour.

After an hour ashore, mostly spent in having much needed refreshments, the crew reported on the jest ytpe the homeward trip. This proved a real test for the knowledge and skill of all hands. Strong, gusty headwinds made last quite difficult, and during one squall a stay broke, however, it was only by quick work that the mainsail was secured before the blew overboard. The damage was soon repaired and the boat continued on under full sail. The worst part of the trip was going through the channel, after the bay bridge was opened. Strong headwinds and heavy seas gave the cadets about twenty miles of rough going, but they made their way into the harbor without mishap.

It is gratifying to note that throughout the trip all concerned carried out their duties calmly and efficiently. A fine example of that the Belleville sea cadets are becoming good sailors.

City Traffic Law Must be Obeyed Says Police Chief

Chief of Police Walter Probert today issued a warning to automotists of the city and district that if the city traffic laws are not obeyed they will be compelled to the full extent of the law.

The chief said: "During the following convection of twenty-three drivers of various vehicles, summoned for breach of the city traffic by-law.

"This careless observance of the traffic laws has got to stop," the chief said. "Drivers caught through red lights are not only breaking the law but are instituting a menace to public safety. Pedestrians crossing the street intersections have their rights too. From now on, it means a fine. Warnings have stopped. The law must be obeyed by motorists — or else . . .

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 26 (CP) — Slight irregular trading tendencies were evident in quiet trading here today. A few industrials rose fractions in active but narrow trading. Base metals held tight. Golds and western oils showed a slightly easier trend.

Volume for the first hour was 371,000 shares, about 74,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Key issues were stronger in the industrials continuing the late recovery trend of yesterday's weak market.

Sherritt - Gordon was in demand and Normetal, Falconbridge and Pend Oreille rose in base metals.

Kerr Addison and Dome Mines slipped in the golds and base issues mixed. Gains and losses.

MOSCOW

The three Western envoys in Moscow are trying to get a renewed agreement with Prime Minister Stalin and the then Foreign Minister, V. M. Molotov, before the Soviet Congress adjourns April 30.

Their chief concern is that the agreement will be British-American-French ready to lift the blockade first and then talk about a single currency for the city.

Suspicion Privately Expressed

Berlin — (AP) — Some Western Allied sources privately expressed suspicion today that the three Russian position on the German problem was announced at this time in the lingering hope of blocking definite action on a separate West-German state.

These sources said the Soviets might have the idea that by lifting the blockade they could create a chance to press their old efforts to get a unified Germany under Communist control.

The informants noted that the Russian Council of Ministers' Tass news agency shortly after the war's end had opened a route to create a West German republic.

Anti-Communist Berlin newspapers said the Russians already have given Communists in the Ruhr pay rate yards and freight depots under their control for early resumption of inter-zone traffic. There was no official confirmation of those reports.

SHELLING OF SHIPS

"When the Chinese government decided to move to Canton, it is true a warning was issued about warships in the Yangtze. Nevertheless since that time the movements of our warships in the Yangtze have taken place with the full knowledge and consent of the National Government of China."

Purpose of Presences of Ships

Attlee said: "However, the ships at Shanghai and Nanking so as to be ready to evacuate British Nationals should circumstances necessary.

"When the incident took place to which I am about to refer, the Amethyst was proceeding on her lawful occasions and there was no other property constituted authority to whom application for movement were under an obligation to notify her intentions and she had they been in a position to do so."

In conformity with the decision to remain at Nanking, the British ships had been relieving one another at that port at regular intervals for some months past. On this occasion, however, after the passage of the Amethyst was to relieve the Consort at Nanking.

The Consort was due for relief but relief was postponed in view of a Communist ultimatum due to expire April 12 and which might have been followed by a crossing of the Yangtze.

Expiry of Ultimatum

"Only on April 19 was it learned that the final expiry of the ultimatum might lead to the crossing of the Yangtze by Communist forces on April 21.

"The flag officer decided with the British Ambassador that passage should be timed to allow the Amethyst to reach Nanking at least 24 hours before the expiry of the latest communicated ultimatum. Had there been no incident, the Amethyst should have reached Nanking on April 20.

"In the light of these facts the decision was taken by the flag officer and ready to lift the blockade first and then talk about a single currency for the city.

Council Votes to Keep County Home Property For Housing at Stormy Session

Veterans' housing for the county home property south of No. 2 highway weathered another storm of protest from minority group at city council Monday evening as there was a concerted move on the part of Alderman H. J. Allin, chairman of industries to have the property reserved for preferred industry.

The controversy squeak by which the veterans' housing emerged victorious with council lining up 7 to 4 to defeat the recommendation by Alderman Allin which called for the recommendation of two weeks ago authorizing the site for wartime housing to be rescinded.

And it was one of the stormiest council sessions held in some weeks as the council chambers were besieged by housing hungry veterans who demanded that premises made to them during war days be fulfilled.

Veterans' Delegation Heard

Max Matthews, president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, backed by a delegation of approximately 15 veterans who applauded almost every word spoken in favor of keeping the county home site.

Matthews in support of a letter urging that houses be built on the Pinnacle, Bridge and Dundas out the Canadian Pacific Railways owned property east of the city to the corner of the Bateline plant which could be used for industry.

"Remember the veterans who during the war put on the uniform and fought overseas and you might be able to sit in council to-night," he declared.

Other veterans supported the delegation's request in demanding additional housing, pointing out there was still a great need for houses "though with no children and with one child.

C.P.R.'s Viewpoint

But the industry minded did not see eye to eye with Mr. Collins, industrial agent for the Canadian Pacific Railways, outlined industrial requirements stating that his company had been approached to put the name of Belleville before prospective industry. Industrial way may be interested in establishing new factories.

He pointed out that his company had only industrial sites to offer at Belleville and that these were but few industrial areas owned by the city.

He submitted that the county home property south of the highway was a natural industrial area and should be retained as such. It was also pointed out that property adjacent to a railway should be reserved for industry.

Proper Sites For Industry

"Here you have a chance to capitalize on the future growth of Belleville," he said. "It is industry which provides for you and your children expanding outlets. Industrial property sites is the only way to secure wanted industry."

He warned, however, the city industry could not be expected to act overnight, but that the property should be retained for industry.

"Be patient," he said, "was not suitable for residential purposes as it was close to the railway and the through highway and was the safety of children to consider."

Mr. Matthews had an answer for the industrial sites proposed to be the highway, however, pointing out that in a few years it was expected the new bridge would be run north of the city.

Alderman Harvey W. Rollins, member of the industrial committee also added that the city did not realized more than he did the need for houses for the working man.

"But surely," he said. "We can have a little industry and still retain this property for industry."

He said the property was not suitable for residential construction, that surely other sites could be found on which to build the 100 houses.

Importance of Good Industry Stressed

Stressing the importance of a city having good industrial property, after a potential industry, the speaker stated that some years ago Belleville had lost the Canadian Manufacturing Co. because the needed property could not be acquired. He said that transaction had taken place two or three years ago this plant would have been sitting idle today," he said.

"Industry and housing went hand in hand", he said. In Belleville it had long been heard that boys and girls had to leave the city to obtain employment. In addition to housing the industrial mission had done a "great job", but he warned that there was still a great need for houses in the city.

"Let us sit down and iron out our differences," he concluded. "If so we can have the housing and also the preferred industry."

Site and Railway Track

Replying briefly Mr. Collins pointed out he was not opposed to housing but stressed the area in question was not suitable, that in a few years it would be a slum area owing to the proximity of the railway track. On the other hand industry would provide assurance of a diversity of employment, making for the opportunity of happiness.

Another speaker from the audience pointed out that it was against all practice to have an industrial centre in the heart of the city. Many industries were planned for the outskirts. He also stressed the need for housing, both for veterans and non-veterans.

Following the reading of a recommendation from the directors of the Chamber of Commerce asking the county home property be reserved for industry, Alderman Allin introduced the recommendation calling for the motion passed by council two weeks ago to be rescinded.

Signed by Seven Aldermen

The recommendation noted that the Belleville and District Planning Board, the Belleville Industrial Commission, Ontario Department of Planning and Development, Directors of Belleville Chamber of Commerce; the industrial departments of both the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. and the Belleville Property Owners had gone on record as favoring the county home property be retained for preferred industry and asked that the recommendation passed by council be rescinded, the site for wartime housing be rescinded.

The recommendation was signed by seven of the aldermen — J. Allin, Lattimer, Wilbur, Thomas, Clarke, Lummiss and Lloyd.

Alderman Duffy jumped to his feet and declared the city council was the basic reason for the opposition to housing. He said there was no need for the city where more than 25 houses could be built as a result of the last two property owners' meeting has been "riven" with members being "told" how to vote.

Industry Outside City

Mr. Duffy accused members of the industrial mission of the recommendation of sending up their minds on a matter before all the facts had been presented to council and of being swayed by "pressure" groups which had fought over the name of Belleville before prospective industry.

Such tactics were betraying fellow Bellevillians and also betraying veterans who fought overseas.

"Common sense planning would provide land for industries outside the city so that there would not be such industrial areas owning outside the city.

Alderman Allin, the basic reason for opposition to housing in Belleville," he said, "is influenced by people who want their pound of flesh. I cannot see how anyone faced with the acute housing need, can vote against housing."

Mayor D. L. Storey also referred to the urgent need of housing in the city. He said he had known from experience that the local under either property or would not, for the small return made, build houses in the city in accordance with wartime housing specifications he said. Mayor Storey urged that their proposal to build houses for Belleville citizens be accepted.

Homes Necessary For Workers

He referred to annexation proceedings to obtain sites for housing and pointed out that the council erred on with the veterans housing project in the Meadow Park. No veterans could be provided with homes, including the 102 houses which will be built as homes for their workers to rent. Also industries go to the community where housing is available and where suitable help was to be had.

"Unless industry has houses to live in, no industry of any kind will ever come and bring to Belleville" he said.

The Mayor felt that the action of council in declaring the county home property for housing had been supported by a majority of city taxpayers. The majority in support of the proposal were landlords, "and I do not think city council was elected to maintain high rents or to control landlords in any way."

The mayor pointed out that the county home had been purchased at a bargain price of $70,000 and $100,000 from the province. The government signed under the provincial grant was that the land be sold the property. If the property sold the land would have to be returned for industry it would be necessary for the city to put up the cash value of these lots. This would amount to $100,000.

Industrial Site Already Here

The city already had an industrial site with a railway siding which had cost the city considerable money. He did not feel the industry needed an additional 250 acres for industry as had been recommended by C.N.R. industrial heads.

The mayor claimed the district planning board had no authority in their own recommendation in asking the property be reserved for industry. The master plan recommended by the by this board showed the property zoned for home building.

In conclusion the mayor noted there was no definite information that a large industry was ready to locate on the property and stated Alderman Allin as chairman of industry was well aware of this.

Letter Quoted

He quoted a letter from the general manager of the firm in question who said they had in mind constructing and will be industries at one point, but at the moment was only collecting data on sites which might be available.

"There is nothing definite at the moment and if your city is able to have the property held in anticipation of our requirements, we suggest that you hold anything if you have an alternative for which you want to use it," the mayor quoted.

He felt that Alderman Allin understood the situation thoroughly.

Alderman Armstrong referred to the need for housing, pointing out there were 347 applications from veterans at the present moment.

He felt it would be a good business on the part of the city to accept the proposal of Central Mortgage and Housing to build 100 houses on the county home property. In this way the land could be developed without the need of debentures being issued. Central Mortgage and Housing would pay up to $600 per lot for land value and services and $300 grant per unit from the federal government. This would be repaid at ten per cent over a five year ten years.

Belleville cannot be wrong when something like 2,800 veterans' applications for land in Ontario last year," he said.

If council considered all angles, from the housing point of view, a promise of housing made to veterans, there would be only one answer — housing.

"I am afraid to allow this land to lie idle when we can develop it into but little cost to the city?" he asked.

Alderman Liddle stated he was a veteran with a family of seven seats at heart. He asked where else in the city could 100 veterans houses be constructed.

"I cannot see why Alderman Armstrong stated he felt the council had taken the attitude that in asking for property on which there was no opposition. Others in the city were there would not yet have been houses built. "Annexation proceedings would have been taken to secure suitable land," he advised reserving the county home property for industry and not developing property for housing, if necessary.

Mayor's Comment

"It's all right to say buy more land," commented Mayor Storey, "but to purchase land takes money, and all that money is taken from the pockets of houses."

Alderman Brown asked what had become of the recommendation to annex additional property in the area of the post office Parkwood and Churchill Heights.

Alderman Lummiss stated the previous speaker was misleading. He said council had been advised the annexation of the 84,000 and it had been suggested the matter of annexation be left to the electors. Council had voted against it.

Opposes Recommendation

Alderman Duffy fought against Alderman Allin's recommendation to rescind the motion approving the reservation of the county home property being voted on by council. He said he felt that the opposition could still kill the housing project by voting against the by-law.

The Vote

Council voted to allow the recommendation to go before the public. It voted against the recommendation 8 to 7.

Voting against the recommendation were Aldermen H. J. Allin, Lattimer, Wilbur, Thomas, Lummiss, Thomas and Wilbur. Voting against it were Mayor D. L. Storey, Aldermen H. A. Allen, Armstrong, Brown, Duffy, Hyde, Liddle and Lloyd.

Alderman Duffy carried his personal fight against Alderman Allin a bit further and presented a recommendation asking for his resignation as chairman of industry. Mr. Duffy claimed Alderman Allin had not been fulfilling his duty. Mr. Duffy claimed Alderman Allin had not been fulfilling his duty by not presenting true facts to council. He suggested the creation of a large industry on the county home site.

Mayor Storey ruled the first prerequisite of a committee chairman was membership on the council.

"If Alderman Duffy feels he can do a better job on the industrial commission than I, then let him make a motion," he declared.

Alderman Allin,

"It is men of the calibre of Alderman Duffy who have kept Belleville from becoming another Peterborough and Kingston have gone ahead to reach a population of 30,000.

No Opposition to Commission

He said nothing to which he was only opposed to Alderman Allin as chairman of the industrial commission stating he had done a "fine job". He said Alderman Allin alone had

"He would not vote to rescind 100 houses—houses were needed for veterans and for non-veterans," he said.

Alderman Duffy here took up his feud with Alderman Allin, claiming that Mr. Allin had voted for housing in the Pine Street area only as a means to assist in the acquiring of an industrial site. He said he felt the 102 veterans' homes had been sold to enable the industrial commission to get the 84,000 and that the payment in the purchase of the industrial site.

He accused Alderman Allin of not having been honest when he told council the city had lost a million dollar industry when it lost the Canada Metal property for housing.

Mayor Storey claimed it was not "according to Hoyle" for members of council to vote for or against a recommendation when they were not members of a committee.

To vote the county home property for industry would mean cutting off all chance of getting another 100 veterans' homes in the city, "Herchimer Ave. residents of Coleman to Holmes, and would oppose the action," he said.

Ald. Liddle Disagrees

Alderman Liddle disagreed with a previous statement by Alderman Allin that when the 163 veterans' homes were completed there would be adequate accommodation in the city. He said no one would want the accommodation that tenants of the new veterans' homes would vacate.

Alderman Armstrong pointed out there had been no accommodation in council last year to purchase additional property on the present site of the veterans' homes on Pine Street but that council had refused to give its proposition.

Alderman Thomas termed it regrettable that provision had not been made by previous council for industry, the time limit.

"If council last year felt that with the 84,000 for Pine it had been enough property taken 'into the city limits to provide for the immediate move to expropriate other property," he said.

"I cannot agree with Armstrong stated he felt the council had taken the attitude that in asking for property on which there was no opposition. Others in the city were there would not yet have been houses built. "Annexation proceedings would have been taken to secure suitable land," he said.

Alderman Lummiss also felt expropriation proceedings should have been taken to secure additional property for housing, if necessary.

Mayor's Comment

New Fire Truck Being Bought, Fire Protection Given Thurlow

The city will spend an estimated $40,000 for the removal of certain curbs and boulevards in the city and for the construction of new curbs and road surfaces, it was decided at city council last evening.

Council approved of a recommendation to the board of trustees to carry out the work and also for the laying of new pavements for two-year period.

Boulevards to be taken out in the program of street widening include that on the south side of Bridge Street East between Pinnacle and Church, on the east side of Pinnacle from McAnnany to Bridge; the north side of Station from Pinnacle to Canniffton Road and a short piece on the south side of Station from Foundry Street 150 east; both sides of Coleman to Holmes; from Coleman to Moira; both sides of Dundas from Front to Church St. and on the south side of Dundas from Church to John; the south side of Bridge from Church to John, four feet to be removed from the existing 12 foot boulevard, and a short piece on North Front Street in front of the Shell Oil service station.

The department of public works will also repair sidewalks in the city, while tenders will be called for the construction of new walks.

New Fire Truck to be Bought

Council voted to purchase a new LaFrance fire truck at a cost of $8,000. Price of the truck includes ladders and hose and other fire fighting equipment.

Council also voted to provide fire protection for the township of Thurlow by the signing of a retainer fee of $500 and $25 per hour for fire fighting within a distance of seven miles and $50 per hour outside the seven mile limits.

It was pointed out that the purpose of fire protection for the township was principally to prevent the spread of fire to other properties. A barn was recently burned before the equipment could reach the scene.

Authority was given to hire eight additional firemen to augment the present force when the new fire hall was opened early in May.

Building Restriction

A building restriction calling for residences of at least $7,000 value being erected on the property home sub-division north of the highway was approved. Residences must be constructed not nearer than 15 feet to the sidewalk and not less than 50 feet from the property lines on the side.

Price of the lots was set at $15 per foot frontage for lots on the north side of the road and $10 per foot frontage for other lots. Several lots in the subdivision were recommended sold to applicants, while a shallow lot on the corner of Dundas between the Alliance Tabernacle and Bateman's was sold to J. T. Hutchinson.

Council took no action on a recommendation that a public park and school clubs that a health unit be established, turning the matter over to the public council.

Incinerator Site

Council concurred in a recommendation from the Board of Health calling for a meeting to be named by the mayor to consider the site of an incinerator and was held in the Bridge Street Methodist church on Monday night Friday of last week.

The meeting taking the test fell short of that estimated by those in charge. Usually, fifty per cent of the population of a meeting is considered a fair average, but Monday night somewhat short of those figures.

8,000 Residents Take Free T.B Clinic Test

Approximately 8,000 city residents availed themselves of the opportunity to have themselves tested for tuberculosis through the medium of the free clinic held here last week. This number includes the students as well as the residential test.

The clinic was made available to the residents through the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association which financed the operation from funds derived from the sale of Christmas seals. The work was conducted by the Division of Tuberculosis Prevention of the Ontario Department of Health and was held in the Bridge Street Methodist church from Monday through Friday of last week.

The number taking the test fell short of that estimated by those in charge. Usually, fifty per cent of the population of a meeting is considered a fair average, but Monday night somewhat short of those figures.

King and Queen Observe Quiet Anniversary

London, April 26 — (AP) — King George and Queen Elizabeth celebrated their 26th wedding anniversary today.

The royal couple had a quiet family luncheon at Buckingham Palace where there were no great festivities.

The monarch still suffers from a circulatory ailment in his legs, but he walks a little every day, and yesterday he played golf for the first time.

The Queen, who was Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, seems to like her job well enough, but it was the possibility that she might some day become queen that made her think twice, according to intimates, when the then Duke of York was asking for her hand.

council take no immediate action on the request for the resignation of Councillor Legalt, switchboard operator at the city hall, Alderman Wilbur, chairman of the committee investigating matters recommended the resignation was out of order as no report had been made to council.

The father of the young man in question, who was present during the matter, stating his son had been asked to turn in the resignation effective prior to the council meeting, but had not turned in his resignation.

Speaking on the matter Alderman Lattimer, as chairman of the welfare committee, stated the administrator had told the committee that Gordon Legalt could not do the job. He had considered it best then asked to turn in the hour should be advised of his dismissal before he received the news "off the street."

Alderman Liddle came to the defence of the young man claiming that he had been hired as a telephone operator but had had several other jobs wished on him.

When the discussion was ruled out of order, Alderman Hyde withdrew his motion.

Council turned down a recommendation to revamp the formation of committees at the meetings on Thursday committees before council.

Alderman Brown in submitting the recommendation stated that the duties of the young man should be taken over during the night's meeting. He said that council not being familiar with the duties of the switchboard operator.

Alderman Lummiss, chairman of public utilities committee, said he was not aware the man had been suspended. He promised to investigate.

Trucks on Streets

Alderman Brown reported that tractors were damaging the asphalting city streets and urged an advertisement be placed in the local newspapers that the Federal Government. He was told by the mayor that the federal government would not accept the advice and that proceedings along this line were not necessary.

Council passed a by-law authorizing the Bridge Street Church for signs over-hanging the sidewalk. The licence fee was set at 25 cents per square foot of each area.

Alderman Duffy introduced a notice of motion indicating that he would recommend to the board and city clerk to sign an agreement between Central Mortgage and Housing for the construction of 100 rental houses, would be tabled at the next meeting.

CHILD FILM AUDIENCES

Children in regard to the film is the subject of an interesting psychological study in Britain at the hands of a film-making department established five years ago. Mary Field of the children's film department of Gaumont British and her associates formed a small planning group, using all kinds of film companies, nineteen of them, and worked in fourteen different countries and hence got a tremendous amount of variety of style and content into their films. Recently in a BBC broadcast she said that one of the first things to be learned is not to surprise their young audiences. She said, "children like to know well beforehand what's going to happen, so that they can have all the pleasure of anticipation and the satisfaction of knowing a great deal more than the characters on the screen."

The child audience is very logical, far more so than adults, she says, who accept the most staggering non sequiture with apparent complaisance.

Then too it is very clear that children have one of their great pleasures like adults in identifying themselves with the actors on the screen. "For this reason," says Miss Field, "a children's film must have young children in it. Besides liking to see boys and girls of their own age the children like to see younger children to whom they can be protective and older people, for whom also they can feel protective sympathy. In adolescents they have some interest as this is the age group next above theirs, but in ordinary adults they have practically no interest at all."

An interesting fact has been proven, she says. Children like to see and comment on what they see and have a perfect right to do so. Miss Field thinks that child films must be planned so as to allow for full and active participation on the part of the audience, that there must be plenty of action without dialogue and an ample number of silent scenes during which children can "talk" to each other about what has happened; what they think is going to happen and what they hope will happen. Her comment runs:

"If they have plenty of time for talk and for conjecture an audience of children will be ready and anxious to listen to any dialogue which is necessary for the development of character and of plot.

She says they not only attend closely but they remember and apply what they have heard. "They won't waste time listening to bad or unnecessary dialogue. They very rightly talk it down. A delightful thing about a children's audience is that it brings out such zest and vitality to its film going." Miss Field winds up by saying that "only children themselves can assess" the entertainment value of films.

FOR HEALTH'S SAKE

The passing of a man at the age of 70 years who left an estate of $8,291 in cash, all of it contained in his wage envelopes, which had never been opened during the period in which they were collected, from 1944 to 1948, attracted the attention of the editor of the Hamilton Spectator, who drew a lesson on the subject of peace of mind and activity. He said: "It seems logical to assume that he must have worked just for his health, as people said, but with this difference. It was his mental health, his peace of mind that mattered," comments the newspaperman.

"There are peculiar people who do just that. They keep on working because they have an ingrained fondness for it and take a deep pride in what they do, be their calling ever so humble. They could scarcely live and not work; life would have little savour left for them if they were idle. To them the important thing is to keep going, to be usefully employed rather than gainfully employed. They find their happiness in no other way, and money takes a lesser place in their lives.

"Eccentric they may be. But they help by their industry to store the world's hives with substance and they derive their own measure of contentment in doing so. They would loathe the active than writer as drones, even though they have nothing better to do with their wage envelopes than shove them unused into a bureau drawer.

"In a world that so misunderstands them, perhaps there is wisdom in their odd behaviour."

A TIME FOR VISIBILITY

Spring days. The top down on the convertible. Sun, wind, birds singing. A little road winding through the hills. But that's the trouble — it winds.

For how on earth is one to concentrate on the ball game, the interview with Congressman Blabb, the tapdancing Tweeny Twins, when one has to turn one's eyes from the television screen every now and then to see if there's a 10-ton truck coming around the curve?

It's had on a driver. All this expense to have a video set installed in the car and then one can't enjoy it properly. It's enough to make a man give up his car and stay at home where he won't lose any of the programs.

Or maybe, to put it differently, there's a time for television and a time for visibility. — Christian Science Monitor, Boston.

LANDLORD

I promised last fall,
Before southward they went,
Back I'd welcome them all
Without raising their rent.

"Don't worry," said I,
"As a landlord I'm one
Who will fresh paint supply
Through the months you are gone."

"As your landlord, on guard
Of your home I'll remain.
There'll be flowers in the yard
When you come north again."

Each apartment's complete.
There is nothing they'll lack.
Now there's joy on the street
For the martins are back.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

April 26th., 1929.

Dr. W. S. Dyer, son of the late Dr. W. P. Dyer of Albert College, will read one of the eleven geological parties to explore the geology of the province this summer. His territory will be Mattagami and Abitibi Rivers. He will be assisted by Mr. A. B. Crealock.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Yacht Club was held yesterday afternoon and there was a large attendance of enthusiastic members.

The following officers were elected: Commodore, Dr. A. D. Proctor; Secretary Treasurer, R. H. Martin; Sailing Committee, Commodore, Dr. A. D. Rathbun (chairman), G. K. Graham and A. Mowat. An endeavor will be made to form a canoe club in the city.

Daylight saving will come into effect on Sunday, April 28th. in some of the larger cities in Canada. Belleville will remain on standard time.

30 YEARS AGO

April 26th., 1919

"The Sheik" will be the attraction at Griffin's Opera House this evening.

What about Victoria Park? For the past year there has been only a temporary bridge entrance, neither rustic nor artistic. No time should be lost in preparing plans for a permanent structure and fixing up the park generally as a recreation place for the public. In its present state the park is not a good advertisement to strangers. Arrangements might be made for weekly band concerts. Zwick's island should also receive some attention; it could be made an attractive place for citizens to spend afternoons.

After the regular meeting of Court Moira I. O. F. last evening, a smoker was held and during the proceedings Bro. Charles Walters, financial secretary, and Bro. S. S. Finkle, recording secretary, were each presented with a handsome chair. Bro. Herity, Court Deputy, made the presentations.

40 YEARS AGO

April 26th., 1909

The ranks of the 15th. Battalion A. L. I. are about filled; there are only fifteen vacancies according to Lieut. Col. Thomas Stewart.

James Price, a stranger in the city, found his brother here after making a search of the city for him. The brother resides on McDonald Avenue and the two had not seen each other for twenty years. It was a happy re-union.

Mr. Sanford R. Burrows has returned home after visiting friends in New York City and Washington, D.C.

Mr. Frank Wallace, eldest son of Mr. Robert Wallace of this city, will please accept our congratulations on having received with honors the degree of B. A. at Queen's University.

50 YEARS AGO

April 26th., 1899

Mr. L. A. Appleby, County Gaoler, received a canvas fishing boat yesterday from Battle Creek, Mich., and is much admired by all who have seen it. The sitting capacity of the boat is 850 pounds.

Mr. Morley Sine, liverryman, recently purchased a fine pair of black horses for carriage driving.

The Y. M. C. A. rooms were crowded last evening with visitors who came to see the exhibits of the members of the Camera Club. The display was in every way a creditable one. The exhibit of Mr. Percy Upney took first prize; Mr. C. W. Good took second prize and Mr. D. Stewart won third prize.

Mr. Ezra Will Holton, an old Belleville boy, now of Quincy, Ill., is in the city been spending a few days in town, left today for Montreal.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Statistics from all over the continent indicate that the most dangerous hour for traffic is in the early evening between 7 and 8 p.m.

The two most reasonable explanations for this are that the light is fading at this hour, artificial lights are coming on; and people are tired.

It would be fair to include another and even more important factor. A good many people are in a bad temper at that hour. The vast majority of us go home around six p.m. in a fairly good humour, the day's work is done; rest and leisure and a good dinner await us. We may be tired, but we're happy.

But there are others in a different mood. Truck drivers and delivery men who have been frustrated all day by delays over which they had no control. Maybe they too would like to be going home with the majority of us, to a good supper and a night out. But here they are, fighting massed supper-time traffic, with another hour's work ahead of them before they can even think of heading back for the garage, let alone go home.

In the 7 to 8 p.m. traffic is another group of men — those who have been detained at the office or factory. It is usually at the end of the day that troubles pile up in bundles. By the time he looks up and goes out to the deserted parking lot for his car, he is in no fit condition to drive a car. His jaw is set. He smoulders. Thoughts of quitting the job boil in his mind. As he starts home in the gloaming, he has to meet the already mounting and joyous traffic of those starting early out for the evening. It is not cars alone that collide between 7 and 8 p.m. It is moods.

If driving a car were a mechanical job, there would be few accidents. But temperament is the inscalculable factor.

FACE FALSE PRETENCE CHARGES

Toronto, April 26 — (CP) — George Lee, of Montreal and his wife Kathleen were scheduled to appear in court here today on charges of false pretences involving some $3,000.

Believed to be a graduate in engineering of Glasgow University, Barr faces five charges which date back to June, 1946, and his wife is charges with three offences. Police said they purchased merchandise from stores and issued bogus cheques.

ESCAPES WITH LACERATIONS

Portland, Ore., April 25—(AP)—Mrs. Erna Aldredge, 65, escaped with ankle lacerations yesterday when she plunged from a high bridge window. She landed on a parked automobile, the steel top of which was bashed in about a foot deep.

"SMALLEST WOMAN" DIES

Waycross, Ga., April 26 — (AP) —Martina de la Cruz, 74-year-old midget billed as the "World's Smallest Woman," died here Sunday. She was 21 inches tall.

Mackenzie's Column:
Chinese War Creates Fresh Major Crisis

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The steam-roller offensive of the powerful Communist armies on has created a fresh major crisis in the now-not-so-cold-war of the Far East.

The western powers had scarcely finished signing the Atlantic Pact, to halt the communist drive across Europe, when Chinese dictatin Mao Tse-Tung forced the line of the mighty Yangtze. Thus almost overnight the west was confronted with another threat.

The weight of the attack had been shifted from the front defences to those in the rear.

The fall of Nanking in the Orient is much further away than was the drive on Europe. The present danger is less imminent, and in that sense the situation is perhaps not so critical. But now is with the west, just as it suddenly has turned against the nationalist forces of China.

Terribly Weak

It's idle to speculate on how much time must be involved in the Chinese conflict.

The Nationalists' most powerful ally, the United States, withdrew from the north — the Yangtze — has been stunned. Their capital of Nanking has been occupied by the enemy. More than a million Red troops are already for the drive southward through China.

What other estimate can be made than that the Nationalist situation is desperate? Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has assigned the defense of key zones as the reds advance. Many of those zones with their troops are in the hands of war lords and, if they remain loyal to Chiang, the Nationalist defense might give the communists a surprise.

Powerful Base

What we can see clearly enough is that the conquest of China would give communism a powerful base from which to work on all Asia. Neighboring India would be the next great country to come under domination and it might be that she would provide a base from which communism couldn't surmount. The Hindus and Moslems of the Indian peninsula are intensely religious and communism and religion can't be mixed.

Britain finds herself in an uncomfortable position as the result of the communist drive. She has many interests in China, including her Hong Kong colony. Hong Kong on the south coast. The Admiralty is said to be sending two aircraft carriers and a group of submarines to join the British Pacific fleet. At present there are two cruisers, eight destroyers and four sloops based at Hong Kong but they have no air cover.

This is a normal strengthening of forces under the circumstances and it's safe to take it for granted that British Labor has the intention of keeping out of trouble if she can.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PROGRESS THROUGH PROTEST

I once read that "crying babies get the most attention." Their point was plain. Yet we think history we learn that all progress comes by the way of protest. The protest of a people is evidence that all is not well and ought to be corrected. Often it is a long process, but worth it.

It is unfortunate that the galley slave system brought an end to it. As Jesus said, the people upon their mission.

We only have justice in this world for so long as we protest against all injustice. The single group of rulers can long last when the protests of the governed are ignored. Protests are potent in a democracy for its government is responsive to them. Even when high positions being those whom the people have put upon

We only have justice in this world for so long as we protest against all injustice. The single group of rulers can long last when the protests of the governed are ignored. Protests are potent in a democracy for its government is responsive to them. Even when high positions being those whom the people have put upon their mission.

Protest is the common people who run the world. They are in the great majority, so that when protests test, things happen, and what happens is progress

Israel Facing Problem of How To Stay Neutral

BY JAMES M. LONG

Tel Aviv, April 26 (AP)—Tough Little Israel, still in the swaddling clothes of infant statehood, is facing her first full-grown world problem—and doesn't like it.

That problem is how to stay neutral in the cold war between east and west, or which side to pick.

Israel would not like to have to choose. She would rather steer a neutral middle course, at least for the immediately future years in which she must absorb immigrants quickly.

The issue is expected here to come to its first hard moment of choice when, now that the North Atlantic pact is signed, attention turns to firm proposals for a Mediterranean pact.

Italy probably would be in such an alliance, as a bridging member between the North Atlantic and Mediterranean pact countries. Greece likely would be in; Turkey almost certainly; Egypt possible.

And Israel, the little state with the big army at the doorway to the oil wealth, the battlefields and the air bases of the middle east, could invite a huge invitation. It makes her choice.

Most people here think they know what that choice would be. They point out that the Communist vote in Israel's first election was less than five per cent.

But there will be sudden factors in the ultimate decision of more far-reaching importance than the division of voters between Communist and non-Communist parties.

Two such factors are the United States dislike of the eastern European Jewish immigrant.

Israel must have dollar credits for her essential imports.

Russia is not offering financial assistance. But she has cut off the stream of Jewish immigrants from almost all eastern Europe. (None ever was allowed to come from Russia itself.) What effect has their immigration is allowed to resume probably will depend on what Moscow thinks of Israel's future international position.

23 Crew Members Found Guilty of Neglect of Duty

Capetown, April 26 — (CP) — A magistrate found 23 crew members of the Canadian freighter Cawdor guilty of neglect of duty Monday and gave four of them suspended sentences of seven days in jail on condition they are not convicted of a similar offence during the next three months. The 19 others were found guilty, of the 23 who went on trial on charges brought under the British Merchant Shipping Acts, were cautioned and dismissed by Magistrate A. S. Bird.

The five men acquitted were members of the stewards and galley staff who were found to have continued to carry out their duties after the rest of the crew joined the strike called by the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.).

After reading his verdicts Magistrate Bird told the seamen: "Your striking makes a very awkward for port authorities and police who have had to bring you to court. I suggest it all sincerity that you reconsider your position and take your ship back to Canada.

Meanwhile, the crew of the Cumberland County, another Canadian ship, also refused to dock the ship here today after the crew signed an agreement that in the event they decided to strike while in port, they would help move their ship out of the way of other ships.

WEDDINGS

PAYNE—TRIPP

The United Church, Frankford, was the scene on Saturday, April 23, at 2.30 p.m., of a pretty wedding when Faye Rosena Tripp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tripp was united in marriage to Lloyd Payne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Munroe Payne, of Glace Bay, N.S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payne, before an altar banked with snapdragons and ferns, the Reverend H. H. Lackey officiating.

The wedding music was rendered by Miss Marjorie Spencer and Mrs. Gerald Cherry, of Belleville, sang during the signing of the register. "I Love You Truly" and before the ceremony, "Because."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in her long bridal gown of white satin, with the full length heirloom veil of her grandmother, caught with a crescent of red roses. She carried a white Bible and red roses.

Miss Shirley Sharpe was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of blue slipper satin with finger-tip veil and carried a nosegay of red and white tulips.

Mr. Jack Hughes of Frankford, was groomsman, and the ushers were, Mr. Earle Rogers and Mr. Kent Rogers.

The reception was held later at the Rose Tavern Hall, which was profusely decorated with pink and white streamers, and white wedding bells and snapdragons, where the bride's mother, garbed in a green gabardine suit with brown accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses, received the many guests, approximately 100.

The toast to the bride was given by G. N. Spencer, of Frankford, a friend of the family.

For the honeymoon trip to Oshawa, and points east, the bride chose a mulberry colored gabardine suit with grey accessories.

Out-of-town guests were from Wellington, Madoc, Toronto, Smithfield, Belleville, Campbellford and Shannonville.

Upon their return they will reside in Frankford.

BAYSIDE

Wesley W.A. Holds Enjoyable Social Evening

The Woman's Association of Wesley United Church sponsored a very successful social evening, at Bayside schoolhouse on Thursday evening last. There was a splendid representation from the community in attendance, including a number from outlying districts. The Rev. A. C. McCallum presided and in a few preliminary remarks extended a cordial welcome to all present. He then called on Mrs. Orchard Todd to lead in community singing, which was heartily entered into by all.

Mrs. A. E. Downey acted as accompanist. The next number on the program, as follows: solos by Barbara Christopher and Nancy Matthew; pianoforte selections by Barbara Stewart, Robert Lough and Bruce Reid. Mr. Tissot gave a number of songs with his own accompaniment. Solos by Mrs. Mr. Floyd Wood, and Mr. Palmateer, also concertinetti instrumental selections on the violin and guitar. All these items were well received.

Mr. John Stewart conducted a quiz contest. Miss Clara Wilson and Mr. Matthew were the prize winners.

The ladies afterwards served refreshments and all returned home having spent a very pleasant social evening.

Friends Honor Bride to-be With Shower

A miscellaneous shower was held for Miss Fyern Conger at her apartment, 295 John Street, Friday evening last by the girls in the neighborhood as a surprise.

Among the guests were Misses Nellie and Ethel Barrett and Mrs. Charles Conger, mother of the bride-to-be.

The room was nicely decorated with pink and white streamers, with blue and yellow candy baskets hanging around the room. A pink and white shower bell was used in the centre of the table holding the gifts.

The evening was spent in playing euchre. The lone hands and ladies' first was won by Miss Nellie Barrett and the ladies' low prize, was won by Miss Doris Brown.

Muriel Robinson, Bertha Dafoe, Doris Brown, Jean Tucker, and Mrs. Mona Hodgson assisted in reading poems written by Mrs. Margaret Duncan.

The address in poetry was read by Doris Brown.

The bride-to-be thanked her friends for the lovely gifts received. She also received a scrap book of portraits of the bride, made up by Mona Hodgson and Doris Brown. Refreshments were served.

For the remainder of the evening Mrs. Dunnett entertained the girls by telling fortunes.

FRANKFORD

Ladies Night Banquet Held By Masons

Frankford—An estimated one hundred and eighty attended the annual Masonic Ladies' Night banquet in Frankford Community Memorial Hall, Thursday night. Karl Austin of Wooler, acted as toastmaster for the evening. A toast to the ladies was proposed by Neil Nelson of Wooler, and Mr. O. B. Newton of Trenton, responded.

Mr. Newton outlined the workings of the Grand Lodge in an interesting talk. Preston Chase of Frankford, proposed a toast to the ladies, to which Mrs. Raymond Rowe responded.

Mrs. Albert Caskey was called on, and thanked for the fine banquet which she and the ladies of the Anglican Guild had prepared. Toastmaster Karl Austin then proposed the toast to The King.

Following the banquet, the members enjoyed very much, the program, "Minstrel Melodies" presented by the Young Adult Group of Campbellford.

Mrs. M. Clazie Addresses Bridge St. Y.P.U.

The Young People's Union of Bridge Street United Church was privileged to have as guest speaker, at their recent meeting, Mrs. M. Clazie, whose subject was: Miss N. Morley.

Mrs. Clazie spoke on her experiences in Japan which were listened to interestingly. She also showed many curios. Mrs. D. Lloyd expressed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Clazie, on behalf of the young people for her kindness in coming to speak to them.

Preceding the speaker's address, there was a short business period, which was followed by a sing-song, directed by Miss Lorraine Baker, Secretary. A devotional service under the leadership of Miss Ruth Ross, assisted by Miss B. Alcorn.

Following a short recreational period, refreshments were served and the meeting closed with "Taps".

Christening Ceremony

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McCoy, Bellevue, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Maines, Brighton and great granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Street of Brighton, was baptized at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning, April 19. The Rev. D. C. Ames officiated. The child received the name of Rosemary Eileen.

Following the service dinner was served at the home of the parents, where the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Maines, of Brighton, and Mr. and Mrs. John Munro, Hillier.

POINT ANNE

Ladies Aid Holds White Elephant Tea

Point Anne—In spite of bad weather there was a good attendance at the White Elephant tea held on Friday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Point Anne United Church.

Following a program of musical numbers by Mrs. Clinton Macdonald, Mr. Dean Whalen of Belleville; Mrs. Albert Moorman, Mrs. W. Insley, Little Linda Whitehead and Little Joan Dexter, of Point Anne, and readings by Mrs. Sinclair of Belleville, a bountiful tea was served.

The basket containing the white elephants was passed causing much laughter and a social hour was enjoyed.

WOULD TEACH SWIMMING

Because of losses in the Second World War of servicemen unable to swim, efforts have been made in several countries to introduce compulsory swimming courses in schools.

TEAS FILLED IN

Teas as a social function were originated by the Duchess of Bedford, in the 19th century, to fill in the long gap between breakfast and late dinner.

SHANNONVILLE

Shannonville—Mr. Ernest Davis of Bancroft, was a recent guest of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Johnson, and Mrs. Johnson and daughter, Linda.

The Ladies' Guild of Holy Trinity Anglican church held a very successful home cooking sale on the Market Square last Saturday morning. The members report a fair bad been sold by 10.30.

Saturday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian were, Miss Dorothy Wiley of Belleville and Mr. Paul Hudson and Mrs. John Merkley of Ottawa.

John and Paul are former Albert College students.

Miss Shirley Vesterfelt, of Milltown, has returned home after spending her Easter holidays with Mrs. Robertson of Rostin.

The Teacher Training classes under the auspices of the local United Church was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Uens in Milltown, and Monday evening at the home of Mr. George McFarlane in Malin. This week will conclude these classes which have been held the past three weeks.

Evening services in the United Church are now being held at 8 p.m., for the summer months. The first session of a communicants' class was held prior to the service, Rev. A. W. Loughead spoke on the subject of "The Last Forty Days of Jesus' Stay on Earth" and chose his text from the 24th chapter of Luke.

Mr. Ed. Uens has returned home from the Belleville General Hospital, after his recent operation.

Leshchenko Will Be Deported Says Minister

Winnipeg, April 26 (CP)—Deportation to Russian territory of Dimitry Leshchenko, self-confessed Soviet spy, it was reported here Monday would remove but one of a number of espionage agents operating in Canada under orders from the U.S.S.R.

Leshchenko's deportation order was announced in Ottawa by Justice Minister Garson. The 36-year-old Calgary bag factory worker was arrested last Tuesday by RCMP and army intelligence officers on charges of having entered Canada by misrepresentation.

He confessed to having operated as a Russian spy in the British zone of Germany and that he had entered Canada as a Latvian displaced person following instructions from his superiors to join the intelligence service of some democratic country.

The Winnipeg Free Press published a front page story saying that a displaced person in the Russian secret police had been operating in Winnipeg until a few weeks ago.

The Free Press, which did not give the source of its information said the informant was linked to the suspected Red agent at the railway station following his arrival in Winnipeg.

The man was reported to have been disguised as a Greek Orthodox Priest and the former D.P. said, had connections with the German Communist party at Buchofz.

The Free Press' informant was reported to have said: "This priest agent of the Russian Secret police left Winnipeg as soon as he had been discovered by the D.P. police official I have told you about."

Leschenko, meanwhile was held pending return to the British zone of Germany, where he will be turned over to Russian officials for return to Russia.

Police officials would not confirm they feared he might try to take his own life in preference to returning to Russia as an unsuccessful spy. However, they were vigilant in case any such attempt should be made.

Steel Workers Are Going After Extra $5,000,000

Toronto, April 26 (CT)—Canadian steel workers are going after an extra $5,000,000 in wages this year from the three big Canadian primary steel plants, C. H. Millard, National Director of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) said Monday.

He released the terms of a proposed agreement with the Steel Company of Canada, providing for a wage increase of 10 cents an hour and a four week —four hours less than the Hamilton plant's employees now work.

If all the union will "insist" on the same terms with the rest of the "big three"—Dominion Steel and Coal at Sydney, N.S. and Algoma Steel at Sault Ste. Marie.

The proposals followed negotiations between the union, the company and the Ontario Labor Department which began after union-company wage talks failed to produce an agreement.

The proposed increase and shorter working hours are retroactive to April 1.

Also to be considered Wednesday by the union is a collective bargaining agreement, providing union-security and grievance-procedure clauses.

Two additional statutory holidays with pay are provided. If accepted by the union, members now will get an extra day for every year of service up to a maximum of three weeks annual holidays for workers with 25 years service.

"If the tentative settlement is approved and put into effect at the big three plants it will add approximately $5,000,000 a year to the wages of the workers in the primary steel industry," Mr. Millard said. "Agreements in primary steel have usually set a pattern for a number of secondary steel plants as well. Settlements in other industries will be affected also.

TOUGH JOB

Toronto, April 26 — (CP) Canada's biggest plate-glass window was too big — by an eighth of an inch.

Twenty-four glaziers spent 8½ hours Sunday wrestling the 16½ by 11½-foot pane into place in a Yonge Street rug company window. They held the two-storey glass while cutters trimmed off the eighth.

$8,000,000 Estimate of Cost Of Repair Job to White House

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 26 (CP)—Latest estimate of the cost of the White House repair job is $8,000,000 and it has a few folks asking an almost unheard-of question:

How about building a new White House instead?

Representative Clarence Cannon (Dem. Mo.) is pushing the idea. Even when renovated, he says, the 150-year-old home of the presidents "might crack like an egg" at any time.

Lorenzo Winslow, White House architect, says things aren't nearly as bad. The sandstone outer walls, four feet thick at the base and about 30 inches at the top, will stand for centuries once he rebuilds the inside of the structure, Winslow insists.

There is some newspaper backing for the suggestion.

"The only arguments we've heard against the Cannon proposal," the Washington Times-Herald said in an editorial, "are the usual sentimental screams about destroying the 'ole home-stead.'

"Don't wipe out this historical monument,' they cry . . . well the truth of the matter is that the present White House looks no more like it did when it was first built than Washington of today looks like the muddy little town congress moved into when this city first became the capital of the nation."

The repair job, backed by sentimental public support despite the enormous cost, has been under way for four years.

The repair job includes complete fireproofing, new floors of concrete and steel, deeping of the foundation and rebuilding of interior walls. In contrast to the expected $8,000,000 cost is the unofficial estimate that a brand new White House could be built for only $2,000,000.

Cannon says, though, that cost is not the "main consideration." He does not suggest that the issue be decided hurriedly out waste progress to spend $150,000 to hire architects and engineers to go into the problem thoroughly.

INQUEST VERDICT

Wallace Kent testified he had "plenty" of evidence for divorce but not enough to use it. He said she would not consent because divorce was against her principles.

Ralph Kent testified that an assault charge once had been laid against his father. Mr. McKay said he recalled that Mrs. Kent had withdrawn it.

Ralph said that when he was married "father wouldn't ride to my wedding with my mother."

The sons testified they went to their father last February and suggested a settlement of differences.

Ralph said his father "got mad" at Wallace. When they were leaving, Ralph testified, his father shouted: "I'll finish it and finish it proper." Later in the hearing, Clarence Kent vehemently denied making the remark.

All Suggestions Denied

Crown Attorney McKay snapped questions at Clarence Kent when he testified: "Do you deny having broken her ribs! Did you burn anything in the stove that had to do with your wife's death? Did you throttle your wife on March 27?"

Kent flatly denied all suggestions he had anything to do with his wife's death.

"I never thought she would do what she did do," he said. "It was as big a surprise to me as anybody else."

Dr. J. D. Jackson, family physician, said Mrs. Kent had suffered from arthritis, a stomach condition and, near the time of her death, from intestinal influenza.

He also believed the woman's nerves were upset and had been for a considerable time. He said there had been an antagonism between the husband and wife for as long as he had known them—about 12 years.

Russian-Born Tips off Police On Leshchenko

Calgary, April 26 — (CP) — Russian-born Nick Karaban of Calgary disclosed that he tipped off the R. C. M. P. that Dimitry Leschenko was a former Russian army officer. He said he did it "because I like Canada."

Karaban returned to Calgary Sunday night from Winnipeg, where he appeared as a corroborating witness for the R. C. M. P. against Leshchenko, now facing deportation from Canada for entering the Dominion "by misrepresentation."

However, Karaban said that when he gave his information to police, he found that they already had the Russian sky under surveillance.

A short, powerful man who hauls heavy bins about the egg drying plant where he is employed here, Karaban said he was born in Russia and moved to the Ukraine as a youngster. When the Germans overran his country in 1940, he was taken prisoner and sent to a labor camp.

Karaban said he met Leshchenko while they were coming to this country as displaced persons from Germany. They worked together on a railway section gang near Banff, Alta., and later roomed together for a time.

"If Leshchenko talked a lot about Russia when we were together," Karaban said, "I did not like this because he liked Russia too much. I like Canada. It is a free country, while Russia and Germany are not. So I went to the police."

CANADA PRODUCES GOLD FOR ALL THE WORLD

Canada, world's second largest producer of gold, exports more than ninety-five percent of her product—an important contribution to the world supply of this universal medium of international exchange.

Why Seagram's sells Canada first

This is an adaptation of one of a series of advertisements which, for the past two years, The House of Seagram has published in magazines and newspapers printed in many languages and countries throughout the world. These advertisements feature various Canadian products—lumber, salmon, furs, nickel, apples, plywood and many others.

One out of every three dollars we Canadians earn comes to us as a result of foreign trade. This campaign is designed to help all Canadian industries and, consequently, to help put money in the pockets of every Canadian citizen.

Nature has endowed our country with an almost limitless supply of valuable resources. Properly used and converted to manufactured goods, these resources can carry our nation to unprecedented greatness. But first, the peoples of other lands must learn of the prestige and quality of Canadian products.

• • •

The House of Seagram believes that it is in the interest of every Canadian manufacturer to help the sale of all Canadian products in foreign markets. It is in this spirit that these advertisements are being produced and published throughout the world.

Prime Minister And Diefenbaker Clash in House

Ottawa, April 26 (CP)—A brief heated exchange between Prime Minister St. Laurent and John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) marked the passage in the Commons Monday of a bill providing for the appointment of six additional judges to the Quebec Superior Court.

Mr. Diefenbaker charged that bureaucrats have taken over many of the powers of the courts. Mr. St. Laurent said that to charge there was a large number of bureaucratic courts was to "make an imputation on our democracy that is not warranted."

Mr. Diefenbaker supported the bill which will become effective as soon as an enabling act, passed at the last session of the Quebec legislature, is proclaimed. A strong judiciary was needed to protect the rights of individuals against the invasion of bureaucracy.

Too often, said Mr. Diefenbaker, decisions were made by cabinet ministers instead of by the courts. Unless there was appeal to the courts, the individual felt he had not received justice.

He asked for assurances from the government that powers of bureaucracy would be reduced if not entirely eliminated. Too often decisions were made by boards where prejudice, rumor and hearsay evidence played their part.

Mr. St. Laurent interjected that he did not plan to have the "broad allegations go unchallenged."

The government, said the Prime Minister, had established the income-tax appeal board to hear appeals against income tax assess.

"When he talks about bureaucratic courts, I don't know what he is talking about," he said.

There were rental courts established to deal with rent controls which the provinces refused to take over, Mr. Diefenbaker's imputation was not warranted.

Old Country Letter:

British Govt. Approaching Crucial Showdown With Labor on Wages

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 26 (CP)—The British government, committed to a policy of stabilization, is fast approaching a crucial showdown with labor on the vital issue of wages.

And on the outcome may well depend the course of Britain's recovery program.

Government leaders have warned repeatedly that unless the line was held on the pay packet as well as on prices end profits there might well be economic disaster.

Labor has generally gone along with the government program. But during the last year there have been increasing rumblings of unrest within its ranks.

Budget Blues

Sir Stafford Cripp's recent budget raised prices on butter, meat, cheese, margarine and gave the working-man only a penny off his pint of ale. This cannot go on, Labor leaders say.

The question is being brought to a head by the National Union of Railway-men, 460,000 strong. Its long-pending appeal for a 12s 6d. ($2.50) weekly increase recently was turned down by a tribunal.

Tomorrow an N.U.R. deputation will face Labor Minister George Isaacs and his advisers across the conference table. There undoubtedly will be blunt talking.

The railway-men's deputation has been instructed to emphasize to the government "the dissatisfaction which exists in the industry and to stress the difficulty of maintaining industrial peace and the disastrous effect which failure to do so would have on the national economy."

Passing the Buck

In handing the ball to the government, they are putting it on the spot. Whatever the decision of the railway staff of the National Tribunal, which rejected the application for a wage increase, is regarded as binding.

If the government's hand can be forced it may set a precedent for other labor claims for higher wages.

Miners' Vacations

Another labor question currently in the news is that of annual holidays with pay for Britain's 726,000 coal miners. The National Reference Tribunal for the coal mining industry has just turned down a claim by miners for two weeks' holiday with pay in addition to the six statutory holiday's for which miners now are paid.

The miners already get one week's holiday with pay.

Whether the miners will accept the tribunal's ruling without a murmur of outcry it further remains to be seen.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District— The April meeting of the White's Woman's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Sandercock, and Mrs. James Sandercock, on Thursday afternoon, with a good attendance of members and five visitors. In the absence of the pianist, Mrs. C. Ketcheson, acted in that capacity. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Glen Meyers. Mrs. H. I. Mooney took charge of the worship service.

Delegates for the W.A. convention at Grace Church, Trenton, were named. "Thank-you cards" were received from Mrs. Case-well, Mrs. Acker and Mr. W. H. May. The W.A. decided to give one half of the cost of repairing the stoop at White's Church, also communion expenses. It was decided that a basket of fruit be sent to Mr. Rowe, Burnt who has been confined to his bed for some time. Mrs. Walter Jones made a birthday donation and "Happy Birthday" was sung.

Mrs. E. Curtis took charge of the program, Readings "The New Hat," "Don't Wait" and "Bobbies" were given by Mrs. Bill Mann; Mrs. Ernest Pitcher, Mrs. R. Ketcheson. An old fashioned flower contest was enjoyed with Mrs. Meyers and Mrs. Flower tieing for the prize, Mrs. Meyers won a lovely hand-made apron.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses, and their assistants, and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Miss Craig of Toronto, was guest speaker at a special meeting of the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Glen Meyers. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon to a good attendance of members and visitors. Miss Craig spoke on "Personality and Dress" and gave her hearers many good ideas, and pointers on how to take to practice during the year. Mrs. John Reid, the president, moved a vote of thanks to Miss Craig for her splendid address.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rush or Stoney Creek, were last Saturday tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones were Tuesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Curtis of Johnstown.

Mrs. F. Rush, and Miss Mary Rush, were Tuesday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Jeffery of Aiken's District.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Ketcheson attended the funeral of Mr. John Harry Redner, on Saturday afternoon in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Westover of Bayside were Sunday evening callers of Mrs. Sarah Acker.

Berlin —(AP)— Two Russian-sector German policemen yesterday were sentenced to a year in prison for letting hold-up men steal their pistols.

The court, which found the pair had surrendered their guns to four armed bandits, reminded the policemen sternly that they had the task of "protecting the new democracy."

New York — (CP) — That temper-testing character, "Hello" will be on the way out if the New York Telephone Company has its way.

The company yesterday began distribution of thousands of blotters showing a picture of a masked man at the telephone and the caption: "Who is "Hello"?"

The blotters also bore a message saying "Hello" means little over the telephone . . . A grunt, while not so polite, would serve the purpose. This is the time that would be saved if all telephone users answered: 'Mr. Smith' or simply, 'Smith'."

The company said the usual opening gambit of "Hello" wasted 6½ seconds and caused thousands of busy signals and edgy tempers.

Delaware, O. — (AP) A cow vaccinated Veterinarian W. R. Reed in a strange barnyard accident yesterday.

Today Dr. Reed was being treated for reaction to an overdose of brucellosis (undulant fever) vaccine — 25 times the normal dosage for a human.

Here's what happened:

As Dr. Reed prepared to inoculate the cow on the Ross Smouse farm near here, the cow kicked against the veterinarian.

The needle of his vaccine-loaded syringe pierced the palm of his hand. Before he could remove the needle, bossy backed again and it was plunged deeper. Dr. Reed got the full injection.

MADOC

Madoc—Mr. Ezra Smith, of Arnprior, spent the weekend with his daughter Mrs. Jack Smith and Mrs. Smith.

Miss Doris Broad of the Parkdale Collegiate staff returned to Toronto on Sunday after spending the Easter holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Broad.

Mr. Allan Ellis, of New York, has been spending a few days with Miss Mary Ann Ellis and other relatives in Madoc.

Miss Jennie Aylesworth of Wellington, Prince Edward Co., spent Sunday with Mrs. Sam Rollins.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wellman, of Peterborough, spent Sunday with relatives in Madoc and attended the funeral of the late William McMechan.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Allan, of Wellington, Prince Edward Co., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Field Allan.

Mr. Jack Allan of Campbellford, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Allan.

New Political Ammunition Will be Used in Election

Ottawa, April 26 (CP) — A bulging packsack of new political ammunition will be toted by the federal election by the Liberal and export trade.

Measures passed at the current session of parliament—or to be jammed through before dissolution later this week—hand out largesse or expectations to various groups of ballot-wielding citizens.

Opposition parties will be carrying new weapons, too, for the campaign that may end at the polls June 27.

The Progressive Conservatives have a new leader in George Drew and a refurbished platform.

But the government has the edge on them all in having been able to enact ideas into benefits that will be felt by the electors before they mark their ballots.

Most potent weapon of this kind probably will be the budget, with its tax reductions reaching into every family in the land.

Two other measures—now embarked on a swift passage through parliament—call for higher rates of family allowances for larger families and increased aid for old-age pensioners.

Extension Will Help

Extension of rental controls, favored by the great body of Canadians who do not own their own homes, was passed at the current session of parliament.

For the farmers, the government put through at this session a measure to let them establish boards to control the marketing of their products in interprovincial and export trade.

Outside parliament itself, the government has taken a number of steps that—deliberately or otherwise—will have an element of political payoff.

One of these is last December's appointment of the Royal Commission on Transportation, which has been taking the heat off the government on the hot issue of freight rates. The Commission starts hearings early next month and will run well beyond the campaign.

Also calculated to soften attacks on the government — on radio and television policies — is establishment of the "omnibus" Royal Commission on Culture.

A fortuitous circumstance for the administration, too, is last week's judgment of the Board of Transport Commissioners ordering the removal of the mountain differential freight rate on some basis over the Rockies—a hard-fought issue in British Columbia. While the Board is strictly a non-political body, Liberal politicians say its verdict will help the Liberals immensely.

20TH PARLIAMENT

Mr. St. Laurent said that since he took over the prime ministership last November from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King he has felt that the people "should have the earliest practicable opportunity to pronounce upon that change."

Survived Four Votes

"Furthermore," he said, "all political parties have, during the present session, moved votes of want of confidence in the administration, and presumably have indicated thereby that they do not wish the present government to carry on any longer than is absolute necessary, without a renewal of its mandate."

The government handily survived four confidence votes on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, read at the opening of the session Jan. 26. Two more non-confidence motions were moved by the Progressive Conservatives and the C.C.F. during the budget debate and will be voted on before the debate is concluded.

Mr. St. Laurent practically challenged the opposition parties to bring about a vote on the motion before the government goes to the country. He asked members to conclude the debate today. Failing that, would insist on a vote on the motions and would open the way for passage of the budget resolutions providing for the tax reductions announced by Finance Minister Abbott in his budget speech March 22.

There was immediate reaction from opposition benches when the cheering that marked the conclusion of Mr. St. Laurent's announcement died down.

Gordon Graydon, acting Progressive Conservative leader, declared members of his party were "gleeful" and said the government, facing a want-of-confidence vote in the House, had been "chased to the people."

Welcomed Reference to People

Hazen Argue, C.C.F. leader, said the people of all Canada — including Newfoundland—have the right to elect representatives. He urged they would "choose wisely, progressively and well."

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said he had hoped parliament would complete its sessional business before the calling of an election, but nevertheless welcomed the reference to the people.

Standing in the 245-seat chamber now is:

Liberals, 124; Progressive Conservatives, 69; C.C.F. 32; Social Credit, 12; others, 7; vacant one.

Under the 1947 redistribution act which becomes effective with the general election, Commons membership will be raised to 262, including seven members from Newfoundland.

Mr. St. Laurent indicated that he will appeal to the electorate on five main issues:

1. The government's action in bringing Newfoundland into Confederation as a 10th province.

2. The government's support of the Atlantic security pact.

3. The government's extension of domestic rent and certain other controls.

4. The government's 1949-50 tax-reducing budget.

5. The cabinet personnel, greatly changed since the last general election in June, 1945.

Many Reasons for Election

He recalled that the life of parliament does not expire before August, 1950, but said there are a "good many reasons" why an election should be held before next year.

When he took over the Prime Ministership from Mr. King, who is retiring from political life at the end of this parliament, the union negotiations with Newfoundland were under way and discussions on the Atlantic Pact were started.

Once the Newfoundland agreement was signed, providing for union March 31, it was necessary to call a session of parliament to approve the agreement. The government also felt it was essential to deal with control legislation due to expire March 31.

"It was also felt by the government that the people of Canada would expect to have the budget presented at an early date, and it was the desire of the government, before submitting the signature of Canada to the North Atlantic Treaty, to secure the approval of parliament to the principles underlying that treaty," he said.

"All these essential steps now have been taken.

"The union with Newfoundland now has been completed; the North Atlantic Treaty has been signed; the budget has been presented the estimates for the current fiscal year have been before parliament and the public for several weeks.

"My colleagues and I have reached the conclusion that no important public interest would suffer if the rest of the business forecast for the present session of parliament should be postponed until later this year.

Speeches Tinged by Approach

"It is pretty evident also that until a general election is held it will be difficult for honorable members on both sides of the House not to give a good deal of attention to the forthcoming election, and it would probably not be an experience tinged by some of the debates in the House have already become tinged by the approach of an election campaign.

He said members will be asked to pass the budget, a bill amending old-age pensions legislation, a bill providing for the construction of oil-pipe lines in Northern Canada, and to vote enough money to carry the administration through until a new parliament can be convened.

The House will be asked to forego its half-holiday Wednesday and hold three sitting a day from Thursday until dissolution. He did not indicate whether the dissolution would come Friday or Saturday.

Under the Electiods Act there must be a lapse of 49 days between the issuance of an election writ and voting day. However, additional time is usually allowed to get all the complicated election machinery into operation. An announcement Saturday would leave 59 days to June 27.

Officials in the chief electoral office said that the dissolution announcement would be the signal for all returning officers to get to work. They could be ready for a June 27 election.

Mr. St. Laurent said there were various reasons for holding an

Reasons for Early Vote

He said:

"General elections are the most important institution in our whole constitution, since its through a general election that the public maintains control of the government, but it is also true that a general election campaign is necessarily disturbing too much of the ordinary activity of the community, and there seems to be a widespread feeling that there is no great advantage in prolonging such campaigns.

"It is, moreover, perfectly clear that the holding of an election in the Summer months would result in the virtual disfranchisement of a large portion of the electorate who do not spend the Summer in their habitual place of residence, and there are many others whose seasonable activities make it very difficult for them to find the time to attend meetings and to exercise their franchise during the mid-summer or the harvest season.

"The government, therefore, feels that in fairness to the people of the forthcoming election should be held either at the very beginning of the Summer or that it should be delayed until after the harvest season which in many parts of Canada extends even into October."

CANDIDATES WAGE

Doucett Not Nominated

Hon. George Doucett, Provincial Minister of Highways, who ranked high as a leadership prospect in pre-convention speculation, was not nominated. Mayor Hiram McCallum took the opportunity in a speech of welcome to deny reports he would stand if nominated.

Mr. Blackwell, 50-year-old native of Lindsay and first of the four announced candidates, was nominated by Douglas Cunningham of Kingston and D. Park Jamieson of Sarnia. Sam Hughes of Welland and Mrs. R. D. Cumming of Haileybury nominated Mr. Frost, who practises law at Lindsay and was born 54 years ago at Orillia, Ont.

Mr. Porter, at 47 the youngest of the four candidates, was nominated by two men from his native Toronto — C. Blair Lang and Harry Barry. S. V. O'Mara of Ottawa and Mrs. J. H. Patton of Kirkland Lake nominated Mr. Roberts, 50-year-old native of Belleville.

In his speech, Mr. Drew recalled the provincial election victories the party won in 1943, 1945 and 1948. Although it lost some urban seats in the 1948 election, it won some others it had seldom held before. Generally party representation in the provincial legislature is "more soundly based geographically and otherwise than it has been for a great many years."

"The Progressive Conservative party represents every part of Ontario and all occupational groups. It is clearly the party of the people, representing all parts of the province and all the broad activities of the people."

He made a brief reference to the leadership contest, saying that the successful candidate "will have heavy responsibilities and great opportunities." He appealed for the united support of the party for the new leader.

Kennedy Loudly Cheered

He urged the delegates to concentrate on organizing for the forthcoming Federal election. In the long run, between the Progressive Conservative party and socialism. The Federal Liberal government had departed from the fundamentals of Liberal political thought and now believed in state control "over all our affairs."

If he won the election, he would introduce an amendment to the criminal code under which action would be taken against Communists, whom he described as "treacherous rats" and traitors to Canada.

Premier Kennedy, who was loudly cheered, said in his speech that in the recent session of the provincial legislature the "weakening Liberal party sold its birthright for socialist votes." In 39 divisions, the Liberals voted 32 times with the Socialist C.C.F. against the government.

Fred Sapperton of Kingsville was appointed returning officer for the voting Wednesday. Beverley Matthews of Toronto heads the nominations committee and Gordon Fraser of Peterborough is credentials committee chairman.

Mr. Matthews announced voting arrangements. The winning candidate needs a clear majority. If the first ballot is inconclusive, the low man is dropped for the second. Figures would not be announced.

RED CROSS GOODWILL VISIT

Toronto, April 26 — (CP) — International goodwill took a teen-age angle yesterday when 10 boys and girls from Nashua, N. H., arrived here for a four - day visit with members of the Junior Red Cross. After a welcoming dinner the visitors attended a special Red Cross meeting. Today they will be taken on a tour of the city.

HOUSE DISCUSSES

Senate Busy

Trade Minister Howe said the government hopes to make an "early" announcement as to whether the marketing of coarse grains should not remain under the Canadian Wheat Board.

Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) explained first reading of a private bill which would bring meat-packing firms operating in two or more provinces within the jurisdiction of the Federal Labor Code.

The senate whipped through first reading of six measures incorporating companies which will construct and operate oil, and gas pipe-lines and agreed to meet this morning to give them second reading.

The family allowances debate developed into a political free-for-all between the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. and Liberal parties, with accusations being made that some members and groups were opposed to the payments.

Blames Conservatives

Health Minister Martin, for example, said the Progressive Conservatives had opposed family allowances in 1944, a charge which Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) denied. Mr. Graydon said that as far as he was concerned a Progressive Conservative government would not repeal them.

But Mr. Graydon alleged that the C.C.F. group had opposed the legislation and the Liberal members, in turn, argued that the progressive Conservatives themselves, had been the ones who were against the allowances.

Mr. Martin reported that family allowance payments will total more than $1,000,000,000 by the end of next month. School attendance figures had reached record totals since the payments went into effect.

The resumed budget debate was largely a repetition of its early stages.

James Sinclair (L — Vancouver North), parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said the budget was "so good" that the opposition could find nothing with it.

H. G. White (PC — Middlesex East) urged the government to organize Canada's agricultural economy to make the best use of labor and manpower and said that if the government "put the skids under agriculture, agriculture will put the skids under the government."

Mr. White said the budget had not provided sufficient tax relief. He referred to the $4,000,000 which the government plans to advance the CBC for television developments and said while that was being spent nothing was being done for the blind.

The $4,000,000 would have to be followed by another $25,000,000 expenditure on television. The total sum would have been invested by private enterprise without any cost to the taxpayer.

Mr. Abbott had estimated that he would end the current year with a surplus of about $87,000,000. Mr. White said that with the expenditures of television, the expenditures in Newfoundland, and the deficit of the Canadian National Railways he believed the year 1949 would end with a deficit of some $1,000,000.

Mr. Argue told Canada jois in the Berlin air lift and expressed criticism of the government's handling of the United Kingdom markets. Its marketing legislation was years too late.

You shouldn't ask your best friend

YOU may have been thinking about asking him to be your Executor, but you certainly should not ask him!

Look at it from his standpoint. Is it fair to ask him to assume all the worries and responsibilities of managing an estate? Are you sure he will have the necessary ability and experience?

Then consider your family. Will they have to depend upon a part-time Executor to look after their interests? Will they run the risk of losses through unwise investments.

There are no uncertainties when you appoint National Trust your Executor. You can be sure that your Estate will always be managed wisely and economically, in the best interests of your family. Your inquiries are invited.

Conny Smythe Defends NHL 'C' Form in Press Conference

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, April 28 (CP)—The National Hockey League's new famous C form is "our protection against bootleg amateur clubs and operators," managing director Conny Smythe of Maple Leaf Gardens said Monday. "It is the one contract amateur clubs will live up to."

The biggest yell is that those clubs and amateurs are trying to chisel in and this option is to stop it."

He opened a 1½-hour press conference devoted mainly to a vigorous defence of the option—with a crack at newspaper men who write articles relative to the subject with the observation:

"They are trying to sell their columns or themselves (to the public) or to get notoriety."

At the end of the conference, each reporter walked out with a copy of the form and a printed list of Leaf players who won the Stanley Cup in 1931-32 showing their occupations and income. The list showed most with an annual income in the five-figure bracket and drew the remark from Smythe: "That's what happens to hockey players. They either die or make lots of money."

The session was devoted mainly to a question-and-answer discussion on the C form and Smythe digressed to make these points:

1. He is confident the 70-game schedule, turned down this year by the NHL Board of Governors, would be in effect in the 1942-50 period.

2. Maple Leaf Gardens had the best-ever financial season with a gate of 482,270 for professional games and 375,924 for amateur games, a total is nearly the population of Toronto."

3. Maple Leaf players next year will get 100 per cent more in salary than those before the war, "and we are not going to raise our admission prices."

Wanted Questions Asked

Smythe was precise about the C form and repeatedly asked reporters if they had "any questions." He stated the conference he produced contracts, letters and telegrams to back up his statements.

As an example that the C form was not unfair, he cited the case of Ray Timgren, leaf winger and a star in the Stanley Cup playoffs who signed the form three years ago when he was 16, put his signature to a full professional contract with the Leafs last Dec. 28 and this season earned $9,023 in salary.

Smythe dealt at length with the case of 17-year-old Danny Lewicki from Fort William who signed the form with Leafs last October and who said recently he was not interested in playing pro until he completed his five-year apprenticeship as a machinist in a Stratford, Ont., railway shop. It was the Lewicki case which brought the C form into recent publicity.

Deals with Lewicki

Smythe declared Lewicki "had plenty of knowledge of what was going on" when he signed the form and reiterated a statement made earlier this month that Lewicki, now with the Stratford Junior A club would line up with the Leaf organization next season "or he won't play at all."

"We shall increase his contract by $1,000. He'll be given a chance to sign a full professional contract(s) and if he hits the NHL his salary will be $6,000 a year with us."

Smythe said Lewicki signed the C form with Leafs last Oct. 1 and received $100. Earlier the same month he signed with Toronto Marlboros (a Leaf Amateur farm club) and "we gave him money to play ball."

He didn't come back. He didn't honor the Marlboro card and he could have been suspended for that."

WINS SPEED RACE

Toronto, April 26 (CP)—Barney Ryan of Toronto yesterday won the five-mile event of the senior men's speed race at the Eastern Canada Roller Skating championships held here. He covered the distance in a record 10:16 minutes. B. Herman and J. Toomsey, both of Toronto finished second and third respectively.

In the novice ladies event, Pat Geddes of Hamilton took first place and then teamed up with Joe Gara of Hamilton to take the novice pairs. Gord Biggs and Rose Tyson, both of Hamilton won the novice dance.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE B. CARVER, Sports Editor

A fall blonde blushless bomber who believes in concentrated explosives and not gentlemen methods, Jo "Blowing Up" opposing forces attacking divisions, has been awarded the Lady Byng Trophy. He is Bill Quackenbush, starry defence ace of the Detroit Red Wings who is the first defenceman to win the bauble since it was awarded in 1925. It is given annually to "the player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability during the season."

* * *

Quackenbush polled 32 points out of a possible 54. He was the first choice of all but two selectors, and they selected him second. In addition to the trophy, he will receive a personal exchequer with a cheque for $1,000 presented to the winner by the National Hockey League.

* * *

Harry Watson, hard-skating left winger of the Toronto Maple Leafs, finished in second place in the balloting with 28 points. Paul Runtz, Boston Bruins' star sophomore center, finished third with ten points. Only eight players were even considered for the award by the selectors. Watson was the first choice of two, the second choice of nine and the third selection of four. Runtz had no first choice, but was the second selection of two and the third choice of six.

* * *

Quackenbush, an N. H. L. All-Star defenceman for the past two seasons, played through the entire 60-game schedule this season, without incurring a single penalty. This is the first time in history that a defenceman has ever done this in the N.H.L. The last time that Quackenbush received a penalty was on March 6, 1941. He also went through 18 playoff games last year and 21 this year without being thumbed off for any infraction. Bill first came into the National League in 1937-43 and has played a regular scheduled game each year. He has only been penalized a total of 69 minutes. Most penalties he ever received in one season was 24-24-48 when he served 96 minutes in the penalty coop. This is a remarkable performance for a defenceman and explains why Detroit coaches say that Quackenbush is rated as the greatest defenceman in hockey today. This disproves the ancient theory that defencemen had to be rough to be good. Bill is rated as the most effective as any player in the League and mucks in the corner with the best of them, but still manages to always play it cleanly.

* * *

Bill was born in Toronto, Ont., on March 2, 1922 and played his last amateur hockey with the Brantford Juniors. He had the same coach then as he has today; Tommy Ivan. He was 19-years-old when he left with the Red Wings direct from Brantford in the fall of 1942.

* * *

British Empire Champion Fred Atkins (he beat Whipper for the title in Toronto three months back) will wrestle in Belleville next Saturday night. Atkins has agreed to take on one of his foremost challengers handsome Bill Longson. The hard-bitten Australian, who eked out a much-disputed win over Watson to lift the crown the Whip had held for five years, is an extremely confident man these days. Atkins is a big ask-and-get specimen who believes in the rugged spirit in his mat efforts and although he is not an out-and-out villain he puts such power and ruthlessness into his bouts that many fans would like to see him beaten.

* * *

In this regard there is a nice chance that Mike 'The Body' Sharpe may upset the Down Under lads' apple cart on Saturday. Mike is to big and so strong himself that even the rock-ribbed Atkins can't match him in that department. Whether the much younger Michael has the experience to cope with the case-hardened Aussie remains to be seen but it is pretty sure that the match will be a slit-er-dilter. Big Mike has been smashing his way through all opposition in the big wrestling centres of Canada and United States and for some months now he has been well regarded as coming championship material.

* * *

Manager Walt Gerow is not sparing the horses this season in his determination to bring to Belleville the best in the world of heavy-weight mat attractions. Fee his semi-final Gerow will have the Cardiff Giant, that bearded three hundred and thirty pounder. The Giant will wrestle Big Ben Morgan, another Giant who hails from Look-out Mountain Tennessee. The Giant and Big Ben met in Maple Leaf Gardens five weeks ago and Morgan lost and had to like his beard as a result of a pre-bout wager. This will be their first meeting since and this will be more than fee fighting time. Art Brady of Colorado meets Ben Sharpe in the third bout.

* * *

Babe Ruth was famous for his grammatical boners. In Florida one Winter, Babe pulled his big car into a gas station and hopped out. A Rolls Royce pulled up and a dignified member of the Palm Beach colony, a well upholstered dowager, leaned out of the window to inquire: "May I ask if you are not Mr. Babe Ruth?"

Babe replied: "You are quite correct, Modom."

Modom continued: "Mr. Ruth, is your car equipped with hydraulic brakes or are they mechanical?"

Ruth gave a courtly bow and said in his most cultured tone: "Modom, I haven't the slightest consumption!"

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JACK TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, April 28 (CP) —The question of boys leaving school to play hockey has been a problem to people interested in the welfare of youth since the sport became a lucrative means of earning a living.

What happens to boys who earn fat salaries while still in their teens and live away from home when they might otherwise be under their parents' wings is being made the subject of a study by Ontario and one of the western provinces.

The announcement by John L. Murray, President of the Canadian Secondary Schools Association, that the study is being made brings to Andy (Montreal Standard) O'Brien the fact that some hockey authorities have given thought to the problem.

Andy recalls that Frank Selke, general manager of the Forum, home of the Canadiens of the National Hockey League, made a suggestion a year ago.

"Selke," writes Andy, "thought it would be wise to put all hockey so-called amateur as well as pro, under a unified control and establish funds for youngsters so that they couldn't draw any money until they're out of their teens and have developed a proper perspective.

"There's nothing the matter with a professional hockey career—especially in this modern era where the successful pro not only keeps himself in top shape all year but also devotes much time to establishing himself for the future. But the reckless paying and pampering of all promising 14-minute youngsters with no big time prospects only leads to a spoiled bigger and better athletic bums.

"The sensible approach right now is for pro and almost-pure enthusiasts to stop tossing barbs at one another and concede evils exist through their mutual faults —with championship-hungry fans sharing same. Let everybody admit we've been wrong and start from there."

Mud May Upset The Favorites In Handicap

London, April 26 (CP)— That old bogey mud may upset the favorites in Wednesday's renewal of the two thousand guineas and let some of the darker horses ride to glory.

Until yesterday the classic hand appeared a two-horse race between Maj. R. MacDonald-Buchanan's Abernant and W. Harvey's Star King. Spring sun has baked the course hard and both these speedsters like to run on top of the ground.

But since several hours of rain yesterday and opened the race wide to other contestants.

One the fans particularly fancy is Lord Rosebery's Peter Flower, which backed down to 13 to 2 at last night's call-over. He was sired by Blue Peter, guineas and derby winner of 1936.

Lord Rosebery's colt is preceded in the betting by Abernant at 2 to 1, Star King at 7 to 2, and Lt.-Vollerra's Armour Drake at 6 to 1. The last is France's Chief Challenger and is a half brother to last year's derby winner, Royal Drake II.

Other possibilities in the field which will go to the post at 2:55 p.m. BST (9:55 a.m. EDT) are Makarpura, Graul, Soc Du Diable, Nibus, Bear Dance, Hindostan, Tan, Barnes Park, Galley Proof, Demeanour, Verdict and Beverly. It is not likely all will go.

Another incident also altered the guineas plans—the injury yesterday to Jockey Charlie Smirke, who was to have ridden Makarpura. Smirke won the two thousand last year aboard Maharaja of Baroda's My Babu.

Two other jockey's—Cliff Richards and Eph Smith—were also hurt in a three horse spill at Wolverhampton but neither of the last two were scheduled to ride in the guineas. None of the three is badly hurt.

O.R.F.U. to Play Double Schedule

Toronto, April 26 (CP)— Play starts Sept. 3 in the 1949 schedule of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

On that afternoon, the Saturday before Labor Day, Sarnia Imperials meet Hamilton, Windsor Rockets will entertain Toronto Balmy Beach the same day.

The four teams will play through a double schedule which continues until Nov. 5 when the Imperials will be at Windsor and Balmy Beach at Hamilton.

The post-schedule title playoff calls for the first-place team to meet the second place team Nov. 8 and 12, points to count on the round.

The winner of that series will take on the Interprovincial Union champions for the Eastern Canada title.

Following is the schedule:

Sept. 3—Balmy Beach at Windsor; Sarnia Imperials at Hamilton Tigers.

Sept. 5 (Labor Day)—Windsor at Sarnia Imperials.

Sept. 10—Windsor at Balmy Beach; Hamilton at Sarnia Imperials.

Sept. 17—Sarnia at Windsor; Balmy Beach at Hamilton.

Sept. 21—Sarnia at Balmy Beach.

Sept. 24—Hamilton at Balmy Beach.

Oct. 1—Windsor at Hamilton.

Oct. 8—Hamilton at Windsor; Balmy Beach at Sarnia.

Oct. 10 (Thanksgiving Day) — Balmy Beach at Windsor; Sarnia at Hamilton.

Oct. 15—Windsor at Balmy Beach; Hamilton at Sarnia.

Oct. 22—Hamilton at Windsor; Balmy Beach at Sarnia.

Oct. 26—Hamilton at Balmy Beach; Windsor at Sarnia.

Oct. 29—Sarnia at Balmy Beach Windsor at Hamilton.

Nov. 5 —Sarnia at Windsor; Balmy Beach at Hamilton.

Rip Sewell, 'Blooper' Expert Of the Pirates, Continues Mastery Over Chicago Cubs

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Truett (Rip) Sewell, the old sub-killer from way back, is showing signs of being himself again.

The 40-year-old "blooper" expert of the Pittsburgh Pirates actually allowed the Cubs two runs last night in pitching the Bucs to an 8-3 victory over their "cousins" from the Windy City.

Sewell was tapped for ten hits but was effective in the clutches to register his second straight triumph over the Cubs this year, and his ninth against only one loss over a two-season stretch. He shut out the Cubs 1-0 in the season's opener last week.

Sewell's lifetime record against the Bruins is phenomenal. He has whipped them 35 times in 54 decisions, or better than 25 per cent of his over-all 139 triumphs. No other big-league pitcher can boast such mastery over a rival club.

Yesterday's victory put the Pirates into a three-way tie for second place with Brooklyn and Boston in the National League, half a game behind the pace-setting New York Giants. The Cubs dropped into seventh place.

The Giants continued their winning ways, defeating the Phillies in Philadelphia 6-3, for their fourth consecutive victory. Clint Hartung allowed nine hits in registering his second straight triumph. Brave Manager Billy Southworth, Ed Waitkus and Del Ennis helped the Giants to four runs in the eighth and enabled them to overcome a 3-2 deficit. Hank Borowy was the loser.

Bill Voiselle, tall Braves' right-hander, knocked the Dodgers out of first place and into a triple tie for second by shutting out the Brooklyn nine, 4-0. Sherm Lollar drove in Boston's first two runs with a run-scoring single, and Earl Torgeson homered in the fifth.

Morris Martin, rookie southpaw up from St. Paul, was touched for four hits and all Boston runs in the seven innings he worked before he sprained a tendon in his left arm and withdrew.

It was a big day for New York and Boston, for the Yankees and Red Sox in the American League also won. The Bronx Bombers aided by a pair of costly miscues by Philadelphia shortstop Eddie Joost, topped the Athletics 2-1 at Yankee Stadium to increase their league lead to a full game over Chicago White Sox. Vic Raschi, who shut out Washington last week, yielded six hits, the same number the Yankees got off loser Joe Coleman.

Joost first messed up Billy Johnson's grounder in the fourth and then threw wildly to third base after recovering the ball. The two runs that scored in the inning were enough to win.

Mel Parnell, young Red Sox southpaw, hung up his second successive shutout with a 2-0 triumph over washington Senators.

He allowed only seven hits to the Nats, who now have lost seven in a row after winning the season's opener. Bobby Doerr, with a triple, and Johnny Pesky, with a double, led the way.

St. Louis Cardinals started their old jinx, Ken Raffensberger, with a four-run blast in the second inning and went on to whip Cincinnati Reds 9-3 in a night game in St. Louis. Harry Brecheen, Raffensberger's victim last week, posted his first victory although touched for 11 hits. Stan Musial helped him with his third home run, and Red Schoendienst chipped in with four hits.

Rain washed out the scheduled game between the White Sox and Detroit Tigers, Cleveland and St. Louis Browns were not scheduled.

CATTLE RUSTLERS BUSY

Capetown — (CP) — The meat shortage here now is so acute that cattle rustlers have started operations on a large scale, slaughtering stolen animals almost as soon as they have been removed from the owners' paddocks. Apart from small stock, thieves recently stole pedigree stock worth more than £1,000 ($4,000).

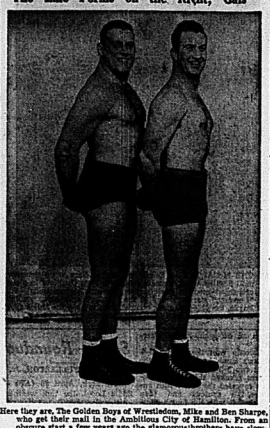
Carefree Days
IN ONTARIO'S SUN PARLOUR



Do you know that the southernmost part of Ontario is farther south than the northern part of sunny California? If you're a sun worshipper, write the Windsor Board of Trade, Windsor, Ont., for details of where to go. You'll have every opportunity for sport, amusement, to get a restful vacation in Essex and Kent counties. On an early-summer holiday you'll find the sunshine is well ahead of time. And if you plan a late-fall trip, travel the sportsman's road to Pelee Island for the famed annual pheasant shoot. Here also is duck, goose, partridge and wild geese hunting, in season. Picnic lunches in Point Pelee, Ont., skirt the many beaches and fishing places on the shores of Lake Erie and St. Clair. Visit historic Fort Malden, John Brown's house. And for the nature-lover, Jack Miner's famed Bird Sanctuary will repays a visit.

In Ontario we have a holiday paradise . . . let's do all we can to encourage visitors from across the border. Published in support of the tourist business by John Labatt Limited.

"The Line Forms on the Right, Gals"

Here they are, The Golden Boys of Wrestledom, Mike and Ben Sharpe, who get their nail in the Ambitious City of Wrestlerville. From an obscure start a few years ago the glamorous brothers have slowly forged ahead until they are rated among the topflight performers in the grapple game. Perfect physical specimens and clean-living scientific wrestlers the boys have gained a large following in every wrestling centre they have played—and that includes Belleville. Mike will be seen in action here next Saturday night against the current British Empire Heavyweight Champion Fred Atkins of "Australylla" while brother Ben will tangle with one Art Brady of Colorado.

Freddie Thomas Of Assumption Hard to Stop

Windsor, Ont., April 26 (CP)—Montreal Y. M. H. A. Blues would do well to assign two or three men to handle Negro Freddie Thomas of Assumption College tonight when the teams clash in the first game of the best-of-three Eastern Canada senior basketball finals. He's a triple-threat centre who can toss a ball with deadly accuracy.

This will be his last year as a college player, and 25-year-old Freddie is a little impatient for the basketball season to end. He has an appointment then to join the Wilkes Barre, Pa., farm team of the Baseball Cleveland Indians.

And at the end of the ball season, he hopes to enter Toronto University School of Optometry and possibly play with Toronto Argonauts in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union.

He has already completed four years of college sport at Assumption and is not eligible for intercollegiate competition.

Freddie is one of the greatest basketball players in the history of Assumption Purple Raiders with an all-time scoring total of 2,414, built up over the last four seasons. He holds the Assumption record of 47 points in a single game, scored this year.

Of medium build as centre men go, the six-foot two-inch Thomas has more than the usual natural attributes of a star. He shoots with either hand and his particular sweeping pivot shot gives opposing guards little chance of stopping it without fowling.

His basketball future is uncertain. He has received several offers, including one from the Harlem Globe Trotters of New York and another from the Kansas City All-Stars, but Freddie so far has remained non-committal.

Xaverians Win Intermediate Cage Title for Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Francis Xavier University won the Canadian intermediate basketball title at Antigonish, N.S., Monday by whipping Sault Ste. Marie Algos, defending champions, 50-45.

Xaverians won the opener of the two-game, total-point series 40-40 Saturday night and took the round 90-91. Rated as the strongest squad produced by the University, the Blue and White were competing in their first Dominion final.

Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. gained a commanding 23-point lead by trounding St. Stephen Legionaires 75-40 in the first of two games for the Eastern Canadian Junior Basketball championship at Calais, Me. The second and decisive game, with total points counting, is scheduled for the same floor tonight.

Quebec's hopes of a first Memorial Cup victory headed west on Monday, pinned on the broad shoulders of Montreal Royals in the Dominion hockey final that starting Thursday in Winnipeg against the highly-regarded Monarch Kings from Brandon, Man.

Well rested after polishing off Barrie Flyers, Ontario titlists, in four straight games, Coach Tos Millar's rugged stylists were hopeful of pulling off an upset. The Royals have been taking things easy since the Barrie series winding up last Saturday.

At Regina, Al Pickard, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced officials for the Allan Cup final starting in the East Thursday will be Vic Lindquist and Lorne (Windy) Lyndon, both of Winnipeg.

Viscount Alexander of Tunis, governor-general of Canada, has agreed to become grand patron of the Montreal Olympic Committee, more formation, it was announced at Montreal by Claude Robillard, secretary of the committee. The committee hopes Montreal will get the 1956 games.

Top-notch United States professionals have sent in their applications for the 40th Canadian Open Golf Championship, scheduled for St. George's Golf and Country Club at Toronto June 22-25.

Entries include Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., twice runner-up; Bill Nary, Culver City, Cal.; Herman Keiser, Chicago; George Schneiter, Chicago, and Ellsworth Vines, Iowa City, Iowa.

Present holder of the Canadian open title is Chuck Congden, a U.S. golfer, who won it last year in Vancouver.

Lil Arthur King, 136 1-2, British Empire and Canadian lightweight champion, stopped Paulino Montes, 136, Hermosillo, Mexico, on a technical knockout after six rounds of their scheduled 10-round bout Monday at Philadelphia.

The victory maintained the Toronto fighter's undefeated status in the United States.

McFater Scores Technical K.O. Over Thompson

Toronto, April 26 (CP)—Allan McFater, hard-hitting Canadian scrapper, last night avenged his February loss to Norm Thompson, the Brockville, Ont., heller.

A hard left to the body towards the end of the first round by the Toronto lightweight, sent the Brockville welterweight down to the canvas and out of the scheduled five-round main event of a nine-bout amateur card here.

Referee Charlie Murphy reached the count of three when the ball-vang ending the first round. Thompson was carried to his corner but his seconds worked in vain to prepare him for the second round.

He couldn't come out and McFater was awarded a technical knockout. It took Thompson's seconds about three minutes to revive him.

This was the third time the two fighters had met. McFater defeated Thompson in their first match here and then Thompson won the decision last February in Brockville.

The 18-year-old Toronto boxer showed the power in his left hand right from the opening bell. He rocked Thompson with a few looping lefts early in the round keeping him off balance.

The left to the body caught Thompson near the ropes and he hit the canvas with a hard thud, his mouth open gasping for air. McFater hit him with a short right to the head as he fell.

Some 8,000 fans, including a contingent from Brockville, watched the well-rounded amateur card.

Another Brockville fighter, Jimmy Wise, lost a close decision to Glen Ray, formerly of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., but now fighting out of Toronto, over the five-round route in a 126-lb., preliminary.

Lyle Staff, St. Catharines, and Dennis Dialilide, fought to a draw in a heavyweight bout. Dialilide held a decided edge over Staff but referee Charlie Murphy called the fight a draw when the fighters bumped heads in the final round, leaving Staff with a deep cut under his eye.

Don Miller and Don Watson of Brantford were declared by Tommy Corrick and Tommy Regan, of Toronto, Al Norton, St. Catharines lost a close decision to Ernie Kelly, Toronto.

Al Hogan, Halifax, knocked out Johnny Peters, Toronto, at the 1:40 mark of the third round.

PERMANENT TREES

Edmonton — (CP) — The parks department has launched its 1949 tree-planting program, replacing, with long-lived trees some of the more than 1,500 poplars and other trees removed this winter. Trees will be planted in all six city areas where they were removed last winter.

February Business At High Level

Ottawa, April 25 (CP)— Canadians, with money in their pockets, continued to keep business in retail and wholesale stores at a top pace in February, the Bureau of Statistics reported Sunday. Into retail stores alone they poured some $466,900,000 during the month, an increase of five per cent over the same month a year ago and set total sales for the first two months of 1949 at $960,270,000 compared with $935,-380,000 for the same time a year ago.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

It would seem that humanity thrives on the battles from which it survives. The most dangerous times in their lives is when husbands play bridge with their wives.

A mixed pair is bridge consists of one female and one male player. A mixed team of four is composed of two such pairs. Not infrequently such a team is made up of two married couples.

In such a match came the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠A Q 43
♥9 7
♦K 7 4
♣A 9 8 4

WEST	EAST
♠J 8 7	♠K 9 8 5 2
♥K J 8	♥6 5
♦K Q 6	♦9 8 3
♣Q J 10 6	♣5 3 2

SOUTH
♠10
♥A Q 10 4 3 2
♦A 10 5 2
♣K 7

The bids went like this:

South	North
1 H	1 S
2 H	2 NT
3 H	4 H

Strictly speaking, south does not have a re-distributable hand to suit. By rule such a suit needs four honor cards if it contains only six cards. But a good player may stretch a mite in such circumstances.

The one spade response by north shows a hand with more than two tricks. But it is not an increase in numbers. Therefore, it has not commanded any tricks in excess of the basic two.

A non-busy child of a suit is not forcing. But north has enough for a free bid of a no-trump when his high cards are more than two. He simply says he has at least three high cards.

When south bid the hearts three times, north has a right to assume it is re-rebiddable. His two small hearts are then adequate support for the suit. And he has enough tricks for the raise.

All this time the west player indicated no special interest in the bidding. But when it reached four hearts he decided to double.

Opening lead from west was the club queen. South proceeded to take the necessary ten tricks. But not without expert reckoning.

Power Hitters Are Beginning To Find Range

(By The Associated Press)

A little slow to get started, Buffalo's power hitters are finally beginning to find the range, as nearly everybody predicted they would.

Before yesterday's International Baseball League game, the Bisons's had only two home runs in four games—to Cooker Tripplett and Chet Laabs. Yesterday they went two-for-two, walloping three over the fence to defeat Jersey City Giants 8-7 for their second victory.

Benny Warren, Anse Moore and Ray Coleman were the homer hitters, with Coleman's coming in the eighth inning to snap a 7-7 deadlock. The Little Giants collected only one round tripper, by Felix Mackiewicz.

Ernie Silverman, third Buffalo hurler stopped the Giants without a hit over the last 2 1-3 innings and was credited with the victory. George Bamberger was the loser.

Scoring six runs in each of the seventh and eighth innings, Syracuse Chiefs came from behind to defeat Rochester 13-3 for their second straight victory over the Birds. John Heiki went all the way to notch his second decision in as many starts.

George Elder's single scored Ellis Clary in the ninth inning with the run that gave Baltimore Orioles a 6-5 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. The Leafs had tied the score with two runs in the top of the ninth. Bryan Stephens allowed seven hits to register the victory. Emory Church was the loser.

Newark and Montreal were not scheduled.

FOX FAR AFIELD

Stratford, Ont. —(CP)— Local sportsmen, puzzled over the identity of an animal shot in Hibbert township, found out from the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology that it was an arctic fox. The animal probably an escapee from a fur farm, has been added to the museum's collection.

LIQUOR ANTIDOTE

Amethyst is composed of two Greek words meaning "not to be drunk." The ancients believed this stone would keep the wearer sober.

TheMovieColumn

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 26 (AP) — Being old, remarked Gloria Swanson, with perfect logic, merely means that you have lived longer.

"I think it's a crime," the ageless movie queen continued, "that in America age is treated as something distasteful—a burden which people carry on their backs like a bag of rocks. No other country confers age that way; in China, for instance, old people are revered."

Miss Swanson looks a good 10 or 15 years younger than the 50 she admits to. She advertises her age freely. One reason is that most people guess her to be older.

Started Young

She explained why she's considered older than she really is: She started her film career at 14½; she never was an ingenue, but began as a siren.

"Age means nothing," she emphasized. "Why, I can name you four top actresses in the movies—and they're not playing grandmother roles, either—who come within a year or two of my age. And maybe one is a couple of years older, too." Unfortunately, she didn't name names.

The natural question is: How does she stay so young?

Some of it is mental, she said. A lot of it is hereditary. Her mother is still a good-looking woman at 70 and she recalls her great-grandmother as being apple-cheeked at 84.

Eat Properly

Most important of all, she said, is how you eat.

"Too many people kill themselves by over-eating," she explained. "Americans are largely trash-eaters. If you would pick nothing but properly cooked food in an hour at a dinner—including cocktails, onions, olives, pickles, wine, roquefort dressing, chocolate sundae and a cigar—I'd be a pig wouldn't eat it. Or if he did, he'd get a tummyache."

Miss Swanson largely fruits and vegetables, but will eat meat when dining at cafes "where the stables are never cooked right," or at dinners, "where it causes too much conversation if you refuse."

Reserve Clause Boneof Contention In Football Union

Winnipeg, April 26 — (CP) — The trend toward tighter control by sports promoters over athletes has made the reserve clause one of the most contentious regulations of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Fans, writers and players in the W. I. F. U. have voiced opposition to the clause instituted in 1939-40. But the executives say it's needed as a protective measure.

Re-entry of an Edmonton team in the western football loop focussed more attention on the clause. Starting from scratch, Edmonton is in the market for pigskin artists and, naturally, is eyeing the lineups of other clubs.

But that is where the reserve clause comes in. It stipulates that "no player may play with two clubs in this union in the same year . . . any player wishing to transfer from the member club he has played with in one season to another member club in a subsequent season, must first obtain the written permission of all member clubs to such a transfer."

Edmonton, in its bid for relaxation of this control, finds little hope for support from the other conference teams. Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Art Chipman of Winnipeg, W. I. F. U. president, dismisses discussion of the matter with the statement, "I don't see any reason why it should be changed."

Edmonton insists that it is unfair for clubs to prevent players from seeing action with other teams just because owner clubs cannot use the man and won't waive his services for fear of strengthening a rival.

Regina Capitals, Ottawa Senators Battle for Title

Ottawa, April 26 — (CP) — Two puck-wise hockey teams — Regina Capitals and Ottawa Senators — both full of experience, will clash in the Allan Cup final starting here Thursday night.

The Senators, slightly battered but brimming with confidence, rolled into the Canadian senior hockey finals for the second straight year when they outclassed Toronto Marlboros 4-0 last night to win their best-of-seven series four games to two.

With little Nils Tremblay, speedy centre from Quebec City, leading the parade on a neat two-goal effort, Senators played scrappy, close-checking hockey to give lanky Bill (Legs) Fraser his second straight shutout. Left-winger Stu Smith and right-winger Buddy Hellyer were the other Ottawa scorers.

A crowd of about 7,600 went wild at conclusion of what the Ottawa Journal described as a "good, clean hockey game."

OPENING DELAYED

Lachine, Que. — (CP) — Canal officials opened the canal to traffic recently, but it stayed open only long enough to let two freighters through. An obstruction closed the gate at the west end. A diver found the trouble after two hours.

46 YEARS RAILROADER

Moncton, N.B. — (CP) — Robert B. Smith, Canadian National Railways' agent at New Glasgow, N.S., has ended a 46-year railroading career. A native of Petitcodiac, N.B., he started his service here as a relieving operator.

AT THE McCARTHY — Feminine tempers flare when gangster's moll Shelley Winters meets debutante Joan Caulfield in a supercharged moment during the Universal-International film "Larceny," starting today at the McCarthy Theatre, as John Payne, the object of their quarrel, tries to keep the ladies apart. Dan Duryea co-stars in the crime thriller.

AT THE BELLE — Clark Gable, Walter Pidgeon, Van Johnson, Brian Donlevy and John Hodiak top M.G.M.'s great all-star cast appearing on the Belle Theatre screen in "Command Decision." The film is continuing until Wednesday.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, April 26 (AP) — Eddie Lopat, the "hot weather" pitcher who already has won two chilly games for New York Yankees, isn't fooling around with the knuckle ball he tried during spring drills ... "My problem isn't getting the ball over the plate" explains red-headed Eddie, "but making it do something four out of five times." . . . Dr. George E. Bennett, the celebrated Baltimore surgeon, will be one of the principal speakers when the first athletic trainers' clinic on record is held at the University of Maryland June 10-11. Probably he should take the Yankee squad along as exhibit "A" . . . Bill Quackenbush of Detroit, the first hockey defenceman ever to win the Lady Byng Trophy for sportsmanship and "gentlemanly conduct," receives $1,000 along with the cup . . . In the good old days a defence player likely would have been fined $1,000 for going through a season without a penalty.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma started to sigh big sighs to herself, saying to pop, Oh dear, I feel so despondent, and I haven't the slightest idea why I shoud. That's the worst of it, she said.

Maybe that's the best of it, pop said, and me said, No, I'm sure it's the worst. Any sycologist will tell you that the only way to treet a worry to get to the root of it, because the worries with no apparent cause are the very ones that stick on like proverbial leetches, she said.

You probably never should of asked a sycologist, pop said, and ma said, it's really baffling, William, because everything I did today turned out with flying colors, so logically I awt to feel like a proverbial lark. This morning I made a batch of orange marmelade, and it wasn't too thin and it wasn't too bitter and it didn't stick to the bottom of the pot, and that's a three ply miracle as far as I'm concerned. And I've been rather casual about my diet, in fact almost reckless, and after lunch I took my courage in both hands and got on the scale, and low and behold I've lost instead of gained. And later at bridge I made 3 small slams shat nobody in their rite mind would of bid in the first place. So if I'm low in my mind, there can only be one explination, according to the sycologists. Something must of happened to me when I was a child, and I dont remember what. But yes I do, William, it just flashed back to me. When I was a tiny little gerl my sister Fanny was invited to a serprize party and I wasn't, because I was too young, and William you never saw such a heartbroken child in your life. So you've simply got to ballence the scales by changing your mind about stayin home and serprize me by takin me to a movie. Instead, she said.

Which pop did, claiming it's a woman's world.

INTERESTED SPECTATORS IN THOROLD, ONT., GET GOOD LOOK AT HELICOPTER

Manoeuvrability of the helicopter was demonstrated when Col. Robert McCormick (shown inset) flew from Niagara Falls, N.Y. to Thorold, Ont., and settled on a parking lot within 50 yards of office of the Ontario Paper Co. Here workers swarm around the craft during their lunch hour. Col. McCormick foresees extensive use of the helicopter in densely wooded areas of Canada where it would be valuable in timber surveys, fighting fires, inspecting tracts or dams, and transporting lumbermen in and out of tight spots. Col. McCormick is publisher of a chain of Chicago newspapers.—Central Press Canadian.

POLICE OFFICER KILLED

Buffalo, N.Y., April 25 (AP)—Capt. Edward, C. Barrett, 49, of Buffalo Police Department was shot to death in a tavern early Sunday and a precinct detective was charged with the killing. The by detective, identified as James F. Ryan, 46, was charged with first-degree murder. Detective-Chief William Fitzgibbons said the shooting occurred following what he described as "name calling" Barrett.

BEFORE CHINESE CAPITAL FELL TO COMMUNISTS

This view of Nanking shows in its last moments before it fell to the Red hordes which rolled across the Yangtze river. The city was occupied by Communist armies without a fight. Meanwhile, the U.S. navy and wealthy Chinese are getting out of Shanghai as it awaited the Communists. — Central Press Canadian.

Crew Likely Safe As Sealer Crushed by Ice

St. John's, April 26 (CP)—The sealer Wimoda was destroyed by grinding ice off Labrador today but there is "every hope" her 28-man crew is safe.

Harold Dawe, owner of the Wimoda, told The Canadian Press in a telephone conversation from Cupids that another sealer, the Linda May, was in sight of the stranded men and may already have rescued them.

Halifax—The sealer Wimoda was crushed in heaving ice off Labrador today and was abandoned by her crew, marine radio reported here.

The sealing vessel Linda May radioed that Wimoda's crew was on the ice floes two miles north of Lark Island near the entrance to the Strait of Belle Isle.

Linda May said she and another sealer, Terra Nova out of St. John's, were punching through the ice to the scene to attempt a rescue.

Lark Island is just off Belle Isle, which is 20 miles east of the southeastern tip of Labrador.

The Linda May's messages were relayed to Halifax marine radio by Belle Isle radio.

How many were on the ice awaiting help was not known but a sealer normally carries a crew of about 40. The 170-ton Wimoda is owned by Wimoda Shipping Company of St. John's.

Fliers Aground After Making Endurance Record

Fullerton, Calif., April 25 (AP) — Two tired fliers come out of the sky today after remaining aloft so long they've probably forgotten how to walk.

Bill Barris and Dick Riedel plan to land their "Sunkist Lady" at 11:14 a. m. PST (2:14 p. m. EDT), just six kweeks to the minute after taking off from here on their daring quest for a world endurance flight record.

Forced down after 558 hours in their third try, they required several days to acquire their "land legs." And this time they have been up nearly twice as long.

Nearly 12 days ago Riedel and Barris broke the old endurance flight record of 226 hours, set 10 years ago over Long Beach, Cal. The six-week flight of 1,008 hours is the original goal they set.

France Favored For Biggest Share Of Military Aid

Washington, April 26 (AP) — France was reported in line today for the biggest share of the proposed United States military aid program for western Europe.

Diplomatic officials who reported this said France would get top priority because of its strategic location and because its 10 divisions of troops are in sore need of equipment.

The administration plans to ask Congress for $1,130,000,000 to rearm 11 Atlantic-pact allies during the next year. An additional $200,000,000 will be requested to bolster the defences of other "friendly countries."

Britain stands second and Italy third, officials indicated, among the countries tentatively due to get American arms, equipment and raw materials under the program.

The Allied strategic plan is to build up the French army and air force as rapidly as possible because it would be the major obstacle to any Russian invasion of western Europe.

ITALY CELEBRATES

Rome, April 26 — (Reuters) — Italy yesterday celebrated the 4th anniversary of her liberation from fascism with republican declarations of progress, while the communists charged that fascism survives. Banks and public offices were closed for the day, a national holiday in the republic's calendar.

FOOD FOR VILLAGERS—Bags of flour for the starving Labrador outpost of St. Charles Harbor are unloaded from the icebreaker Saurel. Dog teams stand ready to carry the supplies back to shore. The Saurel bucked through 40 miles of heavy ice to deliver a 68-ton cargo to hunger-stricken villages along the Labrador coast. The mercy mission was made in answer to a plea for aid from Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland. The photo was taken by the Saurel's veteran skipper, Capt. C. A. Chouinard. (CP Photo)

N. Atlantic Pact Linked With Fable Of Seven Sticks

Montreal, April 25. (CP)—Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt of the United States today linked the North Atlantic Pact with an old fable of a wise old father who taught his sons the strength of unity with a bundle of sticks.

The fable, recalled Mr. Steinhardt in a speech prepared for delivery before the Montreal Canadian Club, concerned itself with a father who handed one of seven sticks to each of his seven sons.

"Having demonstrated the ease with which each stick could be broken," said the Ambassador, he "then demonstrated the difficulty of breaking the seven sticks when bound together."

It was the same with the pact. "It constitutes a warning only to those who may have entertained or who may entertain in the future an intention to attack them individually or collectively."

NEW INDUSTRY

A new lead pencil industry in The Netherlands is producing 30,000,000 pencils a year covering two-thirds of entire Dutch requirements.

SOLDIER MISSING

Berlin, April 25 (AP)—A British soldier is missing today and three German police of the United States zone are in Russian hands after two border shootings. British military government officials in Hamburg said the Briton has been missing since Friday. German officials at Coburg quoted a farmer witness as saying Russian troops seized three German patrolmen of the border patrol after wounding one with tommy-gun fire.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Corman Nichols

Diana came out of the hospital a bright sunny afternoon. She leaned on Gay's arm and said, her eyes filling, "Everything is so beautiful. It was winter the day they brought me. That. that terrible day."

Often she found Gordon with her mother in the studio. Gay never mentioned the bills put away so that Diana could not see them, but there was never a time when they did not worry her. How was she going to pay them, earning thirty dollars a week?

Each day brought the charity ball and Lucia's wedding closer. In spite of what Alan had done and said to her, there still existed a feeling for him. Would she never be free of it? Would the love of that very young Gay haunt her all her life?

The day she put on the wedding gown she was to wear at the ball for the photographers, its graceful beauty seemed to mock her. She looked at herself in the full-length mirror and the girl in satin and tulle seemed to say, "Is there hope for you for anything? I loved you too well, Alan not enough." Gregg has forgotten you in a hundred other girls. A bride!"

Gordon kept the studio filled with flowers at Easter time. There was a long box for Gay. Slowly she drew out the yellow roses and glanced at the card. Diana looked at her steadily. The card said, "Sorry. Forgive me. Alan."

And Diana thought, how will he always come back into her life to remind her! He makes memories of when they were happy together Start again.

Gay knew that Gordon loved her mother. It was, at first, painful to think that some one else might take her father's place. But Diana was lonely and more and more depended upon his visits to brighten her dreary life as a convalescent.

Gay wondered how her mother would endure the summer heat in the studio.

She dwelled on Penny and found her, as Penny said, trying to mix an art career with marriage.

"Is Mac having any luck with Chris's play?" Gay asked.

"He won't tell me a thing," said Penny. She looked across the room at Gay seriously. "Oh, why don't you give up that struggle and take a boat to Nassau? You must not let Chris marry Evelyn Ying! You and Chris were meant to be together as Mac and I are. We haven't a thing, but we're happy because we're together and can talk and laugh together. Mac has got to sell that play because Chris doesn't have the best fare home and he'll marry that girl because he'll think he can never get back to you."

"The lesser of two evils, perhaps," Gay said.

"He worked awfully hard, Day and Mac first. I've read the play, Gay. It's you, dear. What he wouldn't tell you because he's proud and poor he put in his play. I felt a terrific power behind it. Chris wrote it out of his loneliness and love for you."

"So many things separate us," said Gay. "He told me that once. But I want his play to be a success—more than that I want him to be happy."

"He'll never be happy without you. Success is an empty thing," said Penny, "without the one person you want to share it."

When Gay got home, Gordon Bannister was there. He said, "I'm taking you and Diana to dinner. Then I have a surprise for you."

"And I'll hurry through a delightful dinner to learn what it is," said Diana. "Woman's curiosity, you know."

In the restaurant Gay thought her mother looked young and well again wearing a tailored blue suit and a small blue hat over her short white hair. Gordon, who would always be youthful, had made her young again. "His eyes" thought Gay, feeling smart from the companionship of this man and her mother, "tell her she's still beautiful and that he loves her."

Gordon smiled. "Perhaps I should prepare you for a shock. It will be a shock, but not an unpleasant one."

"My dear," said Diana, "don't put me in the hospital again. It's so good to see people and dine in nice places and hear music."

"You may be sure I'd never do anything to make you unhappy."

Gay said, "It sounds very intriguing. If it's a Mother's surprise perhaps I shouldn't . . ."

"I want you with me, darling," said Diana "Moral support."

"It's in my apartment," said Gordon.

Diana was radiant as they rode to the tall apartment house where he lived.

"If it's disappointing, I'll never forgive you, Gordon. You're not going to wish another scottie on us, are you. Sandy and Maccduff are darlings, but they're enough in our little place." As they walked down the long corridor toward the apartment, she said, "I don't hear a bark."

"Then," said Gay, "it isn't a MacIntosh or a MacDougall."

When he put the key in the lock, he said, "It wasn't a scheme. It wasn't planned. It just happened. My luck. I knew there was a story behind it and I followed every clue."

"What are you talking about!" Diana asked.

When he opened the door and turned on the light, Diana gave a little cry. Gay looked around the drawing-room. Every piece of furniture that had been in Beth's drawing-room was here in this room! Puzzled, she took it in with a quick loving glance. Then these things that had been in her home had not fallen into careless, clumsy hands as she had so often feared! Miraculously they had come to Gordon.

But however good it was to see them again, these things had memories for Gay and Patti, her father and Alan! Alan had gently pulled her toward him in that attic and kissed her, their first kiss after exciting days of anxious postponement.

Diana said, "I don't understand. It's incredible."

"I know, he answered, "I'm going to tell you about it. I was going to tell you sooner but I wanted to wait until you were strong-er." Distinguished, handsome, he stood between mother and daughter and said, "There is something else I want to say, too."

"All my things," Diana said. "my lovely things I never thought I'd see again. It's silly to attach sentiment to pieces of furniture, but they meant so much to me. They were—home. They meant home and security and family."

He looked at Gay, wearing the yellow tweed suit and green hat that were so becoming to her. But he looked only briefly at her and then at Diana, petite, white-haired and slim in the severely tailored suit.

"My lawyer happens to be your lawyer," said Gordon. "He told me he had some furniture, good furniture, he wanted to sell. When I went into that drawing-room that day, I knew a woman with taste had selected it. I bought it but I felt guilty about it as if I'd taken away something that could never really belong to me." He smiled. "It's odd, but it became a sort of obsession with me. I went to the lawyer again and asked him to whom it had belonged."

"And you found me," said Diana, "in the little tea room."

"That's when tea drinking became a habit," he said, smiling at her. Now," he said, "the other thing. I have been married and my wife has been dead for a good many years; I have a son sixteen years old. Jerry is quite a problem. He's been in schools and camps most of his life and consequently has had no home life whatever. He loves country life, horses, and dogs. Recently I bought a house in Virginia not far from a town. I bought it for Jerry because I want him to have a home and go to the town high school. I want him to have the home he's never had. He doesn't remember his mother. Diana,' said Gordon, "I would be deeply grateful to you if you'd make that home your home for as long as you want to stay. There are servants to do the work and there'll be a car for you and Jerry. You see, I want a woman of understanding for Jerry to come home to.'

"Oh, my dear," said Diana, "it sounds perfect, but I can't leave Gay."

"Of course you can leave me," said Gay quickly.

Gordon said, "It's quite a nice place with plenty of land, and it isn't far from the river. There are two horses in the stable now."

"I used to ride a great deal when I was young," said Diana.

She saw it in her mind, the peace of it. A white, wooden and sloping green lawn. In the summer it would be cool and in the winter snugly warm and comfortable. The studio oppressed her and on warm days she felt she could scarcely breathe. There was Jerry, too, It was good to be needed and wanted. Jerry, who had spent his life in school and camps, needed the mother he had never had. But there was Gay, fighting barriers, thinking of Chris, stubbornly loyal to Alan . . .

"You must go," said Gay, "Gordon, I will make her go."

"All the things here," he said, "that belonged to you I'll have sent down there. It will make it more homelike for you. I wrote Jerry about you.'

Diana smiled at him. "I'll go, Gordon. I've always wanted a son."

When he left that night, Gay did not say anything. She merely put both her hands in his and gripped them hard. Diana was safe! She was out of the sultry, summer heat! What she, Gay, had to face was better to face alone.

Gordon took her to lunch the next day.

"I will never believe again," said Gay, "that old friends are the best friends."

"You look very tired."

"When this charity ball is over, I'll breathe more easily. There seems to be something hanging over me." Her bright lips parted. "Mother is so enchanted she is like a child at Christmas."

"You still won't let me help you with those bills?"

"You've already done so much."

CONFERENCE SURMOUNTS MAJOR DIFFICULTIES

Chiang Sees China Possible Tinderbox Third World War

Calls on China to Fight Reds As Hard as They Fought Japs

Shanghai, April 27 (AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek today predicted China will be the battleground of a terrifying third world war if the Communists are not defeated.

Breaking a three month silence since his retirement from the presidency Jan. 21, Chiang called for support of the government of acting President Li Tsung-Jen. He spoke at the opening of the Kuomintang (government) party.

As Chiang's statement was released by the Central News Agency, a dailer foreigners (Shanghai), about 50 miles west of Shanghai, were evacuated in some way. Some sources said the communists had taken Soochow but the Shanghai garrison insisted the Nationalists still held the important rail junction.

Chiang's statement bore a chilkow datoline, but both Chinese and foreign newspapers insisted the Generalissimo was in Shanghai.

Chiang called on his people to fight as hard against Communism as they did against the Japanese in eight years of war.

The Generalissimo said the Reds by crossing the Yangtze, had bloodied into the same military errors that mired the Japanese in their conquest of China.

"The Red army represented the "peak of Communist military development." It will bring the Reds "face to face with the tangling mass of military, political and economic problems, which will eventually result in their downfall.

"I am certain," he said "that as long as we carry on the struggle the Communists can neither destroy nor destroy our country. Within three years the whole victory will be ours."

Chiang said his government realized that Communism was a problem of international implications that China alone could not settle. If that problem in China could be solved by negotiation, peaceful and political means, he felt that it would help establish a basis for world peace.

Chiang charged the Reds have no intention for peace. Recent actions "prove that the ultimate aim of the Communists remains the conquest and final subjugation of China so that this country could be conveniently used as a base for the third world war and the people be made cannon fodder for aggressive world communism."

He called Communist Mao Tze-tung "the more dangerous traitor to China than the Japanese puppet Wang Ching-Wei (President of Japanese-controlled China during the war), who, during the war tried to set up individual peace with the Japanese."

STILL RECEIVES ANSWERS

Dover, Del., April 27 (AP) — Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg, held on a murder charge in the "Lonely Hearts" slaying of an elderly man, is still receiving answers to a magazine advertisement in which she sought employment as a housekeeper, police said yesterday.

OFFICERS' MESS AT ARMOURIES OF PICTON BURNS

Damage Will Run Into Thousands of Dollars but Not Estimated

Picton.—The Officers' Mess at Picton Armouries was completely destroyed by fire early last evening. The excellent work of Picton fire brigade and the fire brigade of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) kept the fire confined to the south end of the building and the mess.

Damage will run into thousands of dollars and has not yet been estimated.

Thirty feet of the asphalt roof above the mess was burned off.

Trophies Lost

Lost were irreplacable trophies of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and all the luxurious furnishings. The mess had been modernized and decorated last Fall.

Interior of the Armouries, painted two years ago, was blackened by dense smoke.

Also lost were several of the regimental badminton club trophies, which were to be awarded tonight. An official inspection by Brig. G. W. Gibson, D.S.O., O.B.E., commanding Eastern Ontario area, was set for Thursday night.

Colors Rescued

The Hasty P's regimental colors kept in the orderly room below the mess, were rescued by Sgt. Art Miller, who climbed a ladder and entered through a window when dense smoke made entrance through the main building impossible.

The mess was built across the south end of the Armouries. The fire was kept upstairs.

Contents of the sergeants' mess, ammunition, guns, and other equipment in basement was carried to safety.

The Armouries floor was flooded by water as was the orderly room of the H.P.E. Regiment but records were saved.

Cause Unknown

The building is of brick with steel girders and asphalt roof, so the fire was confined to the section where there was wood.

Cause of outbreak is unknown.

It was discovered by John Deering, a passer-by at 6 p.m.

Officers commanding "C" Co., is Major R. W. Young, and of "D" Coy., Major Mrs. Graydon, the Mess President is Dayton Wark. No statements from them were forthcoming.

Thousands watched the heroic battle for an hour by firemen when they got it under control.

Built in 1914, the Armouries cost $36,000 at that time.

Next Step Yet To be Taken In Hanging Probe

Toronto, April 27. (CP)—Attorney-General's department officials said today no decision has been made on the next step in the investigation of the mysterious death of Mrs. Evelyn Dick.

Mrs. Kent, 61, was found hanging from a basement beam by a bannister of her home near Ennero, 10 miles northwest of Woodstock, last March 2. Early Tuesday a coroner's jury ruled the death was not suicide.

Oxford County Crown Attorney Cecil McKay yesterday conferred with W. B. Common, director of public prosecutions for Ontario, on the case. Department officials said the evidence still is being studied.

U.K. REPORTED READY TO ACCEPT BLOCKADE TERMS

Message Has Been Sent To U.S. Government

London, April 27 (AP)—Britain will accept Russia's terms for lifting the blockade of Berlin, an official British source said tonight.

The informant said Britain's willingness has been conveyed to the United States Government.

The two governments have been in close consultation on the Moscow offer.

Moscow radio announced yesterday Russia would end the blockade if the western powers at the same time would lift their counter-blockade of East Germany and set a date for a meeting of the Big Four Foreign Ministers to discuss a peace settlement for Germany as a whole.

Confer In N.Y.

New York, (AP) — American and Russian representatives will confer in New York today in a continuation of their talks on the lifting of the Berlin blockade, a United Nations spokesman announced.

No information on the talks will be given out immediately after the meeting, the spokesman said. Whatever information is given out is expected to come from a press conference later in the day, at Lake Success.

The United States hopes to learn at this meeting whether Russia is ready to lift the blockade of Berlin without attaching unacceptable conditions.

Lake Success, N.Y.,— (CP)— The United States was expected to learn today whether there are any hitches in the Russian proposal for lifting the Berlin blockade.

A meeting was tentatively scheduled to be held in New York between Jakob Malik, Russian deputy foreign minister and Philip C. Jessup, United States ambassador-at-large.

Informed sources said the talks definitely were scheduled for today. Later United States State department officials said—privately—that they expect to obtain the strict secrecy of the Jessup-Malik meeting. The conferences—that the next meeting would take place "soon".

Indian and S. African Ministers Meet

London, April 27 — (Reuters) —The first private meeting between Indian and South African prime ministers took place today when Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru invited Dr. Daniel Malan to tea.

This is the first personal contact between top ranking ministers of the two countries since India broke trade relations with South Africa and withdrew her high commissioner three years ago.

Informed quarters are cautious in attaching political significance to the meeting. It is known, however, that members of the Indian delegation are appreciative of the helpful and sympathetic role played by South Africa during the current Commonwealth talks.

Acheson Asks Congress to Approve Atlantic Pact, Arms Aid Program

Washington, April 27. (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson appeared pleased with Congress today to approve both the North Atlantic Treaty and the proposed $1,450,000,000 Arms Aid program to bolster "world-wide security".

Acheson testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at the opening of hearings on the pact which was signed April 4. It requires approval by two-thirds of the Senate before it can be ratified.

Acheson told the committee the 12-country security treaty and the foreign military assistance program parallel ways of building world security and said he believes both are necessary.

But he met head-on one of the biggest questions raised by some congressional critics by saying that the treaty does not formally bind Congress to approve the projected military program.

Both the treaty and the arms assistance program are aimed at "building the security and strength against fears of Russian aggression.

Acheson himself told the Senate-Russia's supreme willingness to lift the Berlin blockade in favor of Big Four talks on the whole German problem.

But even in advance of his appearance, there was no sign in the Senate that the drive for ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty would be slowed even if the Berlin Air Lift can be abandoned.

Controversial Gifts Act Issue in Vote For the PC Leadership

Toronto, April 27. (CP)—Ontario's controversial Charitable Gift Act ranks as a surprise issue in today's voting on a new leader of the Progressive Conservative Party in Ontario.

Kelso Roberts, the only one of the four candidates not a member of the provincial government, started the three-day leadership convention Wednesday night by urging in his formal nomination speech that caucus of Progressive Conservative members in the legislature be called to review the bill passed at the last session.

Apparently the "secret weapon" the 50-year-old railway lawyer previously promised to unveil at the convention, the announcement was greeted with mingled applause and boos. But it was the theme of corridor and hotel room gossip far into the night.

The other three leadership candidates all had a hand in the measure which prohibits charitable foundations from owning more than a 10-per-cent interest in any private business.

Affects Atkinson Foundation, which owns the Toronto Star and Star Weekly. Hon. Leslie Frost, provincial treasurer, introduced the bill. Hon. Leslie Blackwell, attorney-general, and Hon. Dana Porter, minister of Education, supported it in the bitter House debate which preceded the passing.

Supporters of Mr. Roberts were openly confident Wednesday night that this new issue in the 50-year-old party will be a vote getter. Other delegates felt that the situation was unchanged and that Mr. Frost still rued as favorite, with Mr. Blackwell a close third. Mr. Roberts third and Mr. Porter fourth.

Asbestos Corp Superintendent Shot to Death

Quebec, April 27 — (CP) — Provincial police said here today that Edward L. Rainboth, general superintendent of Asbestos Corporation, was found shot to death early today in his home at Thetford Mines, Que.

Asbestos Corporation is one of several companies affected by a strike of 5,000 eastern township asbestos workers.

The report to Quebec Provincial Police said the death was due to gunfire but was not certain as to whether there had been one or more shots.

Rainboth, described as a man in his fifties, was said to have been found dead in his bed at Thetford Mines.

An inquest is to be held by Megantic coroner Eugene Lacerte.

Stab Wounds Found in Neck Of Dead Woman

Chicago, April 27 — (AP) — A well-to-do widow was found dead in her blood-spattered bathroom Tuesday night. She had six stab wounds in the neck.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Hazel Crawford, 56, was found bedded with a pair of scissors found nearby. They said her death was "probably murder".

Mrs. Grinde lived with her daughter, 27, who was found dead the body when she returned from an evening visit with a friend. Allies said the daughter also summoned a mortician to take the body away.

The stab wounds were discovered by the mortician after the body was taken from the home.

Quick Wheeling Saves Four Lives

Thorold, April 27 — (CP) — Quick wheeling saved the lives of four occupants of an automobile Tuesday evening when the car was struck a glancing blow by the Welland-bound N. S. and T. trolley.

The auto was driven by Edward J. Crawford of St. Catharines. In the car were Mrs. Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Colbert of Thorold South.

Crawford failed to see the trolley in the dark until he was right at the level crossing. He turned his car quickly along the right of way and the trolley, in charge of Joseph McPhee of St. Catharines, and the car slammed into each other at the rear end of the trolley.

Only occupant of the car to sustain injuries was Mrs. Colbert who was thrown against the windshield, breaking the glass.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Welland, April 27 (CP)—John William Christian, 27, Welland war veteran and father of two children was committed for trial here today by Magistrate T. George Street on the charge of murdering Jacob Koabel, 68-year-old Humberstone township farmer on April 13 last.

The trial has been set for the fall assizes, Sept. 6.

CAMPAIGN BEGINS RIGHT ON FLOOR OF PARLIAMENT

Budget Debate Used As a Springboard

Ottawa, April 27 (CP) — The general election campaign began yesterday—right on the floor of the House of Commons.

Members of all parties used the three-day budget debate as a convenient vehicle for speeches aimed at winning the support of the Canadian voter.

Election was the dominant theme of the debate and one of the opposition's big guns, John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), produced a charge that the government was calling an election to screen the fact that major trade crisis is developing for Canada.

Citing figures to show that exports have fallen sharply, he said the government was afraid of the trade crisis and wanted an election before it developed.

"And while our markets tumble," he said tartly, "the Prime Minister is away."

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) came right out and said it was obvious that the campaign already had started while Ian Sinclair (CCF—Hamilton East) said the C.C.F. group felt the time has come for a vote and was pleased that the government had called an election.

Mrs. MacDonald Given Five Years For Manslaughter

Toronto, April 27 (CP)— Mrs. Grace MacDonald, 32-year-old mother convicted of manslaughter in the paring-knife slaying of her husband, today was sentenced to five years in Kingston Pen.

As sentence was passed, the young Toronto woman told Mr. Justice A. M. Ashell: "I won't go to jail for five years. I'd rather be dead."

Mr. Justice LeBel recommended that Mrs. MacDonald be placed "in a provincial institution where you can receive medical attention."

"We must consider your age, that you are of frail physique and afflicted with mental ailment, as well as the fact that the psychiatrist feels you should be in an institution."

Before passing sentence, the Supreme Court Justice told Mrs. MacDonald "the crime is a serious one for which the maximum sentence may be imposed."

"It cannot overlook that you have been found guilty of a serious charge but there are factors in your favor. And it is not as if a crime of passion committed during a quarrel when you were acting under extreme provocation."

The quarrel which led to the death of the 27-year-old MacDonald last January was said to have arisen from his unwillingness to let his wife visit her sister in hospital. Evidence was given that the husband had beaten his wife several times before she picked up a knife to protect herself.

Princess Margaret Arrives at Naples On Italian Tour

Naples, Italy, April 27, — (AP) —Princess Margaret arrived in Naples today for a month's tour of Italy.

British Ambassador Sir Victor Mallet and the Italian Foreign Office chief of Protocol, Quaranie Sansevertni, as well as scores of reporters and photographers were there to greet her.

Strict police precautions barred the airport to all but bearers of a special pass issued by the Prefect of Naples.

London, April 27. (Reuters) Princess Margaret left London airport this morning in a chartered Viking plane on the King's flight on the first stage of her four-week tour of Italy. She was due to land at Naples airport this afternoon.

The princess flew southeast to Naples with the Princess—Lady Mary Cambridge, her lady-in-waiting; Miss Robin MacDonald, her personal secretary, and a secretary detective.

Princess Margaret's plans include a stay in Naples tonight, a visit to the Isle of Capri and visits to Sorrento, Rome, Florence, Venice and Siena.

Make Punishment Fit Criminal Not His Crime

Kitchener, April 27 (CP)—Despite the fact that "insecurity and bad social conditions are the main causes of delinquency," Mrs. Dermid, director of the K-W Women's Canadian Club Tuesday night that the object in Britain "is not to make the punishment fit the criminal, but the crime."

Mrs. Korrah, Deputy Magistrate of Tower Hill Juvenile Court in London, England, said Britain faced special problems by children's parents killed or maimed in battle.

"It is small wonder they are emotionally disturbed and get into trouble," she said, adding that a lasting peace and feeling of security are the major needs to reduce juvenile delinquency.

Sent to Trial On Murder Count

Welland, April 27 (CP) —John William Christian, 27, today was committed for trial on a charge of murdering 68-year-old Jacob Koabel.

Koabel was found bludgeoned to death in a chicken coop three miles south of her on April 13.

Christian, a father of two children, will stand trial at the Supreme Court Fall Assizes, tentatively set for April 11.

Christian was arrested and charged with the murder several hours after the body was found, who had befriended him was found lying over a barrel in his chicken coop.

Police said Koabel found Christian sleeping in the coop and the day before the killing, and fed him. Koabel, who later left for breakfast in look for work.

Christian, married with 68-year-old Norman Barkhardt in an old cabin at Dain City, a railway junction south of here.

He was struck over the head several times witha blunt instrument.

WINDSOR MAN CONVICTED

London, Ont., April 27 — (CP) — Howard Asselstine, 33, of Windsor was convicted by an assize court jury today of manslaughter in the Highway death Dec. 4 last of Reginald Hipperson, 28, of Ingersoll. The jury deliberated 1½ hours. He will be sentenced later.

India Allowed In Commonwealth As a Republic

Statement to be Released After Visit to King George

London, April 27 — With major difficulties surmounted, delegates to the Commonwealth conference today prepared to meet again to put final touches on a statement outlining their historic recognition of crown and republic within one family of nations.

The statement was to be released later today simultaneously in the capitals of each of the eight participating countries. It was considered likely that the document would be made public about midnight (7 p.m. EDT).

The statement is understood to contain provision for allowing India to remain an integral part of the Commonwealth after she assumes republican status in the near future.

Final talks, which started Friday and were expected to end today, were described as "unofficially spirit of co-operation, delegates said.

Delegates were expected to go to Buckingham Place and address King George VI at luncheon before publication of the document.

Statute Not Impaired

Present bonds of association, set down in the statute of Westminster in 1931, will not be impaired. All but India will still recognize a common allegiance to the Crown.

The conference's announcement was expected only to provide a supplement to the present bonds to allow republican states —who would not hold allegiance to the Crown—to maintain Commonwealth status.

Many former bonds will still remain between India and other Commonwealth countries. Common heritage, custom and community of interest have always been considered as important as watered inks—although not set down by them.

The changes were expected to mean Prime Minister Nehru of India predicted before the conference leaving in "form only."

When India became a republic Prime Minister will act as head of the state in place of the King or representative. The business of the state will be carried on in the name of the republic, not in the name of the crown.

Canada, Britain and the other Dominions the King, or his representative will continue to act as head of state. Their governments will continue to act on in the name of the crown.

Rev. Harvey J. Scuse Appointed Rector Of Cannington

Kingston, April 27 (CP)—Appointment of Rev. Harvey J. Scuse, curate of St. George's cathedral, as rector of the parish of Cannington in the diocese of Toronto, was announced today. He will take over his new charge on June 1.

Rev. Scuse was formerly curate of the Church of St. John the Apostle in Toronto.

The parish of Cannington consists of three appointments, Sunderland, Cannington and Beaverton.

Banned Parade Of Red Demonstrators In Calcutta Fired on

Calcutta, April 27 (Reuters) — Police today fired on a banned procession of Communist demonstrators. Two persons were killed and a dozen more taken to hospital.

The police opened fire after making skalti (staves) charge. Then they used tear gas.

Crude hand grenades were thrown at the police, when the procession was intercepted.

The parade was organized in defiance of a police ban.

Union Outlines Terms to End Shipping Strike

(By The Canadian Press)

Termination of the east-coast seamen's strike, which in less that four weeks has tied up two-thirds of the Canadian fleet in world ports, was placed in the hands of the Federal government and shipping operators Wednesday night by Harry Davis, President of the striking Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.)

Solitary basis of ending the strike, he said, was the renewal of contracts between the C.S.U. and deep-sea shipping operators.

Meanwhile, violence flared briefly. In Saint Jonn, N.B., two R.C.M.P. officers were slightly injured in a scuffle with pickets; Halifax police said two members of the C.S.U. had reported they were attacked; and in Montreal, Gerald Dube, 23, told police he was beaten up and knifed by four men near the waterfront.

Addressing some 150 representatives of 47 individual trade unions in Toronto, Davis said that "the C.S.U. is prepared to end the east coast strike tomorrow if the Federal government would agree to a meeting with deep-sea operators.

Said to be Communist-led, the strike began after attempts to negotiate a new contract between the C.S.U. and the deep-sea operators broke down when the operators signed on crews on the rival Seafarers' International Union.

In other parts of the world affected by the strike, the crew of the Canadian ship Cumberland County dropped work yesterday in Capetown after receiving instructions from the C.S.U. headquarters in Montreal.

Twenty-six members of the Canadian freighter Trifale were freed 14 days par when found guilty of disobeying their captain's command by refusing to sail with vessel from port in Wellington, N.Z.

The Steel Alts, first ship to arrive in Montreal sh's season, sailed for England yesterday with 2,500 tons of steel. The ship was tied up for several days by the crew, a spokesman of the C.S.U., until an injunction was taken out against them by the ship owners.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, April 27 — (CP) — Synopsis: Price air from Northern Ontario gave way over the southern part of the province last night bringing fine weather to all forecast regions. Except for a little more cloudiness in the northern and central parts of the province today, clear skies with little temperature change are expected throughout Ontario during the next 48 hours.

London, April 27 (AP)—Britain will accept Russia's terms for lifting the blockade of Berlin, an official British source said today.

The informant said Britain's willingness has been conveyed to the United States Government. The two governments have been in close consultation on the Moscow offer.

Moscow radio announced yesterday Russia would end the blockade if the western powers at the same time would lift their counter-blockade of East Germany and set a date for a meeting of the Big Four Foreign Ministers to negotiate a settlement for Germany as a whole.

Confer In N.Y.

New York, (AP) — American and Russian United Nations will meet in New York today in a conference aimed at ending the partitioning of the Berlin blockade, a United States spokesman announced.

No information on the talks will be given out immediately after the meeting, the spokesman said, "whatever information is given out is expected to come from a press conference later in the day, at Lake Success.

The United States hopes to learn at this meeting whether Russia is ready to lift the blockade of Berlin without attaching unacceptable conditions.

Lake Success, N.Y., — (CP) — The United States was expected to learn today whether there are any hidden "jokers" in Russian proposals for lifting the Berlin blockade.

A meeting was tentatively scheduled to be held in New York between Jakob Malik, Russian deputy foreign minister, and Philip C. Jessup, United States ambassador-at-large.

Informed sources said the talks definitely were scheduled for today. Malik and Jessup met last week.

Controversial Gifts Act Issue in Vote For the PC Leadership

Toronto, April 27. (CP)—Ontario's controversial Charitable Gifts Act ranks as a surprise issue in today's voting on a new leader of the Progressive Conservative Party in Ontario.

Kelso Roberts, the only one of the four candidates not a member of the provincial government, started the Conservative leadership convention Wednesday night by urging in his formal nomination speech that caucus of Progressive Conservative members of the legislature be asked to review the bill passed at the last session.

Apparently the current weapon of the 30-year-old mining lawyer previously grounded to unveil at the convention, the announcement was greeted with mingled applause and boos. But it was the theme of corridor and hotel room gossip far into the night.

The other three leadership candidates all had a hand in the measure which prohibits charitable foundations from owning more than a 25-per-cent interest in any private business.

It affects the Atkinson Foundation, which owns the Toronto Star and Star Weekly. Hon. Leslie Frost, provincial treasurer, introduced the bill. Hon. Leslie Frost, the victory-general, and Hon. Dana Porter, minister of education, supported it in the bitter House debate which preceded passing.

Supporters of Mr. Roberts were openly confident Wednesday night that this new issue would help him win the voting first. Other delegates felt that the situation was unchanged and that Mr. Frost still ruled as favorite, with Mr. Blackwell a close second, Mr. Roberts third and Mr. Porter fourth.

CAMPAIGN BEGINS RIGHT ON FLOOR OF PARLIAMENT

Budget Debate Used As a Springboard

Ottawa, April 27 (CP) — The general election campaign began yesterday—right on the floor of the House of Commons.

Members of all parties used the free-wheeling budget debate as a convenient vehicle for speeches aimed at winning the support of the Canadian voter.

Election was the dominant theme of the debate and one of the opposition's big guns, John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), produced a charge that the government was calling an election to screen the fact that a major trade crisis is developing for Canada.

Citing figures to show that exports have been changing, he said the government was afraid of the trade crisis and wanted an election before it developed.

"And what's the results tomorrow," he said tartly, "The prime minister travels."

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) came right out and said it was wrong that the campaign already had started while C. J. Bradley (PC—South Carrent) said the C.C.F. group felt the time had come for a vote and that everyone knew the government had called an election.

India Allowed In Commonwealth As a Republic

Statement to be Released After Visit to King George

London, April 27 (CP) — With major difficulties surmounted, delegates to the Commonwealth conference today planned to meet again to put final touches on a statement outlining their historic recognition of crown and republic within one family of nations.

The statement was to be released later today simultaneously in the capitals of each of the eight participating countries. It was considered likely that the document would be made available public midnight (7 p.m. EDT).

The statement is understood to contain provisions to allow India to remain an integral part of the Commonwealth after she assumes republican status in the future.

The talks, which started Friday and were expected to end today, were conducted in a most spirit of co-operation, delegates said.

Delegates were expected to go to Buckingham Palace to advise the King of their decision before publication of the document.

Statute Not Impaired

Present bonds of association, set down on the statute of Westminster in 1931, will not be impaired. All but India will still recognize a common allegiance to the Crown.

The conference's announcement was expected only to provide a supplement to the present bonds to allow republican states —who would not hold allegiance to the Crown—to maintain Commonwealth status.

Many former bonds will still remain between the new and old Commonwealth countries. Common heritage, custom and community of interest have always been the most important and understood links—although not set down by law.

No changes were expected to be—as Prime Minister Nehru of India predicted before the conference—a change in "form only."

When India becomes a republic its Prime Minister will at the head of the state in place of the King or representative. The business of the state will be carried on in the name of the republic, not in the name of the monarch.

In Canada, Britain and the other Dominions, the King or his representative will continue to be the head of state. Their governments will continue to act on the name of the crown.

Union Outlines Terms to End Shipping Strike

(By The Canadian Press)

Termination of the east-coast seamen's strike, which in less that four weeks has tied up two-thirds of the Canadian fleet in world ports, was placed in the hands of the Federal government and shipping operators Wednesday night by Harry Davis, President of the striking Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.)

Settlement hinged on ending the strike, he said, was the renewal of contracts between C.S.U. and deep-sea shipping operators.

Meanwhile, violence flared briefly. In Saint John, N.B., two R.C.M.P. officers were slightly injured in a scuffle with pickets. Halifax police said two members of the C.S.U. had reported they were attacked; and in Montreal, Gerald Doucet, 33, told police he was beaten up and knifed by four men near the waterfront.

Meanwhile, some 150 representatives of 47 individual trade unions in Toronto, Davis said that "the C.S.U. is prepared to end its east coast strike tomorrow if the Federal government would arrange a meeting with deep-sea operators.

Said to be Communist-led, the union began after refusing to negotiate a new contract between the C.S.U. and the deep-sea operators in January, when the operators signed on crews on the privately owned British ship Cumberland.

In other parts of the world affected by the strike, the crew of the Canadian ship Cumberland County stopped work yesterday in Uruguay until they got instructions from C.S.U. headquarters in Montreal.

Twenty-six members of the Canadian freighter Tri-Iris were fined 14 days pay when found guilty of disobeying their captain's command to refuse to sail the vessel from her berth in Welland, Ont.

The Mont Alta, first ship to be tied up almost 40 days by the strike, sailed for England yesterday with a S.U.U. crew aboard. The ship was tied up in Montreal's ice season, called for England yesterday with a S.U.U. crew aboard. The ship was tied up in Montreal's ice season, called for England yesterday by its crew, all members of the C.S.U., until a settlement was taken out against them by the ship owners.

OFFICERS' MESS AT ARMOURIES OF PICTON BURNS

Damage Will Run Into Thousands of Dollars but Not Estimated

Picton—The Officers' Mess at Picton Armouries was completely destroyed by fire early last evening. The excellent work of Picton fire brigade and the fire brigade of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) kept the fire confined to the south end of the building and to one room.

Damage will run into thousands of dollars and has not yet been estimated.

Thirty feet of the asphalt roof above the mess was burned off.

Trophies Lost

Lost were irreplaceable trophies of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and all the luxurious furnishings. The mess had been modernized and decorated last Fall.

Interior of the Armouries, painted two years ago, was blackened by dense smoke.

Also lost were several of the regimental badminton club trophies, which were to be awarded tonight. An official inspection by Brig. C. Walsh, C.B.E., D.S.O., commanding Eastern Ontario area, was set for Thursday night.

Colors Rescued

The Hasty Pt regimental colors kept in the orderly room below the mess, were rescued by Sgt. Art Miller, who climbed a ladder and entered through a window when dense smoke made entrance through the main building impossible.

The mess was built across the south end of the Armouries. The fire was kept upstairs.

Contents of the sergeants' mess, ammunition, guns, and other equipment in basement was carried to safety.

The Armouries floor was flooded by water as soon as the orderly room of the H.P.E.R. Regiment had records were saved.

Cause Unknown

The building is of brick with steel girders and asphalt roof, so the fire was confined to the section where there was no roof.

Cause of outbreak is unknown.

It was discovered by John Deering, a passer-by at 6.35 p.m. Officers commanding "C" Co., Major W. R. Young, and of "D" Co., Major W. Graydon, M.C., Mess President is Captain Ward.

No statements from them were forthcoming.

Thousands watched the heroic battle for an hour by firemen when they got it under control.

Built in 1914, the Armouries cost $88,000 at that time.

Next Step Yet To be Taken In Hanging Probe

Toronto, April 27. (CP)—Attorney-General's department officials said today no decision had been made on the next step in the investigation of the mysterious hanging of Mrs. Louise Kent.

Mrs. Kent, 51, was found hanging from a rope stung over the banister of her home near Enniboro, 10 miles northwest of Woodstock, last March 3. Early Tuesday a coroner's jury ruled the death was not suicide.

Oxford County Crown Attorney Craig McKay yesterday conferred with W. B. Common, director of public prosecutions for Ontario, on the case. Department officials said the evidence still is being studied.

Asbestos Corp. Superintendent Shot to Death

Quebec, April 27 (CP) — Provincial police said today that Edward L. Rainboth, secretary superintendent of Asbestos Corporation, was found shot to death early today in his home at Thetford Mines, Que.

Asbestos Corporation is one of several companies affected by a strike of 5,000 workers in the asbestos workers.

The report to Quebec Provincial Police said the death was due to gunfire but was not clear as to whether there had been one or more shots.

Rainboth, described as a man in his fifties, was said to have been found dead in his home in Thetford Mines.

An inquest is to be held by Megantic coroner Eugene Lacerte.

Stab Wounds Found in Neck Of Dead Woman

Chicago, April 27 — (AP) — A well-to-do widow was found dead in her bedroom Wednesday morning of a knife stab wound in the neck.

Police said the woman, Mrs. Hazel Grinde, 56, had been stabbed with a pair of scissors near-by. They said her death was "positively a murder."

Mrs. Grinde lived with her daughter, Alice, 27, who found the body when she returned from an evening visit with a friend. Alice called a neighbor who summoned a physician, but he found body away.

The stab wounds were discovered by the mortician after the body was taken from the home.

Quick Wheeling Saves Four Lives

Thorold, April 27 — (CP) — Quick wheeling saved the lives of four occupants of a motorless bus Tuesday evening when the car was struck a glancing blow by the Welland-Port Dalhousie No. 8 trolley.

The auto was driven by Edward J. Crawford of St. Catharines. In the car were also Mrs. Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Colbert of Thorold township.

Crawford failed to see the trolley in the rain until he was right in front of it, he reported. He swerved his car quickly along the right of way and struck the bus, in charge of Samuel McPherson of St. Catharines, and the two slithered into each other at the rear step of the trolley.

Only quick action of the car to sustain any injuries was Mr. Colbert, who was cut on the face by windshield, breaking the glass.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Welland, April 27 (CP)—John William Christian, 27, Welland war veteran and father of two children was committed for trial here today by Magistrate T. George Street on the charge of murdering Jacob Kosabel, 68-year-old Humberstone township farmer on April 13 last.

The trial has been set for the fall assizes, Sept. 6.

Mrs. MacDonald Given Five Years For Manslaughter

Toronto, April 27 (CP)— Mrs. Grace MacDonald, 25-year-old mother convicted of manslaughter in the shooting death of her husband, today was sentenced to five years in prison.

As sentence was passed, the young Toronto woman told Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel: "I won't go to jail for five years. I'd rather die."

Mr. Justice LeBel recommended that Mrs. MacDonald be placed "in a provincial institution where you can receive medical attention."

"We must consider your age, that you have a child and are afflicted with a physical ailment, as well as the fact that the psychiatrist feels you should be in an institution."

Before passing sentence, the Supreme Court Justice told Mrs. MacDonald that because is a serious one for which the maximum sentence may be imposed.

"I cannot overlook that you have been found guilty of a serious charge but there are factors in your favor. One is that it was a jury of your fellow citizens including a quarrel and when you were acting under extreme provocation."

The quarrel which led to the death of the 27-year-old MacDonald last January was said to have been caused by his unwillingness to have his wife visit her sister in Hamilton. Evidence was given that the husband had beaten his wife several times before she picked up a knife to protect herself.

Princess Margaret Arrives at Naples On Italian Tour

Naples, Italy, April 27 — (AP) —Princess Margaret arrived in Naples today for a month's tour of Italy.

British Ambassador Sir Victor Mallet and the Allied Force Region Office's chief of staff Protezio Quarone Sanservini, as well as scores of reporters and photographers were on hand to greet her.

Strict police precautions barred the airport to all but bearers of official passes issued by the Prefect of Naples.

London, April 27. (Reuters) —Princess Margaret left London's Heathrow airport in a twin-engined Viking plane of British European Airways at the first stage of her four-week tour of Italy. She was due to arrive in Naples airport this afternoon.

A party of three travelled to Naples with the princess—Lady Mary Harvey, her lady-in-waiting; Miss Jean MacDonald, her personal maid; and a Scotland Yard detective.

Princess Margaret's plans include a visit to Rome, a visit to Capri, and visits to Sorrento, Rome, Florence, Venice and Siena.

Sent to Trial On Murder Count

Welland, April 27 (CP) —John William Christian, 27, today was committed for trial on a charge of murdering Jacob Kosabel, 68.

Kosabel was found bludgeoned to death in a chicken coop three miles south of her on April 13.

Christian, a father of two children, will stand trial at the Supreme Court Fall Assizes, tentatively set for April 6.

Christian was arrested and charged with the murder several hours after the body of the man he had allegedly killed was found slumped over a barrel in his chicken coop.

Police said Kosabel found Christian sleeping in his woodshed the day before the killing, and that Christian, who later left for Hamilton, had to look for work.

Kosabel lived with 68-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Jacobs in a log cabin at Dain City, a railway junction south of here.

Mrs. Jacobs was over the head three times withe blunt instrument.

WINDSOR MAN CONVICTED

London, Ont., April 27 — (CP) —Howard Asseltine, 23, of Windsor was fined $100 by an assizes court jury today of manslaughter in the highway death Dec. 4 last of Angelo Dipperzo, 36, of Ingersoll. The jury deliberated 1½ hours. He will be sentenced later.

Banned Parade Of Red Demonstrators In Calcutta Fired on

Calcutta, April 27 (Reuters) — Police today fired on a banned procession of Communist demonstrators, injuring seven and killing two, a spokesman for the Calcutta Police Commissioner's office announced.

The police opened fire after making aleahi (steam) charges. Then they used tear gas.

Crude hand grenades were also used by police, when the procession was intercepted.

The procession was organized in defiance of a police ban.

Acheson Asks Congress to Approve Atlantic Pact, Arms Aid Program

Washington, April 27. (AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson pleaded with Congress today to approve both the North Atlantic Treaty and the proposed $1,450,000,000 Arms Aid program to bolster "world-wide security."

Acheson appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at the opening of hearings on the pact on which was signed here April 4 by representatives of 12 nations.

A two-thirds vote of the Senate is needed for ratification.

The Cabinet officer termed the Atlantic treaty and the proposed foreign military assistance program parallel ways of building world security and said he believed both are necessary.

But he made it plain as one of the biggest questions raised by some Congressmen, director of the foreign military assistance program, pending in Congress for approving the projected military program.

Both the treaty and the arms assistance program are aimed frankly at building up western strength to discourage Soviet aggression.

Acheson himself told the Senators that the two measures stem from Soviet Foreign policies, declaring:

"The sense of insecurity prevalent in western Europe is not a figment of the imagination—it has been created by the unscrupulous actions of the Soviet Union."

Following up the 4,500-word statement did Acheson mention Russia specifically toward the end of his war—Russia's apparent willingness to lift the Berlin blockade in favor of Big Four talks on the whole German problem.

The term in advance of his appearance, there was no sign in Congress that the fight for ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty would be slowed even if the Berlin Air Lift can be abandoned.

Kiwanians Hear Of Optical Plant At Deseronto

This being Kiwanis International Goodwill Week, messages were received from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and President Harry Truman, extolling close cooperation between the two countries at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club held at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday.

The members also heard a description given by George Rickman of the new Optical plant recently located in Deseronto at which plant plastic frames are made for all types. One new member, Ken Soden was introduced by James Cowan and initiation fees were received by past president Ted Schwab. The president Norman Sprung, stated that the club fell down badly in achievement in the first quarter of the year and asked that all committee chairmen submit their monthly reports to him. The appeal was endorsed by Sid Rose, chairman of the achievement committee.

Mr. Rickman, who was introduced by Norman Smith, stated he was operating an all-Canadian company and invited the members passing through the eastern village to stop in and inspect the plant. He stated the company was formed by a group of Canadian citizens, who experienced great difficulties in the initial stages because they were all short of capital, both now and experience but perseverance had carried the company through and now was progressing satisfactorily. He believed that Canadians prefer to buy Canadian products made by Canadians.

Mr. Rickman stated that 25 per cent of their business was export and that the company was self-supported in U. S. dollars. He explained the methods of making plastic frames and believed that the product of the company was the best that could be procured. Vote of thanks of the club was expressed by Eric Cooper. John Gordon donated the attendance prize with Bill Maund being the winner.
